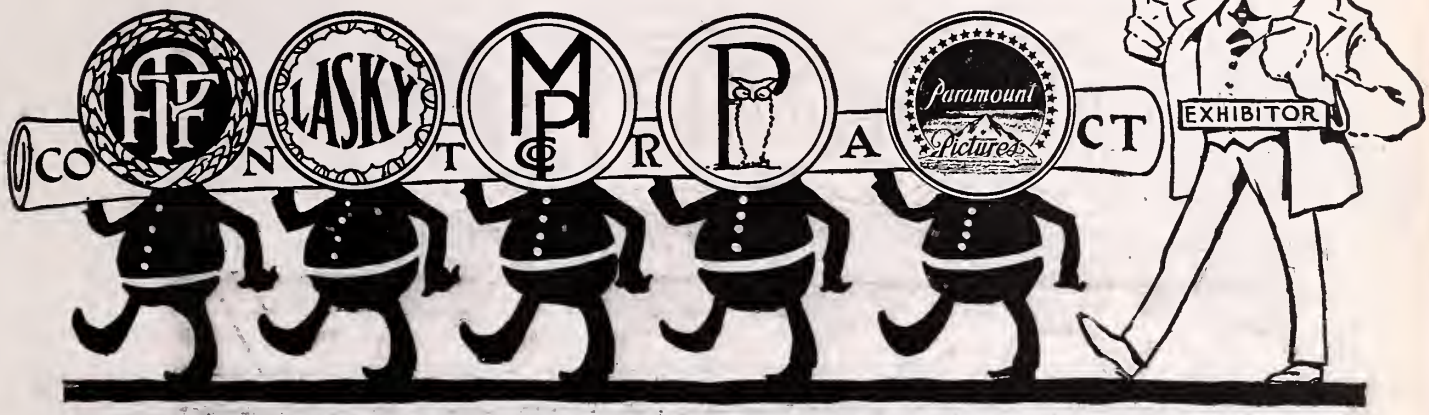
Quit Worrying



When the telephone business was organized, men quit worrying about communication.

When the automobile was put on a practical basis, men quit worrying about transportation.

When Paramount was organized, motion picture exhibitors quit worrying about their service.

Not till Paramount began its distribution of two supreme photoplays a week, 104 every year, did the motion picture business take on a semblance of stability.

Today, with thousands of exhibitors in the Paramount family, a Paramount contract remains the one solid guarantee of the success of a theatre.

With a Paramount contract you, too, can quit worrying about your program or its continuity through all that may happen next week or next year.

Paramount's stability is your strength and the guarantee that every week you will have two Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco or Pallas photoplays in your theatre, is the best reason in the world to join the family, and Quit Worrying.

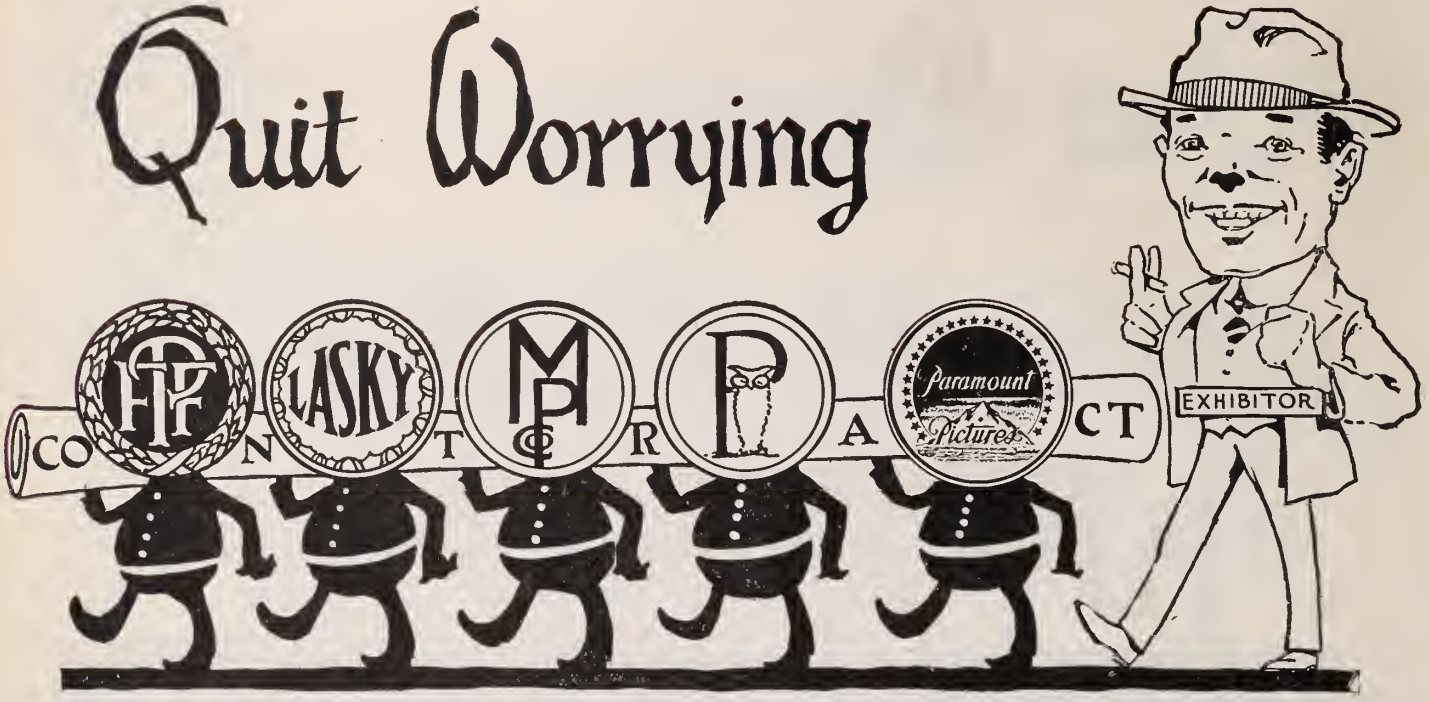
Paramount Pictures

Quit Worrying



Why worry when twice a week you get a photoplay that interests everybody and thrills a majority?

This week's releases are a peculiarly good example of the variety of the Paramount Program.

Owen Moore and Marguerite Courtot in "Rolling Stones"

Another great dramatic success adapted to the screen. A wise young business man plays the cards and unrolls a rollicking comedy with moments of real drama. A Famous Players production, released August 21st.

Mary Pickford Film Corporation

IN announcing the formation of the MARY PICKFORD FILM CORPORATION, I want to first express my gratitude for the co-operation of the exhibitors, everywhere, and also for the generous response of the public in bringing success to my efforts and various creations on the screen. Surely without either no one can have progressed and in my instance our work together has been so full of happiness that it makes doubly treasured the success that has come to us.

IN the selection of scenarios, the casting of companies, the direction, production and character creating of motion pictures I am sure that I have learned something every day and that I will keep on acquiring this knowledge. And that is just why I want to use it to the best advantage in guiding my own company which will now produce all of the plays in which I am to be seen. It is our purpose not only to give every detail of the Mary Pickford Film Corporation our unfaltering direction but to surround ourselves with the best brains, ability and skill in this wonderful art-industry.

IT will be our purpose and endeavor to make most complete, elaborate and art harmonizing productions—each of which is to stand out pre-eminently as a master work. The productions will be the best that are made. Each will have a cast of distinction, a direction of originality and creativeness, fine environment, its own especially written music—all with that dignity, simplicity and artistic ensemble that will make the best in motion pictures and attract the largest and most discriminating audiences. I want the Mary Pickford pictures to be seen in every theatre and play house in the country. We are delighted with the arrangements and broad plan of distribution made by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation which has been formed to handle them.

PROMPTED by your encouragement of the past, and for which I feel that I owe so much to you in aiding me to reach an ambitious attainment, I feel now that with this incentive and with the ever present confidence with which you have approved and admired my work that I can now reach still higher, giving you the supreme of our art endeavor—but always depending on your affectionate interest, for which I am now and always,

Gratefully, Mary Pickford

ARTCRAFT PICTURES
Distributors of the

WITH full confidence the ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION makes its entry into the film industry announcing that it has been organized to present and distribute film attractions that will evidence the highest attainments of the cinematographic art. For its initial undertaking it now offers to the exhibitor of America the productions of THE MARY PICKFORD FILM CORPORATION, in which will be presented exclusively the greatest artist in the history of the world of amusements.

MARY PICKFORD

No personality is so dominant in motion pictures as that of Mary Pickford. It is the crystalization of magnetism without a parallel in the history of either the spoken or the silent stage.

Every exhibitor knows that the advent of a new Mary Pickford picture means an event in the season of his theatre or playhouse. This has been the unfailing rule.

NOW, heading her own film corporation Mary Pickford with her wonderful art and great experience will bring to these productions a new life, a stronger drawing power and a more lasting charm, being alone and on no programme she will completely pervade the entertainment presented.

ES CORPORATION
Best in Motion Pictures

IT is Mary Pickford's desire that these new productions shall be the best ever presented on the screen; they will be limited in number, but unlimited in cost. She will be surrounded by the best brains, skill and creative resourcefulness obtainable in this art industry. Each production will be a master-work and artistic ensemble beyond compare—that will in every detail have the wondrous touch and never failing appeal of Mary Pickford.

IT is the purpose to present the Mary Pickford pictures everywhere. It is her own desire that they shall be seen in every theatre and motion picture house in the land. She comes to you alone with productions surpassing anything yet done on the screen, supporting casts of distinction, master direction—in all a complete harmonizing of every detail of the art in which she stands alone as its most popular and favored star—the incomparable Mary Pickford.

YOU owe it to your patrons to immediately arrange for these new and all appealing Mary Pickford productions in your theatre.

"Wednesdays Almost Doubled in Business"

HIPPODROME THEATRE
Cincinnati, Ohio, July 27th, 1916.

I wish to inform you of the success our theatre is enjoying directly from the serial story, "THE SECRET OF THE SUBMARINE."

Our Wednesdays have almost doubled in business; we ourselves, are interested in the story and we look forward to its coming with greater interest than any feature.

The acting is great and the photography excellent, the story, directing and the settings are far in advance of anything we have ever run on our curtain.

We feel thankful to you for interesting us in this serial and we cheerfully recommend it to all exhibitors that are skeptical of a serial.

Yours very truly,
THE HIPPODROME THEATRE
(Signed) O. J. SYBERT, Mgr.

This virile, patriotic photoplay (in 15 chapters) has proved the greatest drawing card ever shown in thousands of theatres. It gets the overflow profits!

Juanita Hanson, as Cleo Burke, and Thomas Chatterton, as Lieut. Hope, supported by a strong cast, give the screen gripping thrills and smashing climaxes that draw audiences to the edge of the seats, and hold them there till the end of the chapter.

The exciting pen story by E. Alexander Powell, is published in over a thousand prominent newspapers, and read by millions who insist on seeing the film every week.

Is Our Policy

THE principles which have made him the world's foremost merchant are identical with those, which, in less than a year and a half, have put V-L-S-E to the forefront.

> Founded on economic order and commercial justice, these principles recognize the right of the buyer to select that which suits his purposes best, and to pay for it, according to its individual merit.

There is nothing very startling about these ideas, only the fact that they were not applied in the film industry before.

Their overwhelming acceptance now is proof positive that the business men in this field are just as alert to "fair play" and bed-rock business principles, as in any other.

Blood isn't always thicker than water. "The Kid," for instance, didn't fall in the arms of the man who was her real father, even though they were ladened with riches. Rather, she turned to a down-in-the-hill newspaper man—the only protector she had ever known. But there was a big reason "why," and that makes for a story that grips the attention and the heart-strings.

Gentlemen:

On or about the first of last February we were on the lookout for good strong service to build up our Monday and Tuesday receipts at this theatre.

On February 28th, I began booking two of your first run pictures a week.

Since that date I have played almost all your regular releases, and all of your big "specials" as well, and I am pleased to advise you that Mondays and Tuesdays have picked up 25 to 30 per cent.

Your pictures have thoroughly pleased our patrons and we consider V. L. S. E. the very best on the market.

JUST A MOMENT, PLEASE!

This is frankly an advertisement.

It has some interesting things in it, tho, and you should read it.

We are really making good pictureplays; we are mixing brains with our work.

We are one of the biggest manufacturers of motion pictures in the world, with up-to-the-minute studios in Chicago and Los Angeles.

We have hundreds of stories written by the world's most popular authors. These stories are in course of production.

We have every modern facility to produce film dramas and comedies and steen other things which are worthy of the Exhibitor's serious consideration.

Just spark up a little, friend, when you get through. Just on the chance that we may be saying something.

Just possibly, it might increase your business.

Stranger things have happened!

"His Brother's Keeper," released Sept. 4 in General Film Company's regular service, features Eugenie Besserer in I. K. Friedman's strongest drama.

"Taming Grouchy Bill" is another of the Tom Mix Western comedies.

I know jewels: it used to be my business. I recognized the true fire and the light of genius in Clara Kimball Young, the moment I saw her work. Once a gem-judge—always. I put her in a proper setting—at the head of her own company. Her first production is being mounted now by Albert Capellini—"The Common Law," by Robert W. Chambers.

In October you will have an opportunity to contrast the most superb work of her career with "pasty" program performances. Tiffany days are at last dawning in the industry. The reign of the rhinestone is over.

The Federal Tax Situation

THE following letter has been received by registered mail with the urgent request that it be printed. It is simply a reflection of several other letters from small house owners, bearing upon the Federal revenue tax on picture theatres:

Mr. Wm. A. Johnston,
New York City.

Dear Sir: Your "Motion Picture News" is a great help to me in trying to manage a picture show, and I feel good when I can sit down and read it from cover to cover, but I don't see why so much fuss is raised about the new revenue tax on picture shows, as I have it figured out that it will be just half of what I am paying at present. Here are my yearly receipts: about $4000.00 at 1-2 of 1 per cent. equals $20.00 year, or at 2500 population on new tax, $20.00 year. On the present scale I have a 400-seat house and pay $50.00, or a little over 1 per cent. of gross receipts, so I don't think any small sized town is going to kick; and I believe it does no good for the little fellows to kick, but as soon as it hurts the big ones, you hear them say about half of them will have to close down.

Well, I have been paying 1 per cent. from the start of this license tax, so I say let the big fellow pay it awhile and see how he feels about it. And I wish to say that the new tax that I hope will go in effect is not as unjust to the exhibitors in general as the old tax.

I have a 400-seat house and use all seats once a week on Sunday show three days a week and pay just as much tax as my fellow exhibitors in St. Louis, who use or fill all seats four or five times every day in the week. I have been paying a little over 1 per cent., where my friend has been paying a few mills.

Trusting to receive an acknowledgment of this letter by letter or use of it in your "News," I am,

Yours respectfully,
Julius W. Schmidt, Manager.

WE are pleased to inform Mr. Schmidt and other exhibitors similarly affected that in all likelihood their tax will now be—not $50.00 or even $20.00—but $12.50 a year.

The Finance Committee of the Senate has just rendered its report, recommending to the Senate the restoration of the present law (taxing theatres by seating capacity) with an important amendment, "that in cities, towns or villages of 5,000 inhabitants or less the rate of tax shall be one-half of that which applies to cities, towns, or villages having a population in excess of 5,000."

THE tax by seating capacity, as imposed under the Federal Revenue Act of 1914, is as follows: Seating capacity not over 250, $25.00 a year; seating capacity not over 500, $50.00 a year; seating capacity of 500 to 800, $75.00 a year; seating capacity over 800, $100.00 a year.

By the amendment as proposed by the Senate Finance Committee, the above schedule will apply, as before, to all theatres in towns of 5,000 population and over. In towns of less than 5,000 inhabitants the schedule will be: $12.50, $25.00, $37.50 and $50.00.

This is, all in all, an excellent solution of a pressing situation. It aims to lighten the burden of taxation where it has been most heavily felt, namely, with the smaller houses, many of which were actually put out of business by the act of 1914.

THE Kitchin bill, of taxation by gross receipts, was as distinctly bad for the larger houses. The Senate Committee amendment, it would seem, is satisfactory to both classes of houses, the large and the small.

A large measure of credit is evidently due to the letter of Lee A. Ochs, president of the M. P. E. L. of America to Senator Hoke Smith, and equally to the able letters sent by Ligon Johnson, general counsel for the United Managers Protective Association and by M. C. Higgins, assistant international president of the Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Machine Operators.

AND decidedly a vote of thanks is due to these Democratic Senators: Simmons, of North Carolina; Hoke Smith, chairman of the sub-committee which had the theatre tax under consideration; William Hughes, of New Jersey, an active friend of the motion picture industry; Robert F. Broussard of Louisiana, who took it upon himself to champion the exhibitor's cause and who warned the committee of the power of the screen, and also to Congressman Jacob E. Meeker, who spoke effectively against the bill in the Lower House.

BUT the point of the whole matter—and of this editorial—is that the exhibitor is not yet out of the woods.

The statement is being carelessly made and published that the Kitchin bill is killed.

It is not. Perhaps it is on its way to destruction. We trust so. But it is by no means concluded.

THE Democratic majority of the Senate Finance Committee has offered a recommendation to the Senate. The Senate has still to act as a body. And after its action the house, which passed the Kitchin bill, must reverse entirely its action upon that part of the Federal Revenue Act relating to theatres.

It would seem that there is still work to do—upon Senators and upon Congressmen—in order to assure the favorable action by Congress of what stands only now as a committee recommendation. And we especially urge such action now, through exhibitors, upon their representatives in both Houses at Washington.

THE victory looks fine so far. But let's have it. Don't let us stop in mid-stream.

It is decidedly up to Mr. Schmidt and to all other exhibitors to act. Act now by writing your Congressman and Senator. And let your very next action be that of joining your state and national league.

It is organization that counts most at Washington. The screen has some weight but an organized screen is the power which will force legislative committees to listen carefully to your case and accede promptly to your just demands.

WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON.

A Prize Letter

IF we were offering a prize for the best exhibitor letter we would award it, hands down to H. L. S. Robinson, Robinson's theatre, Bedford, Virginia. We print the letter herewith and recommend its thoughtful reading by the novice eager to increase the already over-competition among picture theatres, by the exhibitor who needs a little stiffening of the backbone, and last but not least, by the producer and distributor of motion pictures.

We venture to predict that Mr. Robinson will become a successful exhibitor and a loyal worker for the exhibitor organization in his state and nation.

He has the right stuff in him.

Bedford, Virginia, August 6, 1916.

Motion Picture News, Inc.,
729 Seventh Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen: I have only been in the motion picture buisness since last May, but have succeeded in losing a couple of thousand dollars about as easy as sliding down a greased pole.

I got into the business through the ignorance or misrepresentation of a relative, without ever seeing the town or the theatre, just like lots of other suckers.

The theatre had the reputation of being a place where decent people could not go, and others did not go.

My brother, who was my partner, got out as soon as he found out what a proposition we were up against, but I used to bust bronks in the west years ago, and knew that some of the meanest horses that ever lived had been turned into the best of saddle animals, by proper handling, so I have stuck to this theatre on the same principle, and I am going to win out, and have as nice a business as any in a place of this size can be, before I get through, even if I have lost both legs and a large part of my interior anatomy, and have to get around in a wheel chair, or be carried by two men.

I have enjoyed your magazine very much, and have derived a great deal of information from it.

There is one thing about the picture business that "gets my goat," and it is this: Every exhibitor seems to be regarded as a crook by the releasing companies, and they act as if they were doing the exhibitors a favor by selling them pictures.

They want a man to sign a contract that binds him, but does not bind them, and put up his money in advance, forcing him to take pictures he does not want in order to get those that he does want.

Why is it that exhibitors are not rated as are merchants? That would sort the sheep from the goats, and give all an equal chance.

Wishing you every success, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

H. L. S. Robinson,
Proprietor, Robinson's Theatre.

Are You Ready to Organize?

WE receive from time to time letters from exhibitors indicating that the necessity for exhibitor organization is recognized, and that organization is wanted. They come from states where organization is defunct or never existed. Generally, the writers do not know how to go about the matter. In some instances the letters are from men too busy to undertake alone the work of organization, but who assert their willingness to help.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America has now an official organizer in ex-President Fred J. Herrington, and these writers are just the men Mr. Herrington wants to get in touch with. He knows how to organize and what organization is for. He can give any local or state league the groundwork of a successful career.

A letter to Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, 218 West 42nd Street, New York City, will insure the attention of Mr. Ochs and the active services of Mr. Herrington wherever organization work is wanted.

No Political Candidates

IN Cleveland several candidates for elective offices came at once to the local Exhibitors League to enlist the help of the screen, declaring themselves in advance as opposed to legalized censorship and other legislation adverse to the exhibitor.

This is significant.

IF there were locals everywhere as strong as the Cleveland local, and State Leagues of equal activity, we should have political candidates everywhere coming farward and declaring their sympathy with and their interest in the welfare of the picture theatre.

AND with an organization binding together all interests within the industry—such as the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry proposes to be—we shall have through the screen a country-wide political-publicity power which will shape the destinies of the whole motion picture industry.

Paramount Corporation Reaches Its Second Birthday

On Entering Its Third Year the Company Begins Its Real Activities—It Was the First Organization to Consistently Distribute a Feature Program Throughout the Entire United States—Company Issues 208 Features in Its Two Years of Existence

PARAMOUNT Pictures Corporation, distributors of the productions of the Famous Players Film Company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, the Oliver Morosco Photo Play Company and Pallas Pictures, is finishing its second year of active life, this week and beginning the third year in which its officers predict the greatest happenings from their company that have ever been conceived in the film industry.

Paramount was the first organization to consistently distribute a program of feature pictures throughout the entire United States.

In the two years of its life Paramount has issued 208 features, two each week, ranging from four to eight reels each. The stars and players run into many hundreds and represent the best known players in the industry for Paramount pictures are those in which Mary Pickford, Geraldine Farrar, Marguerite Clark, Mae Murray, Lenore Ulrich, Marie Doro, Pauline Frederick, Hazel Dawn, Fannie Ward, Jack Barrymore, Lou-Tellegen, Theodore Roberts, Dustin Farnum, George Beban, Victor Moore, Sessue Hayakawa, Edna Goodrich, Ann Pennington, Myrtle Stedman, and other big stars appear.

Paramount began in a small way with its offices in the World Tower Building on Fortieth street, New York, two years ago. W. W. Hodkinson, first president and a director of the company to-day, who had conducted a number of exchanges in the west, brought the idea of a country-wide distribution east and was laughed at by all but a few people, such as Adolph Zukor, Jesse L. Lasky, Samuel Goldfish, Oliver Morosco, who were then the best known producers, and Hiram Abrams, James Steele, William L. Sherry, Raymond Pawley, who were the largest exchange men in the country at the time. The last four men with Mr. Hodkinson worked out the plan of distribution for the producing companies and inside of a period of two years they have succeeded in bringing about a perfection of film distribution that was deemed impossible then.

Paramount was founded upon the highest of ideals, clean, wholesome, better pictures, for both old and young. Its policy was not the result of guess work, but a carefully studied out plan with a definite goal ahead. They proposed to give the public on the screen the best in literature, art, science, and travel; to produce feature photo-dramatic plays that were above the standard of the industry and to encourage better grade of motion picture theatres, by catering to the better class of people and charging higher prices than were then obtained in the nickelodeon, giving the exhibitor handling their productions a protective franchise in a restricted district.

Companies with Paramount from Beginning

The producing companies whose photoplays are released through Paramount, the Famous Players Film Company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, The Oliver Morosco Company and the Pallas Pictures were with Paramount from the beginning.

Paramount pictures and Paramount policies have been instrumental in creating a better exhibiting atmosphere, developing newer conditions, encouraging larger, better lighted and properly ventilated theaters, and at all times considering the welfare of the exhibitor, first after showing them their high class productions.

From its foundation two years ago Paramount has grown to an enormous size. It now occupies a beautiful office at 485 Fifth avenue, and is planning for greater things for the coming year than came in either of the two just past.

During the two years of its existence Paramount has released the following features:

"The Lost Paradise," "Odyssey of the North," "The Virginian," "William Tell," "Patchwork Girl of Oz," "Pursuit of the Phantom," "The Typhoon," "Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch," "Burning Daylight," "Bobby Burnit," "Such a Little Queen," "Marta of the Lowlands," "Where the Trail Divides," "Wildflower," "The County Chairman," "What's His Name," "Behind the Scenes," "His Last Dollar," "The Man from Mexico," "Ready Money," "The Man from Home," "The Straight Road," "Aristocracy," "The Circus Man," "The Country Mouse," "Mrs. Black is Back," "The Rose of the Rancho," "The Bargain," "Ghostbreaker," "The Conspiracy," "The Crucible False Colours," "The Sign of the Cross," "Cameo Kirby," "Cinderella," "The Million," "Girl of the Golden West," "The Italian," "The Dancing Girl," "It's No Laughing Matter," "The Morals of Marcus," "Young Romance," "The Goose Girl," "After-Five," "Mistress Nell," "Buckshot John," "Her Triumph," "The Bachelor's Romance," "The Warren's of Virginia," "The Country Boy," "David Harum," "The Love Route," "A Gentleman of Leisure," "Rule G," "Caprices of Kitty," "Sunshine Molly," "Governor's Lady," "Gretna Green," "Are You a Mason," "The Commanding Officer," "Pretty Mrs. Smith," "The Unafraid," "When We Were 21," "The Spanish Jade," "Snobs," "May Blossom," "Captain Courtesy," "The Captive," "Niobe," "Help Wanted," "The Woman," "House of the Lost Court," "Fanchon the Cricket," "The Moth and the Flame," "Betty in Search of a Thrill," "Bootless Baby and Man on the Case," "Stolen Goods Wild Goose Chase," "Pretty Sister of Jose," "Jim the Penman," "Dawn of a To-morrow," "Brother Officers," "The Arab," "Clarissa," "The Dictator," "Wild Olive," "Chimmie Fadden," "Little Pal," "Rugmaker's Daughter," "The Clue," "Kindling," "The Running Fight," "The Fighting Hope," "Kilmeny," "Seven Sisters," "Puppet Crown," "Rags," "Sold," "Se-

The same five men who began Paramount were its first officers and directors and are the men who are conducting its progressive policies today. The officers recently elected were Hiram Abrams, president; William L. Sherry, vice president; James Steele, treasurer; and these three officers with W. W. Hodkinson and Raymond Pawley are the board of directors. The last two named were formerly president and treasurer, respectively.

Executive Committee of M. P. E. L. Holds Meeting

Ochs, Tugwell, Juep, Sweeney, Hamburger, Furniss, Trigger and Eisenberg Present—It Is Proposed to Hold Monthly Meetings, Perhaps in Conjunction with N. A. M. P. I. Directors

THE first meeting of the new Executive Committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America was held in New York last week, the following members being present: Lee A. Ochs, A. P. Tugwell, Peter J. Jeup, William J. Sweeney, Alfred Hamburger, Thomas Furniss, Samuel Trigger and William Eisenberg.

Of these gentlemen, Messrs. Tugwell, Jeup, Furniss and Trigger, who are also directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, were in attendance at the meeting of the directors of that body.

It is proposed that monthly meetings of the Executive committee of the M. P. E. L. of America be held hereafter, probably in conjunction with the monthly directors' meetings of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

Louis H. Frank of Chicago, who managed so successfully the National Exposition this year in Chicago, and who has been elected Exposition Manager for the National Convention and Exposition of 1917, arrived in New York last week and tendered to President Ochs a check for $5,000, representing the 50 per cent. share of the National League in the net profits of the 1916 Exposition. This is by far the largest amount ever turned into the treasury of the National League from any trade exposition.

Chairman Frank has announced the definite date of the holding of the 1917 Exposition, namely from July 7 to 15 inclusive. The exposition therefore opens on Saturday after the 4th of July.

The convention of the National League, which will be held simultaneously with the exposition, opens on July 10, and will be completed within the week of the exposition.

The 1917 exposition will be run under the auspices of the National League. Chairman Frank has full power, but will be constantly in consultation with the executive committee of the League.

Fred J. Herrington, official organizer for the M. P. E. L. of America, who was in attendance last week at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the League in New York City, left Sunday for Topeka, Kansas, to attend the State Convention of the Kansas State League.

In the fall, Mr. Herrington expects to start upon a tour of the Northwestern states on organization work. This will probably be followed by a swing through the Southern states. Mr. Herrington reports that conditions everywhere augur well for state organization.

On Thursday evening, August 17 the exhibitors and exchangemen of New York City tendered a dinner at Feltman's, Coney Island, to the exhibitors, who were in the city attending the first monthly meeting of the Executive Committee of the M. P. E. L. of America, and the first directors' meeting of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

A very enjoyable time was had, including a tour of the thrill producing sights of Coney Island. The following were present: Thomas Furniss, A. P. Tugwell, Frank J. Rembusch, Peter J. Jeup, M. A. Choyinsky, Fred J. Herrington, William J. Sweeney, William Eisberg, Ben Zerr, Alfred Hamburger, Ernest G. Horstman, Gus Koenigswald, Henry Haring, Aaron Corn, Sam Speedon, William Hilkemeier, I. Hartstall, Lee A. Ochs, M. Abeles, Charles Haring, L. S. Blumenthal, Charles Steiner, L. A. Atwater, Tom Howard, T. A. O'Donnell, Sam Zeigler, Morris Needles, Al Harsten, Samuel H. Trigger, Harry Danto, W. Stephen Bush, John Miller and Messrs. Stein, Lesselbaum, Kramer and Sanson.

William A. Brady Elected President of Association

Vice-Presidents Are: Thomas Furniss, Adolph Zukor, Hiram Abrams, Don J. Bell and Arthur James—Jules Brulator Is Treasurer and Frederick H. Elliott Is Secretary

THE first meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Motion Picture Industry was held at the Hotel Astor, New York City, on August 16. The session was begun at eleven o'clock and continued until evening. The following directors were present: Producers—Adolph Zukor, William A. Brady and William L. Sherrill. Distributors—W. W. Irwin, P. A. Powers, R. A. Rowland, Hiram Abrams and E. A. McManus. Exhibitors—A. P. Tugwell, of Los Angeles; Thomas Furniss, of Duluth, Minn., and S. H. Trigger and L. L. Levine, from New York City. Supply Class—Jules Brulator, Don J. Bell and J. H. Hallberg. Miscellaneous Class—Arthur James, W. Stephen Bush, Paul Gulick and Fred Gunning. These directors were present: J. Stuart Blackton, Carl Laemmle, B. F. Porter, William H. Moore and Fred Beecroft.

The following officers were unanimously elected: William A. Brady, President; Vice-Presidents, Thomas Furniss, Adolph Zukor, Hiram Abrams, Don J. Bell and Arthur James; Treasurer, Jules Brulator; Secretary, Frederick H. Elliott, formerly executive secretary of the Safety First Federation of America. William M. Seabury was made a general counsel.

W. W. Irwin was appointed chairman of the Executive Committee and the following members were also appointed: Adolph Zukor, Arthur James, P. A. Powers, William L. Sherrill, Jules Brulator, S. H. Trigger, L. L. Levine and L. S. Blumenthal. On the following day a full meeting of the Executive Committee was held from three o'clock in the afternoon until seven in the evening. The work of selecting the numerous and important committees of the association was undertaken but not completed and the meeting was adjourned until the following week, when a full announcement of the completed committees will be made. Headquarters for the association was thoroughly discussed but no action taken as yet.

Mary Pickford Will Present Herself on The Screen

Artcraft Pictures Company Will Distribute the Pictures—Green and Lichtman Organizing Independent Exchanges in Principal Cities—Miss Pickford Is in New York Supervising All Details of Next Picture —Star and Head of Concern Make Statements to Exhibitors

TWO important announcements were issued last week, both of unusual interest because they concern Mary Pickford.

It was formally announced that the Mary Pickford Film Corporation had been organized for the purpose of producing solely the productions in which she will appear. General offices will be located at 729 Seventh avenue, and Miss Pickford and her company are already working before the camera at her New York studio for the first picture. It is the purpose of Mary Pickford and her associates to make only a limited number of productions each year, but at an unlimited cost.

The Mary Pickford Film Corporation has completed arrangements by which all the products of its studio will be distributed by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. This new organization has made its entry into the film industry with the announcement that it has been organized to present and distribute motion picture attractions that will be the highest attainment of the cinematographic art. Its initial undertaking will be the offering to exhibitors of the productions of the Mary Pickford Company.

The Artcraft Company is capitalized for two million dollars. The president of the corporation is Walter E. Greene. Offices have been taken at 729 Seventh avenue, in the same building with the Pickford Company. Referring to the organization, Mr. Greene, the president, says:

A Dominant Personality in Pictures

"No personality is so dominant in motion pictures as that of Mary Pickford. Every exhibitor knows that the advent of a new Mary Pickford picture means an event in the season of his theatre or playhouse. This has been the unfailing rule in every instance in the past.

"Now heading her own film corporation, Miss Pickford with her wonderful art and great experience will bring to these productions a new life, a stronger drawing power, and a more lasting charm. Being alone and on no program she will completely pervade the entertainment presented, making its attractiveness all the stronger. It is the purpose of the Artcraft Corporation to give these pictures the best, broadest, and widest distribution of any screen productions that have ever appeared."

Regarding the new organization, Mary Pickford says:

"First of all, I want to express my gratitude for the co-operation of the exhibitors everywhere, for without their interest we could attain nothing. To the great throng who have been good enough to make up the patrons who have seen me in the past, I can but express my heartfelt thanks. Surely without either no one can have progress, and our work together has been so full of happiness that it is doubly treasured.

"For the Mary Pickford Film Corporation it is our purpose to surround ourselves with the best brains, skill, and ability possible, so that we may have art harmonizing productions which will stand out as master works. We want the Mary Pickford pictures to be seen in every theatre and playhouse in the country, and we are delighted with the arrangement and broad plan of distribution made by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, which will handle the productions alone and not as a part of any program.

"Prompted by your encouragement of the past and for which I feel that I owe so much to you in aiding me to reach an ambitious attainment, I feel now that with this incentive and with the ever present confidence with which you have approved and admired my work, that I can now reach out, still higher, giving you the supreme of our art endeavor—but always depending on your affectionate interest for which I am now and will always be grateful."

Miss Pickford is spending the entire Summer in New York, not only developing a new role, but in guiding every detail of the first production to be made under the banner of her own company.

Branch offices and exchanges of the Artcraft Corporation will be established in Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Seattle, Denver, Minneapolis, Chicago, Kansas City, Detroit, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, and other cities.

Al. Lichtman, will have charge of the operating of the Mary Pickford Film Corporation. He is now assisting Walter E. Greene in the organization of the company.

FILM BUSINESS IN PROSPEROUS CONDITION, SAYS ROTHACKER

Waterson R. Rothacker of the Rothacker Film Company, Chicago, was in Cleveland on Saturday, consulting with Johnny Ray of the Reserve Photo Plays Company. Mr. Rothacker says that from his observation, the motion picture industry of Cleveland is in an exceedingly prosperous condition.

CLEVELAND SCREEN CLUB READY FOR A SECOND GOOD TIME

The Screen Club of Cleveland, O., had a picnic several weeks ago at Cedar Point, which was such a success that it has planned another outing for next Wednesday. The picnic will take place at Willough Beach, where there will be corn roasts, ball games and swimming contests.

Topeka Exhibitors' Convention Is Going to Prove a Winner

All Exhibitors Worked up to High Pitch of Excitement Over Outcome of the Event—Governor Capper Expected to Deliver Address to Gathering

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 19.

THE exhibitors and exchangemen who attend the convention of the Amusement Association of Kansas at Topeka, Aug. 22, 23 and 24, are in store for a big treat in the nature of addresses, as Governor Capper, Secretary of State Botkin, and Attorney-General Brewster, constituting the censor appeal board, and W. D. Ross, superintendent of public instruction and official censor, will give the moving picture men their ideas about the moving picture industry.

A special train, leaving Kansas City in the early morning of August 22, will bring about forty-five of the exchangemen of that city to Topeka to attend the convention. E. R. Pearson, manager of the Kansas City exchange of the Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay company, will have charge of the train.

With the opening of the convention not far off work is beginning to show results. The road men in Kansas are all reporting that every exhibitor they have talked to said that he would be at the convention. Not only the attendance of the men is requested but also that of the women. Special invitations have been extended to the wives of the exhibitors. There will be plenty of things which will interest.

All exhibitors have been urged to find out just how their district nominees to the legislature stand with regard to censorship, and to report to the convention accordingly. Plans will be made during the convention to assist in the election of every state official who gives the moving picture industry and its problems enough consideration and thought to be able to give the exchangemen a square deal. A statement up to June 30 shows that the state has collected something over $27,000 in censor fees and the expenses of making the inspections up to that time have been only $6,500. The result is they have an unused profit on hand of $20,000. This surplus the exchange men are contemplating an effort to recover. At a recent meeting of the exchange men each of the exchanges pledged twenty-five dollars to the Amusement Association of Kansas to guarantee the expenses of the Topeka convention.

Besides this, the Troop Hotel and the Commercial Club of Topeka have assisted with large contributions. The Troop Hotel has been made the headquarters of all exchangemen of the convention. This will especially be satisfactory to those men who come from a distance.

Many attractions and inducements to the people of other cities who are interested in moving pictures have been arranged by the publicity men. Quite a stir was made among the people of the city favoring the moving picture industry by the announcement that E. R. Pearson, manager of the Kansas City office of the Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay company, has made arrangements for Richard Travers, the famous Essanay star, to attend the Movie Ball, Aug. 23.

The publicity men are making elaborate preparations for a contest for the girls of Topeka, in which prizes will be given the one making the best imitation of any screen star.

The Orpheum theatre has arranged a unique part for the parade to be given on Aug. 23. Twelve young girls, about the same size, will march in the parade in the form of a triangle, advertising Triangle service. There will also be a special performance at the Orpheum at 10 o'clock, Aug. 24, when the Lubin feature, "The Light at Dusk," will be shown. In connection with the parade on the 23d the local exhibitors have arranged to have a sight-seeing tour of the city for the visitors.

Szarka, from Australia, to Investigate Film Conditions

He Will Visit France, England and America, Where He Will See the Principal Theatres in the Big Cities and Study Their Ways of Expert Showmanship

Sydney, N. S. W., July 20.

WILLIAM SZARKA, one of the principals of the Enmore Picture Theater, has been selected by Australasian Films Limited to investigate various phases of the moving picture business in France, England and America, and sailed for San Francisco by the Sierra on the 12th of July. During his association with the picture business Mr. Szarka has come into contact with all the leading men of the game, and is being invited to make the trip abroad, the general manager of the Australasian Films, Ltd., (Harry G. Musgrove) wrote him as follows:

"My directors are desirous of conducting an investigation into the modern construction of picture theaters in America and the United Kingdom, with the object of introducing the latest form of picture decoration, etc., into Australian theatres. While we have already our representatives abroad, we desire to obtain the assistance of a practical Australian showman who understands the handling and housing of large crowds, and one who has made a study of Australian conditions. We are addressing this to you because we think you are the expert we would prefer to undertake the work."

Mr. Szarka on arriving at 'Frisco will proceed to investigate the business right through all the principal cities of the United States to New York. His commission will bring him into contact with all the great producing companies, and he hopes to bring back with him valuable suggestions that will give a decided impetus to the industry in Australia, and thus make use of local talent, most of which at present, owing to the limited output, cannot get engagements. "There is no reason," he remarks, "why Australia with all its natural resources, should not be able to engage more extensively in an enterprise which has become one of the largest industries in the U. S. A. From America Mr. Szarka will proceed to England, and then on to France, and in each country will make extensive investigations as regards the censorship question, a question that is causing much discussion in Australian film circles at the present time.

A farewell banquet was tendered to Mr. Szarka by his fellow exhibitors on Tuesday, July 4, at Baumann's Cafe, Sydney.

Mr. Szarka left Sydney with the good wishes of all members of the trade, and American motion picture men who meet him will find that Australasian Films, Ltd., have chosen a representative whose knowledge of the film business is by no means limited.

TWO "HAZARDS" LISTED FOR KALEM SEPTEMBER RELEASES

Among the Kalem one-reel releases scheduled for the General Film program early in September, two "Hazards of Helen" are listed. They are "The Secret of the Box Car" released on Saturday, September 2, and "Ablaze on the Rails," issued the following Saturday.

For the latter one-reeler Director Davis burned a number of box cars to the ground. One of the scenes shows Helen Gibson, standing on the seat of a speeding motorcycle, leaping through the air to the hand-rail of a freight.

Ham makes his Fall bow on Tuesday, September 5, in the one-reel subject, "Ham the Fortune Teller." Bud Duncan and Ethel Teare are also seen in a comedy of gypsies, jealous husbands, and Ham's efforts to bring true the prophesies he makes by means of the cards.

RELEASE PLANS FOR TWO SELIGS CHANGED

William N. Selig has announced a change in plans concerning the release of "The Country That God Forgot," a Selig Red Seal Play, written and produced in five parts by Marshall Neilan, featuring Thomas Santschi, supported by George W. Fawcett, Mary Charleson, Victoria Forde and others. The drama is considered so excellent that the original date, Monday, August 21 will not be observed. Neither will the drama of the Western desert be released through V-L-S-E. Other plans in connection with this production are being formulated and will be announced in due time.

CLEVELAND EXHIBITORS AND OPERATORS TO DISCUSS WAGE INCREASE

Cleveland, August 19.

A committee of the operators' union was present at the regular meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, where an open discussion took place, relative to the increased wage demand of the operators. President Sawyer of the League appointed a committee of eight, to attend a special meeting of the operators' union, to be at their rooms at 310 Prospect avenue. The committee is composed of three representatives from the downtown houses; S. Aubrey, of the Corona; John Sliney of the Reel, and Henry Lustig, of the Avenue; and the five uptown representatives are: Ernest Swarts of the Erie; W. J. Slimm, of the Marquis; Sam Bullock, of the Columbia; S. F. Deutch, of the Sun; William Miller of the Olympia. It is expected that terms satisfactory to all will soon be made.

LLOYD INGRAHAM COMES EAST TO DIRECT FINE ART STARS

Los Angeles, Aug. 19.

Lloyd Ingraham, Fine Art director, has been sent East to direct either Douglas Fairbanks or Norma Talmadge in one story. Alen Dwan, a Fine Art director, is also in the East, and it will be decided by the directors which star they will direct. One company will work at the Yonkers studio and the other at the plant of the New York Motion Picture Corporation at Fort Lee, N. J., Frank Urson, cameraman, accompanied Mr. Ingraham east.

PEACOCK IS INSTALLED AS PET OF GISH SISTERS

The Gish girls—Dorothy and Lillian—have about the strangest pet of any of the picture folk out on the Coast. His majesty, Sir Peacock, first had a chance to bask in the limelight when he was used in a Triangle picture, not so long ago, in which Lillian was the star.

Since then he has been officially and formally adopted by the sisters and now he has established himself firmly and securely in their hearts—and incidentally in the yard in the rear of their bungalow.

Astra Makes Rapid Strides in Six Months' Production

Company Completes "The Shielding Shadow," Pathe's Latest Fifteen Episode Serial Set for Release on October 1st—Military Serial Will Feature Pearl White

TO keep pace with the rapidly growing activities of Pathe, the Astra Film Corporation, under the direction of Louis J. Gasnier, president, has in the six months of its existence built up a commendable organization.

The Astra Company has just completed "The Shielding Shadow," Pathe's latest fifteen episode serial which will be released October 1. Work has been started on a new military serial written by Guy McConnell and Geo. B. Seitz, which will feature Pearl White, supported by one of the most popular actors in the country. Within two weeks, Mr. Gasnier expects to start work on still another serial, which will be adoptad from "The Doubl Cross," by Gilson Willet. Two famous stars have been engaged for this serial.

But the activities of the Astra Company have not been confined to serials. Five features have already been produced for Pathe's Gold Rooster program—"Arms and the Woman," featuring Mary Nash; "The Test," with Jane Gray and Lumsden Hare; "The Romantic Journey," with William Courtney and Alice Dovey; "Kick In," with William Courtenay and Mollie King and "May Blossoms," with Pearl White and Hal Forde. "The Challenge," Al. H. Woods' melodramatic success, is now being produced.

Associated with Mr. Gasnier, who was formerly general manager of Pathe Exchange, are George B. Seitz, author of "The Iron Claw," and one of the most successful scenario writers in the country; George Fitzmaurice, who produced "At Bay," "Via Wireless" and "New York"; Edward Jose, who produced "The Iron Claw" and "The Light That Failed"; and Donald Mackenzie, who, with Mr. Gasnier, produced "The Perils of Pauline" and "The Shielding Shadow," and also the well-known Gold Rooster plays, "The Galloper" and "Mary's Lamb."

"In line with the policy of J. A. Berst, vice president and general manager of Pathe, we are adding to the forces of the Astra Company some of the greatest directors and some of the best known actors in the country to-day," said Mr. Gasnier in discussing his plans. "We have also in mind constantly the importance of good stories. The Astra controls the rights to a number of literary and dramatic successes and we have also made arrangements for original scripts.

"We consider good directors of paramount importance and are proud to have associated with us such menas Mr. Fitzmaurice, Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Jose. Mr. Fitzmaurice is now adapting "The Challenge,' our latest A. H. Woods play. He has completed four features for the Gold Rooster program. Mr. Mackenzie recently completed the last episode of 'The Shielding Shadow' and will start to work next week on a new Pathe serial with two prominent stars.

"Mr. Jose's latest production, 'May Blossom,' with Pearl White, I consider his greatest work. Mr. Jose, it will be remembered, produced 'The Iron Claw,' and some of the great Gold Rooster plays, including 'The Beloved Vagabond,' which was hand colored, and 'The Light That Failed,' which has not yet been released. Mr. Jose has started work on a new serial which will feature Pearl White, supported by a prominent actor."

Among the stars who will appear in Astra productions under the Pathe banner are Leon Bary, Cooper Cliffe, William Courtenay, Grace Darmond, Alice Dovey, Paul Everton, Claude Fleming, Hal Forde, Jane Grey, Lumsden Hare, Ralph Kellard, Mollie King, Mary Nash, Florence Reed, Norman Thars, Madeline Traverse, Marie Wayne, Niles Welch, Pearl White and Suzanne Willa.

To this list has just been added Theodore Friebus and W. T. Hinckley.

GLOBE MEN HERE FOR NEW ENGLAND FILMS

Harry G. Segal, secretary and general manager of the Globe Film Corporation, and Robert W. Cobe, his assistant, were in New York last week, reviewing films for New England territory.

The Globe Film Corporation is a newly organized company and will exploit the best productions obtainable exclusively in the New England states.

The offices of the Globe Film Corporation are located at No. 16 Piedmont Street, Boston, Mass.

PLAGUE NOT LIKELY TO CLOSE CHICAGO THEATRES

Chicago, August 19.

There are forty-five reported cases of infantile paralysis in Chicago. The victims are being kept in strict quarantine, and no fear of an epidemic is felt.

While the situation is not looked upon as serious, every effort to prevent the spread of the disease is being made. The board of education is taking special steps to keep the schools free from the plague. All children who have spent any part of the summer in New York or in other localities where the disease has a foothold will be subjected to a special examination before they are permitted to enter school in September. Jacob M. Loeb, president of the board, has sent a letter to John D. Shoop, superintendent of schools, asking him to notify district superintendents and principals of the danger.

Dr. Robertson, Health Commissioner, is investigating complaints that the inspectors detailed to examine children on incoming trains are not doing their duty.

On the recommendation of the Health Department, Mayor Thompson has directed the police to close one milk depot, one sour milk depot, two fruit stands, one ice cream parlor, and a grocery store. No agitation to close moving picture theatres has yet developed.

JULIUS SINGER IN CHARGE OF L-KO OFFICE IN ABSENCE OF STERN

The L-Ko Komedy Kompany, New York office at 1600 Broadway, announces that, during absence of Julius Stern, who is on his vacation, Julius Singer, the special representative, will be in charge and look after things. Singer says "Business is fine and its going to be even better."

Exhibitors in Omaha Finally Stop Civic Imposition

They Just Get Tired of Admitting Free Everybody in the Pay of the City Government—The Street Cleaners Even Started to Bring Their Families

Omaha, Neb., August 19.

MR. EXHIBITOR, what is your private opinion about admitting anybody and everybody—just so they wear the badge of a public servant—into your show, not charging them a cent?

The Council Bluffs, Ia., exhibitors were like those most everywhere. They did not object to occasional visits of regular policemen, councilmen, and those higher up, but when street sweepers, city teamsters, and street repair men started coming, and started bringing their wives, children, relatives, friends, and neighbors, it was too much.

Manager J. R. Corliss, of the Nicholas theatre, sent a red hot letter to the City Council. The other exhibitors joined with him in the protest. The attention of the city was attracted.

The Councilmen, after a hearing, gave the exhibitors the right to use their own discretion as to what badges they would honor and those he would not.

These points, brought in Mr. Corlies' letter, are of interest to exhibitors:

"By what right or authority do the city employees enter places of amusement of this city without paying an admission?

"By what right do officers, regular and special, entering these places of amusement take in their families, neighbors, sweethearts, and other persons?

"They all get their pay from the city the same as anyone else working for other parties, why should they be entertained free? Why should the city employees be entertained free anyhow?

"These entertainments cost the managers money to present to their patrons, it is the commodity they buy and sell the same as a merchant buys goods and sells them to his patrons. Now, what right would these city employees have to go into a store and take the merchant's goods?

"These places of amusement pay city, State, and Government taxes besides high rent. It is not all profit that enters the doors of these places of amusement.

"When we want protection we have to hire a special officer, and pay him for his services.

"We are willing to permit regular police officers and firemen free admission, but we do not propose to admit their families and others, or special policemen, street repair men or street supervisors without paying the same as anyone else."

Success Film Company Starts New Crop of Rumors

Cleveland Corporation Announces Intention to Build Theatre in New York, and Keeps Film Gossips Busy

SEEKERS of information on things new in the trade, were occupied last week following up the crop of rumors regarding the new Success Films Corporation. This organization, which announced that it had completed a $7,500,000 corporation, to produce pictures, and present them in its own theatres, opened headquarters in the Longacre Building, New York, during the week, but details of its plans were not forthcoming.

It was announced that an option had been obtained on a site for a theatre in West Forty-fourth street, near Broadway, New York, and that plans for this theatre are now being drawn, but no record of the real estate deal in question has been published as yet, and the exact location of the property has not been made public.

The incorporators of the Success Company are mostly men from the middle west. They include E. S. Bradley, attorney, of Pittsburgh; Harry O. Van Hart, First National Bank, Cleveland; H. H. Cudmore, General Electric Co.; Edward J. Maska, Cleveland and Youngstown Railroad; J. S. R. Crawford, Pittsburgh; and A. C. Reinecke, Cleveland.

The incorporation was filed in Cleveland; Robert H. McLaughlin, president of the Reserve Photoplays Company, will be at the head of the new concern. Mr. McLaughlin controls the rights of several photoplays, several of them his own work, which will become the property of the Success Company. These include a rendition of the "Decameron of Boccaccio," "The Grain of Dust," "The Sixth Commandment," "The Eternal Magdalen," "Polly of the Circus," and the picture rights to James Whitcomb Riley's poems.

It is further announced that a prominent director is under contract, and a number of the most noted screen stars, including Kitty Gordon and Jane Cowl, have been engaged.

Baltimore Exhibitors Protest Against Ban on Children

Managers Feel That the Action of the Board of Health in Excluding Those Under Thirteen Years of Age Is Unjust

Baltimore, August 19.

A DELEGATION of Baltimore motion picture exhibitors called upon Health Commissioner Blake on Tuesday, August 15, to protest against a ban being placed upon children under thirteen years of age from attending the motion picture performances. The Health Board of Baltimore had been considering this step with a view of taking preventative steps for the spread of infantile paralysis.

After discussing the entire situation, Commissioner Blake told the motion picture men they would take the matter under advisement and notify them. The stand taken by the motion picture exhibitors was not that they did not want to co-operate with the Health Department.

The picture men pointed out that if children were to be excluded from the movies they should also be prevented from gathering at other places where the ventilating and sanitary conditions are not near as perfect as that of the average motion picture theatre.

The result of the conference is that the Health Commissioners have included the legitimate theatres as well as the motion picture theatres in the order, which will be placed in effect Monday, August 21.

No further steps have been taken by the Health Board, although they are considering the closing of public swimming pools, baths, Sunday Schools, day schools, etc. However, no action has as yet been taken regarding the latter places.

SELIG ANNOUNCES SUBJECTS FOR WEEKS OF SEPTEMBER 11 AND 18

William N. Selig announces the program of Selig productions for the weeks of September 11 and 18, released through regular service of the General Film Company.

"The Pony Express Rider" is released Monday, September 11, as a multiple reel, Diamond Special, featuring Tom Mix. "In Jungle Wilds" is an animal drama released Saturday, September 16.

"Into the Northland" will be the Diamond Special, in three reels, released Monday, September 18. It features a cast of players including Lillian Hayward, Fritzi Brunette, Leo Pierson, James Bradbury, and others. "A Corner in Water" is a Selig one-reel Western drama, with Tom Mix in the principal character role supported by Victoria Forde.

The Selig-Tribune, the animated news reel, will continue to be released every Monday and Thursday through General.

Philadelphia Exhibitors Hard Pressed by Epidemic

Health Authorities Forbid Children Under Sixteen to Enter Motion Picture Theatres—Exhibitors and Exchanges Get Together to Devise Means to Combat Plague's Inroads on the Business—Each Exhibitor's Case to be Decided Separately and Every Possible Leniency Extended by the Exchanges

Philadelphia, Aug. 19.

BUSINESS is in the usual Summer condition of semi-dullness. All managers, however, reported business as holding its seasons' own even during the hot and humid days of recent memory.

Some found things even better than usual until last week, when the edict against motion picture houses on account of infantile paralysis was promulgated by the City Fathers. By this decision of the health authorities, all children under sixteen are forbidden by law to enter a motion picture theatre.

This is working a great hardship on many exhibitors, particularly those of the "neighborhood" variety, which strongly cater to the trade. With the ban on the youngster, mother and daddy must in the majority of cases remain also at home.

The following letter of protest was sent to and published by the Public Ledger. Whether it will have any effect remains to be seen:

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir.—Why are motion picture theatres discriminated against any more than any other public place? The Bureau of Public Health has placed a ban on theatres, forbidding them to admit children under sixteen years of age. Has that same ban been placed on other public places, such as swimming pools, where a number of children assemble in a small dressing-room and throw their clothes on top of each other and then all bathe in the same water, or playgrounds, where a number of children assemble and play in the same dirt where dogs, cats, and other animals are playing and breathe that air? Department stores are also visited by a number of children; trolley cars, Sunday schools, and churches are other public places where children assemble. There has been no ban on any public place outside of the motion picture theatre.

The motion picture theaters are under a great expense, paying large licenses to the city and State governments, and built according to the requirements of law, with ventilation by many doors and windows and exhaust fans to keep them properly aired and ventilated, at this time more than ever.

The authorities maintain that the reason for placing the ban on the motion picture houses is that they do not have enough inspectors to visit the various theatres and inspect their sanitary conditions. We offer to stand the expense for inspectors, to be appointed during this epidemic, not only to go around to these houses, but to place an inspector at the door of each theatre and examine every child before it enters. We think that any theatre willing to enter into this agreement should be given the authority to allow children who pass the inspector to enter the theatre and to display a sign in front of the box office stating that this theater is in a sanitary condition and under the constant supervision of a health inspector, always stationed in the theatre, so that the public need not fear to enter the theatre having such a sign displayed.

It is needless to add the great monetary loss which the local theatres are now experiencing, because not only the children, but the parents stay away. Unless something is done soon to remedy this condition a number of theatres will be forced to go out of existence. Not only will they lose every dollar invested, but it will also mean a loss of employment for thousands of people who make a living through them.

Again we ask the question, Why are motion picture theatres discriminated against any more than any other place?

We desire to assure the public of our hearty co-operation at all times. We only ask for justice.

THE MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE. Charles Segall, President.

Philadelphia, August 15, 1916.

Meanwhile, anticipating the disastrous effect on many of the theatres if no amelioration of conditions could be had, the exhibitors and exchange men have held several "get together" meetings and others are in prospect.

The exhibitors asked a fifty per cent. reduction on the price of all films while the rule against children was in force. The exchange after due consideration, particularly in view of the fact that they were not getting any lessening of their expenses in any manner, felt that this request could not be met in such a general way, while wishing at the same time to tide the exhibitors over their difficulties and be as helpful as possible.

All conditions will be taken into account, and, when necessary, every possible leniency will be shown an exhibitor needing such.

Up to the present writing, this has been accepted by the theatres booking through the Stanley Company, and it is expected that independent exhibitors who will hold the next conference with the exchange men will agree to the same terms.

Charles Segall was chairman of the committee for the Stanley exhibitors, J. A. Koeipel was chairman of the Exchange Managers' Committee.

Pennsylvania Board of Censors Again on "High Horse"

Undraped Statue Scenes in Films Prove Undesirable in Their Eyes and Are Ordered Cut —Medicine Bottles Must Not Be Shown Either

Pittsburgh, August 19.

THE Pennsylvania State Board of Censors have made themselves ridiculous in the eyes of the motion picture exhibitors and exchanges alike in this section of the country. They have ordered cuts made in thousands of reels, but their latest is one of the big jokes of the movies.

It is one of the most arbitrary acts on the part of the Board that has ever been known. The Board members have ordered all scenes cut showing an undraped statue in the latest Ivan release entitled "Her Husband's Wife," which is handled in this territory by the Liberty Film Renting Company. The following are the eliminations ordered:

Reel 1 A. Eliminate vision, scene of living model, as it fades into form of marble statue of nude woman.

B. Eliminate entirely the close up view of the artist and the woman talking in front of the statue.

Reel 4 A. Eliminate the view of expression on the woman's face indicating improper proposal by man preceding subtitle, "You cannot buy my assistance with money."

Reel 5 A. Eliminate action of taking medicine from bottle for purpose of suicide.

The Board later issued a condemnation order on the three-sheet poster used to display the picture in the lobby which is identical with that ordered cut in reel 1 designated as "B."

The local manager of the Liberty Film Renting Company, it is understood, has taken the matter up in the east and it will be taken to the courts as they cannot understand why undraped statuary should be eliminated from motion pictures when it can be seen in art galleries and on public and private buildings in every city in the land.

SELIG, ESSANAY AND SUCCESS FIGURE IN NEWSPAPER RUMOR

A meeting of the heads of several motion picture companies was held in Chicago, Saturday, August 19, at which were present, it is reported, William N. Selig, George K. Spoor and E. S. Bradley, of the Success Motion Picture Corporation. Announcement of the meeting was made in the New York Times of August 19.

At the offices of the Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay, Inc., 1600 Broadway, New York, officials positively declined to comment in any way upon the meeting. Reports have it that a realignment of companies is in progress, involving particularly Selig and Essanay.

Negotiations to merge the Selig, Essanay, and Success Film Companies were practically concluded at the meeting according to a story published in the New York Times of August 21.

The absorption of the Selig and Essanay Companies by the Success Corporation, which was only recently organized, will enable it to enter the field sooner than had been anticipated, since it can now use the studios of the established companies. Edna Goodrich has been added to the list of Success stars it is stated.

ASSOCIATED PRESS TO AID KANSAS CONVENTION

Special to Motion Picture News.

Topeka, Kansas, Aug. 19.

Arrangements have been made with the Associated Press to send press stories to the newspapers in Wichita and Topeka to create interest in the convention, which is to be held here August 22, 23 and 24.

Most-popular-girl contests have also been started in the towns throughout Kansas, the winners of which will have all expenses to the convention paid by the theater owner in her district. These winners will be allowed extensive privileges during the convention, especially the Women's Ball.

V-L-S-E Will Handle Dixon's "The Fall of a Nation"

"I am Vitally Concerned in Placing Its Message Before the Greatest Number of People When It Will Be Most Timely, on Account of War Clouds," Says Dixon

BELIEVING that there is more public interest to-day in the subject of preparedness than ever before because of the realization that the nation's real danger will only begin when the war in Europe is over, V-L-S-E has just completed a contract whereby "The Fall of a Nation," Thomas Dixon's screen message on this vital topic, will be released through that organization.

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, in announcing its acquisition said:

"The successes achieved by exhibitors everywhere during the past year have proved beyond question of doubt the value of the big film as an added stimulus to business.

"The prolonged runs of 'The Battle Cry of Peace,' 'The Ne'er-Do-Well,' 'Sherlock Holmes,' 'God's Country and the Woman,' etc., etc., and the advanced admission prices which they have made possible, show the demand of the public for such features.

"Particularly have the Preparedness films been unusual in their drawing power. When we were approached by Mr. Dixon and his associates upon the question of distributing his mighty plea for adequate preparedness we found ourselves in a very happy position to consider the proposal because of our experience and success in serving the exhibitor with other big productions of similar character.

"America at last seems to be awakening to the fact that the need for preparedness is greater today than it was two years ago when the world war started, and that our real peril will only begin when that war stops.

"This being so, it must be apparent that there should be a continuous presentation of such graphic, instructive and entertaining picturizations of this peril, as is 'The Fall of a Nation.'

"The picture has had a good reception wherever shown and it now is placed upon the open market with a full measure of proved success back of it."

Mr. Dixon, in talking about his decision to release "The Fall of a Nation" through the V-L-S-E, said:

"I consider this production the accomplishment of my life. Entirely apart from the material returns to be derived from the widest possible exploitation of the picture, I am vitally concerned in placing its message before the greatest number of people—and to do this quickly—when it will be most timely.

"The political campaigns are on. The time to strike, both from the standpoint of the best interests of the propaganda and of the exhibitors, is the present.

"I had my representatives make a thorough investigation of the field, with the object not only of picking an organization which had the best avenues for distribution, but the one best equipped to so serve the exhibitor, that the longest runs, the highest admission prices and the widest publicity would be obtained.

"Their reports were so unanimous and enthusiastic in support of the Big Four that there could not be any question of doubt as to the right course to pursue. Consequently, I rejected all the other offers that had been made me, even though, on the face of them, the terms were seemingly much more advantageous."

"The Fall of a Nation" will be released by the V-L-S-E on September 18. An adequate number of prints have been provided to insure a quick and thorough distribution of the production.

With it, of course, there will be available the specially prepared orchestral score by Victor Herbert.

"Preparedness Is Necessary Watchword in Films"—Brady

It Struck Him on Entering the Field That This Slogan Would Be More Useful Than Anywhere Else in Business Life—Fifteen Pictures Ready for Release

CONCERNING the production policy of the World Film Corporation—to which part of the operation of that concern he has been devoting a large percentage of his personal attention for several months—William A. Brady, director general of the company, says:

"It very soon struck me upon entering the motion picture field that 'preparedness' as a watchword would be even more useful here than anywhere else in business life and I have proceeded consistently along this line. The result up to the present moment is that we have fifteen pictures finished, edited and ready for the screen. It would be a simple matter for us to release all these to-morrow if we were so disposed or such an act fitted in with our plan of business.

"The list of completed plays includes 'The Rail Rider,' with House Peters starred and Ethel Clayton featured; Marie Dressler in 'Tillie's Night Out,' 'Lew Fields in 'The Man Who Stood Still,' Alice Brady in 'The Gilded Cage' and 'A Woman Alone,' Robert Warwick in 'Friday the 13th,' Ethel Clayton in 'Should She Have Told,' House Peters and Gail Kane in 'The Velvet Paw,' Frances Nelson and Arthur Ashley in 'The Revolt,' Gail Kane in 'The Scarlet Oath,' Robert Warwick and Gail Kane in 'The Heart of a Hero' (in the stage version of which, written by the late Clyde Fitch and called 'Nathan Hale,' the star part was acted by Nat C. Goodwin), Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn in 'Husband and Wife,' Frances Nelson and E. K. Lincoln in 'The Almighty Dollar,' and one other.

"In referring to these photoplays I am reminded of a letter which I received a day or two ago from a well known concern in Boston as follows:

"'The thought has struck me that possibly you will release as a special production not on the World program the picture 'Friday the 13th.' My understanding is that it is to be in extra reels. If that is the case and you desire to release it, may we be one of the applicants for the New England rights or the world rights for same?'

"Naturally, it is extremely pleasant to learn that one of our regular program plays is regarded in this light, but neither 'Friday the 13th' nor any other of the World Film productions will go out as a special release. All will have their regular places on the World program. I am unalterably opposed to any other system of doing business.

Going further, what do you imagine would happen if the World, General, Mutual and other companies were to abandon the program system and adopt the catch-as-catch-can method

"I want the confidence of the small town exhibitor as well as the man who runs the biggest theatre in the country. I want him to know that if he is due to get a World Film release next Wednesday, or six months from next Wednesday, it will be there and will represent the very best effort that is in us. I am quite satisfied, and the company is quite satisfied, to take the profits as they come, year in and year out, on a fair basis of charges, without following any scheme that must inevitably increase the exhibitor's expense two, three, or even four times over.

"Put this down as a certainty: The World Film Corporation will never weaken its program by issuing special releases."

JOAN SAWYER, DANCER, TO JOIN FOX

It is reported on good authority that Joan Sawyer, whose career as an exponent of modern dancing has made her familiar to audiences all over the country, has been engaged by William Fox, and will be starred in a number of pictures for the Fox Film Corporation.

Miss Sawyer is at present spending a week vacationing around the Delaware Water Gap. Upon her return to New York she will begin work in her first picture, which will be directed by Tefft Johnson, one of the three directors added to the Fox producing staff last week.

WYNDHAM GITTENS IS SCREEN EDITOR AT U CITY

A new department has been opened at Universal City with Wyndham Gittens as the head, and he is designated as Screen Editor.

Mr. Gittens went to the coast as the result of negotiations with General Manager H. O. Davis, and will work in co-operation with directors, and cutters.

Scenes and Stars in "Boots and Saddles," the Photodrama Made by B. S. Moss from Eugene Walter's Play—The Three in the Center Are Claire Glenn, R. Henry Grey and Lillian West

FIELD FEATURE FILMS COMPANY IS NOW THE FLORIDA FEATURE FILMS

It has been officially announced that the Field Feature Films, with studios at Miami, Florida, has been absorbed by a new company and the name changed to Florida Feature Films. All of the property holdings and the three five-reel features already completed and ready for state rights distribution, have been transferred to the new company.

It is stated on the highest authority that the change in name has been occasioned by the control of the company passing to Thomas J. Peters, a Florida business man.

The features already produced, "The Human Orchid," "The Toll of Justice" and "Fate's Chessboard," will be released by the state rights plan as originally intended. These will be followed by other productions that will be marketed in the same manner.

Announcement has also been made by the new company that it has established a New York sales office in the Candler Building annex, 218 West Forty-second street, in charge of M. M. Feely, where screen examinations of their features can be made without delay.

FARNUM AT WORK ON A WESTERN UNDER APFEL

William Farnum has already begun work on his last Western picture. The photoplay is being filmed by Director Oscar C. Apfel, who has made most of the Farnum films for William Fox. The story is from the pen of Henry Christeen Warnack, a dramatic critic of Los Angeles.

"Jaffrey" Is Picked to Start International "Gold Eagles"

Locke Best Seller Is Picturized by Frohman Amusement Company and Hearst Buys It Outright for the Company—Eleanor Woodruff Cast as Doria

"JAFFREY," the W. J. Locke story, that was last year's "best seller," has been selected by the International Film Service, Inc., with which to inaugurate its "Golden Eagle" series of photoplay features.

The Frohman Amusement Corporation, William Sherrill, president, undertook the production, and commissioned George Irving to do the actual work. When it was completed William Randolph Hearst immediately purchased it outright for the International Film Service, Inc. How highly the Frohman Amusement Corporation appreciates "Jaffrey" may be gathered by the following paragraph from a letter, written by President Sherrill to Mr. Hearst:

"I have been watching feature productions for several years. I am firm in my belief that 'Jaffrey' is the best balanced, most consistently acted and cleverly staged of any five-act picture of the past two years. I heartily believe it will prove one of the most profitable drawing cards ever offered the exhibitor."

When Mr. Locke wrote "Jaffrey" he constantly had one man in mind as his ideal of the character. That man is his classmate and life-long friend, C. Aubrey Smith. When Mr. Locke agreed to make a motion picture scenario of "Jaffrey" he stipulated that no other actor could play "Jaffrey." His wishes, of course, were carried out.

Mr. Smith, just before appearing in the production of "Jaffrey," was for two years leading man with Margaret Illington, in "The Lie." His notable screen appearance was in the leading parts in "The Builder of Bridges," "John Glady's Honor," and "The Morals of Marcus."

To Eleanor Woodruff was entrusted the role of Doria. Miss Woodruff also left the legitimate stage to take up film acting. Her last appearance in the spoken drama was in "The Five Frankfurters." Miss Woodruff's greatest success in photoplays have been scored in "Big Jim Garrity," "The Island of Surprise," "The Heights of Haggard," "The Hero of Submarine D-2," "Out of the Quagmire," "West Winds," and "Britain of the Seventh."

Liosha is portrayed by Florence Deshon, an actress of exceptional merit, who returned to the spoken drama after completing her work in "Jaffrey." Miss Deshon's greatest previous work in motion pictures was in the spectacular drama, "Life."

Doris Sawyer, the beautiful English actress, is Barbara. Before assuming this role, she had just returned from South Africa, where she appeared as Agnes in an all-star cast presenting "Jim the Penman." She had leading parts in the screen productions of "Tangled Fates" and "Hand of Peril."

Ben Hendricks, creator of "Ole Olson" and "Yon Yonson," is Fendshook; Eric Blind, Frohman leading man, is Hillary; Paul Doucet, leading man with Elsie Ferguson in "Margaret Schiller," and who played leads with Theda Bara and Martha Hedman in screen plays, is Adrian, while Susan is capitally acted by little Claire Hillier.

"Jaffrey" will be presented in five acts and six reels. It will be seen for the first time on September 5.

"In the Hands of the Law" from Moss in October

Picture Will Be Shown at a Broadway Theatre, New York—"Boots and Saddles" Is Another Release Planned by the Producer

A SHOWING of "In the Hands of the Law," the first B. S. Moss feature to be released on the one-a-month program, and which will have its premiere on the first Monday in October, has been arranged. A jury of prominent men has been invited to witness the feature, which deals with the evils of circumstantial evidence, and give their verdict on the subject. As at present planned the showing will take place in the Broadway theatre at a date to be announced later.

"In the Hands of the Law" possesses a special interest, owing to the case of Stielow, the Sing Sing prisoner, who was saved from the electric chair at the eleventh hour, through the efforts of humanitarians, who were convinced that he had been unjustly convicted on the grounds of circumstantial evidence. The story is from the pen of William O. H. Hurst.

Another picture which Mr. Moss is confident will create an impression, is the screen presentation of Eugene Walter's marked success, "Boots and Saddles." While in no sense a military drama of the Shanendoah type, "Boots and Saddles," the scenes of which are laid upon the Mexican border to-day, is stirring to the blood. It presents vividly and in a timely way conditions as they exist on the Rio Grande.

REVENUE REPORT SHOWS BOOST IN THEATRE BUILDING

The preliminary report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, W. H. Osborn, made to the Secretary of the Treasury, shows that there was obtained in taxes during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, under the so-called war emergency revenue law of October 22, 1914, from theatres, museums and concert halls, the sum of $1,014,911.28, as against $789,997.07 during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, an increase of $224,914.21.

ADE FABLES IN COSMOPOLITAN FOR ESSANAY

President George K. Spoor of Essanay, announces that he will shortly issue in one-reel film the George Ade fables, now appearing in current numbers of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

These fables are absolutely the latest work from the pen of the famous Indiana humorist. In magazine form they were illustrated by John T. McCutcheon, the famous cartoonist.

Essanay has been filming the Ade fables for some years with increasing success. It declares that the popularity of the unique comedies has grown to such an extent that they are now among the greatest selling single reel offerings in the market. The best players in the Essanay stock company appear in them.

Warda Howard, featured in numerous Essanay photoplays, has just completed a fable, and Harry Dunkinson, well-known Essanay comedian, is another star who is now appearing in these offerings.

"Seven Deadly Sins" to be Title of First McClure Pictures

First Series of Five-Reel Feature Plays in Motion Picture History is Announced by McClure's—Will Consist of Seven Dramas

McCLURE production plans have progressed so rapidly during the last few weeks, that McClure Publications feels warranted in lifting the veil of secrecy that has covered the titles of the forthcoming McClure Pictures; and in making known the plan of production the company authorized this statement:

"The closing of contracts with McClure Stars and the production of the pictures in which they are to star is rapidly going forward. Nance O'Neill and Charlotte Walker have been added during the past week to the McClure Program. These, with Ann Murdock and Holbrook Blinn, will appear in the first pictures of our new superseries of seven five-reel dramas, entitled 'Seven Deadly Sins.'

"While issued as a series, each McClure play will be complete in itself.

"For instance, the first McClure play, in which Ann Murdock, the Frohman star, is to appear is called 'Envy.' The second one, in which Holbrook Blinn is the most important player, is called 'Pride,' Charlotte Walker is to play 'Sloth,' Nance O'Neil 'Greed,' and so on until all of the Seven Deadly Sins have been portrayed on the screen. The continuity of interest is further strengthened by the appearance in each play of a pair of young lovers played by these sterling young actors, George Le Guere and Shirley Mason.

"Each play is to be complete in itself and will stand on its own feet, but all seven form a group that can be advertised together.

"In these days the producer of pictures, in spite of his high standards and other advantages in production, and his knowledge of publicity methods and values, cannot afford to spend a hundred thousand dollars to tell the people about a picture that may earn him profits of ten thousand dollars. He can, however, do what McClure's is doing with 'Seven Deadly Sins,' the first pictures to be written, produced and exhibited under the McClure trade-mark.

"No one of these plays, although each is a magnificent production, would be big enough to justify a national advertising campaign, but all seven taken together are bigger from a financial standpoint than any spectacle or serial picture and can be advertised everywhere.

"We expect, through our advertising campaign in magazines, trade papers and newspapers, to insure the success of these pictures at the very beginning of the campaign. Before these pictures reach the theatres in the big cities, the people will not only know that the productions are up to the established McClure quality and that they are played by stars gathered from all the best picture programs, but they will know all about the pictures themselves, what they are about, what lessons they are trying to teach, whether they want to see them themselves and whether they want their children to see them. Thus we expect to assure the man who exhibits the pictures of an absolutely certain attendance at his theatre and to be able to guarantee the public against the evil results of indiscriminate theatre going.

"The motion picture of the future is to be the advertised picture."

To facilitate immediate production, McClure's has arranged with Thomas A. Edison, Inc., for the use of their studios in the Bronx, where strangely enough the first of all the serials "What Happened to Mary" was produced, with Mary Fuller in the title role, from stories published in one of the McClure publications. Director Richard Ridgely, assisted by Director Crossland, are now actively at work on McClure Pictures, the entire studio being given over to McClure work. It is stated that so long as the supply of studio space around New York City exceeds the demand, McClure's will take no steps to erect a new studio of their own. Several propositions are under consideration for the use of studios in California for the winter work of the McClure organization.

Lesser Takes Over More Pictures for Coast Exploitation

He Will Control the Clara Kimball Young Pictures from Selznick, and also "Purity" from Mutual, for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky

SOL LESSER has just assumed State rights control of the Clara Kimball Young films for the Pacific Coast, the Audrey Munson "Purity" film for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio, and Kentucky, "The Little Girl Next Door," in association with Leon D. Netter for Pennsylvania, and the Australasion rights of "Where Are My Children?"

Lesser in the past has confined all his activities to the Western coast, with the exception of his exploitation of "The Ne'er-Do-Well," which he bought outright from Selig.

This feature is being marketed by the V-L-S-E.

His deal with Lewis J. Selznick gives him the five-year franchise to exploit the Clara Kimball Young productions on the Western coast.

Right in line with this he closed a contract with President Carl Laemmle, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, for the Australasian rights of "Where Are My Children?" the preachment on the subject of "Birth Control." Mr. Lesser previously had the Pacific Coast rights for this feature, and has seen fit to purchase the Australasian rights at a cash figure.

With the purchase of the rights of "The Little Girl Next Door" for Pennsylvania, Leon D. Netter figured in association with Lesser, and by this arrangement Lesser is enabled to get his first hold in the East, and from Philadelphia as a centre to radiate into the surrounding territory.

While these foregoing State rights purchases were in the process of crystallization be very quietly effected the arrangement whereby he obtained control of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio, and Kentucky for the much-talked of feature starring Audrey Munson in "Purity." The business management of this film as well as "The Little Girl Next Door," will be handled by the Masterpiece Film Corporation, with Leon D. Netter as manager.

Thanhouser's "King Lear" Ready for Country's Exhibitors

Frederick Warde, Noted Shakespearian Actor, Plays Name Part in Production of Bard's Great Tragedy—2,000 Persons Employed in Making the Picture

EDWIN THANHOUSER announces that the Thanhouser Film Corporation's Shakespearian production, Frederick Warde in "King Lear," is soon to be released through the Pathe Exchanges.

Mr. Warde is one of the most noted Shakespearian actors of this generation and is famed throughout the United States and Great Britain for his productions of notable plays.

"That is really 'King Lear,' wonderful in every detail," he said, after seeing the film.

"King Lear" was directed by Ernest Warde, son of Frederick Warde, who has had long experience as an actor in his father's companies and as stage director for Richard Mansfield. Ernest Warde plays the part of the fool, in the Thanhouser "King Lear."

Others in the supporting cast are: Lorraine Huling, Wayne Arey, J. H. Gilmour, Hector Dion, Edwin Stanley and Boyd Marshall.

More than 2,000 persons were employed in the making of this Shakespearian play, which follows faithfully the original story. Mr. Warde and Ernest Warde spent many days in libraries studying rare histories in order that in no detail should the production err.

"I unhesitatingly state," says Frederick Warde, "that in the film version of King Lear there is no anachronism, no action and no setting that could be criticized by the most captious student of Shakespeare. I do not believe it is within human capability to produce a more historically correct version of 'Lear.'" Details of release will be shortly announced.

ATTRACTIVE ONE-SHEETS OF MISS YOUNG ISSUED BY SELZNICK

That the posters and other advertising matter for the new Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation productions are to be of a high grade is apparent from the quality of the one-sheet that Lewis J. Selznick is sending all contract exhibitors. These one-sheets are designed for placement in theatre lobbies in advance of the actual advertisement of the date when Miss Young will appear in "The Common Law."

Fac-simile of the Announcement One-Sheet

In composition and color these one-sheets are exceptionally attractive. The design is by Rodney Thompson, an illustrator of note, and the general color scheme is a delicate French gray with the portrait head of Miss Young in strong, vivid coloring. In the lower right hand corner is seen the figure of an announcer making his bow to the public.

In addition to these one-sheets there will be four new styles of one-sheets, two kinds of six-sheets, and three kinds of twenty-four-sheet stands. Novelty heralds and half-sheet cards will be provided in great quantities.

HELEN WARE IS CAST FOR LEAD IN "GARDEN OF ALLAH"

Helen Ware, the noted actress, has been engaged by William M. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, to take the leading feminine role in "The Garden of Allah," the production of which spectacular film drama has been started at Los Angeles, Cal., by Director Colin Campbell. Miss Ware has left New York City for the Selig Pacific Coast studios.

Helen Ware is one of the most versatile and best known of American actresses. She made her debut in "The Little Minister" in support of Maude Adams, and later took important roles in "An American Gentleman," "Under Two Flags," and "Quo Vadis."

She has starred in "The Third Degree," "The Price," and "Within the Law," and was a member of the famous all-star cast in the New York revival of "The Celebrated Case."

Adams Express in Boston Form Special Film Department

Action Follows Conference with Exchange Managers, Who Complain of Errors in Shipping and Receiving of Film in That Vicinity

OWING to the many errors in the shipping and receiving of films in Boston and that vicinity, the managers of the different exchanges of the various producing and distributing companies, have held a number of conferences recently with the general manager of the Adams Express Company, resulting in the establishment of a new department in the express offices, and which, during the past month, has practically eliminated the troubles that existed before.

After hearing the stories of the different exchange managers it was decided by the express companies to make a separate department for the receiving and sending of all film, in which three men were placed and orders given to them to attend to nothing else. This hearty co-operation has made it possible to eliminate ninety-five per cent. of the trouble. The same practice has been installed by all express companies and the troubles of the exchange shipping department are diminishing at the present time.

George K. Robinson, the publicity director of the Famous Players Film Company of New England, distributing Paramount pictures, has communicated the information and the mode of procedure relative to this department, to all of the Paramount exchanges throughout the country, in an endeavor to have the system inaugurated in all communities, thereby removing existing complications in other sections.

In speaking of the troubles, Mr. Robinson said, that upon visiting the South Station in Boston, the managers found all kinds of miscellaneous freight mixed up with films and even found combustible goods such as gasoline, celluloid, and cottons and things of that nature, mixed in with the cans containing pictures. All of which was unknown to the state and city fire commissioners.

The film men argued that since the fire authorities exacted so many things from the exchange for fire safety, that it was unreasonable the same conditions should not be complied with by the express company, and the manager of the express company readily saw the force of the argument and gave the complaint immediate adjustment.

Southeastern Organized to Make Film and Run Theatres

Influential Business Men of Jacksonville, Fla., Form $300,000 Company—Richard Garrick Formerly with Gaumont, Interested

A $300,000 corporation headed by some of the most influential business men in Jacksonville, Florida, is the latest to enter the motion picture producing field in the South. The new company which will be known as the Southeastern Film Corporation, has secured a charter to operate under the laws of Florida and will besides producing pictures in Jacksonville, operate a string of motion picture theatres in the states of Florida, Alabama and Georgia, and release films produced by the leading manufacturers of the world.

The studios company will be in charge of Richard Garrick, and will be operated under the name of the Garrick Studios Company. The organization will not be affiliated with any other motion picture producing company, but will rent stage space to all visiting producing companies who come to Florida periodically to make pictures.

The directors of the Southeastern Film Corporation are as follows: Richard Garrick, formerly supervising director of the Gaumont Company in Jacksonville; J. E. T. Bowden, Mayor of Jacksonville; Judge H. B. Phillips, Judge of Duval County, Florida; W. R. Carter, editor of the Florida Metropolis; W. L. Whitehead, owner of the Republic theatre; W. S. Hilands, president of the Florida Soft Phosphate and Lime Company; John T. Alsop, Jr., president of the City Council of Jacksonville, and one of the most prominent real estate operators in that city; James R. Collins, treasurer of the Florida Abstract and Title Insurance Company, and Forest Lake, president of the Seminole County Bank, of Sanford, Florida.

The company have negotiated for the purchase of a large number of motion picture houses throughout the state, and will immediately start operation. Land for the erection of the large studios at Jacksonville, capable of taking care of twelve producing companies at once, has been secured and work on the buildings will be started at once. Richard Garrick has received letters from a large number of producers in New York, who declare the erection of suitable studio arrangements in Jacksonville will be of great benefit to the motion picture industry, as with Jacksonville only twenty-seven hours from New York they can send companies South for pictures, whereas under the present arrangements a trip to California takes from five to six days.

"NEWS" PROJECTION WRINKLES HELP HIM

Motion Picture News,
Gentlemen:

I would rather have Motion Picture News than all the other picture trade papers combined, because I get all the information in the "News" that I require, and furthermore, am guided by it. I have received some valuable information from your projecting department that has enabled me to run my machine better than ever before.

Yours truly,
Clifford Smith,

MUTUAL IN CLEVELAND CHANGES QUARTERS

The Mutual Film Corporation, Cleveland, removed last week from 108 Prospect avenue, S. E., to the second floor of the Belmont Building, 750 Prospect avenue, S. E.

"A FOOL AND HIS FRIEND" FROM "V" ON SEPTEMBER 2

"A Fool and His Friend," the Vitagraph Broadway Star Feature on the General Film program for Saturday, September 2, was produced by Director William Wolbert, with a cast of players of Vitagraph's Coast Division headed by Webster Campbell, Corinne Griffith, Jack Mower, Louise Owen, Otto Lederer, and George Davis.

"The Fair Fare" is a single part comedy, which tells how a newly-married woman gets her husband to take her sightseeing, in and around Seattle. Many scenes showing: The harbor of Seattle, Mount Rainier, North Pacific Highway, and other places of interest are depicted. The photoplay was written and produced by Frederick Hiller.

A comedy, "Love and Trout," from the Bay Shore Studio, makes up the balance of the week's releases. It comes from the pen of Josephine Lovett, and was photographed under the direction of John Robertson. Shirley Moore as a special game warden gains the consent of an objecting father to the marriage of his son, William Lytell, Jr., plays the part of the son. Thomas Keog as the father and Julia Dodson as his ward assists in the laugh-making.

PEGGY COUDRAY IS STAGE DANCER GRADUATE TO THE SCREEN

Peggy Coudray of Universal City plays a leading role opposite William V. Mong, in his production of "Maybelle of the Pictures." Miss Coudray at one time was a dancer on the legitimate stage, and her skill aided her very much in this production, as in one of the scenes she was required to do a dance in her bare feet.

"The Crisis" Is a Spectacular Photodrama from Selig

The Picture Follows All the Details of the Churchill Novel Dealing with the Civil War in American History—Fidelity to Locale Observed in the Film

Preparing to Take One of the Scenes for the Selig Production of "The Crisis" in the Historic City of Vicksburg, Miss.

"THE CRISIS," written by Winston Churchill, has been filmed as a spectacular film drama in twelve reels by the Selig Polyscope Company. The production will be released in the near future.

William N. Selig considers "The Crisis" one of the most elaborate and expensive film dramas ever made in this country.

Starting with "The Coming of Columbus," perhaps the first multiple reel feature film play ever released and which won for Mr. Selig a decoration from the Vatican at Rome, there followed such successful feature plays as "Cinderella," "The Spoilers," "The Rosary" and "The Ne'er-Do-Well." And now comes "The Crisis."

Another interesting innovation in connection with "The Crisis" is that there is not a single detail in the film but that closely follows Mr. Churchill's great book, dealing with the crisis in American history. Also, a majority of the scenes are filmed on historic ground, in localities called for in the book, including St. Louis, Mo., and Vicksburg, Miss.

The battle scenes in "The Crisis" engaged the services of the entire membership of the Mississippi National Guard, including officers, who staged the siege and defense of Vicksburg right on the ground where the historic engagements occurred over half a century ago. Although thousands of men, horses and equipment are engaged in the scenes of Civil War battles, yet these scenes are but a small part of the drama and are just sufficient to carry along the logical action.

Veterans of the Civil War, both Federals and Confederates, together with their sons and daughters, will be greatly interested in this faithful reproduction of historical engagements and with the real fortifications used in Civil War times. Historical scenes in and near Vicksburg, including the Vicksburg court house and the slave market, are shown in all historic detail. Beautiful Southern homes, right in the heart of the romantic Southern country so frequently described in the book, are shown, together with the historic Carvel homestead.

Not the least important item in connection with "The Crisis" is the introduction to filmland of a new Abraham Lincoln, enacted by Sam D. Drane. Drane's characterization of Abraham Lincoln is said to be both dignified and convincing. Even Lincoln's old dispatch box was loaned by the War Department for this Selig film play, which but proves the care that was taken in having every detail of the drama correct as to atmosphere and history.

The cast for the play includes George W. Fawcett as Judge Silas Whipple, Matt B. Snyder as Colonel Carvel, Bessie Eyton as Virginia Carvel, Thomas Santschi as Stephen Brice, Eugenie Besserer as Mrs. Brice, Frank Weed as Eliphalet Hopper, Marshall Neilan as Clarence Colfax, Cecil Holland as General Sherman, Sam D. Drane as Abraham Lincoln, Will Machin as Captain Lige Brent, Leo Pierson as Jack Brinsmade, and others. Every member of the cast was selected with the historic type in view.

Colin Campbell was selected by Mr. Selig to direct the production. It will be recalled that Mr. Campbell produced "The Spoilers," "The Rosary" and "The Ne'er-Do-Well."

"The Crisis" will be produced with a special musical score that is now completed by one of this country's foremost musicians. An unusual publicity campaign is being planned and the presentation of this film will in every way be in just accordance to its artistic worth.

Announcement of the release plans for "The Crisis" will be made in the near future by Mr. Selig.

STEINER GETS RIGHTS TO "PHILO GUBB" STORIES

William Steiner, general manager of the Serial Film Company, who has just completed the supervision of "The Yellow Menace," has secured through Mrs. C. C. Wilkenn all photoplay rights to Ellis Parker Butler's famous "Philo Gubb," the Rising Sun Correspondence School Detective in Twelve Lessons, which will shortly appear in two-reel releases. Pierce Kingsley of the K & R Film Company will picturize and direct the productions, with Edwin Stevens in the title role, supported by Harry McKee, Tiny Marshall, Marie Tradore, George Trimble, James O'Neill, Charles Hartley and other well known artists.

Metro Officials Guests of Honor at Consolidated Dinner

Event Comes Off at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, N. J., and Represents an Aggregate Capital of $40,000,000—Goebel Pays Tribute to Erb

THE Consolidated Film Corporation, which is presenting "The Crimson Stain Mystery," the sixteen-episode serial with Maurice Costello and Ethel Grandin in the leading roles, was host through O. E. Goebel, its president, at a banquet given last Saturday evening in the Belvedere of the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, N. J. The guests of honor, representing an aggregate capital of forty million dollars, were the officials and exchange managers of the Metro Pictures Corporation, who are handling the distribution of "The Crimson Stain Mystery."

More than fifty guests were present, and one of the features was a private showing of the first two episodes.

Carrying out the basic idea of the serial, the color motif of the decorations was crimson. The menu, an elaborate affair, was printed on crimson paper, and the special lighting effects, table decorations, etc. were of the same hue.

The toastmaster was Arthur James, director of publicity of the Metro Pictures Corporation.

The principal speakers were: O. E. Goebel, president of the Consolidated Film Corporation, and host, and Richard A. Rowland, president of the Metro Pictures Corporation. Mr. Goebel said in part: "You must admit without reservation that Ludwig G. B. Erb, my associate and treasurer of the company of which I have the honor to be president, is the best known technical expert in the world. Mr. Erb's genius and untiring efforts are due the many amazing photographic innovations with which 'The Crimson Stain Mystery' is replete, among which may be mentioned the showing of the crimson stain in the eyes of the arch-criminal, from which this serial gets its name."

O. E. Goebel

The arrangements for the banquet were under the personal direction of S. G. Sladdin, director of publicity of the Consolidated Film Corporation.

Among those present were: Richard A. Rowland, Joseph W. Engel, I. Lawrence Weber, Harry J. Cohen, C. K. Stern, E. H. Saunders, W. E. Atkinson, Henry James, J. Robert Rybin, and Dr. O. N. Meiser—all of the New York offices of Metro; J. H. Tooker, J. A. Gausman, Louis B. Mayer, Boston; J. A. Fitzgerald, Detroit; Joseph Skirboll, Chicago; O. N. Davies, Minneapolis; O. J. Gunnell, Chisago; John D. Clark, Philadelphia; L. M. Day, Washington, D. C.; R. M. Watkins, Chattanooga; Herman Jans, New Jersey, and Carl C. Bugbee, New Orleans.

Cabanne Will Begin Bushman-Bayne Series in September

Dean of Producers Associated with Griffith Will Direct the Metro Stars in a Serial, Yet Unnamed, of Fourteen Episodes in Two Reels Each

W. CHRISTY CABANNE, for seven years associate director with D. W. Griffith, who has signed a long time contract with the Metro Picture Corporation, as announced in Motion Picture News last week, will begin work early in September directing Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in their new serial, as yet unnamed, which will be released by Metro in fourteen episodes in two reels each. Director Cabanné, who is in Los Angeles, will leave for the East immediately.

W. Christy Cabanne

Director Cabanné, like D. W. Griffith, is still a comparatively young man, but is dean of the producers associated with Griffith. Mr. Cabanné produced the first Mutual masterpicture, "The Great Leap." He was also selected to make the first Triangle feature, "The Lamb," with Douglas Fairbanks in the stellar role. This was Mr. Fairbanks' debut in motion pictures.

Director Cabanné was born in 1888, and was educated at St. Rose Academy and the Culver Military School, at Culver Lake, Indiana. After his graduation from there he went into the United States Navy, where he served several years. For a time he traveled through South America, prospecting and sight-seeing. In 1908 he returned to New York and obtained a position on the stage, first appearing with Laura Nelson Hall.

From the beginning Mr. Cabanné was successful on the stage and he played prominent roles with Wilton Lackaye, Charlotte Walker, Orrin Johnson, Hattie Williams, and other noted stars on the stage. He went into motion picture work in 1910, playing leading roles with the old Biograph company. Subsequently, he appeared with the Majestic, and assisted in the direction of pictures there. From the Majestic he joined the Fine Arts forces, and afterwards went with Director Griffith to Triangle.

Among some of the best known features produced under the direction of Mr. Cabanné are "The Great Leap," "The Outlaw's Revenge," "The Absentee," "Lost House," "Enoch Arden," "The Martyr of the Alamo," "Double Trouble," "The Failure," and others.

At the conclusion of the Bushman-Bayne serial Director Cabanné will produce five-part Metro features in which this stellar combination will be starred. Mr. Cabanné is now working in Los Angeles on the final scenes of "Diana of the Follies," in which Lillian Gish is starred.

THOMAS MEIGHAN RETURNS TO LASKY STUDIOS IN HOLLYWOOD

After a vacation of several weeks, including a trip to New York, Thomas Meighan, leading man of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, has returned to the studios of that concern at Hollywood, California, to begin work at once on a new production in which he will be featured.

The next photoplay in which Mr. Meighan will be seen, however, is "The Storm," in which he appears with Theodore Roberts in the principal support of Blanche Sweet.

During his stay in New York Mr. Meighan was entertained by some of his former associates at the Lambs' Club.

Before joining the Lasky Company more than a year ago Mr. Meighan was well known on the stage, having appeared in leading roles in support of some of the most famous American stars.

Clara Kimball Young, Conway Tearle and Paul Capellani in Three Typical Scenes from the Film Version of Chambers' "The Common Law"

UNIVERSAL ADOPTS DAYLIGHT CONSERVATION POLICY FOR STUDIOS AND OFFICES

Beginning September 1, 1916, the Universal Film Manufacturing Company will adopt the daylight conservation plan now in force in Germany and other European nations. Employees will report at 8 A. M. instead of at 9 A. M., and will quit work at 4.30 P. M. instead of at 5.30 P. M.

The saving on electric light bills both at Universal City, Cal., where the moving picture company's plant is located, and in the New York offices of the concern at 1600 Broadway by the installation of the plan is expected to amount to thousands of dollars each year.

The saving will be marked especially in the winter months. At 5 o'clock of a winter's evening the office buildings of New York particularly in the Wall street district, present a picturesque sight with their thousands of illuminated windows gleaming out in the winter's twilight. But such an electrical display, it has been estimated, costs New York office tenants, in the district below Fulton Street alone, approximately $38,000 each evening.

ROLIN COMPANY WILL HAVE MORE ROOM

The Rolin Company, makers of the Pathe "Luke" comedies, are moving from Hollywood to their original location on the high hill between Los Angeles and Hollywood. The new home is being gone over carefully, new wiring for lights, projectors, etc., being put in, and a large enclosed stage is under construction.

The building which is now to be used for offices and dressing rooms is an old-fashioned mansion which has long been one of the landmarks of the city. The new studio will be ready for occupancy within two or three weeks when a third company will be put on.

MIX COMEDIES COME TO A CLOSE

The Selig series of Tom Mix Western comedies closed with "Taming Grouchy Bill," released in General Film service Saturday, September 9. One Western comedy was released weekly for ten weeks. Exhibitors exploiting this series, each play complete in itself, report excellent business. All these comedies can be booked through General Film service.

"The Common Law," With Miss Young, Is in the Cutting Room

Director General Capellani "Shot" Closing Exteriors for the Picture in New Jersey Last Week—Situations Hinted at in the Novel Are Developed in the Picture

THE first of the new Selznick pictures, the presentation of Clara Kimball Young in a film version of Robert W. Chambers' universally popular novel, "The Common Law" was finished last week and the work of assembling and cutting the film has begun. Director General Albert Capellani and his company "shot" the closing exterior scenes on a location near Morristown, N. J., Monday and Tuesday, and unless the necessity for a retake should unexpectedly develop the camera work is complete. M. Capellani is most enthusiastic over the results of the last six weeks work.

It is expected that in its final form "The Common Law" will be issued in six-reels. There is a possibility that it will be offered in two complete editions, one of six and one of nine reels, the latter for special showings in the big theatres.

In adapting the story to the screen, M. Capellani has retained all its essential incidents and characters with the addition of numerous episodes and situations only hinted at in the novel. A great deal is made of the earlier happenings in the heroine's life before the story in the book begins, with special stress on her experiences in theatrical work.

The love interest in the picture is developed by Miss Young and Conway Tearle, who plays the role of Kelly Neville, the artist. Paul Capellani, who has been seen opposite Miss Young in several of her pictures, plays the "heavy" part of Querida, the third corner of the story's triangle.

With "The Common Law' out of the way, Miss Young will begin at once upon the "Foolish Virgin," an adaptation of Thomas Dixon's widely read novel of the same name. The cast for this second production is nearly complete and M. Capellani's assistant directors have already prepared some of the interior settings so that there will be no delay in starting the production.

Rialto Denies Contract With Any Distributor

Right to Its Films in Europe, Australia and South America Will Be Resreved for Sale to Independent Buyers—Goldburg May Market Through Program Company

THE statement has been circulated with some appearance of authority that the Rialto Film Corporation, financed by Detroit capital, and of which Jesse J. Goldburg is vice-president and general manager, has contracted to release its future output of features through one of the larger distributing or program concerns. Mr. Goldburg denies the statement and said that although negotiations had been pending and are still pending with two program releasing concerns for a series of features, that no contract has yet been entered into and that he could not tell at this time as to whether the productions of the Rialto Film Corporation will be disposed of before or after their completion.

Rialto Film Corporation have determined that whatever disposition is made of their future feature releases for the United States and Canada that in any event they will reserve the European, Australian and South American rights for sale to independent buyers.

This policy has been adopted largely because of the inability of many American feature program concerns to properly exploit their features in foreign countries. A careful investigation and canvass of the situation has convinced the management of the Rialto Film Corporation that buyers in foreign territories are in a better position to exploit American productions and to pay higher prices than if the rights are controlled through an American releasing concern.

This course has been followed with the initial production of the Rialto Film Corporation, "The House of Mirrors," and will continue indefinitely.

PATHE EXCHANGES RECEIVE BONUSES

One reason why Pathe's branches report such splendid business is that twenty of them have just received bonus checks. Here are the lucky ones: New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Washington, Cincinnati, Detroit, Wilwaukee, St. Louis, New Orleans, Dallas, Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines, Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

"The 'News' wishes to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything in fact done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to send for publication the successful ideas that he has worked out, also to come to us for suggestions or information. Address the Editor."

Posters Are Not Expected to Tell Everything About a Picture

AN extraordinary announcement has been made by an exhibitor respecting the value of posters, in which he says:

"It has long been an established fact that persons observing a poster in front of a theatre seldom have any idea as to whether the picture which it seeks to advertise will satisfy or please them."

Mr. Fuller, Angeta Theatre, in a recent issue of the Alexandria (Ind.) Tribune, states that "The average picture or name on a poster suggests nothing except in cases of well-known plays or books. It is also a fact that large posters suggest cheapness or quantity rather than quality, and that they distract rather than attract trained photoplay fans.

"Manufacturers of pictures have realized this fact, and have tried all sorts of designs for posters but without avail. Exhibitors owning the best theatres expressed their disapproval and asked for small neat posters, and as a result the large producers of photoplays have discontinued the printing of full-sized posters.

"I noticed a young man one evening come and look at the posters. He turned away with the remark that 'they don't look good to me.' In a little while a friend came along, and insisted that he should go in with him. The objection was raised that he did not care to see the picture, his friend insisted, however, and they went in.

"When the young man left, he stopped at the ticket window, and said: "I am glad I came in." The exhibitor goes on to say, that he knows of many such instances as the above, and that as a general rule the best pictures are accompanied by the smallest poster display. We cannot say that we agree with Mr. Fuller's statement, and we fancy that he has not realized the full meaning of poster advertising. It cannot be expected that any poster will drag patrons into a theatre by main force. A poster is an announcement or reminder that a particular picture will be shown on a specified date at a certain theatre. If the exhibitor showing the picture is a live man he will be controlling a house organ in which he has stated very fully the story, cast and general resume of the pictures he proposes showing. Provided that the house organ is well got up, it will be read by every patron who should receive a copy when entering or leaving the theatre. It is here that a patron is first apprised of the coming week's programme. Forthcoming productions are discussed, and curiosity leads them to read the synopsis. The film may be adapted from a certain novel with which they are familiar, or it may feature a well-known star whom they enjoy seeing. They tentatively agree to see the coming picture, nevertheless they are human and may forget. Your house organ has done its duty up to this point, and the bill poster commences the function for which it is intended, that is a "reminder," so that no matter where your patrons may be you are constantly talking to them of the production they intend seeing at your theatre.

The National Biscuit Company, Wrigley's or Willie's Overland do not use posters with the idea that people will walk into any store after merely reading their advertisements and buy a car, a biscuit, or a pocket of gum; their advertisements are "reminders" and nothing else, nevertheless it is the "reminder" which is constantly bringing grist to the mill.

"CHILDREN'S HOUR" BRINGS JUVENILE PATRONS TO THEATRE RIGHT ON THE MINUTE

Following out the idea of the "Children's Hour," Howard S. Clemmer, of the Clemmer Theatre, at Spokane, Wash., has inaugurated a number of unique and attractive means of pleasing the children who attend his children's performances. The cleverest of them all is the distribution of a twelve-page book, called the "Klemer Klink Book," consisting of twelve pages and a cover, attractively designed and filled with very clever poetry for the children.

The first week, the cover is given to the children, on which is a picture of Klemer Klink, a new kind of a "woofen-puf-like-pelliken." Each week the child purchasing a ticket is given another page until the whole is distributed. Clasps come with the cover, and the additional pages can be put together.

One of the Inside Pages of the Booklet

But with the end of the thirteenth week does not come the end of the plan. Then Mr. Clemmer offers a prize of a season pass to any child who will write an essay of 100 words on "Why I Like the Clemmer," and return it to him accompanied by the Klemmer Klink Book.

Contestants in the essay contest must be between the ages of 5 to 12 years, and all contestants have their books returned. The winner of the prize is announced on the fourteenth week, the announcement being made on the screen.

"I have accomplished great things with the children of my city," Mr. Clemmer said, "as the parents of the children realize that I have the interest of the children at heart, and would not put on the screen any kind of a picture that the smallest tot could not go to see and go home and tell mother that they had the time of their young lives. It's the greatest performance of each week, and it is surprising how many mothers and big sisters and big brothers come to that single performance.

"It's on a Saturday morning, but I do the business of a Saturday night performance. Three times I have been compelled to raise my order for Klemmer Klink Books, and as soon as that idea is over, there'll come another that's better yet."

"HULDA FROM HOLLAND" MAKES BOX OFFICE RECORD IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles photoplay theatre patrons and exhibitors consider the Mary Pickford subject, "Hulda from Holland," to be this actress' best picture since the release of "Tess of the Storm Country," and the receipts of the Woodley theatre for the run bears out the statement that this late Pickford release is a big drawing card. The film broke all admission records at the Woodley, despite the hottest weather of the Summer. The attendance was greater than at any time since the opening of the house, more than three years ago. The previous record was made by the Marguerite Clark subject, "Mice and Men," shown in January.

Manager R. W. Woodley originated a very novel front for the theatre during the showing of this Pickford subject. The ticket booth was transformed into the lower portion of a windmill, and the entire lobby was covered with blue and white paintings suggestive of the subject. A small motor operated the windmill. This unique lobby display, and the attractive lighting system on the front of the theatre, drew many people to the house.

BOOK STORE CO-OPERATES WITH THEATRE

When the Strand, Buffalo, N. Y., presented "The Call of the Cumberlands" Manager Edel arranged with the leading book store, the Otto Ulbrick establishment, for a whole window display of the book, in the middle of which display was a large oil-painted card telling of the showing of the play at the Strand and advising the reading of the book and then seeing the play in film form. The window attracted much attention.

CIRCUS PARADE ADVERTISES "PEG" OPENING

C. C. Boyes, of the Elite, Hebron, Neb., advertising the first episode of "Peg o' the Ring," arranged a parade three blocks long. Artificial animals, clowns, a circus band, big floats and a pretty miss on horseback, with plenty of banners and signs, attracted a lot of attention.

Now, according to Boyes, Hebron is hanging breathless from one picture to another.

SHOWS PICTURES OF MILITIAMEN IN THEIR HOME TOWNS

Here's your real live wire exhibitor and his name is Barrett—Guy Barrett, manager of the Belvedere Theatre, Lynchburg, Virginia. Why is he a live wire? What has he done to qualify for membership in the "Live Wire Club?" Well, if you'll lend your ear, here's the secret. When the two military companies from Lynchburg were ordered to Brownsville, Texas, from the mobilization camp in Richmond early in July, Barrett, who is a former cameraman, conceived the idea of paying the boys a visit after they had grown accustomed to camp life and taking their pictures for the benefit of their relatives and friends in Lynchburg.

When the first film was shown the biggest business the Belvedere theatre has ever enjoyed was done. Barrett will remain on the border several weeks and send a new picture to Lynchburg each week. He is also filming other Virginia militia and will sell the film to one theatre in each city.

GIRL USHERS DRESSED AS CARMEN IN RUN OF FOX "CARMEN"

The Fox production of "Carmen" was run for a week recently by manager Hector Quagliotti of the Colonial theatre in Vancouver, B. C., with admission raised to 25 cents, and capacity business was done throughout the engagement. As an innovation in Vancouver theatres, the young lady attendants were dressed in the garb of Carmen, and caused a great deal of favorable comment by patrons.

For the first time in the history of Vancouver, Mr. Quagliotti, has kept every picture on for a full week, and states that since the inauguration of this service his attendance has increased fully fifty per cent. Extensive use has been made of the newspapers in calling attention to the attractions, and a large wagon covered with posters and banners has also been used.

THEATRE PROVIDES UMBRELLAS FOR PATRONS

An innovation, notable among the efforts of exhibitors to attract patrons to their theatres, is that effected last week by the Hamilton theatre, Yonkers, which shows V-L-S-E features.

The management found itself stumped on several occasions recently when patrons were marooned in the theatre by sudden thunder showers. The effect of these showers on attendance became marked.

Last week, however, the manager of the Hamilton bought up a large supply of umbrellas and had large posters printed to the effect that patrons could have umbrellas when it rained by applying at the box office. Slides reading to this effect were also thrown upon the screen.

The result has been that the falling off in attendance has not only been made up, but gains have been shown almost daily.

DRY CLEANING ESTABLISHMENT GIVES AWAY THEATRE TICKETS

A dry cleaning concern, acting in conjunction with motion picture theatres of Springfield, Ohio, gives an admission ticket with each order for pressing and cleaning that amounts to at least one dollar.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

Four Special Features from Universal During the Week of August 28; First Is "The Folly of Desire," a Red Feather

FOUR special features are to be released on the Universal program during the week of August 28. First comes the five-reel Red Feather, "The Folly of Desire," written by Alice and Claude Askew and Edward Hurnblauch and produced by George Loan Tucker. "The Terrible Turk" is a story of the South African veldt and the Kaffir country.

Next in importance is a Universal special feature, with Carter De Haven, "He Becomes a Cop," a two-reel episode of the "Timothy Dobbs-That's Me" series. The latest episode was written and produced by Wallace Beery. Besides Mr. De Haven, Robert Milash and Margaret Whistler also play prominent roles. In this episode Timothy has some amusing adventures in a moving picture studio.

Third in the list of Universal Special Features for the week is Ella Hall in "The Heart of a Show Girl," a two-reel drama of stage life written by Bess Meredyth and produced by William Worthington. Franklyn Farnum appears in support of Miss Hall and the cast also includes Mrs. Muir and Helen Wright.

The fourth Universal Special Feature is the third two-reel episode of "Liberty," a new forty-one-reel Universal serial entitled "American Blood." Marie Walcamp, Eddie Polo and Jack Holt play the principal roles in "Liberty," written and produced by Jacques Jaccard. G. Raymond Nye and Bertram Grassby also play prominent parts in the serial.

On Monday, August 28, Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean are seen at their best in "The Terrible Turk," a Nestor one-reel comedy written by Harry Wulze and produced by L. W. Chaudet. Fred Gamble appears in support of the principals.

King Baggott in "The Chance Market," a three-reel society drama, is the Gold Seal Feature of Tuesday, August 29. Irene Hunt and Frank Smith appear in support of Mr. Baggott, who incidentally wrote and produced the picture. Others included in the cast are Jack Ridgeway and Howard Crampton. On the same day Ed Sedgwick plays the principal role in "A Lucky Leap," a Victor comedy written by Harry Wulze and produced by Roy Clements at Universal City. Mr. Sedgwick is supported by Nell Bennett, Evelyn Nesbit, Andrew Arbuckle and Harry Griffith.

On August 30 Dan Russell cavorts about "The Right Car But the Wrong Berth," a two-reel L-Ko, in which Katherine Griffith and Vin Moore also furnish a deal of fun. There will be no Laemmle release on August 30. No. 35 of the Universal Animated Weekly will be released on this date.

The Victor release for Thursday, August 31, will be replaced by the Universal Special Feature, "The Heart of a Show Girl," and there will be no Big U release on this date. Under the Powers brand, the Dr. Dorsey educational picture, "Japan's Gateway to the Temple of the Gods," will be released on August 31.

"The Call of the Past," an Imp two-reel underworld drama, featuring Agnes Vernon, will be released on September 1. In this picture, written by Harvey Gates and produced by William Lowery and Charles Mack, Miss Vernon is supported by Kingsley Benedict, Frank Brownlee and William Lowery. On the same date Edward Hearn and Little Elizabeth Jaynes, the champion child diver of Universal City, play the principal roles in "Little Brownie's Bravery," written by L. Canfield and produced by C. S. Elfelt. Appearing in support of the principals are Cameron C. Coffey and Arthur Allardt. There will be no release under thhe Nestor brand on September 1.

On September 2 "The Desert Rat," a Bison two-reel Western drama featuring Romaine Fielding, will be released. "The Desert Rat" was written by Gertrude Mason and produced by Mr. Fielding. There will be no release under the Laemmle brand on September 2. William Franey and Gale Henry furnish the fun in the Joker comedy, "The Elixir of Life," which will be released on September 2 and was written by Harry Wulze and produced by Allen Curtis. Charles Conklin, Lillian Peacock and Milburn Moranti appear in support of the principals.

There will be no release under the Rex brand on September 3. The big U feature for the day will be "The Song of the Woods," a drama written by Olga Printzlaw and produced by Clifford Elfelt, in which Raymond Nye and Vola Smith play the principal roles, supported by Marc Robbins and Charles Gunn. On the same day William Garwood and Lois Wilson play the leads in "Arthur's Desperate Resolve," a Victor comedy written by E. J. Clawson and produced by William Garwood.

RICKETTS COMPLETES SECOND AUDREY MUNSON FILM

Thomas Ricketts, for four years affiliated with the American Film Company as director, has just completed a five-reel feature entitled "The Girl of Dreams," with scenes laid in New York and the tropics. Audrey Munson, the artists' model, is star of this picture.

Following the strenuous work on this and previous subjects, Mr. Ricketts has been granted a long vacation.

ESSANAY OFFERS THREE BUSHMAN REISSUES

Three Francis X. Bushman reissues are on the Essanay-General Film program for August.

These include "The Three Scratch Clue," released August 8, "A Man for a' That," August 22, and "His Stolen Fortune," August 20.

SMALLEYS COMPLETING "IDLE WIVES"

The picturization of James Oppenheim's novel, "Idle Wives," is progressing rapidly under the direction of the Smalleys at Universal City. The film version was prepared by Lois Weber, and features Mary McLaren and Phillips Smalley.

How the Expressions "Going in a Bee Line" and "Bee in Your Bonnet" Originated Is Shown in Paramount Pictograph

PARAMOUNT is beginning the third year of its life with the program for the week of September 4.

The two five-reel features for this week are the Lasky production of "The Big Sister," in which Mae Murray is featured, and the Pallas production of "The Parson of Panamint" in which Dustin Farnum plays the title role.

Surrounding the two big pictures of the week will be three short reel features—the 30th edition of the Paramount Pictographs, the "Magazine-on-the-Screen"; the Paramount-Burton Holmes-Travel Pictures, "The Sunny South of England," and the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoon, "Bobby Bumps and the Stork," from the pen of Earl Hurd.

Four exceptional feature subjects are pictured in the 30th edition of the Paramount Pictographs, the "Magazine-on-the-Screen," including: "Following the Bee Line," "New York's Floating Hospital for Sick Babies," "Yacht Racing in the Park," and "Dueling with the Sword Fish."

"Following the Bee Line," gives a unique picture story of how the two well-known phrases—"going in a bee line" and "got a bee in your bonnet" came into existence.

"Yachting in the Park" pictures a yacht club in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, where the oldest yacht racers of the country have contests practically every day in the week. They distribute prizes every Saturday. The "Better Babies" subject, which takes up the wonderful St. John's Floating Hospital, is devoted to "How well babies can easily be kept well."

In the Paramount-Burton Holmes-Travel Pictures, Mr. Holmes takes his fellow journeyers on a "trip for tip" to the Sunny South of England, upon which section the eyes of the entire world have been watching since the beginning of the war.

Mr. Holmes takes his tourist party to England's southern extremity, Land's End, for he deems it the natural point for the proper invasion of the British Isles. From this the traveler goes through the lovely rural districts of Southern England, visiting many of the famous beaches, watering places, and by a coaching route the traveler sees 101 places of interest about which England's Southerners boast.

"Bohemia," Eighth "Grip of Evil," Shows "Bohemers" "Boheming" Their Young Lives Away in Artful Poses of Art-less "Art for Art's Sake"

FOR the week of September 3 Pathe offers a program with a two-reel reissue; two reels of "Grip of Evil"; a Luke comedy, another Florence Rose Fashions Number, and a split reel scenic.

"Good Pals" is a reissue in answer to an increasing demand for reissue of Pathe's earlier two reelers. It features Marguerite Risser, a popular member of the Old Pathe Jersey City stock company.

"In Bohemia" is the title of the eighth of the "Grip of Evil" series. To study another phase to his question "Is Humanity in the Grip of Evil?" John Burton lives among a group of struggling artists, posing as a man of humble means. He finds that "art for art's sake" is but an artificial pose and "Bohemia" but a state of mind and the almighty dollar is the King of Art.

"Luke Joins the Navy" is another slapstick comedy made by the Rolin Company. The majority of scenes are taken aboard a United States man-o'-war.

"Week End House Party at Betty Young's" is the third of the Florence Rose Fashions. Betty entertains a host of fashionable guests.

"Picturesque Havana" is a scenic of one of the world's greatest seaports. Picturesque Spanish buildings—Morro Castle—the harbor where the Maine met her tragic end, and many other picturesque spots combined to make the picture.

"Picturesque Ghent" finishes out the program. Ghent, Belgium's provincial city, still preserves much of its medieval characteristics.

Wednesday, September 6 brings Pathe News No. 74 and No. 75 on Saturday, September 9.

"THE MARRIAGE BOND" WILL BE RELEASED BY UNITY SALES THE FIRST WEEK IN SEPTEMBER

The Unity Sales Corporation will release the first week in September, "The Marriage Bond," produced by the Mirror Films, Inc., and starring the widely known Nat C. Goodwin. Mr. Goodwin is supported in "The Marriage Bond" by Margaret Green, who has had wide experience both on the stage and on the screen.

The story finds Mr. Goodwin playing the part of John Harwood, a well to do clubman. Jane Wilton breaks her engagement with the man she truly loves and weds Harwood for his money. However, she is unable to give up her lover and a tragedy ensues when she attempts to rid herself of Harwood.

Through the subsequent events in the story, largely brought about through the aid of Harwood's little son, Jack, whom he idolizes, Harwood is led to forgive his erring wife and redeems her.

ESSANAY BASES STORY ON CALL TO BORDER

"My Country, 'Tis of Thee" is a two-act Essanay photoplay released August 15. It is based on the call of the National Guard to the Mexican border.

It does not deal with war and battle scenes, however, but is a play touching on the conflict of duty to family and to the nation.

Bluebird Offers Attractive Program for Month of September; "Behind the Lines" Introduces Harry Carey

THE announcement of Bluebird's program for the first month of the regular theatrical season gives promise of excellent material for the exhibitor to employ in combating the inevitable opposition of the reopening dramatic and vaudeville houses. When the public settles down to business with the arrival of Labor Day devotees of Bluebirds will have an inviting array of subjects to bring them right back to where they left off at vacation time.

"The Unattainable" starts a month's rations with an unusual subject—embodying several episodes that are unusual in picture dramas. The distinctive feature of the first reels is the employment of over 3,000 sheep, either as "actors" in the drama or as a feature of several beautiful "shots" taken among the Sierras at Chatsworth Park.

Later in the story the scientific operation of blood-transfusion is pictured, in complete detail, as an uncommon incident in pictures. Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnson play the leads and Richard Morris has a heavy role that is exceptional among camera delineations.

"Saving the Family Name" will be welcomed in advance of both the exhibitor and his public on September 11 because it is a Smalley production—the scenario and direction by Lois Weber, with Phillips Smalley leading man. Mary MacLaren, the heroine of "Shoes," will be featured and her supporting company will include Miss Girrard Alexander, Carl von Schiller, Jack Holt and Harry Depp. Evelyn Heath's story inspired Miss Webers' scenario.

"Behind the Lines," to be released September 18, will employ Harry Carey, Mark Fenton and Edith Johnson in featured positions. In this release Miss Johnson is introduced to Bluebirds as Harry Carey's new leading lady.

The scenario, by Walter Wood, was based on Mary Rider's story of strife and political intrigue between this country and Mexico. Henry McRae has directed the production and developed a stirring military drama that will be timely as well as diversifying to the program.

Emile Gaboriau's famous novel "The Clique of Gold" was the basis for the September 25 release, although it is possible that the feature will be released under a changed title. E. J. Clawson furnished the scenario and Rupert Julian directed the feature, employing Elsie Jane Wilson and Francelia Billington in the leading roles, Mr. Julian, Hobart Henly, Douglas Gerrard, C. N. Hammond, Tom Lockwood and Sydney Dean being in their support.

VOGUE COMEDIES WILL BE 2-REEL SUBJECTS ONLY

The Vogue Films in the future will consist of two-reel subjects only, according to a statement made by Manager Crone in Los Angeles last week.

At the present time the Miller-McKray company is filming "The Secret Pool," which has a Turkish atmosphere. Rube Miller and Ben Turpin are raising ducks and geese, respectively, and they discover a pool of water which has a secret power of transforming any fowl placed in it, into a beautiful woman. They immediately drive their respective flocks to the pool, and a harem is the result. Eighteen beauties constitute the array in the harem scenes. The pool is proving to be the most popular place at the studio, and bathing scenes might be enacted there any hour of the day.

MARY McLAREN WILL BE FEATURED IN "SAVING THE FAMILY NAME," BLUEBIRD FOR SEPTEMBER 11

Mary Mac Laren, the heroine of "Shoes," will be featured in the Bluebird release for September 11 in "Saving the Family Name," produced by Lois Weber, with Phillips Smalley as leading man. Miss Weber created the picture from Evelyn Heath's story as the second of a series of releases in which Miss Mac Laren will be featured on the Bluebird program as the "discovery" of the Smalleys.

In "Shoes" the girl was projected as an "over night star" and made abundantly good, her success leading to "Saving the Family Name" and the subsequent releases, "Idle Wives" and "Wanted a Home."

GAUMONT WILL ISSUE THREE SINGLE REELS FOR WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 3

The three single reel releases from the Gaumont studios for the week of September 3 are "Reel Life," the Gaumont scenic and animated cartoon, and The Mutual Weekly. "Reel Life," No. 18, features the cruise of the New York Yacht Club under the title of "A Day with the Yachtsmen." It gives one an excellent idea of the palatial steam yachts and the fast sailing vessels which comprise the fleet. Another part of the film is devoted to pictures of a plot of ground in the city under intensive cultivation.

The third part of the reel presents one of the popular episodes which are pictured from stories in Life, the humorous weekly. It is called "What Would You Do If—" This time the question has to deal with a jealous husband who returns home to find his wife in another man's arms. After he shoots her he discovers that she is not his wife, as he has walked into a house next door to his home.

The spectator is left to answer the question for himself.

"See America First" will present characteristic and entertaining pictures of Mauch Chunk, and the anthracite coal regions in the vicinity of Wilkesbarre and Scranton, Pa.

On the same reel with "See America First" is an animated cartoon by Harry Palmer. It is a regular release with the scenic.

The third single reel release of the week as a Mutual Picture from the Gaumont studios is The Mutual Weekly.

HATTIE DE LARO IS CAST FOR NEW ROLE IN "THE UPHEAVAL"

Hattie Delaro, who plays the irate landlady in "The Quitter" with Lionel Barrymore, and appears in the support of the same star in "The Upheaval," in the contrasting part of a society leader, was the Pitti Sing of the first "Mikado" production in America, Richard Mansfield being the Ko Ko. In the first American production of "The Princess Ida," Miss Delaro first met Genevieve Reynolds, who is Lady Montague in the Bushman and Bayne production of "Romeo and Juliet." The two renewed their acquaintance recently in the Rolfe studio.

"Saving the Family Name" Is the Next Feature in Which Exhibitors and Audiences Will See Mary MacLaren, the Girl Who Was Featured in Bluebird's Recent Production of "Shoes"—This Is Also a Weber-Smalley Feature, Soon to Be Released

Many Pictures Founded on Stories by Noted Authors, and Subjects Based on Original Scripts from Mutual

FORTHCOMING months will see the release by the Mutual Film Corporation of a number of series of feature attractions, each presenting as the star a noted favorite of the stage or screen. These feature productions will present a wide range of subjects in drama and comedy drama. In addition, Mutual will shortly release the first chapter of a new series, which is to be put out in five releases of three reels each.

These forthcoming productions will be on stories by noted authors, past and present, or from original scenarios written by men especially engaged by the various studios releasing through the Mutual. The features are to go to the public under the title of Mutual Star Productions, and will be filmed under the personal supervision of directors whose work in the past has been of such a calibre as to rank them with the best producers of the day.

The series of Mutual Star Productions featuring little Mary Miles Minter, youngest of picture stars, who is now at work at the American-Mutual studios in Santa Barbara, Cal., is well along. The first six of the Minter features will be released under the following titles and in the order named: "Youth's Endearing Charm," "Dulcie's Adventure," "Faith," "Sunshine," "Fortune" and "Innocence."

First of the Richard Bennett Mutual Star Productions, featuring the famous stage star, who has been engaged by the American-Mutual studios for a series of six feature productions, will be released shortly under the title of "The Sable Blessing." This is a five-act comedy drama from the story by Aaron Hoffman. Mr. Bennett's second appearance will be as the star of "His Brother's Keeper," another five-reel Mutual Star Production of the story by Kenneth B. Clarke, scenarioized by William Piggott.

Florence Turner is scheduled to appear in forthcoming weeks in three feature productions, in addition to the three already released, the latest of which "A Welsh Singer," was recently announced. Her remaining productions are "Grim Justice," adapted from the story of the same name by "Rita," the famous novelist; "East is East," by Captain Philip Hubbard and "The First Settler's Story," a picturization of the popular poem by Will Carlton. Each of these productions, as with the ones already released, was screened under the direction of Larry Trimble.

First of the series of comedy dramas starring C. William Kolb and Max Dill, long favorites of the stage and vaudeville circuits will go to the public on August 21 under the title of "A Million for Mary." Rea Berger, who directed "Purity," the American Mutual allegorical drama starring Audrey Munson, is personally supervising the Mutual Star Production featuring these funny men. Additional of the feature starring those laughmakers will be released as follows: "The Three Pals," "The Bluff," "Beloved Rogues" and "Decent Deuces."

Next of the series of Mutual Star Productions featuring Helen Holmes, star of the Signal Film Corporation studios, will be released in the near future under the title of "The Manager of the B. and A." This feature is founded on the railroad story of the same name by Vaughn Kester and, as with all the productions featuring Miss Holmes, is being screened by Director-General J. P. McGowan. "The Diamond Runners," last of the productions featuring Miss Holmes, many of the scenes of which were photographed in Honolulu, will follow shortly after.

William Russell, the star of the American Mutual studios, who has already been presented in three of these Mutual Star Productions, the last of which "The Strength of Donald McKenzie," was released a few weeks ago, is to appear shortly in "The Man Who Would Not Die," his fourth feature. This production based on a story of a fight between capital and labor, is an adaptation of Arthur H. Gooden's story of that title. Additional Russell features will be released under the following titles: "The Torch Bearer" and "The Love Hermit."

In addition to these features already announced a special series of Mutual Star Productions featuring Margarita Fischer is also announced. Miss Fischer, who enjoys one of the widest followings of any of the picture stars now before the public, has signed a contract by which her pictures will be released through the Mutual by the American Film Company, and will shortly begin work on her first production, "The Pearl of Paradise." These Fischer Mutual Star Productions will be directed by Harry Pollard who has been closely identified with nearly all of Miss Fischer's feature work since becoming a star of the silent drama.

Mr. Pollard is now engaged in the selection of suitable scripts and has announced that several have already been obtained. Miss Fischer will be supported by a specially selected company of players and will work in her own studio at the American-Mutual studios in Santa Barbara.

The Mutual's new series of Gaumont productions, will be released under the title of "Fantomas." It is based on the exploits of a notorious Paris criminal. It will be presented in five releases of three chapters each, the first of which will go out on September 7. Numerous other productions starring various noted stars are now in preparation and will be announced shortly by the Mutual Film Corporation.

Essanay Releases for September Include Besides a Feature an Assortment of Short Reel Subjects, One, Two and Three Reelers, Comedy and Drama

GEORGE K. SPOOR, president of Essanay, has just announced the company's September releases. Besides a feature they include an assortment of short reel subjects, one, two and three acts in both comedy and drama.

All of Essanay's stars appear in these photoplays, including Henry B. Walthall, Bryant Washburn, Richard C. Travers, Sydney Ainsworth, Ernest Maupain, John Lorenz, Harry Dunkinson, Edna Mayo, Nell Craig, Warda Howard, E. H. Calvert, Marguerite Clayton, Lillian Drew, Edward Arnold and Eugene O'Brien.

The first September release is "The Higher Destiny," scheduled for the 2nd, and it includes in the cast Warda Howard, Sydney Ainsworth, Edward Arnold, Gertrude Glover and Patrick Calhoun. It is a drama with heart interest, of a man who loves, who neglects his wife, and finally repents.

"The Pacifist," released on September 5, is a comedy based on one of the topics of the day. It shows how a man who is always fighting for peace, finally wins out by fighting with his fists. It features Harry Dunkinson.

On September 6, Essanay offers Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 15 by Wallace A. Carlson, a caricature on the leading men and events of the day.

"A Million for a Baby" is the three-act offering of September 9, a strong drama featuring Bryant Washburn, Marguerite Clayton, Lillian Drew and John Lorenz.

On September 12 comes a two-act drama "The Greater Obligation" featuring Edward Arnold.

Dreamy Dud, one of the humorous cartoons by Wallace A. Carlson, reappears on the screen on September 13.

On September 16 there is a three-act drama, a love story entitled "The Woman Always Pays." Miss Drew and Sydney Ainsworth take the leading roles. Miss Drew and Sydney Ainsworth are also presented in a strong two-act drama, "When Justice Won," on September 19.

A Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 16, appears on September 20, and on September 23, there appears one of the best three-reel offerings of the month, "The Way of Patience," featuring Nell Craig, Ernest Maupain and Darwin Karr.

In the last week of the month, beginning with September 26 there is a two-reel comedy drama, "Peter the Hermit," featuring Nell Craig, Harry Dunkinson and John Junior, a Dreamy Dud on September 27, and a three-reel drama on September 30, "Twin Fates," featuring Sydney Ainsworth, Edmund F. Cobb, and Virginia Bowker.

Essanay's five-act feature for the month is "The Return of Eve," presenting Edna Mayo and Eugene O'Brien.

"MYSTERIES OF THE RIVIERA" IS A GAUMONT WITH PICKED CAST

Gaumont's "The Mystery of the Riviera" is to be released as a Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, August 24. In addition to placing the action of the photodrama in surroundings of unusual beauty at Nice, France, during the carnival, a thrilling story has been provided for a cast of Gaumont favorites who were picked from the strength of the various stock companies maintained in Paris.

"The Mystery of the Riviera" deals with the successful theft of a valuable sapphire necklace by an international crook, who manages to throw suspicion upon the man who is in love with the beautiful woman who owns the gems. The thief is assisted by a woman who masquerades as a governess.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

EDGAR LEWIS, Lubin director, and an all-star company of Lubin players, have arrived in the Yukon country, Alaska, and started work on "The Barrier," a special V-L-S-E release, which is being adapted from the novel of that name by Rex Beach.

Director Lewis has not yet decided upon the length of "The Barrier." He intends to go ahead with the photographing of the countless scenes in the scenario, written from the novel, and to let the length of the picture take care of itself. This may be as high as ten reels, and perhaps more than ten.

A special train, consisting of three cars—a Pullman, a day coach and a baggage car—was hired to take the company to the country in which the novel is laid. It is the intention of Director Lewis to use, wherever possible the exact scenes and locations that appear in the novel.

The baggage car on the train was fitted up by the Lubin mechanics as a testing room. As the various scenes are taken they will be carried overland to the baggage car, which will be left on a railroad siding, where they will be tested.

Considerable care was taken in the selection of the young woman to portray the role of Necia, the heroine of "The Barrier.

The player chosen was Mabel Julian Scott, a young woman of wide stage experience said to be an exceedingly true to the type of Necia. The role of Lieut. Burrell, the hero of the novel, will be portrayed by Victor Sutherland, who has played the leading roles in most recent Lubin releases.

Others in the cast are Rosemary Carr, Howard Hall, formerly with Belasco and leading man in the Belasco play, "The Man Who Stood Still," Mitchell Lewis and Russell Simpson.

The casual visitor at the Famous Players studio after seeing Mae Murray and Ann Pennington, of recent and current "Follies" fame respectively, appearing before the camera, might be inclined to think that the "Follies" have gone into the movies. The suspicion might further be strengthened by the appearance of Florence Walton, of not so late "Follies" fame, in the same studio.

But the casual visitor would, as usual, be wrong. Mae Murray is not dancing at all, but playing a slum girl. Ann Pennington is preparing to reign as "The Rainbow Princess" during such time as her services are not required by Mr. Ziegfeld; Florence Walton is doing a picture with her partner Maurice in which they combine dramatic action and their well-known dancing numbers.

These three well-known "Follies" representatives are not the only dancers who have appeared at the Famous Players studio, as Hazel Dawn of "Pink Lady" fame, and Gaby Deslys have also been given celluloid presentation by the same concern on the Paramount Program.

From Footlights to Sawdust

"From Foot-lights to Sawdust" in one jump and no reels might be the title of a production giving the contemporaneous history of Ann Pennington, star of the Ziegfield "Follies" and of Famous Players-Paramount productions.

After her debut in "Susie Snowflake" it was decided to star Miss Pennington in a circus story to be called "The Rainbow Princess," which is being staged under the direction of J. Searle Dawley. In this picture, Miss Pennington plays a little waif who has been adopted by the wife of the proprietor of a circus and is forced to do a great deal of the mean work around the place in addition to learning to do tricks with the animals. Of course there is a lover among the men in the troupe, but the Princess, realizing that he is not quite sincere in his attentions, has the good sense to refuse to accept his attentions. She late proves to be not at all the waif that she was thought to be and—but the story is one to be seen on the screen.

There are well defined rumors about the Famous Players studio that Owen Moore's next production is going to find him doing some aerial stunts. At any rate Moore and Director Del Henderson have been frequent visitors at the aviation field at Mineola within the last week.

Hugh Ford has departed from the Famous Players studio on a short vacation, destination unknown. But wherever he goes, Mr. Ford will startle the natives when he discloses one of his greatest sartorial triumphs in the form of a "silk" shirt made of wood fibre. Any press despatches to the effect that the inhabitants of certain backwoods towns have been seen braiding twigs into shirts can readily be laid to the influence of Mr. Ford.

Arthur Albertson, juvenile with Kalem's Jacksonville Company, at present staging Ivy Close Comedies, has recovered from the effects of his recent injury and is once more back at the studio. Albertson met with his accident in working on a "thrill scene" staged to form a whirlwind climax for a coming comedy. His return will be in "Tangled by Telephone," a one-reel release.

Billy Boy, the seven year old Kalem youngster, who was seen in so many of Kalem's "Hazards of Helen," last winter has returned to the station-studio, and will soon be seen once more in the railroad pictures. He will make his return bow in "At Danger's Call," in which Helen Gibson, hanging head downward from a bridge, succeeds in saving Billy from a runaway flat car loaded with explosive.

For Miss Helen Slosson, daughter of George F. Slosson, billiard expert, the word "cue" has a different meaning from what it has for her father. She takes her cues from the directors of the Universal Film Company, having become a motion picture actress.

Considerable success has attended Miss Slosson's efforts. She stood before the motion picture cameras for the first time five months ago, with no previous experience as an actress, and under the tuition of Lucius Henderson, the Universal director, advanced so rapidly that in three months she had progressed from an extra girl to a lead. In the interim she worked a secondary role with Mary Fuller, in "The Untamed," which will be released in a few days.

Her first lead was in a play called "Hearts in the Wilderness," which will appear soon. Then she did "By the Wit of a Girl," and now she is preparing "A Summer Boarder."

Miss Slosson lives at the Walton Hotel, New York, and starts about sunrise every day for the studios at Fort Lee. Her father is at present in Boston. She is a granddaughter of Thomas Foley, well known in Chicago as a supporter of the game of billiards. Miss Slosson's only previous efforts were in the field of poetry. She has several poems printed in magazines.

Vera Pearce, the ingenue who has appeared in many Metro productions and is now at work in the big screen production of "Romeo and Juliet," has received an offer from a Chicago company to be featured in a series of aeroplane stories of the screen. Miss Pearce is the only girl that ever flew over New York City, and recently made a flight for Metro during the exhibitors' convention, going from Garden City to Yonkers, and back to the starting point after circling over Manhattan.

Elliott in Cast with Nigh

Robert Elliott, who was last seen with Irene Fenwick on the Metro program in "The Chiild of Destiny," is playing the lead with William Nigh and Irene Howley in a five part production, as yet unnamed. Mr. Elliott will be seen again in a play on Broadway later in the season. He is one of the most popular leading men in the country and was last seen with Margaret Illington in "The Lie."

It is not unusual for motion picture companies to pay for any damage they do to property when they are responsible for the loss, but a Metro producing company, just returned from northern Maine, reports that they were obliged to pay for improvements they made on property there. The company, headed by Edmund Breese, was engaged in making exteriors for "The Weakness of Strength," at Millinocket, Maine. Many of the scenes called for the use of a small cottage, and Harry J. Cohen, special representative of the Metro-Popular Plays and Players Company, conceived the idea of renting a vacant house.

The fact that most of the roof was gone and the place was badly in need of repairs did not bother the motion picture folk, as they could only use it in good weather. To make the place look habitable and more homelike Mr. Cohen employed a dozen men to put it in order. He had the grass cut, a homey gravel walk laid, with flowers transplanted on either side, whitewashed stones arranged around flower beds, and put in three windows, papered one room and had some hedge put in near the house.

The Metro company used the old house for two weeks. At the end of that time Mr. Cohen presented himself to the owner and tendered him the money agreed upon for rental. Immediately the man raised a great complaint, declaring that the place was nothing like it was when he turned it over to the picture folk. He wanted ten dollars additional for the "damage" done.

"I'll have a motion picture made of myself giving you ten dollars for this," said Mr. Cohen, "but it will be stage money."

George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester Discussing "The Enemy" with Paul Scardon, Evart Overton and Charles Kent, of the Vitagraph Forces

Nance O'Neil, the famous stage and screen star, who has signed a contract to appear on the Metro program, has been married to her leading man, Alfred Hickman. The wedding was not a surprise to their many friends as Miss O'Neil and Mr. Hickman have been engaged for some time. They met for the first time five years ago when they appeared together in David Belasco's production, "The Lily." Miss O'Neil and Mr. Hickman were married at the home of friends in New Rochelle and after the ceremony motored to her country home in Bayside, Long Island, where they will live.

The couple will spend their honeymoon at the Popular Plays and Players studio, where they are at work on the five part Metro production, "The Iron Woman." This is a picturization of Margaret Doland's novel of the same name. Metro also has already for production "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie," by Miss Doland, and Ethel Barrymore will be seen in the stellar role in that feature.

Reminiscent of the recent trial of the dentist, Arthur Waite, will be a scene in the new Metro-Rolfe five act photodrama starring Emily Stevens, with Frank Mills featured in her support. This will be the arsenic test for the purpose of discovering the presence of the drug in the body of a poison victim.

Starts Pathe Serial

A chemical laboratory will be reproduced in its entirety and every item of a chemical analysis will be carried out in detail. Charles Hunt, assistant to George D. Baker, who is directing the production, has been studying medicine for months past, not with a view of getting a diploma, but simply for purposes of the studio. Under the guardianship of a physician friend he has made many trips to Bellevue Hospital and has attended several clinics.

Edward Jose of Astra has started work on a new Pathe serial with Pearl White as the star. Donald Mackenzie of Astra has finished "The Shielding Shadow," the fifteen chapter serial Pathe will release October 1, and within ten days will start work on another.

George Fitzmaurice of Astra has completed two fine new Gold Rooster plays, adopted from the A. H. Woods stage successes "The Test," with Jane Grey, Lumsden Hare, Claude Fleming and Carl Harbaugh, and "Kick In," with William Courtenay and Mollie King, and is now at work on "The Challenge," an A. H. Woods play.

Included in the supporting cast of Mme. Kalich's new photoplay for William Fox are Stuart Holmes, Kenneth Hunter and Madeline Le Nard .

By permission from Warden Osborne several hundred feet of film were made at Sing Sing last week for some scenes in a new William Fox photoplay starring Valeska Suratt, under Director Will S. Davis. The men in the institution watched the work interestedly, as many Fox pictures have been shown on the prison screen. They and Warden Osborne told the players how appreciative they were of the reels which Mr. Fox had donated in the past for the men's entertainment.

The cast includes not only Miss Suratt, but Glen White, Herbert Heyes and Claire Whitney.

Work was begun a few days ago on Virginia Pearson's new photoplay for the William Fox films. Miss Pearson has not only the lead in the picture but she has the only feminine role of any importance. Walter Law and Glen White are among those in the supporting cast.

Tom Burrough, who played in "Caprice of the Mountains," has returned to William Fox pictures after six weeks' vacation. "I couldn't stand it," said Mr. Burrough. "I had decided to leave the screen forever and settle down on my Staten Island farm. I managed to stay there a little more than a month. Then I got restless. After five weeks I was on my way back to New York and Fox films.

William Bock, technical director in the William Fox studios, has created a "prop" for a photoplay now under way which is another tribute to his inventive genius. The new "prop" is a formidable looking armored automobile, which flits across the landscape in several scenes of the picture. It was intended originally to use the genuine article but a sudden dearth in armored autos developed, so Director J. Gordon Edwards turned to Bock, the unfailing. In eight hours the technical director had rigged up a war like affair out of cardboard.

Betty Howe in "Beatrice Fairfax"

In addition to Harry Fox and Grace Darling other prominent screen stars will appear with these two in certain episodes of "Beatrice Fairfax," the photoplay series of the International Film Service, Inc.

The first of these co-stars will be Miss Betty Howe. She is just able to walk again after having been laid up for several weeks with a broken ankle. She is now at work and will be seen with Mr. Fox and Miss Darling in the fifth and sixth spisodes of "Beatrice Fairfax"—"The Stone God" and "The Forbidden Room." Nigel Barry will also appear in several of the episodes.

Harry Fox, who is making his first appearance in motion pictures in "Beatrice Fairfax," the photoplay series of the International Film Service, Inc., is so enthusiastic over screen acting that he is writing a morality play. Its title will be "The Screen of Life" and already Mr. Fox is preparing to produce it at Ithaca, Auburn and other towns in that vicinity.

Harry Myers, dressed for warm weather in white trousers and with his sleeves rolled up, was busily engaged when last seen in the Eastern studio at Providence, R. I., which has been temporarily taken over by the Vim company, headed by Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby.

The Providence studio is large, equipped with the latest devices and is just the kind of a place that the critical director loves to have.

The other two Vim companies, under Louis Burstein, are still at the Jacksonville studio but will emigrate shortly to Providence, where the weather is not quite so hot.

Mr. Mark Dintenfass, who heads activities of the various Vim companies is very enthusiastic about the quality of the film produced by the Vim studio and promises that the coming releases will be even better than ever produced in the past.

Frederick Warde, the Thanhouser star, who is on a Shakespearian lecture tour in New England, carries a trunkful of books with him. They all refer to customs and costumes of the period in which "The Vicar of Wakefileld," which is to be the next picture Mr. Warde is to make for Thanhouser, is laid.

Florence La Badie Back from Vacation

Florence La Badie, the Thanhouser star, has returned from her vacation and has started work with her director, Frederick Sullivan, on a new feature by Agnes C. Johnston. The picture, which will be released through Pathe, goes deep into the problems of free love, discussing frankly, but fighting against, radical ideas. It is as yet unnamed.

Ethelmary Oakland, the seven year old Thanhouser actress, has just finished her five weeks' rehearsal of a prominent role with Jeanne Eagles in "The World and Woman," which will be released through Pathe sometime in September. Ethelmary, in her short but meteoric career, has played the lead in seven pictures and has had important roles in thirty-two other films. She is now engaged for a new picture shortly to be placed in rehearsal by Thanhouser, entitled "Our Home."

The entire Ivan company, under the direction of Ivan Abramson, who were to Asbury Park for over a week filming exterior locations for "Her Surrender," the next all star cast Ivan feature, has returned to New York City after completing the filming of the exterior settings required by the scenario.

The beautiful sunken Italian gardens located on the Duveen estate at Asbury Park were employed and several novel lighting effects were obtained on this spot. The swan colony which inhabtis a lake on the estate give added atmosphere to the picture.

Among those of the company who made this trip were Anna Nilsson, Rose Coghlan, Harry Spingler, William H. Tooker, Wilmuth Merkyl, Frankie Mann, Sue Balfour, Arthur Priscoe and Director General Ivan Abramson.

Sing Sing Prison has been obtained through the courtesy of Thomas Mott Osborne, the warden, and some interior settings will actually be made inside the prison walls, when the picture will have been entirely completed.

The importance of Jacksonville as a motion picture producing center is shown by the many new companies in New York and Chicago who have recently established studios in that city and who have found that the close proximity to New York and the climatic conditions are one of the great essentials in this big industry.

The Klassic Located in Jacksonville

The latest concern to seek locations in Jacksonville is the Klassic Film Company of Westerly, R. I., whose president, J. B. Totten, has wired Mayor J. E. T. Bowden and President F. C. Groover of the Chamber of Commerce that he will visit Jasksonville in the near future to start operations on the construction of a studio adequate for his needs.

The Plump and Runt company of Vim players have strayed slightly away from their regular productions in the new picture "Love and Duty," from the pen of Bert Tracy, Vim scenario writer, and the production promises to add prestige to the Vim program. "Love and Duty" is a burlesque on army life, and with Babe Hardy and Billy Ruge, the Vim comedians, playing the stellar roles the merits of the picture are assured.

E. H. Sothern and Edith Storey are busily engaged at the Vitagraph studios in "An Enemy to the King," by Robert N. Stephens. This is the play in which Mr. Sothern has appeared in all parts of the world and is one of his best liked vehicles. Vitagraph Director Fred Thompson is directing the production of the picture.

An extra corps of workers has been engaged by the modiste department to assist them in the making of a large number of gowns for this picture.

Charles Brabin, who has been supervising the filming of a five-part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, in which Naomi Childers and Marc McDermott play the leading roles, will direct the last five chapters of the Louis Joseph Vance story, featuring Charles Richman, Arline Pretty, Joseph Kilgour and an all-star Vitagraph cast.

Lillian Walker, Vitagraph's dimpled star, made a trip to Boston on Thursday last and was introduced to the Mayor of that city. The local V. L. S. E. made a regular "Lillian Walker Day" of it, with the assistance of one of Boston's large dailies.

Director Paul Scardon is putting the finishing touches to the George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester story, "The Enemy," which, when completed, will be released as a Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature. Peggy Hyland, the dainty English beauty, Evart Overton and Charles Kent are the stars of this photoplay.

One of the largest single "sets" ever erected by the Vitagraph scenery staff was an interior of a church which was blown to pieces to suit the action of a scene in "The Battle Cry of War," the sequel to

Helen Slosson (Universal)

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton's famous photoplay spectacle "The Battle Cry of Peace."

It took three weeks' time, the services of thirty men, forty barrels of plaster of paris, fifteen tons of rock, four carloads of lumber, six massive plate glass windows and a number of pews to erect it.

Director William P. S. Earle is thankful, however, that Alice Joyce, Harry T. Morey, Peggy Hyland and the balance of the cast managed to get out in time to escape injury.

Scenes representing the bursting of shells from enemy guns were photographed at Pittsfield, Mass., on Wednesday last for use in "The Battle Cry of War." To get the proper effect, Wally Van, who, with Earle Williams journeyed to Pittsfield to take some exteriors for "The Scarlet Runner," in which he used a balloon, decided to photograph the exploding shells from above.

Increased Production Is Plan of the Ivan Film Company

Arrangements Made for Director from Large Producing Concern—Scenario Department Will Be Under Direction of Victor de Villiers—Scripts Bought from Jefferson

THE demand from the motion picture public, the exhibitor, and the exchanges distributing Ivan features, has forced this company to increase their productions.

Arrangements have been made with a certain director, who will shortly sever his connection with one of the largest film manufacturing companies, to direct all-star cast productions under the Ivan banner. Announcement as to this director's identity, will be made shortly. Ivan Abramson, director general of the Ivan Company, will continue to produce pictures as director general for this company.

The Ivan scenario department has been increased by obtaining the services of Victor de Villiers, the well-known photoplaywright as editor-in-chief. The Ivan Company has also purchased several original scenarios of L. V. Jefferson. The Ivan Film Productions are also corresponding with well-known authors with a view of acquiring the screen rights to well-known books and plays.

Contracts have been entered into and negotiations are pending with well-known screen artists and performers of the legitimate stage.

In order that there may be no let up of productive efforts during the winter season, arrangements have ben completed, whereby the Ivan Film Productions will have a studio in Los Angeles. This plant is located at 2500 Allesandro street, and here productions to be released through the Ivan exchanges will be made under the personal supervision of W. A. Norton.

At the present time, Ivan Abramson is completing "Her Surrender," an original photodrama written by himself and enacted by an all-star cast composed of Anna Nilsson, Rose Coghlan, William H. Tooker, Harry Spingler, Wilmuth Merkyl and Frankie Mann. This picture will be released shortly through the Ivan exchanges as the regular scheduled Ivan feature for September.

"The Parson of Panimint" Gets Studio Showing at Morosco's

Picture Featuring Vivian Martin Called for Largest Interior Set Made for Any Film Yet Brought Out by the Company

Los Angeles, Aug. 19.

THE September 4th Paramount release of the Morosco Company, "The Parson of Paniment," filmed under the direction of William D. Taylor with Dustin Farnum as star, was given its final showing at the studio last week, and was referred to as the best Morosco release to date. Director Taylor has used close-ups in this very effectively, and the village built on the desert especially for the picture, shows up to wonderful advantage.

Vivian Martin has been cast in a just-before-the-war southern story, which requires the largest interior set that has been built at the Pallas-Morosco studio. It shows the interior of a southern home with massive colonial staircase. The walls of the set are twenty-five feet in height, and it occupies one entire stage. A pretentious ballroom scene was filmed on this set, and more than one hundred took part, all in evening costume of the period. Herbert Standing, Helen Eddy and Lucile Ward play important parts in support of Miss Martin.

Herbert Brenon and Mme. Nazimova Studying the Script of "War Brides"

Edna Goodrich, Morosco-Pallas star, while awaiting her next script, proved to be a very valuable visitor at the studio, as no one present knew how to properly bandage an injured soldier's head, such action being required in a scene. Miss Goodrich is a trained war-nurse and has served in the trenches during the present European conflict, and her experience proved valuable to the producers.

Director Scott Sidney and company, filming the Pallas Indian story with Lenore Ulrich as star, and Colin Chase as lead, are still in Bear Lake Valley filming scenes about the Indian village built there.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Los Angeles, August 19.

A COMPANY composed of more than two hundred and fifty people, went to Oxnard last week to start to take part in scenes for the desert section of the Selig production of "The Garden of Allah," to be made by Colin Campbell. Technical men had previously gone to the locations with several car loads of buildings in sections, and these were erected on the desert before the arrival of the company. It will require approximately one week to make the desert scenes, and the organization will then return to the Selig studio where practically all the remainder of the picture will be made. Helen Ware, especially engaged for this picture, has arrived in Los Angeles, and the only other player cast as announced is Tom Santschi, who will play the male lead.

The Selig Company producing "By Light of Western Stars," is playing alternately at Newhall and the Selig studio in Los Angeles. Bessie Eyton, who plays the featured part in this, sharing honors with Tom Mix, arrived from the east Thursday, and immediately began work.

Marshall Neilan, who has just completed filming the five-reel western picture, "The Country That God Forgot," accomplished this in seven working days, and the film was printed, cut and shipped east in less than two weeks. By coast directors this is considered a record for speed. It was made possible as all settings and locations were arranged for prior to the filming.

The Kalem Ham Comedy Company have gone to Arrowhead Hot Springs in the foothills near San Bernardino, where they will make the exteriors for the subject known under the working title of "Ham and Mud." Lloyd V. Hamilton, who is directing this and playing the featured comedian part, also shares honors with Bud Duncan as the author.

One company of the Vogue organization is filming the two-reel subject known under the working title of "A Millionaire for a Day," in which Paddy McQuire is first introduced as the street sweeper who finds an unfortunate youth who falls under a greater cargo of liquor than he can successfully carry. The entire cast includes Gypsy Abbott, Arthur Moon, Marie Templeton and others.

General Western Representative A. Carlos has just renewed the contract of William Farnum for another year as star in Fox productions. This player has proven to be one of the strongest assets of the Fox organization, and the renewal of the contract bespeaks the appreciation of this actor by the William Fox organization. Mr. Farnum has but recently returned to the studio after a prolonged illness which began shortly after exposure early this year when he remained in a tank of cold water for several hours. His physician fears he will suffer with a relapse. He is making an effort to continue with the photoplay in which he is working under Director Oscar Apfel, and has hopes of completing this. Following the completion of this, he will take a long vacation.

Sixty-seven Fox Players in Mountains

A William Fox company consisting of sixty-seven photo players with George Walsh and Juanita Hansen in the featured roles, have gone to the high Sierra Mountains in the vicinity of Huntington Lake for scenes for a western drama, adapted from a well-known novel. Carrie Clark Ward, character woman, has been specially engaged to appear in this production.

Suitable subjects have been selected for Directors Frank Lloyd and Richard Stanton. Gladys Brockwell, who has appeared in a number of Fox productions, will play in the company to be directed by Lloyd, and players are now on the way to the coast for the Stanton productions.

The first comedy of the Hank Mann and Charles Parrot Fox producing company has been completed and consists of four reels. This is a burlesque on "A Fool There Was," and was highly praised by Mr. Carlos following its private showing at the studio theatre.

The second comedy company being directed by Walter Reed is home from northern trip where they made mountain scenes. This is to have a rural atmosphere, and will be of the type of the legitimate stage melodrama of twenty years ago.

Two very remarkable settings occupy stages at the Ince Culver City studios. One is for a courtroom scene in the Ince Triangle play which stars Frank Keenan in the role of an attorney. The setting is the most pretentious ever built for films, requiring as it does more than 3,000 square feet of stage space, and has a seating capacity of approximately 400. It was prepared under the supervision of Art Director Robert Brunton, and every detail is so perfect, that local attorneys who visited the studios this week could not find a single flaw. Photographs of New York superior courtrooms served Brunton in the planning of this. Margery Wilson plays the featured part opposite Keenan, that of his daughter who is the means of reconciliation of her parents. The play gives her more opportunities than were afforded her in her most recent release "The Eye of the Night," in which she played opposite William H. Thompson. Director Walter Edwards is in charge of filming the picture.

The other setting represents a mammoth ball room which will be used for scenes in the Ince photoplay by Russell E. Smith, which will offer three stars, Dorothy Dalton, Howard Hickman and Enid Markey. The setting is to be used by Director Raymond B. West in showing a magnificent social function in New York City. Others in the cast are Roy Laidlaw, Gertrude Claire, George Elwell, Agnes Herring and Ethel Ullman.

A company of Ince players including William Desmond, Margaret Thompson, J. Frank Burke and others, have gone to Bear Valley to film exteriors for a story that has Adriondack mountain locale. Director Charles Giblyn is in charge of this. When about half way to the mountain retreat, members of the company discovered they did not have a New York automobile license number, and the need of the prop delayed production for a day while a member was dispatched to Los Angeles to secure one.

The fantastic comedy drama of the Virginia mountains made by Charles Miller has been completed, and Bessie Barriscale its star, has been granted a ten-day vacation, while the scenario department prepares another vehicle for this actress. Monte M. Katterjohn is author of the mountain comedy drama, which the production department believe will be a worthy successor to "Peggy," which served to introduce Billie Burke in films.

Alma Ruben With Ince

Alma Ruben, who has been playing with Fine Arts companies recently supporting Douglass Fairbanks in "The Half Breed," has been engaged to play the feminine lead in support of William S. Hart, and is now with the Ince organization.

Director Reginald Barker has troubles all his own in his attempts to secure scenes in which a tiny infant plays on the seven foot line. The story requires that the child shall remain perfectly still. This it did during early scenes, but that was five weeks ago, and in the interval it has learned it is great sport to kick and roll about, and so Barker is cooing, making a jumping-jack of himself, and resorting to every caper imaginable to keep the youngster quiet. This photoplay will serve as Clara Williams' first starring vehicle, and as soon as the last films are made she will begin work on another production now nearly completed by C. Gardiner Sullivan, head of the Ince scenario staff. This, like the one being filmed at present, gives Miss Williams the part of an Italian girl which is particularly suited to her talents and beauty.

Advice has gone forward to the New York office of the Triangle Film Corporation to the effect that they cannot go too strong on their advertising of the coming Hart production, "The Patriot," which was shipped this week. Mr. Hart and every member of the cast believe this photoplay, from scenario by Monte M. Katterjohn, will prove more successful than did this actor's recent release, "Hell's Hinges." The play has as its leading character, a man who came to hate the stars and stripes because of injustice done him, and as such becomes the leader of rebellious Mexicans. Most of the scenes for it were taken along the Mexican border, and thus correct atmosphere was secured. Hart believes his portrayal of this subject to be the most notable since he became a film star. George Stone and Francis Carpenter, the Fine Arts kiddies who were borrowed for this production, have important parts. The children aid in preventing the traitor from carrying out his plot, and cause him to see the folly of such an adventure. The production was filmed by Joe August, and the other members of the supporting cast are Joe Goodboy, Indian actor; Roy Laidlaw, Milton Ross, P. D. Tabler, Charles K. French, and "Rags," the educated Inceville dog.

The Yorke-Metro company is home from Lake Tahoe after spending three weeks there securing scenes for the forthcoming production entitled "Mister 44," adopted from the book of the same name by E. J. Rath. The photoplay will consist largely of exterior scenes representing life in the Maine woods, and it was while making these at the northern California lake resort that the company experienced a number of hardships.

At the studio the company is now busy with the making of the interiors for this picture.

Second Clune Production

The second production of the Clune Film company, "The Eyes of the World," will be completed within the next few weeks. At present the producing organization is spending several days in San Gabriel Canyon where a complete camp has been established. This is an adaptation from the novel of the same name by Harold Bell Wright, and will be given its premier at Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles, at an early date. At the studio it was announced that this subject will consist of not more than ten reels and that "Ramona," the company's first production, had been cut to that size. The cast for the coming production includes Katherine Miller, late of Harrison Grey Fiske road attractions; Kathleen Kirkham, an actress from the legitimate stage; Monroe Salisbury, who appeared in the part of Allesandro in "Ramona"; Ah Wing, said to be the only Chinese actor in pictures; Jack McDonald, "Slap Jack" of "The Spoil'ers,', and others.

"Unlucky Jim," is the working title given a five-reel subject put in production at the David Horsley studio this week under the direction of Robert Broadwell. Crane Wilbur is the author of the story, which is of the nature of a comedy drama, and he appears in the featured part, that of a youth of wealth who has difficulty in spending his money, and making everyone happy.

One entire stage was needed for the filming of cafe scenes, in which twelve entertainers from a local cafe "put on" their regular program. The supporting cast will include Florence Printy, Nan Christy, Jode Mullally, Harrish Ingraham, Ida Lewis and others.

The Horsley Cub Comedy company has just completed "Making Things Hum," in which Claire Alexander takes the part of a maid in the home of a wealthy family, and by her beauty and charm wins the attention of the husband, the janitor, gardner, and two or three cops, but ingenuously makes each think he is the idol of her dreams. Finally Jerry, taken by George Ovey, wins her hand. Besides the principals Janet Sully and George George have good parts in this comedy, being made by Milton Fahrney.

A new company was organized this week at the Horsley studio. Al Neitz will be director of this and the principals are Edith Calvert, T. H. Gowland, Al Blake, Harry Davenport, and F. A. Johnson. This company will make two reel animal dramas.

Three telegrams received this week at the Mabel Normand studio created a mystery for a time. They were all addressed to Miss Normand. No. 1: "They've got your goat in Catalina." No. 2: "Hughie Fay has your goat aboard ship." No. 3: "They have your goat at the harbor." Two hours later, Assistant General Manager Harry Kerr cleared away the mystery when he arrived at the studio with a little brown and black kid. The players then recalled that in a scene for the first Mabel Normand release, the scrip requires that she catch a young wild goat.

A complete men's furnishing section of a modern department store occupies one of the Keystone stages this week, and sets a new standard for exactness in detail. This contains everything to be found in such a department, and is patterned after a section in a leading Los Angeles store. It was prepared for a scene in "The Manicurist," being a comedy in which Ford Sterling directs himself as star.

This Stunt Always Interesting

Another scene has been destroyed by the inquisitive public breaking in on the side lines, and this time the public's attempts to save a suicide will result in the expenditure of several thousand dollars by the Keystone Company. Harry Williams and William Campbell, directors, and a number of players headed by Chester Conklin, staged a scene in which Conklin attempted suicide, at Balboa. The villagers saw a man disappear in the water and a number put out to save him. The producers thought they had secured the scene before anyone got inside the side lines, but their mistake was not noticed until the negative was developed and the company were all home.

Cameron Coffey, said to be the world's champion child swimmer and diver, has been engaged by the Mack Sennett Keystone Company, and he will appear shortly in a picture now being made by Charles Murray.

H. Guy Woodward of the Keystone producing organization, this week served as master of ceremonies at a four-day celebration given at Balboa, California, commemorating the discovery of the Pacific Ocean by Balboa.

A hazardous scene was enacted for the coming Keystone picture, "The Winning Punch," this week when Bobbie Dunn leaped from the top of a four story building into a supposed concrete mixer, which in reality was a tank filled with water. The comedian was not injured in making this scene.

Bessie Barricale and the Ince-Triangle Company Under Charles Miller's Direction at Thousand Pines, Cal., for the Mountain Fantasy in which Miss Barriscale Will Soon Appear

Samuel Goldfish of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has been at the Hollywood studio of the company for the past week conferring with Director General Cecil B. deMille. As the result of his presence her, a deal has been consummated for the use of a large tract of ground to be used exclusively by the company in the production of photoplays.

Mr. Goldfish was accompanied by Walter J. Moore, vice-president of the H. C. Miner Lithographing Company, who came to the west coast to investigate conditions as to the advisability of his company establishing a branch plant here. It is pointed out by Mr. Goldfish that such a plant could have all plates shipped here from the East and make what prints are necessary for the coast and mountain states, and ship them direct to the exchanges, thus greatly reducing the expressage expense of the manufacturers. Such an arrangement would save thousands of dollars to the companies, and give the exchanges better service. The Miner Company makes lithos for all Triangle productions, the Universal Film Company, as well as the Famous Players-Lasky Company.

Laura Marie Trainer, of Missoula, Montana, who, on June 3 started to ride horseback to the Lasky studio, arrived there Sunday afternoon, August 13, after a trip of 2,500 miles. When she left her home, the Jesse L. Lasky Company was notified that she was bringing a message to Director General Cecil B. deMille, and when she arrived it was found that the message consisted of a number of scenarios which she wished to sell.

The Lasky production, "Each Pearl a Tear," has been completed and the star of this, Fannie Ward, has been granted a vacation of two weeks which she is spending at Coronado Beach.

J. G. von Herberg, member of the firm of Jensen and von Herberg, owners of three of the principal theatres at Seattle, Washington, is spending several weeks in Los Angeles visiting the motion picture producing plants. He was accompanied from San Francisco by Herman Wabber, general manager of the Paramount exchange in the Bay City, Los Angeles and Salt Lake, and this week they spent several days at the Lasky plant.

Separate Companies for Smalleys

Phillips Smalley and Lois Weber Smalley, who have worked together as co-directors in production of Universal subjects, are in the future to have separate companies, according to plans made this week at Universal City. Lois Weber will direct Mary MacLaren, and has begun work on a forthcoming five-reel production titled "Devotion." Arthur Ford will continue as assistant director to Miss Weber.

The first photoplay to be filmed by Mr. Smalley will be an adaptation from the Brandt Whitlock story titled "The Girl That's Down." It is not definitely known whether this title will be retained, and up to this time no cast has been named.

Director Stuart Paton and Cameraman Eugene Gaudio are engaged in cutting the big feature "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." In the making of this, 200,000 feet of negative film was exposed, fully seventy-five per cent. of that amount being shot at Bahama Island. The subject will consist of from ten to twelve reels, and will be completely assembled within the next two weeks.

United States Cavalry and an opposing force of Mexicans engaged in battle scenes this week near U City for scenes in the picturization of "The Eagle's Wings," the patriotic preparedness subject filmed by Robert Leonard. Herbert Rawlinson and Grace Carlyle are the featured players, and a thrilling scene enacted this week was when Rawlinson drove an automobile through flames in a burning village, dodging in and about scurrying troops and frightened women and children.

The Nestor Comedy Company Photographed on the New Stage at Universal City

The Jack Warren Kerrigan U Company is still in the vicinity of Eureka, California, the center of the lumber industry of the northern part of the state, where they are making the final scenes for "The Measure of a Man," written by Normand Duncan. Jack Conway is directing this production, and it will probably require a week more to finish the scenes needed. Other members are Harry Carter, Marc Robbins, Iver McFadden, and Louise Lovely, who plays opposite Kerrigan.

The Joker Comedy players, now under the direction of W. W. Beaudine, have just filmed "Double Trouble," which has a singing contest as a basis for a story, father having decided that his daughter is to marry the sweetest voiced man in the world. The players of this company are William Franey, Gale Henry, Harry Mann, Lillian Peacock, Milburn Moranti, and Charles Conklin.

Carter DeHaven head a U Company now at Catalina Island making a three-reel subject under the direction of Wallace Beery. Exteriors for two other comedies will be made at the Islands. These will feature Beery who will also direct.

Comedy Director Roy Clements is making "Beared by a Bear," which is by Harry Wulze, U staff author, and has "Big" Ed Sedgwick and Belle Bennett as principals.

"Desperate Medicine" is the title given the subject made by Director Charles Bartlett. This features Gertrude Selby in her first dramatic subject, she having played in L-Ko comedies since her screen debut. Supporting Miss Selby are Carl Von Schiller, as the newspaper man, Jack Conlay as the heavy, and Buelah Lewis as the maid.

The Nestorites are making "Model 46," with the usual cast which includes Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Pricilla Dean, under the direction of Louis Chaudet.

How an adventuress attempts to take the life of a man, and then really comes to love him, and attempts to sacrifice her own life to save him, serves as the story for "The Decoy," a subject just filmed by Billy Garwood, who appears in the principal part of the cast, supported by Jessie Arnold who plays a double role, Ed. Brady, Wadsworth Harris, Jack Conley and others.

Director Garwood is now busy filming "A Social Caveman." A girl, fond of attention, and not heeding the injury she causes others by flirtations, eventually causes an attempt at suicide. This gives her a new insight to life, and she becomes a different woman. The youth recovers, but his action has taught the flirt a lesson. Lois Wilson plays the lead in this with Carl Von Schiller, George Chesebro and Ed. Brady as principal supports.

They're Using Up the California Scenery

Monterey, California, scenery is being used by Director Burton George and a company of U players for the filming of an adaptation from the Stephen Whitman novel "The Isle of Life." They have been absent from the studio for several days, and are expected home shortly when elaborate interior settings now being made will be ready for them.

Director George Cochrane and company have completed the interiors for the eight subjects partially made in the northern mountain country, and are now working on a one-reel comedy drama entitled "The Little Masquerader," which was written especially for Molly Malone. Jack Nelson plays the opposite lead.

Sixty Universal players constituting the Joseph deGrasse Company have gone to Big Bear Valley for scenes in the Bluebird feature "The Place Beyond the Winds." Dorothy Phillips and Lon Chaney are playing the featured parts.

George Ovey in "Jerry and The Bandits" (Horsley-Mutual)

Pat Rooney has been placed under the direction of Robert Dillon, late of the Universal scenario department, who is now directing comedies, and Marcia Moore has been selected to play opposite, at least for the current subject titled "Their Sporting Blood."

"The Gunman" is a melodrama in which an attorney wins the admiration of the sweetheart of one gunman and the sister of another, when he convicts them of a crime and they are sentenced to prison. The girl later becomes the attorney's wife, hiding her past which is revealed to him after the release of the men from prison. Douglas Gerrard plays the role of the heavy in this, as well as directing the story. Nell Shipman is the author. Francelia Billington has the featured part, with Alfred W. Wertz and Frank Brownlee the principals of the cast.

Ernie Shields has the name part in the comedy, "Lord, What a Lord," made by P. C. Hartigan, with a cast which includes Harry Depp, Countess DuCello, and Yvette Mitchell.

Hartigan is now working on "The Top Notch Terror" story for which deals with the escape of a lunatic who has a mania for proposing to women. The wild man is supposed to be in a certain park, and the police round up a number who are enjoying the spooning pastime. The same cast with the exception of Depp appears in this picture. O. C. Jackson has one of the leading parts.

The war story, "November, 1915," adapted for the screen by Elliot J. Clawson from the story by Hobart Henley, who is directing as well as playing the lead, requires a number of battle scenes which were staged this week. The story is laid in Servia near the fighting lines, and gives excellent parts to Henley, William Welsh, and Claire McDowell.

"Liberty" in Sixth Episode

A three-reel drama is being produced by Director John McDermid, titled "A Modern Cain." The director is also the author of the story, and has as his principals Edward Hearn, Ruth Clifford and George Berranger.

The Liberty Serial Company continues with their Mexican guerilla warfare, and are now on the sixth episode.

Director Ben Wilson and his assistant Tom Walsh, have recovered from the bruises they received last week when they went over a twenty foot cliff at Pine Crest. The fall was wholly unintentional, as a rock gave way when they were struggling on the edge. They alighted in a stream below which broke the force of the fall. All of the action was caught by the camera, and will be shown in the three-reel subject "The Last of His Race."

This company is now engaged in filming "Honor Thy Country," a patriotic subject in five reels from story by F. McGrew Willis and Walter Wood. The Universal Company has secured the privilege from Secretary of the Navy for use of torpedo boat destroyer the Farragut, and some very realistic naval warfare was shot at the harbor when the Farragut was bombarded this week. Capt Hudson of the boat, aided the company in every way, and took part in a number of scenes.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Even Pessimists Wear a Smile in Detroit, the Outlook for Autumn Business Is so Promising; All Exchangemen Predict Big Bookings

HERE is a brief outline of what the various Detroit exchanges are doing. Manager Trask, at the Mutual, reports splendid business on all Charlie Chaplin pictures; the special feature serials and Mutual masterpieces. He looks for a big Fall trade.

At the General Film Company there are signs of increased activities with many new accounts on the books.

At the Universal, M. S. Bailey reports that the month of July was the best the exchange ever had, and that the coming Fall is sure to break all records. Bluebird and Red Feather features are all doing well.

At the Pathe exchange, Manager Parkhurst reports good business on serials, features, and educational subjects, as well as the Pathe news. Some of his best features he has been holding for Fall, believing it not the best plan to release them during the hot weather months.

At the World Film office, Manager Dembow says he is reorganizing and looks for big things in the Fall.

Neil Kingsley, at the Fox office, says the Summer business has been normal and entirely satisfactory, considering the hot weather, but that indications point to a whopper Fall on Fox films.

Manager J. M. Duncan, of the V-L-S-E office, hopes to have a complete exchange by Fall for handling Detroit and Michigan business.

Manager J. C. Fishman, of the Standard Film Service Company, says July was the greatest month in the history of the exchange—quite remarkable in view of the hot weather. "Mutt and Jeff" cartoons and the jungle pictures are drawing big everywhere, and are in popular demand.

D. Leo Dennison, manager of the Paramount exchange, says he is taking on quality exhibitors, and that his office is after quality rather than quantity business. Needless to add that Mr. Dennison reports a splendid business, and that he is very optimistic about Fall. In fact, the number of new applications pouring into his office indicates that this will be the best Fall in the history of the exchange.

Abe Shapiro, at the Triangle office, says that every day shows business improvement, and that the features and Keystone comedies are constantly gaining favor. He adds that there is unusual demand for the early Triangle features and Keystones. Douglas Fairbanks, Dorothy and Lillian Gish, Norma Talmadge, and Bessie Barriscale features are constantly in circulation with Michigan exhibitors, proving that these stars have made an emphatic impression with the Michigan public.

J. O. Kent, of the Harry I. Garsons Productions, Inc., handling the new Clara Kimball Young releases, reports that his exchange at 318 Woodward avenue, will be in readiness before the end of August, and that from bookings already made by exhibitors in every part of the State the new plan of release is certain to prove successful.

Metro features are finding a host of friends among Michigan exhibitors, and the number of bookings at the present time is double the number of a year ago. The new Metro exchange will be located at 73 Broadway.

Manager Randolph, of the Wolverine, reports the present Summer to be the best since he has been in the film business.

GLOBE FEATURE EXCHANGE FORMED IN BOSTON

Benjamin J. Schoolman, Edward D. Lavinton and Harry G. Segal of Boston have formed the Globe Feature Film Corporation, capitalized at $25,000, for the purpose of handling feature films in New England.

MONTGOMERY TO GO TO COAST FOR BRADY

G. N. Montgomery, manager of the Indianapolis office of the World Film Corporation, has been appointed personal representative for William A. Brady, and expects to leave shortly for the Pacific Coast. Mr. Montgomery has made many friends in Indiana film circles since he assumed management of the World office there. Mr. Montgomery has been succeeded as manager of the Indianapolis office by Fred F. Cresswell, formerly manager of the New Orleans office of the World Film Corporation, and more recently stationed in Cincinnati for the same company.

GENERAL IN KANSAS CITY TERRITORY FINDS BUSINESS GOOD

The extreme hot weather and drought has had but little effect on the business of the General Film Company in the Kansas City territory. "The Girl from Frisco" is doing record business all over the territory, the larger towns taking to it as well as the smaller ones. In order to handle all orders for this picture the office has been compelled to obtain extra copies to take care of bookings. John Hicks, manager, is exceedingly well pleased with conditions.

Omaha Exchangemen Prick Up Their Ears at the Sound of Approaching Fall Business, Expected to Take an Upward Jump

ANTICIPATION of a record fall business is shown in the increased activity about the Omaha exchanges. The most marked disturbance has been at the Universal, formerly the Laemmle, exchange, where the new system was being installed.

J. H. Calvert, road man out of the exchange for two years, has been appointed manager of the Bluebird exchange, in connection with the Universal.

E. H. Strickland, has been made manager of the supply department, which has been increased to include all kinds of equipment, supplies and repairs. Strickland has been a road man out of the Sioux Falls, S. D., exchange.

R. C. Cropper, district manager for the Universal Film and Supply Company, was present and, with Exchange Manager Jake Mitchell, superintended the rearrangement. He will remain at the Omaha exchange for several weeks, during which time there will be other changes in the force and a rearrangement of the floor space.

Gurney and McLean, auditors from New York, spent several days at the Universal exchange on their regular auditing tour. C. W. Taylor, manager of the General exchange, has been kept busy entertaining uot-of-town exhibitors who are arranging for their next season's service. There are guests all the time at the General's private exhibition room.

Exhibitions have been held at the various theatres of the serials to be released. Many out-of-town exhibitors attended.

Eva Hetherington, cashier at the Pathe exchange, is spending her vacation in the mountains. All the film people have been on vacations—except the managers, who have been too busy.

Manager Goldstone of the World is planning to rearrange his offices. Manager Weisfeldt of the Mutual has heard Cecil Vaughn, his assistant, who is now with the troops on the border, has been made a lieutenant.

Jake Schlank has sold his interests in the Hip theatre, one of the biggest in Omaha, to Hugo Biltz, and has opened the Fine Arts Film Co. in the Brandeis Theatre building. He will handle states right features.

WARNER AT WORK ON SALE OF "CRIMSON STAIN"

William Warner, who for some time has been employed in the serial department of the Mutual Film Corporation, Kansas City, Mo., is now working at the Metro Picture Service, handling the serial "The Crimson Stain."

POTTER IN CHARGE OF "YELLOW MENACE" BOOKINGS

C. W. Potter, who recently located with the United Film Service, Kansas City, Mo., has been placed in complete charge of the new serial of that company, "The Yellow Menace," and will handle it in the Kansas City territory. Publicity for this picture has already been started by Mr. Potter and he has a number of plans whereby this serial will become widely known.

Arrangements have been made with the Kansas City Journal, whereby each episode of the serial will be run previous to its appearance in the theatres. "Prospects are great for the sale of this picture," recently said Mr. Potter. "I expect it to go big here and am making preparations to handle lots of business."

DOOLEY IS MADE MANAGER FOR GENERAL IN SYRACUSE

Thomas W. Dooley has been appointed manager of the Syracuse, N. Y., branch of the General Film Company.

Mr. Dooley is thoroughly familiar with the motion picture business, having managed the Syracuse office of the Greater New York Film Rental Company for several years very successfully.

He was engaged as an accountant previous to entering the film business, which enables him to handle both the inside and selling end of the business in an efficient manner.

New Denver Board of Trade Organizes to Co-operate in Giving Greatest Possible Service to the Exhibitor

THE election of the officers of the Board of Trade of Denver, an organization made up of Exchange managers of the city, was held at the Albany Hotel on Tuesday of last week. The following were elected unanimously. H. H. Buckwalter, manager of the Kleine-Edison Exchange, president; T. Y. Henry, manager of the General Film Exchange, vice-president; Frank Harris, manager of the V-L-S-E, treasurer; Judge H. A. Hicks, attorney for the Board. This body will strive to co-operate in giving the exhibitor service and aiding him in any way possible. Meetings will be held each Tuesday at the Albany Hotel.

W. T. Binford, manager of the Metro exchange of Denver, reports a record run on Ireine Fenwick's success, "The Child of Destiny," at the Strand theatre. This picture played for three days, and did capacity business. Eddie Darling, roadman for Metro, at the present time touring New Mexico, is making a clean-up in that section for the Denver office. Manager Binford does not believe in too much praise for a roadman, but oftentimes we hear him remark, after receiving a new contract, "Very Good Eddie."

Upon hearing the news that a certain Denver Exchange manager was laid up in bed with an ailment, we thought of the possibility that the dreaded infantile paralysis might have reached Denver, but were mistaken. J. S. Applegate, manager of the Pathe Exchange of Denver, did not report at the office one morning last week and Charlie, the booker, got busy to find out the cause. The 250 pound exchange manager had fallen a victim to "spring fever." But, now he is back at the grind with his coat off and an electric fan blowing the cool breezes upon him. After his recent visit to Texas, Applegate claims, "tis a privilege to live in Colorado."

Manager Frank Harris, of the V-L-S-E Exchange of Denver, left last week for Salt Lake City, where he will install R. A. Wagner, formerly of the San Francisco Exchange, as manager of that office. Before returning to Denver, Harris will visit several of the larger towns in quest of new business.

Harry Cassidy, the crack roadman for the Mutual Exchange of Denver, is to have an able co-worker in the person of G. W. Whitney, formerly connected with Pathe in the same capacity. Whitney has been in the film game for the past twelve years, and has an excellent record back of him. Manager Ward E. Scott of the Denver Exchange is very much elated over the acquisition of Whitney and is looking forward to big results from the road.

Manager Langtree, of the Denver Universal Exchange, is gaining new business each week through his aggressiveness. Service to the exhibitor is causing much overwork on the part of this manager, who makes it a personal duty to check all outgoing films. E. J. Bartell, formerly of the Universal Exchange of Des Moines, has been transferred to the Denver office as assistant manager and head of the booking department. Harry Quinn, the present booker, will be transferred back to the Salt Lake office after successfully revising the booking system of the Denver office.

The manager of the Fox Exchange, of Denver, is also the roadman for that office, and this week we find Eden traveling through the Salt Lake territory in quest of new business. Eden has never been known to come back empty handed.

Manager M. H. Cohn, of the Paramount Exchange of Denver, who recently returned from the Chicago convention, has been confined to his bed for the past two weeks with a severe case of mumps. During the past week Cohn has been very low but, it is expected he will be back on the job in another week.

S. E. Rolk, personal representative for Mack Sennett, has been in Denver for the past week visiting Walter S. Rand, manager of the Triangle Exchange of Denver. Rolk expects to leave for New York in a few days.

T. Y. Henry, managing the local General Exchange, reports that business is hitting a high mark. Henry, formerly an exchange manager located at Salt Lake, has been over the territory several times. His novel methods of advertising deserves the comment it has received. Being an accomplished cartoonist, Henry gets up special post-cards with cartoons advertising new releases.

The L. C. F. Exchange Opens in St. Louis with Fegan as Manager; Wolfberg Establishes Publicity Department

THE L. C. F. exchange, distributing state rights films, has been opened at 3311 Olive street, St. Louis, by Levy, Chatkin and Fendstein, proprietors, with F. J. Fegan as manager. "The Yellow Menace" and other features controlled by the firm will be booked in St. Louis theatres and the eastern half of Missouri, besides part of Illinois and Indiana. Mr. Fegan reports good business already in advance bookings of "The Yellow Menace."

H. P. Wolfberg, manager of the General Film Company, 3610 Olive street, St. Louis, has established a publicity department for the use of exhibitors, with a view to aiding them in getting publicity, practical advertising and ways and means of getting patrons into their theatres. Edgar H. Wolfberg, brother of H. P., has been put in charge of this department. Edgar has just recently been graduated from the Missouri State University, where he won honors in the journalism course.

Sam Shurman, who has been in Memphis, Tenn., for the past few months managing a branch of the Unicorn exchanges, has returned to his home in St. Louis and will now devote his energies to the Fox Corporation as traveling representative in the territory covered by the exchange. Sam is well known in the film trade and will be cordially welcomed by all his old friends.

Joe Levy, head of the Fox exchange at 3632 Olive street, St. Louis, was honored by a visit last week from Harry Leonhardt, special representative of the Fox exchanges. Leonhardt gave the business the "once over" and found things in such good shape that he stayed only two days in the Mound City, then went on to other duties.

MEYER IS MADE GENERAL MANAGER OF MOSS EXCHANGES

Philip E. Meyer has been appointed general manager of the B. S. Moss film exchanges, taking the place of H. R. Ebenstein, who assumes the duties of the superintendence of the states' rights disposal of the B. S. Moss pictures.

Mr. Meyer, before entering the film industry, was manager for the George Meyer Amusement Company. He was also vaudeville and stock company critic for the Clipper, and other theatrical organs.

His first experience in the motion picture field was as salesman for the B. S. Moss features. Mr. Ebenstein has been placed in entire charge of the states' right field.

"A WOMAN WILLS" SOLD FOR SIX NEW ENGLAND STATES

The Sun Photo Play Company announces the sale of "A Woman Wills" for the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, to the Federal Feature Corporation of Boston.

This picture had previously been screened by Mr. Grand of the Federal Feature Corporation in Boston, to a large assemblage of exhibitors, and the bookings on this exhibition more than covered the sales price.

GOFF BACK FROM TRIP TO V-L-S-E MID-WESTERN BRANCHES

A. W. Goff, assistant general manager of the V-L-S-E, returned to New York last week from a tour of the Big Four branches in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, and St. Louis, where conferences were held with the sales forces of those four cities.

Comprehensive plans were laid for Fall business at these conferences, following an interchange of ideas in which each member of the sales forces took active part. These meetings are in line with the policy laid down by Mr. Goff when he took up the assistant general managership of the Big Four to meet the men on their own ground, where considerably more could be accomplished than would be the case by letter.

In Cleveland Mr. Goff made the transfer of managers, in which C. A. Meade, former manager at Dallas, succeeded C. E. Shurtleff, who resigned.

Mr. Goff, as well as presiding over the four conferences, also spent two days each with S. E. Abel, Chicago manager; C. E. Holah, Cincinnati manager, and S. W. Hatch, St. Louis manager.

SELZNICK ALLOTS SOUTHWESTERN TERRITORY TO J. A. CRESSEY FOR YOUNG AND BRENON PICTURES

Another section of the United States was fenced in for the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises last week through a deal between Mr. Selznick and J. A. Cressey, millionaire and pioneer film man of Dallas, Texas. By the terms of the agreement, Mr. Cressey will control the distribution of the Clara Kimball Young and Herbert Brenon pictures throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Mr. Cressey came all the way from Dallas to negotiate the deal for the Selznick pictures. He is one of the wealthiest citizens of Texas, and is known throughout the great border state and Oklahoma.

The Texas distributing company will operate under Mr. Cressey's name, with headquarters in the Southwestern Life Building in Dallas. F. M. Sanford, who founded the original World Special Film Exchange in Dallas, and L. C. McHenry, accompanied Mr. Cressey to New York, and will take charge of the new exchange as manager and assistant manager, respectively.

TO HANDLE UNITY RELEASES UP STATE

Israel Cobe has been appointed special representative for the Unity Film service to handle "The Yellow Menace" serial and the other features put out by Unity in New York State.

Mr. Cobe will look after the Unity branch offices, making his headquarters in Albany for the eastern part of the State and Buffalo for the West. Mr. Cobe is well known to exhibitors in this territory and claims that he is going to make a record with "The Yellow Menace" serial.

J. K. BURGER IS ON TRIP IN THE WEST

J. K. Burger, assistant general manager of the International Film Service, Inc., is in Chicago, St. Louis and other western cities. The new photo-play series, "Beatrice Fairfax," is commanding so much attention from exhibitors that Mr. Burger, who is in charge of branch managers, was summoned to give personal assistance to the managers.

Mr. Burger, on his trip, will also work with his assistants on the forthcoming production of the International's new feature, "Jaffrey," which will be released on September 5.

"BILLY SUNDAY" HAND GETS BOSTON MANAGERSHIP OF WORLD FILM

Stanley W. Hand, who has been connected with the World Film Corporation for the past year and a half, has been promoted to the managership of the Boston office of the World Film, effective August 7.

Mr. Hand was formerly a newspaper man, drifting into the sales department of the Ingersoll Watch Company, and from there to the South Bend watches, in which field he gained prominence and became Eastern representative for the South Bend people.

Stanley W. Hand

Believing there was a greater future in the film business, Mr. Hand joined the sales force of the World Film Corporation March 22, 1915, being affiliated with the New York and Boston offices. He was made manager of the Boston office on June 15 of the same year, then transferred to New York City as assistant sales manager.

While in the New England territory Mr. Hand made a great number of friends, and his square deal manner of doing business soon got him the nickname of "Billy Sunday" Hand, the sobriquet first being applied to him by Manager Arthur Davis of the Nashua, N. H., theatre, who claims that Hand is the squarest dealing salesman who ever sold him a picture.

MORITZ ALMOST GETS ROBINSON CRUSOED IN SOUTHERN FLOOD

Allan S. Moritz, who travels from the Washington Fox Film Corporation Exchange through the southern territory, was nearly Robinson Crusoed recently when covering the territory for he happened to be in North Carolina when the floods came. He was on the last train that crossed the bridge over the Catawba River at Mount Holly, N. C., before the bridge was washed away. The river was badly swollen at that time and three hours later it could not be crossed.

He left Asheville just a few hours before that place was flooded for on the next day it would have been hard for him to leave. There was eight feet of water in the streets, and one of the hotels near the railroad station took in supplies through the second story window.

Throughout the entire State the property damage to motion picture theatres was very small, if any, but the exhibitors were badly inconvenienced for many days, because of an inability to get electric current and because of the non-arrival of shows. In some cities there was neither ingress nor egress; shows that were in town stayed there, and this made it bad for all towns on the circuit.

While the theatres largely escaped damage, the mills and manufacturing places were badly hit and thousands of people have been thrown out of work as a result. Considerable suffering followed and it was found necessary to raise a fund to aid the homeless and destitute. In each instance the exhibitors responded generously, and in one or two places there was donated fifty per cent. of an entire week's box office receipts.

"LIBERTY" AND "PEG" POPULAR, SAYS BOWLES

The two serials, "Liberty" and "The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring," are leading the list of pictures in the Kansas City Universal office in regard to popularity and demand, according to George H. Bowles, publicity chief of that company. Mr. Bowles cannot refrain from commenting on the great reception "Liberty" is getting and predicts record business from it in that territory. A number of contracts have already been made and many more are expected. A recent showing of the first two episodes to a group of exhibitors resulted in a surprising number of contracts. "Peg o' the Ring" is going big, the demand exceeding in every way the predictions made by Bowles, when the serial was first offered. He looks for it to be popular for a long time and expects many more contracts to result.

HOGANSON PROVES A FEATURE SPECIALIST FOR MUTUAL IN DETROIT

Arthur Hoganson is doing some splendid work in Detroit, Mich., for the new special serial features being released through the Mutual exchanges. Mr. Hoganson more recently was connected with the Broadway Feature Film Company of Detroit, and all winter has been in Grand Rapids, Mich., for the Gilligham and Smith interests.

Film News From Foreign Parts

New South Wales Presses for Stricter Censorship

Sydney, July 20.

THE movement now progressing toward the establishment of censorship in New South Wales has made its influence felt to such an extent that various members of the Ministry and other public bodies in Queensland have presented a deputation to the Home Secretary for that State proposing that a board be established in order to maintain a stricter censorship on moving pictures. E. H. Macartney, M. L. A., introduced the deputation. Mr. Huxham in reply promised that a bill covering their request and other phases of public morality would be introduced in the next session.

A strong argument was presented by the deputation which inferred that "The military authorities were censoring all films which might be prejudicial to military and recruiting matters, and it was the opinion of the deputation that it was equally necessary to safeguard the interests of the rising generation in regard to morals." The deputation was especially interested in the suppression of films having a salacious suggestiveness, and seeing that it was proposed to appoint a Board of Film Censors in New South Wales there was a grave danger that the rejected films from that State might be passed on to Queensland fields.

In reply to the various statements made by the members of the deputation, which consisted of representatives of over twelve public bodies, Mr. Huxham pointed out that some pictures had a very high educational value, but he realized that there was a danger of the sensational picture creeping in. "If the federal government exercised over films a censorship, as it did over literature, there would be no objectionable subjects in the commonwealth because none of them were indigenous to Australia." He agreed that children should be protected and that the tone of morality raised. At the same time he could not help feeling that the newspapers should take a firm stand in the matter and not accept advertisements in connection with the publicity of pictures similar to one which has just been brought under his notice.

Clement Mason, Ltd., have released a four-part Mutual Masterpicture, "The Miracle of Life." Its first screening was on the 5th instant at the Strand Theatre, Brisbane, Queensland. Mason's contract with Essanay for the Essanay-Chaplin brand having expired, this firm is now buying up a number of successful feature films from the open market.

Recreate Exhibitor Body

With the dual object of providing social intercourse and protecting their interests, the motion picture exhibitors of New South Wales have re-created the Picture Showmen's Association of Australia and have secured rooms at the new Banking House Building, 228 Pitt street, Sydney, which is the center of the film business in this city. These rooms will be a daily rendezvous for city and suburban exhibitors, while at the same time it will serve as a handy calling-place for country and interstate members where they can conduct their business while visiting this city. W. J. Howe has been appointed secretary, while the executive is H. A. Mainsbridge, president; A. Ogden and F. Thompson, vice-presidents; J. E. Sheerin, treasurer; G. Szarka, H. McIntyre, A. Mumford, E. Betts and S. Faulkner, executive. It is hoped that this association will become, with added members, one of the strongest in Australia. An official organ of its doings will be issued at regular intervals by the committee.

Mr. Black, Chief Secretary, is to report to Cabinet upon a complete scheme for the censorship of films. The matter was before the Cabinet on June 28, but in the absence of certain necessary information, no final decision was come to. The Premier states that censorship is necessary, for at the present time a picture that has been censored in half a dozen or more States of the U. S. A. may be screened here if it has been passed by one State. The scheme for the establishment of the system here will be outlined at a later meeting of the Cabinet.

On Monday, July 17, G. Bell will present at the Sydney Town Hall by special arrangement with the federal government a series of films under the general title of "Australia Prepared." These pictures depict the various works of the officers and men of all branches of the Australian naval and military world. Several supplementary features have been added, including "Anzacs in the Making," the Lithgow Small Arms Factory, and a series of Australian views which it is said are unrivalled in their beauty.

It is a curious coincidence that there should be no less than three feature subjects in preparation in such a small film colony as Sydney, with more or less similar titles: (1) "Australia Prepared"—referred to above, (2) "The Birth of Australia," which is being produced by John F. Gavin, and (3) The series of Australian industries being made by Alfred Rolfe, for Australasian Films, Ltd.—"Australia a Nation." With "Britain Prepared" and "The Birth of a Nation" touring these states there is sure to be a considerable amount of difficulty in finding out "which is which."

A few of the series which constitute Australasian Films, "Australia a Nation," were given a special private screening at the Lyceum theatre, Sydney, recently. The Governor-General, Sir Gerald Strickland, Members of Parliament and a number of newspaper men, including the Motion Picture News representative, were present, and the general impression was that if the remainder of the series were half as good as the first series there should be a volume of learning in the pictures for the general public and a deal of money for the producers.

The first of the series showed Leeton (which is the town from where the Murrumbidgee irrigation dam is being worked) as it is at present—and those who had previously viewed the town before the irrigation work commenced, when it was all bare plain, could hardly credit that the comfortable farms, orchards, etc., seen in the picture represented what was once almost a desert.

The views of the Burrinjuck Dam, which is one of the largest dams in the world, were particularly impressive; the water was shown backed up for forty miles, and gushing sluices at the foot of the dam were all clearly pictured. The method of distributing the water over the lands by means of irrigation channels were remarkably fine, both from a structural point and from the fine method in which the cameraman, Lacey Percival, has secured his effects. Altogether a series that will rivet attention anywhere.

Although at the present time there is a considerable shortage of paper, the prices having risen nearly twenty per cent., it is a noticeable fact that all the newspapers and magazines that have any departments devoted to motion pictures allow this department to retain its full size, while at the same time they "cut out" or materially reduce the space previously allowed for other subjects.

Wide Publicity for Paramount

If the Paramount Pictures do not eventually become the most well known and liked of any program of pictures screened in Australia it will not be the fault of the publicity department of Australian Feature Films, Ltd., which I believe is managed by Mr. Phillips. Paramount Pictures have been advertised not once or twice or at iirregular intervals, but daily in the daily papers and weekly in the weekly papers and magazines, continuously for the past six months, and even the monthly periodicals do not escape the campaign, for Theatre Magazine is one case where there is one full page devoted to the photographic reproductions of stars appearing under the Paramount banner. Unlike most exchanges, Australian Feature Films, Ltd., do not advertise wholly for the exhibitor but for the general public, aiming to interest them in their productions, and thereby co-operate with the exhibitor.

Billie Burke in "The Telltale Envelope," Chapter 17 of the George Kleine Serial, "Gloria's Romance"

"The Cheat" is reckoned by the A. F. F., Ltd., to be the best production that they have handled to date and is to be released in a fortnight.

Donald Cornwallis has completed the production of his two-reel kinema-poem, which has been entitled "The Veil of Kismet" and features two well known theatrical artists, James B. Atholwood and Elwyn Harvey. It is believed that Cornwallis' production will be handled by a theatrical firm for whom the picture was specially made.

Mr. Helmrich, of the Co-Operative Film Exchange, Sydney, sailed for America by the Makura on Thursday, the 6th inst.

George Marlow, of the George Marlow's Theatrical Enterprises, has retired from an active theatrical life, but Dame Rumor has it that he intends to produce a five-reel picture, founded on one of his stage successes, viz.: "The Bad Girl of the Family."

Harry Julius, cartoonist for the A. F. Gazette, has concluded a series of war cartoons, etc., which he has created especially for the English market. This same artist I believe has made arrangements whereby he will be the leading light in a "lightning sketch act" at the Tivoli theatre, Sydney. His act is a combination of motion picture and sketch work, and being the first of its kind to be presented here should draw well.

The N. S. W. State Government has just completed a large amusement hall at the Model Suburb, Daceyville, Sydney, and proposes to allow the hall to be rented to exhibitors for the screening of pictures. At the same time every picture screened at the theatre must be first censored by the Chief Secretary's officials or other authorized persons.

Australasian Films, Ltd., received a fine and varied assortment of films from their American agents per "Sierrs" on the 4th inst., several features being, "Birth of a Man," with Henry Walthall; "Reggie Mixes In" (Douglas Fairbanks), "Gentleman from Indiana" (Dustin Farnum) and Chaplin's first Mutual subject, "The Floorwalker," which is being re-named "The Shopwalker," the name that those occupying the position Chaplin fills in this picture are termed in this country.

Fraser Films, Ltd., have made arrangements for the carrying out of a huge publicity campaign in connection with the forthcoming presentation of the Bluebird feature, "Undine," which is calculated to score one of the biggest successes of any recent picture. Boardings and electric signs all over the metropolitan area have been secured for the campaign. "Undine" is due to open in two weeks' time at the Haymarket, Sydney.

Three Firms After Sydney Town Hall

Competition is keen for the possession of the Sydney Town Hall, for a season of pictures, between three firms, controlling respectively "Australia Prepared," "Battle Cry of Peace" and Raymond Longford's production of "The Mutiny of the Bounty," which I hear is now completed.

After a considerable spell, Pathe's Gold Rooster Plays are once more prominent, five making their appearance in as many weeks, viz.: "Big Jim Garrity," "Via Wireless," "Woman's Law," "Girl With the Green Eyes" and "New York."

T. H. Eslick, former general manager of the White City amusement resort, and at present occupying a similar position in the Palladium, with the help of his American artist friends celebrated the Fourth of July by an all-night banquet and cabaret in true American style at the Palladium. The prices of admission were from 10s. to 12s. 6d., and true to the policy which has made him a popular amusement purveyor, Mr. Eslick devoted the proceeds to the Australian War Chest fund.

Coogee, the most famous summer resort in Australia, with the possible exception of Manly, will soon be in a position to boast of having the finest suburban photoplay theatre in Sydney, as the one now in course of erection will be capable of holding nearly two thousand, and is to be fitted with the latest fittings of every description.

"Britain Prepared" is being screened simultaneously in Perth, West Australia, Adelaide, S. A., and Brisbane, Queensland. In West Maitland, N. S. W., when this series was screened, "The Birth of a Nation" was playing at an opposition theatre. It is reported that both houses were filled to capacity and for the whole season business in both theatres was the best for over six months. Both subjects are now on the road to the smaller centers, leaving a wake of admiring spectators.

Lottie and Jack Pickford Again with Famous Players

Brother and Sister of Little Mary Will Appear in Important Parts in Forthcoming Subjects Made by the Company for Release Through Paramount

TWO interesting additions to the Famous Players forces were made this week in the persons of Lottie and Jack Pickford, sister and brother of the celebrated Mary Pickford respectively. This is not the first time that either of these players has been associated with the Famous Players, as both of them have already appeared on the Paramount program.

It was in "Fanchon the Cricket," in which Mary Pickford starred, that her sister Lottie appeared as the sister. Jack has been seen in several Famous Players productions, both in support of Mary and of Marguerite Clark. With the latter he appeared in "The Pretty Sister of Jose," playing the role of the star's brother.

With Mary, Jack has appeared in "A Girl of Yesterday," "The Commanding Officer" and was last seen in "Poor Little Peppina," in which he did a great deal of clever character acting in his portrayal of the young Italian lad, Beppo, who assisted Peppina in escaping from the plantation on which she was practically a prisoner. Jack Pickford has since been appearing in Selig productions.

The vehicle for his first appearance with the Famous Players under the new arrangement has not yet been determined upon but it will probably be an adaptation of a celebrated novel.

Lottie Pickford, who has been in retirement since starring in "The Diamond From the Sky," the North American serial, is now at work in support of Louise Huff in "The Reward of Patience," which is being staged under the direction of Robert G. Vignola. In this picture Miss Pickford plays the "heavy," a society girl who weds an engineer because her mother wants her to, and then proceeds to flirt outrageously with another man with whom she is infatuated. She finally elopes with the other man leaving her husband and babe behind her, but her elopement is of short duration for she meets a well-deserved fate.

A BEAUTIFUL STORY OF LOVE AND RIGHTEOUSNESS VERSUS TREACHERY AND DECEIT.

FROM THE STORY BY ELWOOD D. HEMMING.... PRODUCED BY... LLOYD B. CARLETON

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (INC)

THE Exhibitor who follows blindly the trail of loud claims of superiority which finds outlet in the current trade press, must sooner or later pay dearly for his easy going attitude.

To book a play on the strength of the fleeting and too often fictitious reputation of a "star" under the mistaken notion that that is what the public wants, is to follow a will o' the wisp which will eventually lead to the dismal swamp of commercial failure.

If the star were a real attraction, his or her acting ability would be the basis of the "star" appeal. The BLUEBIRD policy of the "The Play's the Thing" suits the personality of the player to the type of character required, regardless of whether such player's name has ever appeared in electric lights or not.

The result is that the BLUEBIRD play is always strong, worthy, and the basis of fine entertainment, and the acting is far above that of even the most widely exploited star player productions.

These facts presented each week to the ten million readers of the Saturday Evening Post are bringing increased prosperity to Exhibitors of BLUEBIRD Photoplays.

New Laws and Court Decisions

Mayor of Detroit Threatens to Revoke Licenses of Two Managers for Showing Pictures Supposed to Offend the Town Moralists

THE mayor of Detroit had two theatre managers in his office early in August, and made it plain to them that they must either discontinue showing suggestive and indecent photoplays or he would have to revoke their license. This action followed a number of front page articles and cartoons, which appeared in the Detroit News. The articles in question came as a part of the clean-up campaign which usually precedes the election of new city officials.

The mayor felt it his duty to warn exhibitors against indecent films and to caution them as to the kind of posters they display. It must be admitted that while Detroit has been more or less free from indecent and suggestive films, several Detroit exhibitors have become a bit careless during the past few months and really have gone a step too far in the class of film which they permitted on their screens, and worse than the pictures themselves were the posters displayed in front of their houses.

Even a broad-minded person could be shocked at some of these posters and at some of the reading matter. The mayor has given instructions to exhibitors that they must stop putting up signs which read "No Children Admitted," because such signs either indicate that the picture is not fit to be seen by every member of the family, or else it is just put there because of its drawing power.

The action of the mayor and the campaign being waged by the Detroit News has not in the least upset the exhibitor who aims to show only film that is fit for all members of the family. On the other hand, it has met with their approval to such an extent that four members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Detroit, personally visited the mayor at his office and assured him that they would co-operate in ridding Detroit of indecent films.

"We don't show such film nor do we feel that it is for the best interests of the motion picture business that any theatre be allowed to show it," they told the Mayor. "We stand for the uplift and development of the motion picture industry, whereas indecent film retards the growth of this industry," they added.

OHIO CENSORS BOOST MILK-FED MORALITY POLICY BY CUTTING HARMLESS SCENES

While the state of Ohio has sweltered for the past month, the Ohio Board of Censorship has been in daily session. Despite the 100 degrees of temperature they have been compelled to sit in the studio and censor two pictures at once. Scenes cut by the censors show the hottest ones have got the axe as follows:

"Expiation"—Cut out sub-titles "You have no father," and "I couldn't marry any man unless he knew my past."

"Iron Claw"—Cut out scene where man throws another man out of a window.

"Luke Rides Roughshod"—Cut out scene where man holds up and robs stage coach and kisses girl with force.

"Milk White Flag"—Cut out scene where man tickles woman's chin; cut out sub-title, "I'll mend your socks for a year if you'll grant me a quick divorce," and cut out scene where coffin with corpse in it rolls down embankment into river.

"The Dupe"—Cut out scene where woman in car puts her foot on man's pedal extremities.

"Help! Help!"—Cut out scene where girl sits on man's lap.

"A DANIEL COME TO JUDGMENT"—"LET PEOPLE CENSOR PICTURES," SAYS MAYOR

Commissioner H. D. Huffaker has expressed surprise at the standard set in Chattanooga, Tenn., by motion picture exhibitors. He is of the opinion that unless the exhibitors discriminate better it will become the duty of the board of commissioners to take the matter in their own hands. He believes that the proprietors of motion picture theatres are not acquainted with public sentiment in Chattanooga.

The sentiment among members of the commission seems to be that they have not the right to say what pictures shall or shall not be shown the public. Mayor Jesse M. Littleton says, "Let the people censor the pictures."

SHIPPERS OF FILM THROUGH MAIL CAN RECOVER VALUE IF DAMAGED

Shippers of merchandise through the mails will hereafter be able to recover from the Post Office Department where, when sent registered, insured or C. O. D., it becomes damaged in whole or in part. The regulations up to this time have provided for indemnity only in the event the merchandise became useless as a result of its transportation in the mails. These regulations as now amended by the Postmaster General provide for indemnity for actual, usual, direct and necessary repairs required to place the damaged article or articles in a serviceable condition.

In order to secure this indemnity, shippers of packages subjected to damage must make claim therefor through the postmaster at the point of origin, according to regulations prescribed by the Postmaster General. Recovery for injury or loss to domestic mail matter, registered, is restricted to its value, although limited to $50 in the case of first-class mail matter and $25 for third-class mail matter. Recovery is subject to rules and regulations of the Department.

EXHIBITIONS IN TWO IOWA TOWNS FIGHT FOR SUNDAY OPENING

Exhibitors in Atlantic, Ia., and in Cedar Falls, Ia., are making a fight to keep open on Sunday. In Atlantic, William Frost, proprietor of the Garden and Manager Leach of the Opera House, the two biggest motion picture theatres in the town, have been keeping closed voluntarily. A few weeks ago they decided to accede to the demands of many of their patrons and open on Sunday. The fight began with some people making speeches and circulating petitions for a special election. The election has not been held.

The Grand and Empress theatres in Cedar Falls, which have remained closed all day Sunday without their being a special law, tried to open. A fight was started, and has not ended. Meanwhile the houses are open on Sundays.

DETROIT BARS CHILD ACTORS

Child actors and actresses who have been entertaining in some of the Detroit photoplay houses have been forced to quit as the result of an order coming from the Michigan State Labor Commissioner, who cites the law which says that "no child under sixteen years of age can appear on the stage of any theatre." Until this new ruling, the law was never enforced.

IT'S "ON AGIN, OFF AGIN, FINNIGAN," WITH CENSOR QUESTION IN FRISCO BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

While the censorship of moving pictures in San Francisco is virtually a dead issue and there is no possible chance of a new measure along this line being enacted by the Board of Supervisors, the police committee of this board, which has been considering an ordinance to legalize censorship for the past six months, persists in postponing a consideration of the question, instead of dropping the matter entirely.

This has been done so regularly that it has become a matter of form, and while exchangemen and exhibitors are alert, they no longer throng the meeting room of the board on the date set for the hearing of this question, as they realize the sentiment created last spring against censorship will prevent the passage of any ordinance along this line. The next hearing on the question has been set for the last week in August, but nothing is expected other than a further postponement.

MAY LOSE LICENSE THROUGH RIGID ORDINANCE

As long as the Crystal theatre, on Cortland avenue, San Francisco, kept up its license payments there was no trouble to get a renewal, inasmuch as the house has been established there for a long time, but unfortunately they allowed the license to run out, and are now having difficulty in having it renewed, on account of the fact that there is an ordinance which prohibits the licensing of a picture house within 200 feet of a schoolhouse, and the Crystal happens to be within the proscribed limit.

COSTS THEM $10 EACH TO SHOW RELIGIOUS FILM

Miss Dollie Spurr, manager of the Royal Grand theatre, Marion, Ind., and Howard Spurr, her brother, a motion picture operator, charged with desecration of the Sabbath in exhibiting a religious film at the theatre, Sunday, July 9, were fined $10 each following a jury trial in city court at Marion. They perfected an appeal to the Circuit court.

Convictions in a similar case several months ago checked a previous movement to obtain Sunday "movies."

FISHER WINS SUIT IN "MUTT AND JEFF" CASE

Harry C. ("Bud") Fisher, creator of the comic cartoons "Mutt and Jeff Comic Films," gained a complete victory in the Supreme Court, last week, when Justice Greenbaum decided that he, and not the New York American, had the right to use the title as applied to the "strips."

"Mutt and Jeff" comicalities have been known to World readers for some months, The World being the only newspaper in New York to publish them. Other papers throughout the country obtain them from the Wheeler Syndicate, which has a contract with Fisher.

A year ago, after Fisher left the American and signed a contract with the Wheeler Syndicate, an effort was made by the cartoonist's former employers to prevent the artist from using the words "Mutt and Jeff" in connection with his strips of these fanciful characters. A suit was brought against the syndicate. Thereupon Fisher and the syndicate brought individual suits against the Star Company, publishers of the American.

In his decision Justice Greenbaum dismisses the Star Company suit, finding for the syndicate. In the other suits he finds for the plaintiffs, so Fisher and the syndicate win all three.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS HITS NEW JERSEY HOUSES

Trenton, N. J., August 19.

Infantile paralysis has greatly affected the attendance at the motion picture theatres in this city. Even Mary Pickford fails to draw anything like the capacity houses that she formerly did. The fact that this child plague is prevalent throughout the state and Trenton particularly is under the most strict quarantine, parents are not only afraid to venture out themselves, but keep their children within due distance from theatres.

This condition has naturally affected the business of all of the local houses, and while none of them have closed as a result of the enormous drop in receipts, all of the managers are complaining of the dull business.

So long as Trenton is under its present strict quarantine, not allowing any child under sixteen years of age to leave or enter the city, the people from the near-by suburban districts, in the habit of liberally patronizing the local picture houses will not venture to town. They make it a practice to witness the two changes of programs each week and bring along the children. As they cannot bring the kiddies into the city the parents likewise are staying away from the theatres.

BERST PRESENTS PEARL WHITE WITH GOLD MESH BAG FOR HER GOOD WORK IN "IRON CLAW"

As a reward for her work in "The Iron Claw," J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, has presented to Pearl White a magnificent solid gold mesh bag.

Miss White, more than any other player, has been identified with Pathe productions. All the serials in which she has starred, "The Perils of Pauline," "The Exploits of Elaine," "The New Exploits of Elaine," "The Romance of Elaine," and "The Iron Claw," have been successful. The Pathe Exchange has a steady sale for her photographs in China, Japan, South America, Australia, the West Indies, and South Africa, as well as Europe.

A patriotic story of France from the story of the same name, "We Are French" by Robert Davis, adapted for the screen by Elliot J. Clawson, will offer Ella Hall and Rupert Julian as co-stars. The last time these players appeared together was in "Jewel." Julian is directing the five-reel picture which deals with the faithfulness of a French woman who waited for the return of her brother and sweetheart who went to war together. Kingsley Benedict appears as the brother, Julian as the sweetheart. A stage setting required for this is the interior of the home of the President of France, where the sweetheart is decorated by the President who thinks him to be the brother. It is here that the couple are united years later.

Maude George and Lee Hill have been selected to play the featured parts in a production made by Director Donald McDonald, and he is now filming the story titled "Her Honor," which will be in one reel. Director McDonald has just filmed "The Test," in which a youth is to inherit a fortune providing he marries an authoress named in the will, by a certain date. She disguises and appears at his home asking for help, and thus learns his true nature. Madge Kirby is the girl and Lee Hill the youth.

Edith Roberts takes the name part in "The Small Town Girl," who flirts with all the drummers, and wins against similar attempts on the part of the other fair ones of the village, but ultimately bringing woe to the family. The scenario is by Harvey Gates, and Millard K. Wilson is in charge of the direction, and also plays a featured part, supported by Malcolm Blevins and others.

Wilson has just filmed the story "Sunny Ann," which features little Lena Baskette as the crippled sister of a civil engineer, but gives the principal part to Edith Roberts. It is a story of jealousy of the mountain folks, and has a Kentucky mountain locale.

A three-reel film now being made by Director William V. Mong, has been titled "The Case of Doctor Howley." The story pertains to the inherent desire for alcoholic drink by a noted physician, who mysteriously leaves his home and family to start life anew in another city. There he wins fame under an assumed name, and is called back to his former home to operate on a child. There he learns it is his own daughter. and after the operation he convinces his wife and mother he is a different man. Nellie Allen, George Dayton and H. M. Holden play the principal parts, with Mong appearing in the dual role of father and son.

A railroad melodrama of three reels, titled "The Underling," written by William Parker, is being made by Director Henry McRae with a cast which includes Harry Carey as lead, E. N. Wallock in a character part, L. C. Shumway the heavy, and Edith Johnson as the railroad president's daughter. The scenario provides for a number of hazardous acts which include a race with a train by auto, horse and motorcycle.

Ruth Stonehouse, Universal star, can now fully lay claim to the title of directoress, she having filmed a one-reel subject titled "Mary Ann." Many of the scenes for this are laid in an orphan asylum where she cares for the smaller kiddies. Included in the supporting cast are Peggy Coudray, Marvel Spencer and Little Elizabeth James. Miss Stonehouse will shortly begin work in the five-reel drama to be made by Raymond Wells entitled "Kinkaid, Gambler."

The Lynn Reynolds Company, with Myrtle Gonzales playing the featured part, supported by Val Paul, Fred Montague, and George Hernandez, will shortly go to the redwood forests near Fresno where they will film exteriors for "The End of the Rainbow."

William Worthington is in charge of the filming of "Captain Peggy," a short subject with Agnes Vernon in the principal part, while scenario for a five-reel feature and sets for the same are being prepared. The present story is by William H. Lippert, Universal staff author.

Universal Announces Features for Near Release

"The Beckoning Trail," with Kerrigan, Is Set for August 21, "The Folly of Desire on the 28th, "The Narrow Path" on September 4th, and "Whirlpool of Destiny" on 11th

THE Universal Film Manufacturing Company announces the following features for release in the immediate future:

On August 21—J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Beckoning Trail," a romantic drama of the East and West. This, the thirtieth five-reel Red Feather production, was directed by Jack Conway.

On August 22—The three-reel Gold Seal emotional drama "The Castle of Despair," with Neva Gerber and Malcolm Blevins, directed by Ben Wilson.

On August 24—"You Want Something," a two-reel Victor comedy drama, with Gale Henry, William Franey, Lillian Peacock and Milburn Morante.

On August 28—Mary Fuller with Joe Girard and a notable cast in "The Trail of Chance," a two-reel 101-Bison detective drama of the northern woods, directed by Lucius Henderson.

On August 28—"The Folly of Desire," the thirty-first five-reel Red Feather production, featuring Norman McKinnel and Manora Thew, produced by George L. Tucker from the story of Alice and Claude Askew. This is a story of the South African veldt and the kaffir country.

On September 4—Violet Mersereau in "The Narrow Path," the thirty-second five-reel Red Feather production. "The Narrow Path" is a story of the slums, society and the stage produced by Francis J. Grandon from the story by Catherine Carr. Supporting Miss Mersereau are William J. Welch, Clara Beyers, Joseph Girard, Nellie Slattery, Leonora Von Ottinger, Anthony Merlo and Niles Welch.

On September 11—"The Whirlpool of Destiny," the thirty-third five-reel Red Feather production. Flora Parker, De Haven, with Jack Mulhall and Bertram Grassby, produced under the direction of Otis Turner, from the story by F. McGrew and Eugene B. Lewis.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By LONGACRE

THE delays in mail and cables due to the war now going on somewhere in Europe has suppressed until now the news that the real Americanization of London commenced on the night of June 14. On that evening, Willie Sheehan, of the Fox Film Corporation, now stationed in London, gave a dinner to the American newspaper men and war correspondents then in London.

Winnie was a newspaper man himself before he saw the light. He knew most of "the Boys," and it was like old times when they gathered around the tables at the Savoy. The "Boys" came back at Winnie by getting out a newspaper, "The Winnie Post," especially for the occasion.

The "Winnie Post" is quite a revelation of the workings of the journalistic mind, when off duty, for although gotten up in honor of the host, it is devoted to a discussion of the newspaper men, their achievements and interests. The only reference to the Fifth Estate, is the concluding paragraph of a front-page story: "Grand Chorus at 9.30: 'A man's a sucker to stick to the newspaper game. Look at Winnie Sheehan.'"

Crowded around Winnie on the occasion were Jack Pratt, Selmer Fougner, George Denny, E. Percy Noel, Phil Patchin, Ben Allen, Robert Collins, Henry Suydam, William Shepherd, and a dozen others.

There are evidences that the Americans in England are feeling the polishing influence of the old country on their raw Yankee English. Here is a bit culled from the "Winnie Post":

"Spill it to me, kid," said Gasp Hard, in that refined language which only Georgie Cohan can use. "Cut out the bull," he continued. "Let's hike to some cheap dump trough with some chow, and hoist a few buckets of suds into our faces."

Winfield R. Sheehan and His Guests, The Newspaper Correspondents, at the London Dinner

As a result of an eight-to-three bet, a way has been found at last to retard the speed of our own red-headed J. C. Jessen, the man who took the loss out of Los Angeles. At that it was necessary to use three Mexican motion picture actors, with rifles, and then it didn't take for more than a few seconds.

It seems that J. C. was taking George Bellman around the studios in his "movable office" and when near one of the studios, the Mexicans leaped out and held up the outfit. Bellman wasn't "in on" the plant, and jerked his hands into the air promptly. J. C. wasn't in on the hold-up either, but instead of jerking his hands into the air, he jerked a police pass out of his pocket, and flashed it on the Mexicans. The hold-up was called off for the day. It takes more than three rifles to stop an automobile load of red hair.

Ed "Hoot" Gibson, husband of the famous Helen, was erroneously reported as visiting town in company with his wife. He was in town all right enough but his wife is busy in the west trying to get herself killed in some of the stunts she pulls off in the "Hazards of Helen" for Kalem.

C. H. Dingman, traveling representative of the E-L-K Film Company, Mallers Building, Chicago, is in town for a week.

We are anonymously advised that George Le Guere has signed a contract to be starred by a prominent firm in a series of feature pictures. Further announcement will be made in the near future.

Leander Richardson is now handling the advertising and publicity for World Film. He is installed in the chair that Harry Reichenbach jumped in and out of for a year, and is spending nineteen to twenty hours a day in getting his fingers onto the various keys around the big establishment.

The Only Time Our Own Red-Head Was Ever Stopped

"Recently," typewrites Tarleton Winchester, "you had something to say about Berger Tomte, of the Pathe Minneapolis office." [True, we did.] "Here is a photograph of a representative of his who will speak for him. The child hasn't a touch of infantile paralysis; it was just frightened by the operator of the camera. The photograph was taken at the picnic of the Film Exchanges and Exhibitors of the Minneapolis territory, at Parker's Lake, August 2. According to Manager H. E. Freidman of our Minneapolis office, the baby did nobly as a representative of Pathe."

Like a Well-Played Scene, This Needs no Sub-Title

Because it is good, and because we can find no evidence of carbon or other copies having been made of it, we take pleasure in presenting herewith the latest effort of "Ruby"—whom most of our readers will recall:

"I gotta getta
Move on—write a letta
To you because, you see
They're pickin' on me
Every guy I meet
On the street,
Says, 'Hey, Ruby,
What do you be Doing these days?'
Seems like a craze
To worry
(In all the hustle and hurry)
About me.
Gee!
I've been queried
So often, I'm wearied,
I know they mean well,
But, O, shuks!
So here's just a line,
Sort of high sign
That I'm muchly on deck,
Busy up to the neck.
Never mind just wot,
It's not
Ready for type,
But, say—can I swipe
A line for Ella Wheeler Wilcox?"

It appears from our private correspondence, that one day last week Hank Mann, Charles Chaplin and George Ovey happened in at the same Hollywood cafe for luncheon at the same hour. Strong waiters wept on seeing them, but when Carter De Haven drove up and took another table, the weeping rose to a wail. Such is the honor of a comedian where he is best known.

While we are saving our own brain cells by resort to the old reprint method, we can think of nothing better to offer than this merry jest from Bide Dudley's column in the New York Evening World:

"Tom Barry was heard telling a story last night. 'The manager of a picture house in a town in Missouri,' said he, 'took occasion to announce to his patrons from the stage what they might expect at the theatre the following week.

"'Ladies and gents,' he said, 'next week we got a great picture. It's a wonderful pichure, and I want you all to see it. We've never had as fine a pichure here yet. The name of this fine pichure is—(here he glanced down at a small card he held in his hand)—"Carmen." Now, it's a world-famed pichure, and I want you all to see it. it's a great one, and no disputing. The star of this marvellous picture is—(here he glanced down at the card again)—is—is Jesse Lasky.'"

Half a mustache isn't much good to anybody. For that reason Tom Lingham, of Kalem, is wearing one which is half real and half false. After he had gone to the trouble of raising a nice one especially for a picture, he got into a fire, and one side of it was burned off. He had to call in artificial beauty aids.

Charles R. Macauley is at the head of a new movement to establish a sort of Motion Picture Forum on the 20,000 screens of the country. He bases his scheme on the success of the fora of Ancient Rome. The Macauley boys have always been successful in digging into the history, traditions and Lies of Ancient Rome; as one of 'em remarks: "Why are the Fora crowded?"

The Bayside Bugle

"Bigger, Busier, Brighter Bell Ave." Bayside, L. I., August 26, 1916.

Welcome.

The BUGLE is always glad to welcome important personages to our little midst, and although we have many such here now, we can never have too many and the more the merrier, say we. Therefore, last Wed. eve., when Mary Pickford and her mother drove up in front of Jim McKenna's place, and said they had decided to stop for the night, Jim said fine, and glad to have you, which is what the BUGLE and all Bayside say also. Jim distinguished himself as a true Baysideite of the old schl. he immediately giving orders to have a suit of 4 rooms made ready, which was done, and the distinguished visitors were made very comfortable.

The news that Mary was in town did not permeate thoroughly until the next day, which is why three or four of our residents did not get down to Jim's place Wed. eve. It is now reported that Mary will join our colony of picture folk, which would be highly desirable and devoutly to be wished, as we all think.

MANY NEW PLAYERS ADDED TO UNIVERSAL STUDIOS

There have been several new players added to the list at Universal City. They include Ruth Clifford, a beautiful ingenue who has been added to general stock; Walter Clinton, a juvenile, who will make his first appearance in "Down by the Sea"; Hal Cooley, who has worked for the Universal before on several occasions, has gone into general stock; Irene Aldwyn, who makes her first appearance in "A Romance of Billygoat Hill," produced by Lynn Reynolds; William E. Parsons, who has been engaged for character roles, and will make his first appearance in "Maybelle of the Pictures"; Yvette Mitchell, who will be remembered for her characterization of Chinese girls.

She can play other roles as well as oriental, as will be seen when "Lord, What a Lord" makes its appearance; Lillian Concord, formerly star of "The Red Widow" and "The Midnight Girl" on Broadway, a statuesque beauty, who will play leads in one of the companies at Universal City until her winter engagement begins on Broadway.

PLANS UNDER WAY TO ENLARGE VOGUE STUDIO

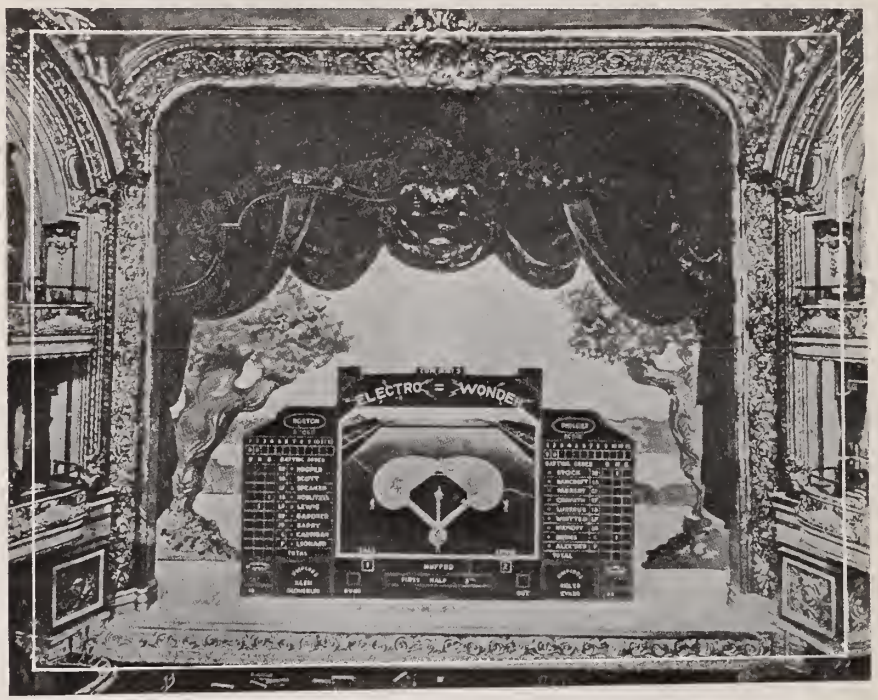
Los Angeles, Aug. 19.

Manager Crone, on instructions from President S. S. Hutchinson of the Vogue company, is making arrangements for the enlargement of the studio occupied at present. If this cannot be accomplished the company will build a new studio on a Hollywood site. A larger plant has been found necessary for this producing organization as only two reel comedies are to be made in the future and the management finds that larger settings will be needed.

Baseball Score Boards from World Prove Popular

Players Are Represented by Shadowgraph Cut-outs and Each Shadowgraph Is Equipped With a Double Battery Such as Is Used in a Pocket Flashlight



The Score Board Set Up on the Theatre Stage

THIS photograph shows a baseball scoreboard set up on the stage of a theatre where it was operated last year during the World's Series Games. The board has been constructed in a very simple manner, though perfect in every detail for showing the many different plays that occur on the baseball diamond. The diamond section of the board is of translucent material. The players are represented by shadowgraph cut-outs, each shadowgraph is equipped with a double battery such as used in a pocket flashlight.

By using the batteries, house current is eliminated on the board, which results in the elimination of all fuse blowout risks. The operating of the players is carried on from behind the board out of sight of, the audience. When the pitcher throws the ball the operator moves the ball which is also a small shadowgraph, down and across the home plate. Should the ball have been batted into the outfield the small lighted images are moved about the screen, showing the runners stealing bases, getting caught on third base or perhaps managing to get to home plate after the error of a fumbled, wild thrown, or muffed ball.

The score is also arranged from behind the board by plain black cube boxes with white glazed letters, which show up very prominently and can be read from any position in the theatre. The changing of the score simply requires turning the cubes.

In order to show the popularity of the board, last year eleven boards were leased and orders for twenty-two others were received, which they were unable to supply. Every exhibitor who ordered last year has contracted again for the coming World's Series Games.

The company which is putting this out is the World's Series Score Board Co., Inc., 105 W. Fortieth st., New York City.

"The Stampede" for State Rights Basis; Some Territory Sold

A Typical Scene at the Northwestern Stampede, a Film of Which is Released by the Educational Film Corporation

THE Educational Films Corporation of America, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, is releasing on a state rights basis "The Stampede," a film depicting hazardous Western feats of horsemanship and cowboy exploits, including trick riding, bronco busting, steer bull-dogging, and other feats of daring. The pictures was made by Robert C. Bruce at a county fair in Oregon.

As originally taken, it was 3,000 feet. Subsequently, it was reduced to one thousand, and it is said to be full of action all the way. S. L. Rothapfel ran the picture for an entire week on Broadway.

SPECIAL PUBLICITY FOR RIALTO BY COOK BUREAU

Charles Emerson Cook's incorporated press bureau has been engaged by S. L. Rothapfel for special publicity for the Rialto theatre, New York City.

SILLS, DOROTHY GREEN AND OLAND CAST WITH MRS. VERNON CASTLE IN PATRIA

Three important names have been added to the list of players now appearing on the screen for the International Film Service, Inc. The newcomers are Dorothy Green, famous for her vampire parts, Milton Sills, leading man of the legitimate stage and the screen, and Warner Oland, heavy.

All three are supporting Mrs. Vernon Castle in "Patria," the forthcoming serial of the International.

Mr. Sills was selected by Mrs. Castle as her leading man from a long list of prominent players. As a legitimate actor he is best known for his work in "Just Boys," "The Law of the Land," "Panthea," "The Rack," "Mother," and "Diplomacy." In pictures, he played the lead in "Deep Purple," "Under Southern Skies," "A Woman Who Lied," "The Rack," and "The Honor System."

Miss Green, although the youngest woman playing vampire parts (she is just 21) has had the leading roles in a long list of pictures. Included in this list is "The Devil at his Elbow," "Souls Aflame," "A Parisian Romance," "A Wonderful Adventure," "Her Mother's Secret," "The Spirit of the Poppy," and "Woman and Wine."

In dramatic productions Mr. Oland appeared with Viola Allen, Southern and Marlowe, Nazimova and other stars. He also appeared in "A Fool There Was" and "The Yellow Ticket," while his most recent appearance on the screen was in "The Eternal Sapho."

ROLIN'S TWO ORGANIZATIONS AT HOME IN THEIR NEW STUDIO

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, August 19.

The Rolin Company's two organizations are now at home in their new hill top studio on Court street, and the army of workmen continue to remake the plant to add efficiency for the makers of slapstick. When completed it will have new stages, lighting equipment, and will be thorough in every particular. A feature of this studio is the fact that it is located on the highest point within the city, and overlooks all the business, and a great portion of the residence section.

While the improvements are being made at the new plant, Director Hal Roach of the Lonesome Luke Company, is filming a comedy with practically all exteriors in which the evolution of street car system of Los Angeles plays an important part. Cars of all ages from the ones with mule power to the modern pay-as-you-enter ones are used.

The second Rolin Company is filming a small town story in which Fatty Lampton plays the part of the hero, and little Gertrude Short is his leading woman. Gilbert Pratt has been placed in charge of the direction of this company.

If negotiations now pending are consumated, General Manager Dwight Whiting of the Rolin Company, will within a short time take one of the producing organizations for a cruise on the Pacific, where a series of comedies will be made showing the adventures of Lonesome Luke in foreign lands.

INCE APPOINTS PRIEST PUBLICITY DIRECTOR FOR "CIVILIZATION"

Thomas H Ince has appointed Robert W. Priest, director of publicity for the "Civilization" companies. Mr. Priest has been connected with motion pictures for several years, having been associated with the exploitation of the Captain Scott, Antarctic pictures, the Rainey African Hunt films, and the Pathe colored film, "The Life of Our Saviour."

Robert W. Priest

Prior to his entrance into the motion picture industry, Mr. Priest was identified with De Wolf Hopper, William Faversham, the Mordkin Russian Ballet and other similar attractions. He was publicity director for the New York Hippodrome during that theatre's conversion to pictures.

C. J. VERHALEN GOES WEST FOR PARAMOUNT

Charles J. Verhalen, for several years a familiar figure in the motion picture business, has accepted a position with the Famous Players Star Feature Film Service, Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. Verhalen will devote his time to the organization of publicity campaigns and the general boosting of the exhibitors' business in the territory covered by this branch of Paramount Pictures Corporation.

Mr. Verhalen has had a long and prosperous career in the industry. He started as Chicago manager of the Billboard, and after demonstrating his ability in this position he was secured as manager of the Chicago office of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. Later he joined Universal for special publicity work, and then when the Kriterion Film Service was formed he was appointed Assistant General Manager.

As editor of the Chicago Tribune Animated Weekly he gained new laurels, and from this position he left to join Harry Raver in the capacity of general advisory director of all departments. While attending to the Chicago business of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Mr. Verhalen conceived the idea of inaugurating an organization for picture people in that city, and his plan was rapidly formulated in the birth of the Reel Fellows Club, which bears his name as one of the most zealous founders.

Mr. Verhalen left New York City on Thursday, Aug. 10, to take up his new duties with the Minneapolis Paramount exchange. The position which he is to fill has not been held by anyone else heretofore, although for a long time the officials have realized the need of such a man as Verhalen.

ORLOVE PLANS COMPANY FOR CONSTANT INTERCHANGE OF FILM BETWEEN AMERICA AND RUSSIA

George C. Orlove of Fairfield, Connecticut, proposes to organize a corporation which will establish a constant interchange of film between Russia and America. He also contemplates the building of a film factory in Petrograd, together with the erection of modern moving picture theatres in the principal cities of Russia.

Mr. Orlove states that the opportunities for pictures in Russia at the present time are remarkable and will prove increasingly so. They are not only an educational necessity, but also in great demand because of the need for and the lack of amusement facilities in Russia. He believes that Russia offers at the preesnt time unusual opportunities for the American manufacturer and distributor of films.

TRIANGLE FILMS SHOWN TO BOOKERS ON SHORT NOTICE IN FRISCO

The Triangle Film Corporation has recently installed projection equipment in its quarters on Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, and is now in a position to show films to prospective bookers on short notice. Manager Simpson is delighted with the manner in which business has kept up during the Summer months, and now looks for a very active Fall and Winter.

AGNES EYRE TURNED HER BACK ON LAW CAREER FOR THE SCREEN

Agnes Eyre, of the Essanay studios, is another of the successful young actresses who took up screen work purely by accident. Miss Eyre was in the graduating class of the law school at the University of Chicago and was all set to become a lawyer, when a friend took her on a sightseeing trip to the Essanay studios. There a director saw her and, believing her to be one of his cast, told her to "get into the scene" just as she was, in her street clothes and without make-up.

Agnes Eyre

Her screen appearance so impressed the director that he offered her steady employment, and she quickly abandoned the law school and the career of a barrister. Her first work was in a series of George Ade comedies, then she played with Viola Allen in "The White Sister," in "Graustark," in Selig's Panama-Pacific Exposition feature, "The Seven Suffering Sisters," and then back to Essanay in "The Prince of Graustark," some three-reelers, and finally with Henry Walthall in "The Sting of Victory."

"INTOLERANCE" DATE IN NEW YORK SET FOR SEPTEMBER 5

Positive announcement has been made in the offices of D. W. Griffith, that the date for the New York opening of the new Griffith production of "Intolerance" at the Liberty theatre will take place on Tuesday night, September 5. The original intention as previously announced was to open on August 22, but it was found that owing to delayed orders the theatre cannot be made ready until the first week in September.

Mr. Griffith is planning extensive improvements in the Libetry theatre with a view of introducing many innovations in the way of advanced projection for his forthcoming spectacle. The manufacturing plants cannot deliver the mechanical appliances before the last week in August.

This information was conveyed to Mr. Griffith in a long distance telephone conversation which lasted for twenty minutes. The rate to Los Angeles is twenty dollars for every three minutes of conversation. As a result of the deferred date the producer will remain at his western studio to add final details to his big work, and is not expected in New York before the latter part of next week when he will come on to take active charge of the advanced preparations for his next production.

SUPERIOR FINISHES PROHIBITION SUBJECT

The Superior Films Company's studio has finished the filming of a six-reel motion picture for Robert D. Sorver, titled "The Faucet," which will be used throughout the country by the Prohibitionists in the 1916 campaign for votes for temperance.

General Manager Robert H. Brackett of Superior had the assistance in the making of this subject of William E. Wing, who served as scenario writer and director. The scenario was adapted from a story of which Mr. Sorver was author.

The subject opens with a 500-foot allegorical introduction, followed by five reels of dramatic action, and closes with allegorical scenes totaling 500 feet.

The cast for this picture included Virginia Kirtley, late of Selig Company, as leading ingenue; Edna May Cooper, second ingenue; Josephine Dillon, late of the legitimate stage, leading character woman; Isabelle Lockerly, an English actress; Barney Turey, leading man; Herbert Sutch, character; Charles Wheellock, heavy, and Jack Fraser, the villain character.

Mr. Sorver, who is owner of the picture, had it made for Prohibition leagues throughout the country.

It will be handled in each State either by the Prohibition workers or be sold by State rights.

LORRAINE FROST IS NEW METRO INGENUE

A new member of the Metro aggregation of photoplayers in Lorraine Frost, an ingenue who is in the Metro-Rolfe production, "God's Half-Acre," starring Mabel Taliaferro, and also in the Metro-Columbia five-act drama, as yet unnamed, starring Viola Dana. In both productions Miss Frost's part is only second in importance to that of the star.

Miss Frost's first dramatic experience was with Edith Taliaferro in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." Her part was Emma Jane, but she played Rebecca when Miss Taliaferro was ill. More recently she has been seen with Rose Stahl in "Moonlight Mary," with Arnold Daly in "The Angel in the House," and with William H. Crane in "The Senator Keeps House."

With Robert Mantell she played several Shakespearian parts, including Cordelia, Ophelia, Jessica and the Princes in the Tower—not playing both princes at the same time, however. Andrew Mack's "Bold Soldier Boy," Charles Hawtrey's "Message from Mars," and "The Little Princess," about complete the list of this young girl's achievements up to date. She has appeared in a few motion pictures for Selig.

THEATRE TAX IS KILLED BY SENATE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.

As predicted last week, the Democratic members of the Senate have killed the proposed tax on theatres, based on gross profits, in the bill now pending before the Upper House. They did this by substituting an amendment which extends the provisions of the emergency law of 1914, and imposes a theatre tax based upon the seating capacity of the various houses.

This action was taken in caucus. In striking out the House provision for a gross profits tax, the Senate Democrats also adopted an important proviso, which makes the tax in cities of less than 5,000 population half what it is in cities with a larger population.

The rates of taxation imposed by the Federal Government on theatres in the existing War Revenue Act of October 22, 1914, are as follows: Twenty-five dollars for theatres with seating capacity not exceeding 250; $50 for theatres with seating capacity not exceeding 500; $75 for theatres with seating capacity of 500 to 800; $100 for theatres with seating capacity of over 800.

The Democratic caucus has decided to retain these rates of the existing law as the tax to be collected from the theatres in towns of 5,000 population and over and in towns of less than 5,000 population the tax is to be cut in half and is to be as follows: Twelve and one-half dollars for theatres seating not over 250; $25 for theatres seating from 250 to 500; $37.50 for theatres seating from 500 to 800; $50 for theatres seating over 800.

UNITY OFFERS EXHIBITORS NEW IDEA FOR PUBLICITY HELP

In offering "The Yellow Menace" to exhibitors, through its independent exchanges, The Unity Sales Corporation believes that it has provided every possible means to help the exhibitor build up business. In addition to the usual amount of paper, heralds, banners and oriental novelties, which are strictly in keeping with the nature of the picture, the company has produced in a booklet of twenty-four pages a general synopsis of the entire story written and signed by Louis Tracy, the author, and for its centre pages a composite photograph of the stars and scenes from "The Yellow Menace."

On separate pages a short synopsis of each one of the sixteen episodes is offered, also written by Mr. Tracy, and a still picture from each and every one of the episodes.

This is but one of the many special plans which the Unity Sales Corporation has inaugurated to serve the exhibitor and provide him with the most up-to-date means of holding his audience.

IRENE HUNT SUPPORTS LITTLE ZOE RAE IN A UNIVERSAL

Irene Hunt, who recently went to the Pacific Coast studios of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company from the eastern studios of Fort Lee, N. J., is now playing in support of Little Zoe Rae, under the direction of E. Mason Hopper in the five-reel feature entitled "Little Zoe Rae."

Miss Hunt is a native of New York and first went on the legitimate stage at the tender age of four years with one of the old comedians, Dan McCarthy.

New Series of Travel Pictures Is Planned by Chester

Six Months Ago He Engaged Three of the Leading Scenic Cameramen and Now Has 54,241 Feet of Negative—Every Scenic Talked Over in Office Before Operations Begin

C. L. Chester, the executive head of C. L. Chester, Inc., of 200 Fifth avenue, New York, is about to issue a new series of travel films, and will put them out at the rate of one reel a week to exchanges throughout the country, beginning with the first release on November 6. Six months ago he engaged three of the leading scenic cameramen, trained them thoroughly for the work, and as a result already has 54,241 feet of new negative. His idea is to bring the travel film up to the standard of the big up-to-the-minute features, and instead of taking scenery haphazard, every scene is being carefully planned in the office before the cameraman goes out.

"While the cost of the feature films," said Mr. Chester, " has advanced from a dollar a foot to anything from five dollars up, in the last few years, the average manufacturer gasps at the idea of spending more than from thirty-five to sixty cents a foot for the travel films.

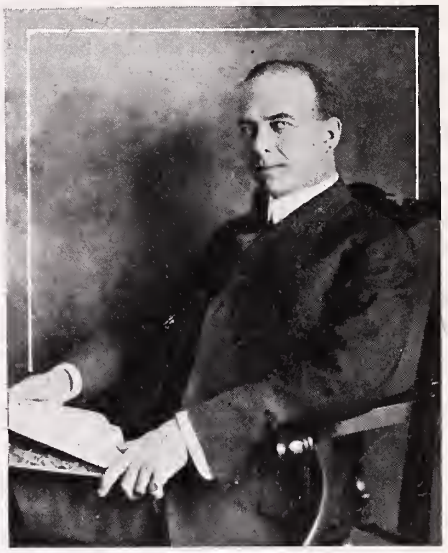
"Years ago I made most of the travel film for the Edison Company, the first organization to go into the travel subjects extensively, and made with the aid of two cameramen the very successful South American Travel Series for Paramount. In the past no time or thought has been devoted to the travel film, either before or after the cameraman left the office. The manager would call in the cameraman, and say:

"'When can you leave for Alaska?' The cameraman would reply:

"'Now!' The manager would heave a roll of bills at him, and yell:

"'Shoot!' Not a book would be read, not a thought given to the scenic detail of Alaska. The cameraman would stand on the back of a train and grind his camera with one hand and eat his lunch with the other, never paying any attention to light or anything else.

"In our new work, every picture will be carefully thought out, and ninety per cent. of the scenes planned in the office. I have myself visited twenty-eight countries with a motion picture camera, and have lived on every continent except Australia. I know the weather and the light conditions thoroughly. In taking a feature film's exteriors the most minute calculation is made as to the exact time for the best light effect.



C. L. Chester

Perhaps it may be 11.15 in the morning. Exactly at that moment the scene will be taken. We will be just as particular.

"I have been fortunate in securing as cameramen Victor Miller, W. O. Runcie and Raymond Agnel. Miller was with Pathe for many years, Runcie with Gaumont for several years, and Agnel made many of the best scenic and industrial films turned out by the Paris Eclair."

Mr. Chester, although he has had such a wide experience, is only thirty-nine years old. He is a native of Iowa, and while a student at the Iowa State University he assisted the professor of physics and chemistry, and thus became interested in the chemistry of photography. He went in for original work with the camera and made several important inventions for the photographic art. He then became a lecturer for the Pond Lyceum Bureau and for five years continued this work in various parts of the world, illustrating his lectures with his own photographs and motion pictures.

After that he toured the world for pleasure with a motion picture camera and got such fine results that he decided to join the film industry. His latest picture was "America Preparing," which he made for the Kemble Film Company and which played for a run at the Lyric theatre, New York, and is now playing throughout the country.

"Jimmy Dale" Stories for Screen in Sixteen Episodes

Monmouth Film Engages Lincoln and Edna Hunter to Play Leads—They Will Be Supported by Doris Mitchell, Paul Panzer and Under the Direction of Webster

PROBABLY no series of stories has gained such instant approval of the fiction lovers as the "Jimmy Dale" stories now running in the People's Magazine. Their originality, coupled with their tense interest, seems to have won the reading public as none others have done since Sewall Ford's "Shorty McCabe" stories were the rage.

And now the theatregoing picture lover will be able to see these interesting "Professional Adventures of Jimmy Dale" shown on the screen in sixteen episodes, each one complete in itself.

The Mommouth Film Corporation, with offices in the Brokaw Building, New York City, have announced that the series will be produced by them under their Grey Seal brand.

E. K. Lincoln and Edna Hunter have been engaged to play the leads and will be supported by Doris Mitchell and Paul Panzer. They will be under the direction of Harry McRae Webster.

The stories will be arranged for the screen by their author, Frank L. Packard, and there will be sixteen of them, each complete in itself and each containing "a thrill, a tear and a heart throb."

The officers of the Mommouth are Harry McRae Webster, president and director-general, and Jules Burnstein, second vice-president and general manager; the latter to attend to all booking from New York City offices.

LAURA TRAINOR, NEAR LASKY STUDIOS ON HORSEBACK

Miss Laura Marie Trainor, the young woman of Missoula, Montana, who two months ago left that city for a trip on horseback to the Pacific coast, with the Lasky studios at Hollywood, California, as her destination, has reached San Francisco, and is expected in Los Angeles next week.

Miss Trainor is travelling under the auspices of the Missoula Chamber of Commerce of which her father is one of the prominent members. On her way across the great west she has stopped at motion picture theatres en route and has told the natives about Missoula, and has argued for cleaner and better motion pictures.

TRIANGLE OPENS DISTRICT OFFICE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington, D. C., August 19.

Triangle Film Corporation has opened a district office in Washington, D. C., and will take care of the territory for film, including Baltimore. The office will be in charge of J. H. Butner, who is to be assisted by Edward R. Price. Mr. Butner was formerly connected with the Philadelphia office, but is well known in Baltimore city.

Mr. Price was, up until a few days ago, connected with the Washington office of the Mutual Film Corporation. For a long time, prior to that, he was connected with the Mutual office in Baltimore. Mr. Price is particularly well-known in Baltimore, having managed several motion picture houses there, including the Blue Mouse, the Picture Garden, Berman's and the Clover, but of recent years he has been devoting his time to the film exchange end.

Up to the present time, Baltimore has had to depend upon Philadelphia for its Triangle film, all shipments and bookings having been made in the latter office. The opening of the Washington branch will make it much more convenient for local exhibitors.

SIX REELS IS PLAN FOR LENGTH OF "YOUTH'S ENDEARING CHARM"

Announcement is made by the Mutual Film Corporation that "Youth's Endearing Charm," first of the Mutual Star Productions featuring Mary Miles Minter will be released in six reels instead of five as originally announced.

This action was decided upon when the feature was projected in the American Film Company, Inc., studios, where the production was screened. Nearly 10,000 feet of film were used in this adaptation of Mabel Heickes Justice's story, selected as the first of the Minter star productions, and it was deemed best, in order to present as closely as possible every detail of importance connected with the story, to release it in six reels.

"Youth's Endearing Charm" was filmed under the personal direction of William C. Dowlan.

Miss Minter is now at work on "Dulcie's Adventure," second of her Musual Star Productions. James Kirkwood, engaged especially by Samuel S. Hutchinson to take personal charge of the production of the succeeding Minter features, is working with Miss Minter on this subject.

THE KNIFE AND FORK BECOME MIGHTIER THAN THE PEN FOR 16 WRITING PEOPLE AT CONSOLIDATED DINNER

Sixteen motion picture critics were guests of the Consolidated Film Corporation at luncheon last Tuesday at Murray's, on Forty-second street. The occasion was the review of the first and second episodes of "The Crimson Stain Mystery," the sixteen-episode serial photoplay which Consolidated is distributing through the Metro exchanges.

The luncheon took place promptly at 12 o'clock noon, and at 1:30 o'clock the entire assemblage went to the Metro Pictures Corporation's offices where the episodes were shown.

Arthur James, director of publicity of the Metro Pictures Corporation was toastmaster. Spencer G. Sladdin, director of publicity, and Arthur M. Brilant, assistant director of publicity of Consolidated, played hosts in the absence of O. E. Goebel, president of the Consolidated, whom business prevented from attending.

LIKES "NEWS" BEST AND READS ITS EDITORIALS FIRST

Motion Picture News,
Gentlemen:—

In my estimation, the "News" is the foremost publication of its kind, and while I receive two other motion picture magazines, the "News" is always read first. The first thing I read is Mr. Johnston's editorials.

Yours very truly,
H. B. Riggs,

PATHE FACTORY EMPLOYEES ON OUTING AT PALISADES PARK

Following the example set by the Pathe Club the employees of the Bound Brook, N. J., factory of Pathe Exchange, Inc., had a successful outing on Saturday, August 5, at the Palisade Amusement Park. A series of athletic events was run off for which handsome prizes were offered. The committee consisted of W. E. Smith, Arthur Miller, Henry P. Kloss and G. Clyde Somers.

A vote of thanks was extended to J. A. Berst, vice president and general manager of Pathe, for a generous contribution toward the expense of the outing.

REPORT OF CONVENTION COMMITTEE ACCEPTED

At a recent meeting of the Chicago exhibitors the report of the Convention committee was read and accepted, and the committee discharged with a vote of thanks.

A Committee on Political Action was appointed, consisting of the following: R. Levy, chairman; L. H. Frank, secretary; M. A. Choyinsky, Joseph Hopp, and A. Powell. The committee was given power to increase its membership, which will probably be done.

The Motion Picture News for May 20 and 27 impresses upon us how this big weekly reflects the tremendous development of the cinema business in U. S. A. President Wm. A. Johnston and his big staff should be handed the highly-commended card for the way they handle the news and illustrative side of the movies. Our fraternal congratulations. The folks in the picture business in New Zealand would also get from Editor Johnston's pages some powder and shot to fire at Minister Russell and those who are urging him on to set up a board of censors.—Fielding Star, New Zealand.

"THE LOTTERY MAN" FROM UNITY SALES SECOND WEEK IN SEPTEMBER

The Unity Sales Corporation the second week in September will release "The Lottery Man," starring Thurlow Bergen and produced by the F. Ray Comstock Photo Play Company.

Thurlow Bergen in the leading character is a young college man and football hero who discovers that his mother has lost the family property, so that he must go to work.

He becomes a reporter, and induces the paper to start a lottery with himself as the prize, agreeing to marry the woman who holds the lucky number.

Then he falls in love with his chum's cousin, and repents the lottery plan, but it is too late. The girl, he and his chum all begin buying up papers in the hope that she may get the lucky number and straighten everything out.

The drawing is held in front of the City Hall, in the presence of an excited crowd of women. Picture the hero's dismay when a kitchen maid, and not his sweetheart, holds the lucky number. True love triumphs when the kitchen maid decides she would rather marry the butler and divide the prize money.

In addition to Mr. Bergen, Elie Esmond is featured as the attractive sweetheart.

HAYAKAWA IN JAPANESE SUBJECT ON AUGUST 24

Having recently created a personal success in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Cheat," in support of Fannie Ward, and in the stellar role of "Alien Souls," Sessue Hayakawa, the noted Japanese actor, will be seen in "The Honorable Friend" on August 24 on the Paramount program. It is a photodrama written especially for him by Elizabeth McGaffey and prepared for the screen by Eva Unsell.

In "The Honorable Friend," Hayakawa is seen as a young Japanese gardener working for a wealthy and unscrupulous Japanese curio dealer. The old man is desirous of a bride and sends Hayakawa's picture, as his own, to Japan and Hayakawa is sent to the dock to marry the Japanese girl, having been told that she is to be his own wife. When he brings her before the wealthy old curio dealer, his ideals are shattered as he is informed that she is to be taken away from him. How affairs are finally adjusted and the dishonorable curio dealer receives his just deserts, and the two lovers are reunited is presented in dramatic manner.

GREIVER ADDS EIGHT SOLICITORS

Simeon B. Greiver, who is directing both the Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions and the General Feature Film Company, Chicago, has perfected his sales organization by the acquisition of eight film solicitors.

The roster includes Carl Harthill, who has had considerable experience with both the Standard and Union Film Companies of Chicago, James Selter, Wm. Weinschaker, John Balaban and Harry Charness. Each man has been allotted an individual territory.

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"THE UNATTAINABLE"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

ALTHOUGH this picture is well and carefully produced, with a wealth of beautiful locations and photography, there is nothing to mark it as anything out of the usual in the way of photoplay offerings. There are a number of important points which do not ring true. This is largely due to a story which has been handled in about every possible form already, but which has proved popular with many audiences, especially well west of the Hudson River; consequently it should have a good working value to the box office.

The story begins in the traditional New York cabaret and theatrical life. Bessie Gale, a prima-donna, is known as "The

The Two Men Confront Each Other

Unattainable," but Robert Morton, a wealthy young idler, vows to possess her. He fails; Bessie goes west with her company. She is left by her train at Peace Valley in the Sierras, and there meets and falls in love with Robert Goodman, a shepherd. They are married and live happily in his cottage, with his mother.

Robert invents a formula for curing a plague among the sheep; a New York firm offers him a lot of money for it, but as he cannot go east at the time, Bessie goes. She gets the money, and also meets a former theatrical manager, who makes tempting offers for her return to the stage. Morton finds her, and renews his pursuit.

From her letters, Goodman fears she is drfting away from him, and he comes east after her. He finds her a guest at one of Morton's disreputable parties, and he attacks Morton. Morton shoots him, and he is taken to the hospital in a critical condition.

Repentant, Morton hurries to the hospital the next morning, and offers his blood in a transfusion operation to save Robert. His blood is found to be impure, and his offer is rejected. Bessie then comes to the front, and offers blood from her arteries. This saves Robert's life, and the two go back to Peace Valley and happiness.

Dorothy Davenport, Mattie Witting, Emory Johnson, Richard Morris and Alfred Allen head a generally capable cast. The picture was directed by Lloyd B. Carleton, and the scenario was written by Eugene B. Lewis from a story by Elwood D. Hemming.

"THE THOROUGHBRED"

(Ince-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

"STERLING," handy little adjective that it is, almost takes on a new meaning when applied to such an actor as Frank Keenan. Finished he is in every movement of face or body. and with excellent "screen qualities," if that term means what we think it does. With him there is no doubt as to the point to be registered, or as to whether he has registered it. His situations "get across" with no apparent effort, and at all times he is welcome in the picture.

He has a good part in a good vehicle in this subject. He is Major Ainslee, one of the good old Southern gentlemen of fiction, and, of course, he lives among his horses—especially Miss Minta, the pride of the county.

Things have been going bad with the major, but he looks to Miss Minta to win a big purse at the coming races, and put him, and his charming daughter, Betty, on their feet.

But then comes the new minister, young Thomas Hayden, who both falls in love with Betty, and puts his energies to work in geting through a law which will end horse-racing in the State. The law passes, and Major Ainslee is on the verge of ruin.

Betty, of course, sides with her father, and, although she is interested in the young minister, she refuses to speak to him. The race is to be run in an adjoining State, but Major Ainslee cannot raise the $1,000 necesasry to transport and enter Miss Minta. The young preacher, repenting somewhat of his zeal offers to supply the money, but the major refuses to accept it from an enemy.

The preacher then hunts up a friend of the major's, gives him the money, with instructions to pass it along anonymously. Miss Minta goes to the races, and, to the joy of the whole county, she wins the big purse, and puts the major on his feet.

There is a big reception, to which the town turns out, on their return. Then Ainslee learns for the first time who financed the race. He grips the young minister's hand, and says: "If I've got anything you want, name it." The preacher names Betty.

Mr. Keenan has unusually capable support. There are Margaret Thompson, George Fisher, J. J. Dowling, and Walter Perry in the cast. The story was written by C. Gardner Sullivan, and directed, almost flawlessly, by Reginald Baker.

"A WELSH SINGER"

(Mutual Masterpiece—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

THE third of the Mutual-Turner Masterpieces was reviewed by us some little while ago at a private showing. This film was projected for the press again this week, and our first impressions have, if anything, been enhanced; we have nothing to add or retract and we can with every confidence recommend it.

Here is an English photoplay of certain and ready appeal to American audiences. It is as wholesome as the Welsh countryside, which forms its early locale; and the simplicity of Allen Raine's story, comprehending gentle humor, pathos and lifelike characterization, ought to be a relief to the picturegoer.

Through it moves Florence Turner as Mifanwy, a Welsh girl whose experience leads her from the life of a shepherdess to that of a circus trouper, and finally into fame as a London opera singer. Miss Turner's screen ability is already celebrated far and wide, but never has her appealing, almost pathetic charm been accorded a better vehicle of expression.

She is seconded by a cast whose acting is of pleasing finish. Henry Edwards, who produced the picture, is the male lead, in the role of Ieuan, Mifanwy's foster brother, who after forgetting the little shepherdess in the heyday of his fame as a sculptor, becomes one of the audience at her premiere.

Unaware of her identity he falls in love with her. Not until she has hurried back to Wales from London, resumed her shepherdess' dress, and greeted him there, does he realize who she is.

Such non-recognition would spoil the effect of many pictures. But so naturally is it done here that the spectator grants it indulgence first, and ends by wondering how he could have thought it improbable at all.

For variety of sets there are English hills and dales, a circus, a London concert audience, several rich interiors and a theatre fire. This last is a fairly well worked piece of realism, though not so elaborate as similar scenes in some American productions.

Typical of the excellent photography is a view of a path in a forest, half veiled by deep shadows under luxuriant trees; and the final scenes, across a valley, showing Ieuan and Mifanwy, her hair flying in the wind, silhoutted against the evening sky.

Others in the cast are Dorothy Rowan, Percy Manton, Elaine Sleddall, Uva Venning, Amy Lorraine, Ruth Mackay and Campbell Guillan.

"THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY"

(Consolidated—Sixteen-Episode Serial)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

EVERYTHING that the stereotyped form of smashing serial needs—thrills, love, adventure, daring, crime, mystery—are supplied in liberal fashion in the two opening episodes of this new serial. It is cleverly calculated with both eyes on the box-office, and unusual inducements have been provided to bring audiences back the second, third and many more times.

In addition to these elements, an unusual attraction has been provided in Maurice Costello, the first real star and favorite of filmdom, who has been absent from the screen for many months. He returns in the same form as in the old days, and there should be a shout of joy and welcome from his thousands of admirers.

For support he has Ethel Grandin, somewhat negative, but a pleasing figure Thomas J. McGrane, Eugene Strong, Olga Olonova (who captures 92 per cent. of the total beauty awards for the cast), William H. Cavanaugh, John Milton, N. J. Thompson, and our old friend, the Mysterious Character, who is represented in the cast by the familiar "? ? ? ?" and whom we hope to meet and know face to face, sometime.

The Mysterious Character is known as "The Crimson Stain," by a red glint in his eyes. He is the head of a band of desperate criminals, made so by a drug discovered by Dr. Montrose; the Doctor expected this drug would elevate the mental and moral plane of the human race, but instead, to the doctor's great remorse, it has only bred a band of dangerous criminals.

Costello plays the part of Harold Stanley, a reporter on his father's paper. He witnesses one of the murders, and leaps into the room through a window, but is too late to save the victim; he sees the glint of the murderer's eye, and knows him for the "Crimson Stain."

Stanley's father begins an attack on the police for their failure to run down the criminals, and soon after, the elder Stanley is murdered while a guest of Dr. Montrose.

The Vampire Begins Her Subtle Work

Ethel Grandin plays Florence Montrose, the doctor's daughter, with whom Harold Stanley is in love. Olga Olonova is Vanya Tosca, a "vampire" and member of the criminal band.

The second episode closes with Harold Stanley taking up the conduct of the newspaper in his late father's place, and setting himself to rout out and bring to justice the criminals. The identity of the "Crimson Stain" is left shrouded in mystery.

CAMERAMAN MILLER ON TWO MONTHS' TRIP IN ROCKIES

VICTOR MILLER of the Cinema Camera Club has left New York City for a two months' trip through the Rocky Mountains to film a series of scenics. Mr. Miller's pictures will be looked for with considerable interest, for it was he who secured scenes of the United States Navy for William H. Kemble's picture, "America Preparing." The panoramas of Pensacola, the scenes at Annapolis and those at West Point were among the best samples of his work in this picture.

"PUBLIC OPINION"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

THIS picture has a purpose an an idea behind its story. It deals with the force and power of public opinion to override justice and wreck the lives of the innocent; it is directed against gossip and yellow journalism, and shows how these are often brought to bear to stir up public hatred where the law has acquitted.

The story was written by Margaret Turnbull, and forms an excellent vehicle for Blanche Sweet and a strong supporting company, which includes Ernest Joy, Tom Forman, Elliott Dexter, Edythe Chapman, Earle Foxe, and Raymond Hatton.

Hazel Gray, a young nurse, is turned out of her boarding house because of the rumors of an affair she had in another town with a married man. Although no blame is attached to her, the weight of the gossip is too strong. She has met and fallen in love with Phillip Carson, whose mother is a wealthy charity-worker. Mrs. Carson falls seriously ill, and Phillip gets Hazel to act as nurse. In Dr. Carson she recognizes the man with whom she had the "affair," but he forces her to secrecy on the threat of ruining her reputation.

After the Trial

Dr. Carson is systematically poisoning his wife; she dies, and the blame falls on Hazel. A motive is found by going back and resurrecting the stories about her and Dr. Carson, and the yellow press condemns her before she comes to trial. Dr. Carson himself goes on the stand, and gives the impression that Hazel was in love with him, and killed his wife to have her out of the way. Even Phillip turns against her.

She is saved because one of the jurors, Gordon Graham, a wealthy young idler, refuses to believe her guilty, and succeeds in sowing doubt in the minds of the other jurors, who were for a quick conviction. The girl goes free, but is condemned by press and public.

Graham takes her to an old friend of his, and there she makes her home, while devoting her time to clearing her name. She succeeds in this, when a drug-victim, to whom Dr. Carson had been supplying cocaine, accuses the physician of being the murderer, and threatens to expose him. Carson grapples with the man, but the latter gets a pistol and shoots Carson, who, as he is dying, confesses the murder.

"THE GIRL FROM 'FRISCO"

(Episode Four—Kalem—Two Reels)
REVIEWED BY H. S. FULD

IN "Tigers Unchained," the fourth of "The Girl from 'Frisco" series, the story takes a new trend. From the first three episodes one was led to suppose that the main theme of the series was that Marin Sais in the role of Barbara Brent, daughter of Ace Brent, capitalist, ranch owner, oil magnate, and so on, should show her congressman-lover, John Wallace, that a woman could do a man's work "as well as any man."

Instead, in this episode we have as lurid a melodrama as one could wish, with True Boardman as the congressman-lover doing the rescue stunt in true hero style. Ronald Bradbury, as "Red Shirt" Gordon, "the villain who pursued her," certainly makes as villainous looking and acting a villain as any ten-twenty-thirty heavy that stamped the boards.

A gang of convicts under the leadership of "Red Shirt" breaks from prison, and, in effecting their escape, steal a locomotive, rob outlaying houses, and kidnap Barbara to hold for ransom.

The Fishing Trip Is Planned

Wallace, in his capacity of captain of a troop of horse, is detailed with his men to capture the gang. He comes upon Ace Brent, who has fallen asleep while fishing on the banks of a stream, and learns of the disappearance of Barbara who had been fishing close by up to the time he fell asleep.

While in the forced company of the gang Barbara makes friends with one of them, and he having his better nature aroused by the trusting girl is the means of helping her to escape, while he, poor Ben Stokes, pays the penalty with his life.

In showing the true character of Benny Stokes, the producers have shown the way how not-to-pad that other producers would do well to pattern after. In showing why Stokes was sent to prison for "killing his man" probably only one-tenth of the number of feet taken to film the story are used. The editing is so well done that only the absolutely essential and vital parts are shown. Just the trusting girl, and the city villain, the tryst, the elopement, the desertion, and Ben's shooting of the betrayer of his sister are shown. All this in about one hundred feet where we have seen other pictures takes one thousand and not tell it as well.

Gordon has come upon the two while Ben is telling his story, and in the struggle Ben is killed, but dying manages to crawl to where his revolver has fallen, and with a last effort shoot and kill Gordon just as the troops under the leadership of Wallace arrive.

There is no idle moment throughout the two reels, and the same good photography and acting that marked the forerunners of the series are present in this. The interest is holding well, and argues well for the success of the series.

"PARAMOUNT SHORT SUBJECTS"

(Paramount—One Reel Each)
REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

THE Pictographs this week give us an interesting article on sword-fishing. The new "sport of kings" is illustrated by striking views of a harpoonist at work on the bowsprit of an especially constructed craft, of battles with the big fish, and of hauling them aboard after they have been subdued. The largest sword fish captured this season is shown, and the method of handling them well illustrated. There is also an article on "Yachting in the Park" showing the handling of miniature yachts in two feet of water in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, and another on "Following the Bee Line," a study of the pursuit of wild bees by the southern mountaineers. The usual article on "Better Babies" completes it.

Burton Holmes in his "Travelogue" takes us through the Austrian Alps. Starting at the charming city of Salzburg, we are taken through scenes of wild picturesqueness.

Virginia Pearson Returns to a Semi-Vampire Role in This Latest Release from the William Fox Studios, "Daredevil Kate," in Which She Appears as the Autocratic Owner of a Frontier Town Cafe

"DAREDEVIL KATE"

(Fox—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY E. DRAW

VIRGINIA PEARSON in her latest Fox production introduces to the screen a new and unique character of the vampire type with a Western background. She is both heroine and villainess with a woman's courage and fearlessness intermingled with a kindness of heart and a nature which at the root has not a spark of evil.

In her portrayal of Kate, Miss Pearson is and is not a vampire; her characterization has not the taint of that mystical creature which feeds upon the blood of her victims. Kate is a bad woman, though at one time she relents, but quickly relapses and is worse than before. Finally the true woman asserts herself and one then sees the largeness of her heart. The portrayal of Kate by Miss Pearson is wonderful and quite the best work of her career.

There is a splendid touch of nature infused into the whole production by Keanan Buels, the director, and the situations are cleverly worked out. The scene of the explosion is most realistic. Special mention must be made of Katherine and Jane Lee whose intelligence and savoir faire before the camera are wonderful. They alone are worth seeing.

This picture should be very well received by any audience and it would be well for exhibitors advertising the production to make a special feature of the Lee Kiddies. Katherine is probably the cleverest child screen actress in the world.

Cliff Stone arrives from the East to take over the management of a Western mine and is accompanied by his adopted sister Irene and her husband, John West. Kate soon becomes friendly with the new arrivals, particularly with Cliff, whom she learns to love. Irene interferes with the romance and thereby loses Kate's friendship. In her anger Kate decides to help the miners, who are running riot, and if possible separate Irene and her husband. Just as Kate is about to expose John West to the owners of the mine, a strange discovery is made. Irene is found to be Kate's own sister. At this discovery Kate turns the tables on the miners. As time goes on Kate and Clifford are again united.

The acting in this production is exceptional throughout, while Victor Sunderland, who plays opposite Miss Pearson, is very convincing. Mary Martin, Kenneth Hunter, Alex Shannon, Leighton Stark, Fred. R. Stanton and Mina Phillips comprise a most capable support.

"LIBERTY"

(Universal Special Feature—Second Episode)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE main features of "Riding with Death," the second instalment of "Liberty" are a long fight between Mexicans and Americans, and a dare-devil ride taken by Liberty to reach the town of Discovery in time to warn the garrison of an impending attack by insurrectos. No further developments are attained in the plot itself, save for the fact that each of the principal characters becomes more firmly planted in the spectator's mind.

The battle is waged over a small area, through which runs a brook in a rocky bed. Realism is introduced by way of the spectacle of the bullets splashing in the water all about the contenders. These battle scenes will, of course, awake a thrill in the patriotic breast, although it must be confcssed they have been drawn out to quite a length. Shortening them would have the effect of reinforcing the suspense they already create.

Liberty (Marie Walcamp) overhears the insurrectos plotting to attack the town of Discovery on the border, and she rides with all her might and main to warn the small army post in the town. Toward the end of her journey she is shot by a spy and she completes it hanging head down from the saddle.

As the horse draws to a halt near the outpost of the camp the episode closes, again leaving the heroine in such a precarious position that out of sheer curiosity the people will be coming back for the third episode.

The same cast appears, including a large number of supernumeraries, who continue to do fearless work.

"OUT OF THE MIST"

(Selig—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2D

THE strong momcnts of this picture do not get over as effectively as they should. Perhaps this is because the spectator is taken along familiar channels so long that later unexpected veerings leave him unexcited. The force of the punches is weakened by the strained coincidences used to create them.

The Hand of Fate

Inasmuch as the public seems perennially interested in stories of studio life and in melodramatic situations, this release will no doubt be well received in some houses.

The cast is uniformly good, including in it Fritzie Brunette, William Scott, Guy Oliver, Gertrude Oakman, and Frank Clark. Lillian Hayward is especially good in a character part. The photography and settings are fair.

Louise Dillon loses her position as stenographer and becomes a painters' model. Marchand, an aged roue, showers her with attentions. Ali, the painter for whom Louise is posing, brings in a decrepit beggar woman to sit for a character study.

Later Marchand finds Louise alone and attacks her. The old woman comes into the room, and tells him that she is his wife, and that Louise is their child. Staggered by this revelation, Marchand staggers out of the room, and is shot by a jealous woman. Louise and her fiance make a home for the broken mother.

"HUSBAND AND WIFE"

(Peerless-World—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

ALTHOUGH the plot is somewhat complicated it justifies itself by the provision of a number of dramatic scenes and situations, which hold the play and its interest well together. They also furnish excellent opportunity for the finished work of Holbrook Blinn and Ethel Clayton, both of whom are seldom seen to better advantage than they are in this subject.

Business, speculation and social ambition furnish the themes. They become almost hopelessly involved before the final scenes. Holbrook Blinn plays the part of Richard Baker, the bank cashier, and Ethel Clayton that of Doris, his extravagant wife.

The demands upon Dick have led him into speculation, and he has "borrowed" some of the bank's funds to cover his margins. Associated with him in the speculations is Schmidt, one of the bank's directors, who is a social climber, and joins Dick in the deals under agreement that Doris is to receive Schmidt's wife socially.

Pat Alliston, a young millionaire, is in love with Doris. While he is calling on her, on an afternoon, she refuses to see Mrs. Schmidt, and the latter, furious, goes to her husband, who withdraws from Dick's deal, and Dick is unable to put it through. He finds himself in serious difficulties.

Schmidt, suspicious that Dick's accounts are not all right, sets detectives to watch him. The detectives find that Dick and Doris have had a misunderstanding and that Doris is starting on a trip to the Orient with her little daughter, Bessie, a friend, Mrs. Prescott, and Alliston; Schmidt, thinking Dick means to accompany them, has the party stopped at the station, and Alliston is detained, under the impression that he is Dick.

The Reconciliation

Dick attempts suicide, but is prevented, and when Doris learns the true state of affairs, she throws herself into her husband's arms. Schmidt has the bank examiner go over Dick's books, but they fail to find anything wrong. Schmidt leaves in a rage of disappointment, and the bank examiner takes a hand in putting Dick back on his feet again.

Montague Love, Madge Evans, Emmett Corrigan, Dion Titheradge and Gerda Holmes all do excellent work in the supporting cast. The picture was directed by Barry O'Neill.

"FOOTLIGHTS OF FATE"

(Vitagraph-V-L-S-E—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

"FOOTLIGHTS of Fate," by Louis Joseph Vance, author of many "best sellers," picturizes in a sympathetic vein the hardships of a conscientious and ambitious girl struggling against great odds. Joan Thursday is made convincing by Naomi Childers. On the other hand, some of the people in the picture act out of character. Anthony Thursday, the drunken reprobate father, unexpectedly develops a streak of lofty morality in the scene where he orders his daughter from the house on her announced intention of going on the stage. Nothing in his previous life warranted any such stand. The old man, instead of having been brought up in a stifling atmosphere of religious intoleration, was so liberal in his views that he thought nothing of wasting the family funds in gambling and on drink.

His "high principles" prompted him to flee from the sight of work as he would from the plague, and he saw no reason why he, a strong and vigorous man, should not be supported the rest of his days out of the slender wages of his son and daughter. He is furious on learning that Joan is discharged from her place in a department store—even when it becomes known that she was compelled to leave for refusing to accept the questionable advances of the floorwalker. Her decision to better herself through a stage career, offering so much to a girl with her talent, is too much for the inebriated moralist, who leaves his bottle and racing chart long enough to denounce his unfeeling child. This inconsistency in characterization seems to be the fault of the scenario and cannot be charged to William Shea, who played this scene with fiery energy.

The other defective scene in an otherwise uniformly developed picture narrative, occurs in the theatrical boarding house, and the fault (mentioned with recognition of the acting ability displayed on so many occasions by Marc MacDermott in other pictures and elsewhere in this one) is due to the actor. In this scene, John Matthais, the rising playwright, offers the moneyless and shelterless Joan, a lodging for the night in his room, with a sustained Mephistophelian scrutiny, disconcerting to his timid guest and out of keeping with his intention of leaving her in undisturbed possession of his quarters. Matthias's subsequent actions indicate unmistakable respect for innocence and beauty in distress. All other interviews between Matthias and Joan show the young playwright to be "a good boy." So why the leer?

These two instances of departure from careful picture-making fortunately hold the screen for only a short time, and are so incidental that one can sit through the rest of "Footlights of Fate" in a complete thralldom of enjoyment.

While Joan is seeking an opportunity on the stage, Matthias, before he learns to appreciate Joan's noble qualities, is very much in love with Venetia Tankerville. For a long time, he hesitates to propose to the heiress, but finally musters up enough courage to tell of his love. Venetia Tankerville is pleased with his declaration, but being a spoiled, fickle young person, she presently changes her queenly mind and elopes with Marbridge, a sort of advanced connoisseur in the art of deviltry, who sees no reason why marriage should interfere with his maintaining in a state of idleness, Nella, a frail beauty, who, with a quick comprehension of things histrionic, is slow to believe that she should pay any attention to the Seventh Commandment.

On the return from the elopement, Marbridge, who is backing a theatrical enterprise, meets Joan, and struck by her beauty, forgets the romantic wife at home. Through his influence, Joan is given an important part in a new play. Nella, enraged by his lessening affection for her, shoots Marbridge. By this time Matthias realizes his heart has been in the keeping of Joan without his knowing it, and later they take the step that ends the majority of dramas.

MOSS PLANS TO RENOVATE HIS THEATRES

B. S. MOSS is about to renovate and make some minor changes in his chain of theatres. Menger & Ring, 304 West Forty-second street, New York, have been given the contract to install all the houses with a new line of lobby display frames which were especially designed to meet the requirements of each house. Among other houses that are making changes are the Sumner theatre on Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, and the Bayridge theatre, Seventy-second street, Bayridge, Brooklyn. Both of these houses are also being equipped with Menger & Ring frames.

"LITTLE LADY EILEEN"

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

DIRECTOR J. Searle Dawley has made a novel and interesting picture of "Little Lady Eileen," and Marguerite Clark scores another triumph in the role of an imaginative Irish girl who believes in fairies as much as she believes in the existence of any member of the household. This phase of her character has enabled the director and cameraman to fill the play with many delightful scenes showing the little people of fairy land at their sprightly gambols.

The Little Lady Eileen cannot take the shortest walk in the woods and fields without seeing at every dell and dingle people with all the diminutive persons she has learned of from the local legends. One of her companions is a cobbler-poet, who has gathered all the lore of the surrounding country and preserved the doings of the fairies in simple verse with the touching faith of a true believer.

Lady Eileen and the Poet-Cobbler

One of the things he tells her is that by looking into a certain well and repeating a magic formula she will see the face of her future husband. As she looks into the calm waters the man, who does finally take her to the altar, happens by accident in that part of the wood. On seeing a beautiful girl, sylph-like in form and an air of dainty grace enveloping every movement, he becomes interested at once. In a spirit of harmless mischief he tiptoes to the well and looks over her shoulder. Here is convincing proof to her of the prediction made by the cobbler-poet.

But little Eileen does not marry the young man just the way she expected—his twin brother who takes advantage of their resemblance, tricks the fair girl into marriage from the cold-blooded motive of fortune hunting. But his success is short-lived. The fairies, watching over the destiny of their beautiful little protege, begin to work a spell over the horse he is riding to overtake the fleeing bride, and throw the animal. The unscrupulous bridegroom is dashed to the ground and receives fatal injuries, leaving the way open for the marriage of the lovers. So Eileen's belief in fairies comes to her rescue, after all.

In the cast with Miss Clark are: Vernon Steel, who plays both brothers; John L. Shine as Eileen's father; J. K. Murray as Father Kearney, a "hit."; Harry Lee as the traveling cobbler, a satisfactory piece of character work; Maggie Halloway Fisher as Lady Gower, the practical aunt out of patience with her niece's superstitious beliefs; and Russell Bassett as an innkeeper.

"THE FAUCET," A PROHIBITION PLAY, IS TURNED ON BY SUPERIOR IN LOS ANGELES

"THE Faucet," was turned on at the Los Angeles studio of the Superior Films Company, Monday evening, when a pre-view of the prohibition picture of that name, made by the company for Robert Sorver, was shown to a gathering of temperance workers and those who participated in the making of the six-reel subject which will be used in the campaign to make California dry this year and to extend prohibition to other states.

The film preaches a sermon for temperance more forcibly than possible by the printed or spoken word and like most photoplays of this type is not pleasant throughout. It depicts the ruination of every member of the cast as they come within the grasp of the "demon rum." The daughter of the rich falls prey to the gay night life and finally takes her life while an inmate of a house of ill fame. Her former sweetheart, to avenge her downfall, becomes a murderer and is sentenced for life. The butler is induced to invest his savings while in an intoxicated condition, and the loss carries him to the poor house and his wife to the insane asylum. The tempter of the girl who swindled the butler dies of the assassin's bullet.

The story for the photoplay was created by Mr. Sorver, and the scenario was prepared by William E. Wing, who is responsible for the direction. For a story of this type it holds the interest well throughout. It has a good love interest and is logical in every particular, despite the four or five tragic ends to which the principals are led. The cast includes Virginia Kirtley as the daughter of the rich; Barney Fury, her sweetheart; Charles Wheelock, the heavy; Herbert Sutch, the butler; Josephine Dillon, his wife; Isabelle Lockerby and Jake Frazier, character leads, and Edna May Cooper, second ingenue. All have aided in making the production a success from a dramatic standpoint by sincere portrayals of their respective parts. That taken by Miss Kirtley contains a number of very emotional scenes which are well acted.

INCE ANNUAL MIDSUMMER PICNIC IS HELD

Los Angeles, Aug. 19.

THE annual midsummer picnic given by Business Manager E. H. Allen to directors, stars and other leading people of the Ince Triangle producing organization was held last week. The picnic this year was as big an event in the lives of those who participated as in previous years. Topanga Canyon, west of Inceville, and the beach nearby, were the scene of much merriment, and as the result Mr. Allen has been named "king," meaning knig of hosts. The picnicers drove to the canyon in a hundred thousand dollar array of automobiles, where they hiked, hunted and fished until time for the spread. It was unanimously decided to make it a gorge.

In the afternoon there were more strenuous activities including races, diving and swimming contests, and the fair femincs initiated the others into a new mystic order. The guests were Dorothy Dalton, Louis Glaum, Enid Markey, Margaret Thompson, Clara Williams, Margery Wilson, Reginald Barker, Walter Edwards, George Fisher, Charles Giblyn, Jack Gilbert, William S. Hart, Robert McKim, Charles Miller, Charles Ray, J. Barney Sherry, Jerome Storm, Authors Monte M. Katterjohn and Lanier Bartlett, Superintendent of Production Dave Hartford, Mrs. Hartford, Business Manager E. H. Allen, Chief of the Art Department Irvin Willat, Cameramen DeVinna, Betz and Publicity Manager Kenneth O'Hara.

MARY PICKFORD BREAKS RECORDS BOSTON THEATRE

PARAMOUNT theatres all over the country have been breaking their attendance records with "Hulda from Holland," a Paramount picture produced by Famous Players, which presented Mary Pickford for the first time in three months, her last previous appearance on the screen having been in "The Eternal Grind."

So successful has been the presentation of this picture that for the first time in the history of the Gordon's Washington Street Olympia theatre in Boston, the production was held over for a second week. The first week the theatre broke all of its former attendance records, and not as an experiment but because thousands of people were turned away, the management cancelled their feature for the second week and re-booked "Hulda from Holland." On the opening day of the second week the theatre was packed to the doors, before noon. The seating capacity is over 2,500.

A float representing a scene from a Dutch village, with a girl made up as Miss Pickford in the character of Hulda and the three little Dutch kids, was drawn through the streets of Boston, and so clever was the idea that not only did the people talk about it, but it was given widespread publicity in all the newspapers.

AUTO MAKER FORD SEES "CIVILIZATION" IN DETROIT

"CIVILIZATION" had a private screening recently at the Washington theatre, Detroit, for Henry Ford and his private secretary. The film was put on with a full orchestra, and soloist, and with all the effects that go with it. Arrangements for the private screening were made by Thomas W. Ince, the producer, who also came to Detroit for the event.

Mr. Ince, the orchestra, soloists and operators, came here direct from Chicago, where the film is now running. After Mr. Ford had seen the film, he was asked what he thought of it, but "Hank" refused to make the least comment other than saying that he enjoyed the film and extended his thanks to Mr. Ince and his assistants, who left on the afternoon train for the return trip to Chicago.

PRODUCTIONS FROM ALL PROGRAMS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"His Stolen Fortune." (Essanay. Two reels. Re-Issue. Tues., Aug. 29.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: Frank Wentworth is left a vast fortune by his uncle. After enjoying it for six months, and getting himself engaged to a society girl, he finds a letter from his uncle, confessing the fortune was stolen from a Pole named Illuski. Frank's honesty prompts him to advertise for the heir, and hundreds of Illuskis appear. His experience in seeking the rightful owner wears him out after twenty-four hours; then his attorney informs him that the letter was merely a ruse to test his honesty and that he is the righful owner. Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne take the leads.

"Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of Washington." (Essanay. Split reel. Wed., Aug. 30.)—These animated drawings of the Capitol's buildings and points of interest, share the reel with 500 feet of scenic.

"The Higher Destiny." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., Sept. 2.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: A physician advises Helen Blair to seek a different climate. She goes to Standing, the employer of her daughter's sweetheart, to ask for the necessary funds. She finds out that he is a former suitor, but he savagely declines to lend her the money. His son, John, gives her the money in order to put her daughter under obligations to him, so that he may marry her. The daughter's lover goes abroad for six weeks, and in the meantime John forges a letter telling her that her fiance has become a drunkard. In despair she marries John, but when her sweetheart returns she finds that she has been duped. John, in his remorse, drowns himself, and the former lovers are re-united. The cast is composed of Warda Howard, Sydney Ainsworth, Edward Arnold, Gertrude Glover and Patrick Calhoun.

"Out of the Mist." (Selig. Three reels. Mon., Aug. 28.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"Tom's Strategy." (Selig. Sat., Sept. 2.)—This is an excellent Western comedy, full of action from start to finish, and punctuated with several novel and effective thrills. Occasional blurred photography is the only fault. Tom Mix takes the lead, supported by Victoria Forde, Betty Keller and Howard Farrell. Tom Miller, a cowboy, is engaged to the ranch manager's daughter, Florence. Tom snatches a girl from in front of a runaway horse, and when she faints in his arms Florence sees the embrace and misunderstands it. Florence breaks the engagement, and Tom schemes to reinstate himself in her favor. He shoots a bear, and after tearing his shirt and covering himself with mud, lies down beside the bear and pretends to be dead. Florence sees him and her hauteur is changed to love. Her forgiveness is complete when the husband of the girl Tom rescued thanks him for his bravery.

"Ham in the Drug Store." (Kalem. Tues., Aug. 29.)—This is an average Ham comedy with Ethel Teare playing only a minor role. But even in the little she has to do she makes a good impression, her winning smile working overtime. Seeing a patent medicine faker draw a crowd by gazing up and pointing to the sky Ham and But go to a distant town to emulate him with only indifferent success. Seeing a sign in the window of a drug store telling "Two Soda Squirters Wanted Immediately" they apply and are accepted. By compounding concoctions detrimental to the health of a bad man they succeed in getting run out of town to the accompaniment of the usual slapstick comedy chases.

"Tangled by Telephone." (Kalem. Friday, Sept. 1.)—In this little comedy Ivy Close assisted by Arthur Albertson in the role of her dentist husband, gets over quite a likeable offering. A new telephone having been installed in their home Jack is repeatedly called up while he is working over a patient. Being compelled to listen to sweet nothings poured into his ear by his loving spouse is one way of losing a paying business, Jack learns very rapidly as one disgusted patient leaves after another. Jack in a fit of disgust and anger smashes the telephone and after a few comedy complications everything is straightened out. The acting is of the best and the cast supported by Henry Murdock turn out a good number.

"The Secret of the Box-Car." (Kalem. Sat., Sept. 2.)—Another of Helen Gibson's "How-Shall-I-Try-To-Get-Killed-Next" offerings in the "Hazards of Helen," in which the beholder is at a loss to know just when this young lady is going to quit scaring a body. By a running jump she gets aboard a fast moving freight, by another jump she reaches for and grasps the protruding hook from the mail car and thus gains a passing passenger train and at last engineers the capture of two bank robbers who were escaping with their loot aboard the freight. There is action in every foot of this one and the number is well up with the best offerings of the series.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"Jerry and the Counterfeiter's." (Cub. Fri., Aug. 18.)—A very amusing and interesting comedy and a little out of the usual run. Jerry is pursued by the police and escapes by boarding a moving freight train. He is observed by the brakeman who hands him over to a constable. Jerry's wit lures the cop into a cellar, whom he locks in and walks off. Daisy and Hank are spotted by Jerry out walking. Jerry cracks Hank on the head with a brick and speeds away over the fields, where he drops by accident into a den of counterfeiters. Jerry is regarded as a spy and gets a very rough reception. The cast includes George Ovey, Claire Alexander, George George and Gordon MacGregor.

"Perkins' Mystic Manor." (Beauty. Wed., Aug. 16.)—Pinkey suddently becomes rich and inherits a mansion. Unknown to him it is usurped by Princess Murad and Mogul. Perkins does not heed a warning which he receives and goes to the mansion to take possession. The Princess orders him to leave, and when he refuses she brings her vampire tactics into play. Mogul becomes jealous and securing a bomb places it beneath the seat upon which Perkins and the Princess are seated. Perkins discovers it and saves the Princess's life. The cast includes Orral Humphrey, Josephine Phillips, Joe Massey, Jo Taylor.

"Her Luckless Scheme." (Vogue. Sun., Aug. 20.)—This picture is an excellent comedy with a really good plot which is so rarely found in this class of film. Probably this is the best Vogue comedy yet released. The story concerns a reporter, Bryson, who is set to investigate the working conditions of a department store owned by a millionaire.

Pa Whitney, the proprietor, tries to prevent the exposure of his establishment and endeavors to buy the paper. Blanch his daughter, is greatly agitated fearing that her social position may be jeopardized. She resolves to enter her father's store as an assistant, thereby meeting Bryson as an employee the first day he is on the job. Bryson begins questioning her and whilst doing so a pickpocket slips a stolen watch into his pocket. Blanche observes the act and extracts it, placing it in a basket. Her pitiful story causes Bryson to fall in love with her. They arrange the wedding, but the reporter learns that she is securing another girl to take her place at the ceremony. Bryson also double crosses with a similar plan. The father learning how brilliant Bryson is, purchases the newspaper, whereupon Blanche and Bryson enter into a real romance of newspaper life. The cast includes Gypsy Abbott, Larry Bowes, Arthur Moon, Paddy McQuire.

"Ruth Ridley's Return." (American. Mon., Aug. 14.)—This is a very interesting story with an unexpected climax. It has been well produced with appropriate settings and excellent photography. This picture should be well received by any audience.

A young author is making desperate efforts to complete his first novel. His mother, with whom he lives, has just received a demand for rent. Seeking clemency she goes to the agent's office. As she enters she sees a large sum of money on Ruth Ridley's desk, and in desperation she seizes it and vanishes. Ruth is accused of the theft and sent to prison.

Meanwhile, the young author has completed his work which has proved a great success. He advertises for a stenographer, whereupon Ruth applies and is engaged. Ruth is astonished that so much of her life's tragedy is the basic theme of the young author's novel. The mother recognizes in Ruth the woman she had wronged. During their close association, Ruth and the author have become very much attached to one another. The mother confesses and seeks Ruth's forgiveness which is willingly given. The cast includes Lizette Thorne, George Field, Edward Coxen, Dixie Stuart.

"El Diablo." (Mustang. Fri., Aug. 18.)—A typical Western story. Similar stories have been produced many times before. However, this picture is very well produced and will please the majority.

Tom has just been made Sheriff, and his sister Tina, a fearless Western girl, who is an expert rifle shot, sets out for the mountains, hoping to bag El Diablo, the bandit. The two meet and Tina is wounded.

Tom missing his sister searches for her, meanwhile El Diablo tells Tina of his past life. Tina seeing her brother in the distance goes up to meet him and they return home having extracted a promise from El Diablo that he will not hurt Tom, who is Sheriff. Later the bandit enters Tina's mother's restaurant and is recognized by Tina, and a Mexican, who promptly goes for help. El Diablo, seeing a body of men approach rushes into the kitchen and in Tina's mother recognizes his wife. Tina quickly tells Tom the story and he puts the men on the

HAVE TO TRAIN UP PRICES

The exchange men in San Francisco are figuring what they can do to bring up prices to a proper standard in California cities. There has been price cutting in the past, and exhibitors have bought a lot of old stuff at cheap rates, until now, outside of the big theatres, it is difficult to get them to pay the regular price for the films. By regular price is meant at least the price that is paid for the same films by the exhibitors in the eastern and middle western states. It is a curious fact that manufacturers allow many of their films to be sold in the far western cities at a lower figure than in the east.

KEEPS EVERY NUMBER OF THE "NEWS"

Motion Picture News,
Gentlemen:—

As a word of praise for your valuable paper, permit us to say, that to us "running a picture show without it, would be like sailing the seas without a lighthouse, or running a ship without a rudder." We find it invaluable in many ways, and have carefully preserved every number for the past four years.

wrong trail. A shot is fired through the window and the bandit falls dead. The cast includes Jack Richardson, King Clark, Warren Ellsworth, Kitty Wells.

"Destiny's Boomerang." (Centaur. Sat., Aug. 19.)—This is a really excellent picture, well produced and directed, featuring William Clifford and Margaret Gibson. It has a good story with splendid continuity. The action is good and the situations are well handled. Any audience will enjoy this picture.

Margaret Lisle, a millionaires daughter, has accepted William Carlton's proposal of marriage. Her father objects, seeking to obtain a man with a title for his daughter. A few days later Carlton meets with an auto accident, running down a young foreigner. After being nursed back to health the young man's mind is a blank. Carlton seeking to ridicule the millionaire, introduces the foreigner as a Count. His plans are frustrated as Margaret falls in love with the young man, who is recognized by the German Consul General as Count Von Koenig. The father's ambitions are realized and the announcement of a wedding is shortly made. The cast includes Margaret Gibson, Frederick Montague, Victor Rottman and William Clifford.

PATHE EXCHANGE, INC

"The Grip of Evil." (Balboa. Two Reels. Sixth Episode.)—In this number the millionaire continues to search for an answer to the question "Is Humanity in the Grip of Evil?" A discontented brother and sister brought up on a farm receive his support when they come to the city—and both go wrong. The subject is produced averagely and maintains a good degree of suspense while the ending transforms a conventional story into an original one. Roland Bottomly and Jack Saunders have the principal parts again.

"Losing Weight." (Goldberg. Split Reel.)—An animated cartoon by R. L. Goldberg that contains little of the humor of his previous work for the screen. It depicts in rather crude detail the efforts of a fat woman to grow thin. On the same reel with "Nature's Tireless Energy."

"Nature's Tireless Energy." (Split Reel.)—This short subject which follows "Losing Weight" shows various scenes of waterfalls and swinging bridges in the west of the United States. Short and interesting.

"Tokio, Capital of Japan." (Split Reel).—A scenic showing views of interest in the Japanese capital. Well photographed and assembled.

"Jumping Analyzed." (Split Reel.)—More of Pathe's exceptionally interesting pictures of athletics taken with a rapid camera with slow results on the screen. Various jumps are shown, first as seen in natural life and then as caught by the special camera which decreases the speed of the jump so that each movement is plainly visible. On the same reel with "Tokio, Capital of Japan."

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"The Terrible Turk." (Nestor. Mon., Aug. 28.)—Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran again in a very good comedy which gives Lee a chance for some really funny character work as a Turk. The plot is sufficiently humorous, though containing nothing startlingly original. Louis Chaudet's direction lacks finish. Priscilla Dean and Fred Gamble are others.

"The Chance Market." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Tuesday, Aug. 29.)—Written, produced and doubly starred in by King Baggot, this picture presents an interesting story in good fashion. A society man kills his double, a crook, and then takes his place, after numerous experiences of a semi-humorous order winning the crook's girl. Irene Hunt and Frank Smith are others.

"A Lucky Leap." (Victor. Tues., Aug. 29.)—A comedy of only fair quality in which an old plot is utilized. A burglar steals a watch, that the wife had bought for her husband. He sells it to a man in love with the other couple's daughter and for returning it, he wins the girl. Harry Wulze wrote and Roy Clements produced. Ed. Sedgwick is among those in the cast.

"The Right Car But the Wrong Berth." (L-Ko. Two reels. Wed., Aug. 30.)—A sidesplitting comedy in which risque situations have been made to appear wholly humorous by the nature of the original tricks and gags introduced by the director. Much of the action takes place on a sleeping car where the fun is fast and furious. Inasmuch as every one of the gags sprung by the director is uproarious the padding in the first reel is quite counterbalanced, although if the editor wielded his shears ever so little, "The Right Car But the Wrong Berth" would be one of the best rough and tumble affairs ever put on the screen.

"The Desert Rat." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., Sept. 2.)—This film was purchased from Romaine Fielding, and is typical of that director's work. The production is very good—there has been a mirage bit effectively done. The story offered by Getrude Mason contains many old situations. The support offered Mr. Fielding, who carries the title role, is inadequate.

"The Folly of Desire." (Red Feather. Five reels. Week of Aug. 28.)—Reviewed at length in the issue of Aug. 19.

"He Becomes a Cop." (Universal Special Feature. Two reels. Week of Aug. 28.)—This, the third episode of the "Timothy Dobbs" series was reviewed at length in the issue of August 19, together with episodes one and two. It concerns Carter De Haven's adventures in a slapstick studio and offers very good comedy.

"Liberty." (Universal Special Feature. Two reels. Third Episode. Week of Aug. 28.)—The first reel of this number is taken up with the Mexican attack on the American town of Discovery. These battle scenes are exceptionally realistic and thrilling. In the second reel, the threads of the plot are picked up in a more or less sudden and unexplained fashion. The Mexican guardian presents the overdue notes issued by the Captain to him and asks that Liberty be persuaded to marry his son. The Captain rebels and the episode closes at another tense moment.

"The Heart of a Show Girl." (Universal Special Feature. Two reels. Week of Aug. 28.)—A newspaper critic who has "roasted" a young dancer's petulant temperament, meets her on his vacation and neither tell their real names until their romance has culminated in marriage. A good comedy-drama despite several bits of padding. Bess Meredyth wrote the story, while William Worthington directed a cast headed by Ella Hall and Franklyn Farnum.

V-L-S-E

Selig Athletic Feature Film Series No. 8. (Mon., Aug. 14.)—Demonstration of golf strokes by H. Arnold Jackson; Willie Ritchie, former light-weight champion boxes with Lew Steffens; Norman Rose and Olga Dorfmer, swimming champions, give exhibitions; Frank Gotch wrestles with Jim Essen.

MONTHLY INDEX OF REVIEWS

ISSUES OF JULY 8-JULY 29 (INCLUSIVE)

All pictures are listed both by titles and by brand names. In the index, C. stands for "Comedy"; Cart., for "Cartoon"; C-D., "Comedy-Drama"; D., "Drama"; Juv., "Juvenile"; Sc., "Scenic"; Top., "Topical." The figure before the abbreviation is the number of reels. The date is the date of the issue of Motion Picture News in which the review appeared. The second page number refers to the music chart for the picture

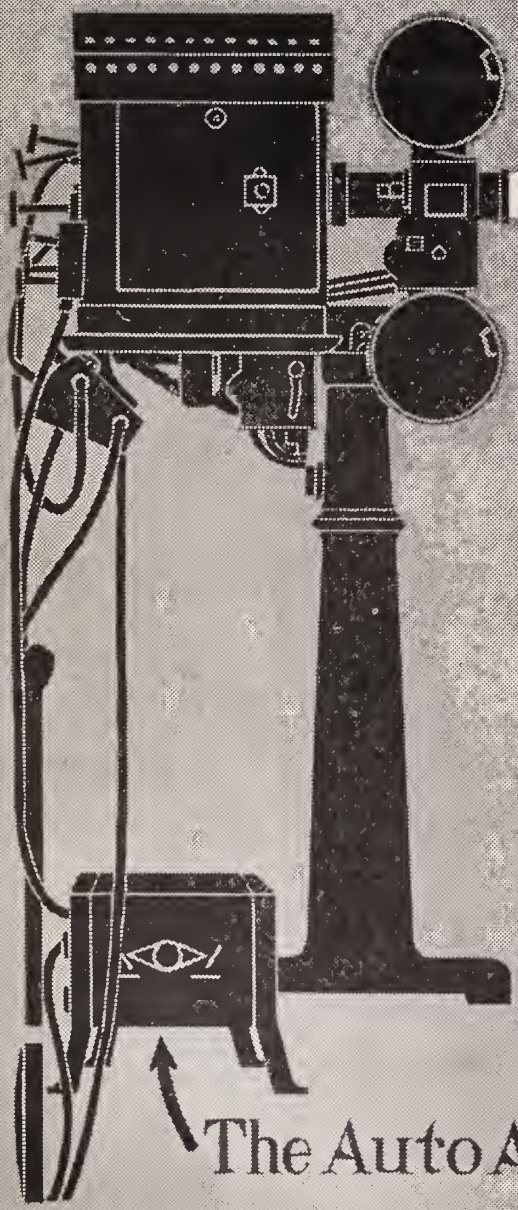
At Last!

Perfect Arc Control



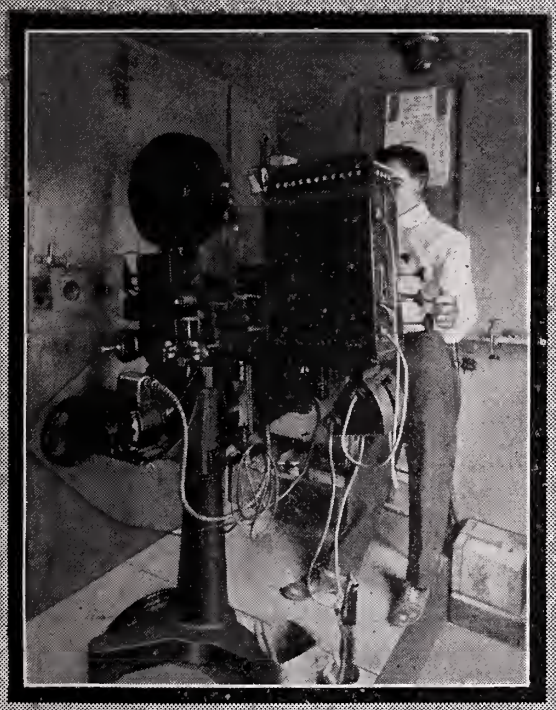
The Auto Arc

At last—Owners, Managers, Operators—your long-wished-for device for automatically maintaining a perfect, steady light at the Arc—a perfect control of the Arc—a perfect white light on the screen—perfect pictures that add to the reputation and profits of your house. It's the AUTO-ARC, which automatically and perfectly feeds and regulates the carbons at any amperage; eliminates hand feed; gives operator chance to attend to other necessary details in his booth. Approved by Board of Underwriters. Soon pays for itself in saving of current alone. Fits under any machine. Easily attached to any standard lamp. Fool proof. No costly wiring; no motors; no parts to replace or wear out; no switches; no oiling. Sent on 30 days' trial. Price $60.00 F. O. B. Chicago. Write today. You want the AUTO-ARC in your house.

AMERICAN AUTO-ARC CO.
INCORPORATED
37 W. Van Buren St. CHICAGO, ILL.

Note above what a compact little device the AUTO-ARC is. Then note in the illustrations to the left how snugly it fits under the lamp house out of the way.

Note below how the AUTO-ARC frees the operator and gives him a chance to properly look after his films, his machine, the screen, and other important details. Works perfectly without attention on his part.



This shows the operator's enslavement at the feed rod. No chance to do hardly anything else but keep his hands right on the rod. And, then, he can't keep a continuous, perfect white light on the screen. The AUTO-ARC frees him and maintains a perfect arc.

Treat Everybody Alike

To the Advertiser who wants concessions

If I don't give you what you want, I am in trouble with you—if I don't treat all alike I am in trouble with everybody, sooner or later.

The ———— is not a circus poster, and will not use unduly large type or put advertising helter skelter all over a page in space that legitimately belongs to the reader. A clean looking paper has much unsuspected pulling power as an advertising medium. The respect and confidence of its readers tend to make them readers of advertisements.

I sell nothing but a newspaper—no premium thrown in, and 180,000 people buy it daily —to read, there is no other inducement.

Here is food for thought—for it is just as applicable to MOTION PICTURE NEWS as it is to the newspaper. Every publisher is up against the same thing, at least until he comes out and gives his position in unmistakable language.

EVERY man wants all he can get and then some, but if that man can be shown how he can get it without opposition from the publisher he is, or should be, at once pleased and if he is wise will act accordingly.

The MOTION PICTURE NEWS wants all the NEWS every reader and manufacturer can send in but it must be worth while matter and not the average "bunk" that arrives in the office. I use the word manufacturer because sometimes the best and most instructive news material comes from people who do not advertise at all, or if they do, it is but seldom. Every man can be his own judge of news if he will put himself in the place of the reader and ask himself, "Would I, a theatre man, be interested in this?"

IN the case of the Accessory News Section, every manufacturer, making everything from film cement to the steel used in the construction of the house, has news of interest to the subscribers to the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. All of this data is actively sought by us providing it will teach the theatre man something new.

On the other hand, the same manufacturers who can write articles and prepare real news matter will, because they want to see their names in print, send in a lot of rubbish just because somewhere in it it contains a mention of their company—this we consign to the waste basket. Why? Because it is not NEWS—it does not contain anything instructional for our readers, who, it must be borne in mind, are theatre men and not the public.

THE value of any paper depends upon how much it is read by the people for whom it is published, which in turn is dependent upon its editorial strength—this makes it a valuable advertising medium or a worthless one.

In the case of a trade paper, the advertisements are as much news as the editorial matter for they are descriptive of articles which are necessary in one form or another for the running of some branch of the business. This is the way in which they should be considered by every reader for there is something of value for some one in each one.

THE other great value of any paper is its physical appearance. There is a certain definite space which belongs to the news section and another to the advertising.

This is generally acknowledged, yet there are some people who send in advertising and would like to have it placed right in the middle of a column of text and can't see why it is not possible to do so. This would make the book a hodge-podge—absolutely worthless to the reader, and being worthless to the reader, where would the advertiser score? He would be throwing away his money. It would make it just as worthless as a book full of newsless readers—publicity nonsense.

ANY real trade journal such as the NEWS, which has proved to be of sufficient strength to have as exclusive subscribers fifty per cent of the worth while people in the trade, cannot, therefore, afford to allow its columns to be filled with newsless notes nor can it allow its make-up to be anything but clean and well balanced.

As our newspaper publisher says: "A clean looking paper has much unsuspected pulling power as an advertising medium. The respect and confidence of its readers tend to make them readers of the advertisements."

THE good trade paper whose publishers use the proper care in accepting advertising can go even further than this—they can say that a clean looking paper, built editorially in the right way can guarantee that its readers will read the advertising, as it is as much news as the text itself.

What, therefore, are concessions to an advertiser? There are none. Every advertiser is hurting himself when he

Standardization

Address by Henry D. Hubbard, Secretary, U. S. National Bureau of Standards, Before the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, at Its Washington Meeting, Monday, July 24, 1916, Lays Stress on the Vital Needs for Standardizing Everything in the Industry

YOUR appreciation of standardization is evident since you give it first place on your program. Standardization is too big a theme to be lightly regarded, and its possibilities nave already aroused an enduring interest among engineers everywhere. For fifteen years your National Bureau of Standards has seen the rapid rise of this subject in so many lines that a list would be too long to read here. I may here touch only upon a few thoughts of appreciation of your work and the application of the theme to the motion picture field—a subject which stimulates our imagination and kindles our enthusiasm.

Standardization is a big word, almost as broad as civilization, for our manners and customs are merely accepted standards of conduct, our laws aim to standardize human relations, and daily life is governed by standards approved by common consent. Standardization is more than a passing fancy of efficiency experts. It thrives everywhere, otfen against efforts to prevent. Our daily life has its time schedule. Work and recreation are run by the clock, and if we would be efficient we must fit nicely into the standardized time schedules. Diet experts standardize the food requirement for proper growth, activity, and repair of our body. We may judge by comparison with normal body size and weight whether we need development, and from our respiration, heart beat, and temperature whether vitality is normal. These things are so standardized that they are the foundation of physical diagnosis.

Coinage, weights and measures, and time are standard. Business organization is being standardized. So, too, is transportation, manufacturing and machinery. The motion of the workers are being studied in order to standardize his movements along the lines of least effort. In this personal motion economy with its possibilities for human welfare the motion picture is the indispensable means of research.

Need of Standardization

Everywhere we feel the urge for standardization. It calls for normal regime, normal equipment, normal efficiency. Our clothing is standardized, and though no law prevents, we would not care, for example, to come here this morning without a necktie, for society enforces its standardization by social pressure stronger than law. Our every garment is standard in size and cut, and we must fit into the staple sizes or pay made-to-order prices. Our streets, houses and rooms are of standard types, as are our furniture, utensils, books, magazines and newspapers. Staple sizes, standard grades, set routine are all part of the big machine process into which human activity and equipment are being fitted, with happily increasing emphasis on the health, comfort and happiness of the individual. Each profession aims to standardize its training, its terminology, its equipment, its data, both numerical and descriptive, its code of ethics, and to fix standards of quality and performance—showing that standardization has a breadth commensurate with human activity.

A simple example of standardization is the orchestra. The instruments are of standard size and form, and when played together they must be standard as to performance, that is, tuned to a definite pitch, say 435 vibrations per second for Alto A. If the pitch is standard, instruments shipped to any part of the world will harmonize with local instruments tuned to standard pitch. Here standardization is simple—a single number and the unit of time.

Measurement is the heart and soul of standardization. The optician with his standards can adapt the measured curvature of the lens to correct the measured defect of the eye. In a structure measured strength must fit measured stress, as a glove fits the hand. We now measure not the size alone but the quality as well, for quality is as truly a test of fitness as size. Each property must be of right magnitude and the group of properties must be proportioned and combined to fit the uses to be served as the contour of a key is shaped to fit the recesses of the lock. For quality is not a vague intanglibe property. It consists of a group of definite properties, each having a distinctive magnitude. The combination fixes the specific qaulity and may be specified in terms of measurement. If each property in the material is given a numerical magnitude in terms of units of measure, we have set a standard for the material and are enabled to measure its quality. The pertinent properties are separately measureable and this gives us the means to control quality.

Must Be Built on Rock of Science

Standardization must be built upon the solid rock of science, for science is standardized knowledge. Noble examples of standardization are found in history, but only recently has it come into flower in a manner that it transforming our standards of progress. Standardization is not, however, a transitory stage to be passed through. Far from it. It is to be a continuous enterprise. Its function is nothing less than the conscious control of mechanical evolution. Chance has hitherto played such a role that a new era is reached when we unite to standardize progress. Standardization must imply progress. As long as progress is possible, standardization must imply progress. As long as progress is possible, standardization must be free to grow apace with science. If it means fixity we shall avoid it, for fixity in a progressing civilization is an anachronism. Steady progress through standardization is the true aim. Such standardization should unite two elements—the tendency to conserve progress and the pressure for new progress. These two tendencies do not conflict if we avoid the usual tendency to let the good become the enemy of the best. No value is lost if we keep the good only until comfort and good seeing—factors which affect the patronage. These are obvious examples, but they should be handled as scientific problems and not settled by personal opinion. Science alone can give the needed impersonal basis for such standards.

Your nomenclature is an important subject for standardization. New machines, new processes, new materials appear, to which new names are given, some of them apt and striking. They are real contributions to our language and should have standard definition. So, too, all the terms of the industry should be clearly named and officially defined in the interest of definiteness and to avoid misunderstandings. The dictionary must follow usage and cannot really standardize. It is rather a dragnet for all usages and meanings. The standardization of terminology should be by the primary users of the terms employed and will greatly facilitate definite thought and discussion.

Optical standardization would include light sources in the studio and the theatre—their quality, steadiness, brightness and distribution; also the optical systems of lenses, reflectors, screens, and the question of eye comfort. For example a standard studio light might be specified and perhaps scientifically planned to eliminate glare by absorbing screens while retaining a standard photochemical action. Clearly the film sensitivity, the studio light, and the projection lantern might be standardized upon the same basis if the outcome is to be successful. The best exposure and projection time of unit picture in relation to light intensity and retinal persistence is a matter of physical and psychological experiment. Among the most obvious items to be standardized are the width, length and thickness of the film; the form, size and location of the perforations, and such standardization to be stable must be on a world basis, for science is international and scientific standardization must be the same.

Looking more to the future, an ideal we are approaching slowly, and in which engineers should take a deep interest, is that of an ideal atmosphere within the theatre. It is a problem of hygiene to ascertain numerically the factors needed by the engineer to provide such a standard ideal atmosphere. It may eventually include the best temperature, abundant fresh air, and also the cooling and drying of the air when required, making it dust free, circulating it, and possibly giving it a healthful trace of ozone, and the fragrance of the woods. This may be looking a long way ahead, but vision is required in such matters. When we speak of a standard indoor climate, we may recall that practically all of these elements have been separately realized in actual service and need but the unifying hand of the engineer to realize the combination. What this standard atmosphere will mean for public health, comfort and enjoyment can hardly be overestimated.

Your motion picture industry touches many arts—photography, architecture, illumination, the drama—and it would be needless to suggest how varied are the subjects which involve standardization. I am sure you appreciate that standardization stands not for fixation, but for steady progress, step by step, at such time intervals as may be found most efficient. In your work, as in that of other societies of engineers, you may count upon the co-operation of the National Bureau of Standards. On behalf of Dr. Stratton, the Director of the Bureau, I may say that the facilities of the Bureau as far as practicable will be extended to any committee you may appoint to deal with standardization.

In conclusion, may I express my deep appreciation of your work and the art it serves. To me the motion picture is the wonder of the world in its effects and possibilities. It uses in education, science, recreation, industry, engineering and social movements make it vie in interest and power with the printing press itself. It speaks the universal language of action. It is the magic carpet of Bagdad to take us to all lands, under sea and under land, among the clouds to fairyland, and into the world's markets' laboratories, hospitals and factories. In portraying the flight of a bullet it magnifies time, in recording the unfolding of a flower from the bud it compresses days into seconds. It is not making the world a little neighborhood, it is rather making of each neighborhood a little world.

It intensifies life by broadening its contact with all life—for it is your business to bring into the experience of each the experience of all. Through the motion picture, in fact, we may create new experience, for nowhere has the magic of the miraculous been so tanglibly realized as on the screen. The quickening effect of this wonderful art upon social evolution is beyond estimate. To say that as an art it is in its infancy is to state the obvious. Its possibilities are limited only by the power of the creative imagination and the technical powers of the engineer. Its success depends not upon subject alone but upon the factors of economy, efficiency, safety, comfort and interest, which in turn depend upon scientific standardization. May your work have a success commensurate with its interest and importance, and through your organization may you, in the words of Washington, "raise a standard to which the wise and the honest can repair."

PROSPECT OF BIG FALL BUSINESS IN MIDDLE WEST INDICATED BY LARGE NUMBER OF THEATRES JUST OPENED OR READY TO OPEN IN SHORT TIME

NEVER before in the Middle West did such a promising September 1 approach for the exhibitor. More building, greater improvements, and plans for the best pictures, with higher prices, are reported.

The exhibitors have spent little effort to find the reason. But in a general way they attribute it to a big growth in the importance of motion pictures and a general prosperity. With wheat—and there's lots of it in the Central West—selling for record prices, a big promise for the bumper corn crop, and prosperity in every other line of business, the moving picture men feel safe in expecting their share of the general freedom of money. The houses now being built are of better quality and are larger, until the little old made-over store building has almost disappeared.

The hot weather caused a temporary lull that makes the annual fall spurt more noticeable. This lull was absent last year, when the cool summer allowed no rest for renewed strength in the fall.

Here are some prosperity details: The New Strand, being built by Julius & Awe, will be completed early in September. It will be the best motion picture theatre in Fort Dodge.

Although Colonel N. P. Hyatt, proprietor of the Orpheum, Webster City, Ia., is at the border, he is building a new, a bigger and a better house that will be opened in September. Mrs. Hyatt is running the Orpheum during his absence.

Earl T. Nichols will open the opera house at Waverly, Ia., in September, the first picture being "The Birth of a Nation." The New Crescent, a beautiful house, will be completed by Don Preston, of Audubon, Ia., in September. Charles Fuller will open a new theatre, The Gem, at Mystic, Ia., in September. The house seats 500 people and is modern in every way.

The Sun, a $100,000 theatre being built in Omaha by the World Realty Company, is nearing completion and will be a beautiful place. It will open the latter part of September, or the first of October.

W. C. Buskirk and M. Fox, of the Pathe exchange road force, have bought automobiles and are making their territories in better time. They say few exhibitors in the Middle West are now without automobiles. "The Shielding Shadow," Pathe serial, is meeting with a great welcome in that territory.

The Western serial of the General, "The Girl from 'Frisco," got a reception that left no doubt of this territory's prosperity, said Manager C. W. Taylor.

D. A. Donaldson, of Central City, Neb., is completing a theatre that will seat 514 people. He bought the chairs, a Powers 6-A machine and a transverter from the Western Supply Company, with the declaration that he expects to do a great business at once.

Ray Kirkpatrick, of Ainsworth, Neb., also got 500 seats, a Powers 6-B machine and a Fort Wayne motor generator for his brand new house, just opened.

M. P. LeDou, of Bartley, Neb., put a Powers 6-B machine in the opera house in his town, and will open in September.

Ed Gearing, of Gearing, Neb., equipping his brand new theatre with 560 seats, a Type S Simplex and a Minusa screen from the Western Supply company, will open early in September.

W. I. Matthews, Bertrand, Neb., got a motiograph for his new house, which seats three hundred. F. A. Van Husan, head of the Western Supply Company, said the sale of new machines, screens, chairs and other equipment has been big, indicating the exhibitors are expecting an unusual rush of prosperity.

Van Husan, demonstrating his confidence in better business, has equipped his floor in the new National Building with a lathe, new machinery, drill press and other equipment for the repairing of machines. "Van," as he is familiarly known to hundreds of exhibitors, has just been appointed district sales manager for the Simplex in the Omaha territory.

P. H. Hopper, known as "Hop," at Kearney, Neb., is going to open a beautiful new theatre, known as the Crescent, soon. It seats six hundred. The old Crescent was torn down.

THE TRANSFER, FORT WAYNE, INDIANA, IS EXPECTED TO ATTRACT ATTENTION WITHOUT A NAME OVER THE FRONT

THE Transfer theatre, located just north of the Transfer corner, Calhoun and Main streets, Fort Wayne's newest picture house, opened recently with "Temptation and the Man" and the first episode of "The Grip of Evil." The theatre will run from 10 A. M. to 11 P. M. The early opening hour has been arranged for the convenience of those who shop early in the morning and then desire to see a show.

The theatre is fitted out unusually well with a view to supplying every comfort for its patrons and furnishing the best in motion pictures. It has been so constructed that every seat will be supplied with abundant fresh, cool air. The air in the theatre, by means of a special ventilating system, will be changed every two minutes, while large oscillating fans placed on the sidewalls, reach every seat and keep the air constantly moving.

The admission price is ten cents on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays for adults and five cents for children, and five cents for both adults and children on the other days of the week.

The regular five-cent program will consist of three reels, and the ten-cent program will be devoted exclusively to feature pictures. A. W. Collier is general manager, and is an experienced picture theatre manager. The theatre will be run first-run pictures.

A unique feature of the Transfer theatre is that no name adorns the front, and the management of the theatres does not expect to put up signs of any kind. The management says that it feels that without the name over the entrance the attention of the public will be directed to the character and quality of the theatre and remembered for what it is rather than by a name.

Candelabra side lights, with red silk shades spaced between the side wall fans, light the interior in a pleasing way, but without interfering with the picture.

An organ, costing $2,200, has been installed. Grace Romary, one of Fort Wayne's most experienced picture theatre organists, is the organist.

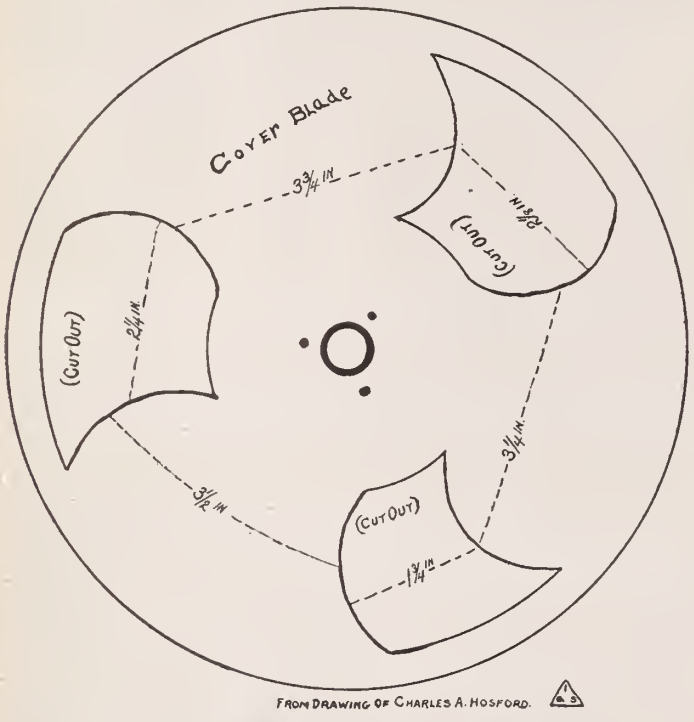
AN OPERATOR WHO EXPERIMENTS TO OBTAIN BETTER PROJECTION

FROM Charles A. Hosford, operator Lyric theatre, Ft. Wayne, Ind., comes a most interesting letter, parts of which are as follows: "I certainly did appreciate your visit, the management and myself would have appreciated it more if you only could have managed to have made it a longer one, and I want to say that your presence will always be welcome at the Lyric. (Thanks.) Mr. Warner, the manager, and myself are constant readers of the NEWS, of which the Projection Department interests me the most. I am anxious to see better projection in every theatre. I am not satisfied with myself nor the work I am doing, although the manager says: 'There is none better,' and I am not going to stop until I get what I want, and I am afraid that will never be for I am a regular crank.

"I am sending you drawings of the shutters I am using, which are of my own designing, and give a more brilliant picture than can be obtained by the use of any shutter I have yet seen. Have made all kinds of tests with both of these shutters, and have found them to work satisfactorily on all tests, and I am in the hopes that these drawings will be of benefit to any brother operator who wants to try them, which, I think, will be to their advantage to do.



FROM DRAWING OF CHARLES A. HOSFORD.

"The action of these shutters seem to be faster than the ordinary, and eliminates the flicker by drawing it down to the center of the picture and drawing it out. [That is not quite clear to me. What do you mean by 'drawing it down to the center of the picture and drawing it out? Please elucidate.—Ed.]

"Tests have been made by running the machines as slow as possible, and there is an entire absence of flicker. These drawings are the same as those I am using on my machines, and in case any operator cannot get the correct measurement of the shutter he designs, I will make him a drawing of my shutter, on card-board, and send him or anyone, if he will enclose sufficient postage, with a request to mail it with, which will only be a few cents. I do not want any pay for the time I put it on it. As I said before, I want to see better projection. I am going to make another thing; guess that is what you would call it, and will send in drawings of it as soon as it seems satisfactory. I read '60 Minutes a Week,' and think it the best yet, and if every operator would try that he would see the difference himself and how much longer his machine would run without repairs. But how many will do, or do do it. My machines get their bath as regular as I do mine; once a week, and their 'feeding' (oiling) time on schedule, four times a day, 12.50, 3, 7, and 9.30 p. m. (Safety first.) Hoping this does not reach the waste basket before you read it, and with best wishes to the NEWS and yourself, I will ring off."

The writer of the above letter is one to whom much credit is due, for he is "putting over projection," and while I am aware that the various machine manufacturers have experimented with almost every kind of shutter imaginable, yet it was a surprise to me to see the wonderful results obtained by Brother Hosford. Whether it is a case of "what will cure one will kill another" I do not know, but the shutter which he was using did all he claims for it; there was greater brilliancy, and there was no flicker even when running the machines at abnormally slow speed.

I accept your apology, Brother Hosford. I can't resist the temptation to give you a little dig, though. Remember the quotation: "Cleanliness is next to godliness," and govern yourself accordingly. The illustrations of these shutters are so simple that any operator can by following the scale make one in a few minutes; if not he can accept the kind offer of the brother, but don't forget to send the postage for mailing, the brother is not a millionaire—yet. You see your letter did not reach the waste basket, and you will always be welcome in the departmnt. For your good wishes to the NEWS and myself, we extend our thanks.

A REAL MANAGER WITH THE RIGHT IDEA

MANAGER JOHN L. A. GALSTER, of Petoskey, Mich., a town of about 4,000 population, two hundred miles from Detroit, certainly does believe in doing things right. He has opened a picture theatre with a seating capacity of 360, equipped the operating room with two Powers' 6B machines, Ft. Wayne motor generator set, and all necessary devices to enable him to put over perfect projection. A Velvet Gold Fibre Screen is used to project the picture on and the report on this screen is very good.

All chairs are upholstered and what with the $2,500 organ is one theatre where one can find rest and contentment. A marquise extends to the curb and lends a most distinguished air to the theatre, the cashier is assisted by the Caille ticket sellers, and altogether this theatre is one of which Petoskey and Manager Galster may well be proud.

Can you imagine some of the exhibitors whom you know, going to an expense as great as this for a 360 seat house? May all success attend a manager of this kind, one who is not afraid to spend money to get money, and if he gives the natives as good projection as he has a pretty theatre it is bound to.

The machine they are all talking about

The Martin Rotary Converter is positively the only machine on the market which does not require a compensare for emergency purposes. Its emergency panel provides A. ganization. The decision on the big increase (the fee now being $25) was unanimous. The local's ball of last spring, which was fully written up in the NEWS at the time, was a big financial success, the biggest ever enjoyed by the association.

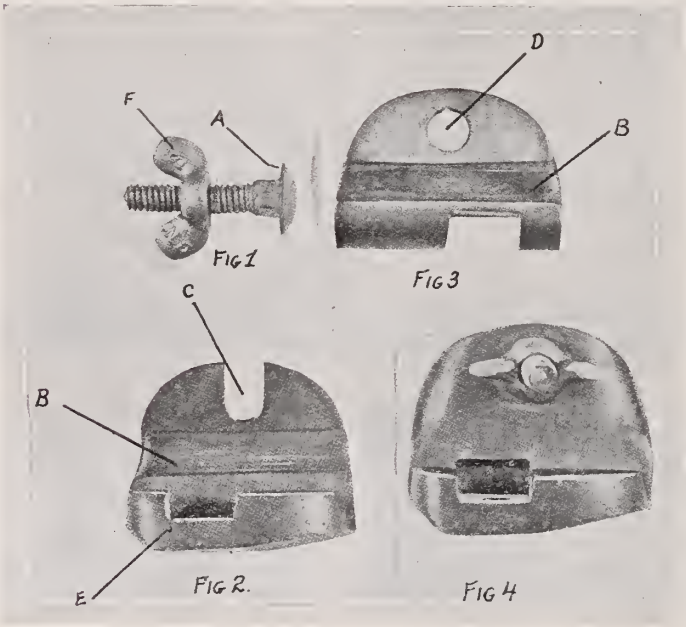
An interesting fact which is also quite a pleasure to chronicle, is that not one of the boys has been out of work all summer. The next election of officers will be in November.

A WIRE TERMINAL THAT MEETS ALL REQUIREMENTS

THE accompanying illustration shows a new wire terminal that is a great improvement over any now in use. As one dealer said: "It is too good, for it will last forever." While that is not to the advantage of the dealer, it is to the advantage of the exhibitor and operator. This terminal, known as the "Jumbo" is put out by the Rialto Theatre Equipment Company, Minneapolis, Minn., and the cost is so small that it does not seeem possible for it to be manufactured at the price, seventy-five cents.

Fig. 4 shows the complete terminal. It is made of phosphor bronze and quite heavy; the illustrations are exact size. Fig. 1 shows the bolt and wing nut that hold the two parts, Fig. 2 and Fig. 3, together, holding the wire firmly and keeping at all times a perfect contact.



B—B— is the groove in which the bare wire is placed, the two parts are then placed together and clamped by placing bolt A, in slot C, and through hole D, after which wing nut F is made tight, then putting the binding screw of the lamp through E, and tightening up on it until it is just right.

This terminal must be seen to be appreciated, for the operator alone knows how annoying it is to have a wire burn off during the show and be forced to handle a red hot lamp to make a new connection, which is made unnecessary by the use of the "Jumbo."

SAN FRANCISCO OPERATORS' BALL SET FOR SEPTEMBER 2

THE annual ball of the moving picture operators' union of San Francisco will be held in the Civic Auditorium on the night of September 2. This will be the fourth annual event, and inasmuch as each previous ball has been larger and better than the one before, it is expected that this one will eclipse all the others, both in arrangements and in attendance.

This organization has the exclusive use of the name Movie Ball and has forestalled the attempts of outsiders to feature similar events under this name for private profit. A committee, consisting of Messrs. Boyle, Dolliver, Howell and Noriega, is attending to the arrangements for the event, which includes a grand electrical display and cabaret show in addition to the ball.

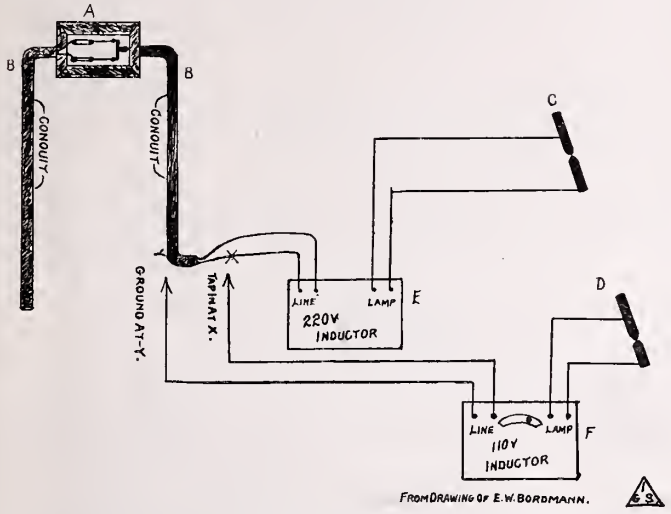
IT CAN'T BE DID—SAFELY—CAN IT?

E. W. B., Town of Union, N. J., sends in a problem which at first glance looked good, but the longer I looked the less I thought of it. On second thought I am going to submit it to my readers and give them the opportunity to "use the brains God gave them."

Here is the problem: As you will see from the diagram, it is desired to run one lamp from a 220-Volt Inductor, which is now being done. Two machines are in use, and there is a 110-Volt Inductor lying idle which the brother wants to utilize in the following manner. He claims that by testing out he gets 110 volts, and wants to know whether it would be safe to pull from 40 to 50 amperes at the arc, without doing any damage to any other part of the line.



Let us see how many are able to answer this question. [William Donnelly of Troy, N. Y., get busy.—Ed.]

"A" is the panel board with 220 volts coming into the operating room. B-B conduit, "C" lamp number 1, "D" lamp number 2, "E" 220 volt inductor, "F" 110 volt inductor. Take note of the fact that but two wires are coming into the operating room.

Is it possible to use the 100 volt inductor by connecting as per diagram? And what will be the result?

PROPER SIZE OF CONDENSERS FOR 30 FOOT THROW

Newton Vanderbrook, Jackson, Tenn.:

I would like to ask you a few simple questions about my motion picture machines. I am running two Powers 6-A machines, and have a thirty-three-foot throw, and would like to know the proper sized condensers to use. Am using A. C. current through a Ft. Wayne Compensarc, and am pulling 60 amperes at the arc, using American made carbons 5/8-inch soft cored, both top and bottom. Am I using the proper carbon for my short throw with 110 volts and 60 amperes? If not, please tell me the proper size carbons and condensers to use.

How far apart should the condensers be? Is it best to start the motor on the machine first and then pull down your clutch when starting, or should the clutch be left at a fixed speed and left in contact with the disk, so that when you throw in your switch you start everything at once?

Answer: No trouble at all, that is what I am being paid for, and you are always welcome in the department. You neglected two very important things in your inquiry; you do not state the size picture or the diameter of your objective lens, so I will have to try and guess at it. You say you are projecting a picture thirty-three foot. At that distance you are probably showing a 7 x 10 foot picture, which calls for a lens of three-inch equivalent focus. If that is the case, you would need a 6½ and a 7½ condenser placed as close together as possible without their touching one another. Focus your spot on the aperture plate until you just cover the aperture, then project the light upon the screen to see whether you have a clear field; if not, move the lamp house forward and back until the screen is evenly illuminated without any brown corners, ghosts, etc., then tighten the screw which holds the lamphouse in a fixed position and let be.

It seems to me as though you were using too much amperage for the length of throw. If your picture is the size I think it is,

Mr. Dealer!

How are you meeting the demand for better projection lenses than the regular equipment of the various machines?

It will pay you to investigate and stock the best—the new Marlux oversize projection objective.

it should not require over 40 amperes to give all the illumination necessary. Most decidedly you are not using the proper sized carbons for 60 amperes. Try ¾-inch soft cored top and bottom, and I think you will get better satisfaction.

Do not leave your motor clutch on when machine is idle. It is much better to keep the motor free, and when ready to start throw in motor switch and pull down clutch, gradually increasing the speed until you have reached the speed desired. This is a common fault of many operators, and it tends to shorten the life of the motor as well as being harmful to the friction disk and pulley.

If the practice is kept up for any length of time the friction disk will develop flatness, which will not only make it noisy, but will take away all dependableness of the motor itself. I have known cases where this has caused much damage, for the motor has "missed" and the machine stopped, and—you can imagine the rest.

Let "safety first" be your watchword, and follow out the instructions which came with your machine. The manufacturers go to a great deal of trouble and expense to send out instructions on their machines, and operators should at least try to observe ordinary care in observing them.

Your last request you will find is being taken care of, the three-wire system will be explained in the series of articles under the head of "A B C of the Motion Picture Projection Room."

DO YOUR PART, BROTHER, TO BOOST THE GOLD MEDAL PLAN

JAMES A. MERKLEIN, Danforth theatre, Greenville, N. J., writes to a contemporary, in part, the following:

In this section there are a great many operators who, if they had just a little instruction, would become really first-class men. I am therefore interested in seeing a school established within our local, to be followed later by an examination; those who fail to be called for re-examination in three months, in the meantime being given instruction on those things in which they fail.

Should they pass the next time their name will be placed on the Roll of Honor, and if the member can keep his name on the honor roll for a period of one year, he shall be given a gold medal with the local's emblem thereon. Broadly, that is the scheme I would like to see adopted. What do you think of it?

Answer: Well, brother, if you are so very anxious for the adoption of this "scheme," why is it that you have failed to attend any of the meetings of your local since you made the proposition to donate such a prize as you describe to the operator who could keep his name on the Roll of Honor for a year?

You also volunteered to act as an instructor to those who, "if they had just a little instruction, would become really first-class men." How well you have fulfilled your promise, you yourself know.

If you were and are sincere in this matter, why not do your part and prove your sincerity by working out the plan you have outlined, with the assistance of the executive board of your (?) local. They will meet you more than half way on any proposition that will raise the standard of their members.

AN APOLOGY

IN an article published in the July 22 issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, entitled "Waste in the Operating Room," I illustrated a carbon economizer, without giving credit where credit was due. Many operators throughout the country have asked me where they were manufactured and where they could be procured. In answer to their inquiries, would say that the one which was used to illustrate my article was loaned to me by the Picture Theatre Company, No. 1604 Broadway, New York. They are the only supply house that I know of who handle them. Any further information can be had by writing to the above-named concern.

OPERATORS STRIKE AT OKLAHOMA CITY

THE I. A. T. S. C. E. (stage employes) and the moving picture operators are on a strike at Oklahoma City, Okla., on account of failure of local managers to sign scale increasing their wages. Only two of the theatres have met the demands for increase, the Dreamland and the Metropolitan. The other theatres are trying to secure non-union men. The White Rats are helping the strikers and nearly all of the union men have gone out. When a troupe comes to Oklahoma, the strikers meet them at the train and try and persuade them not to show at non-union theatres. The end is not in sight.

DRURY LANE, DETROIT'S NEWEST PICTURE HOUSE, IS NOW OPEN

THE Drury Lane theatre, 258 Woodward avenue, Detroit, opened for the first time on Friday, July 21. It is the third motion picture house to locate on Woodward avenue between the Campus and the Grand Circus Park.

The Drury Lane is under the management of Frank Drew, a well-known Detroit showman, who for many years operated the Avenue theatre at Woodward and Jefferson avenues, both as a burlesque and motion picture house. His assistant is G. C. Deats.

The Drury Lane has a seating capacity of 550; it opens at nine in the morning and runs continuously until 11 at night. Ten cents is the admission price. Mr. Drew is giving his patrons a good assortment of features, including Metro, World, Universal and General. Change of pictures is made daily.

One attractive feature about the Drury Lane is the long lobby from the street to the theatre, which is about forty feet long and twenty feet wide. The box office is right off the sidewalk in the lobby. This lobby will come in very handy on crowded days, and especially in stormy and cold weather.

There is no reason why the Drury Lane should not be a big success, despite its handicap of a heavy rental. Woodward avenue is a busy thoroughfare, and the location of the Drury Lane is certainly an ideal one. With its all-day policy it can play to thousands of people in the course of fourteen hours.

PICTURE PEOPLE DISCRIMINATING BUYERS, SAYS AUTO TIRE MAN

"PERSONS engaged in the picture producing industry are among the most discriminating and careful buyers," says Frank R. Carroll, manager for the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. at Los Angeles, Cal.

"This is particularly noticeable here in Los Angeles, where more than seventy-five per cent. of all pictures are made. The most prominent business managers, directors and actors demand the Silvertown tire, which, because of its construction, is the best tire on the market.

"It is my belief that the success of the Silvertown in the big races and the practically universal endorsement given it by such drivers as Resta, De Palma, Anderson, Mulford, Cooper, Pullen, and in fact all great drivers, probably first forcibly attracted the attention and consideration that later led to so many of the studio cars being equipped with the Goodrich product.

"On every side, in talking with moving picture managers and stars, I have learned that they approve of the Silvertown tire because experience has shown them that it is by far the most durable of any on the market and because it effects such a noticeable saving in gasoline, owing to the extreme resilience of the carcass. This tire is made of two layers of cable cord impregnated with the purest of gum rubber. A single strand of this cord will bear the weight of a 250-pound man. To this construction the tire owes its durability.

"The black tread and white sidewalls add materially to the appearance of the car, giving it a distinguished feature that characterizes it above other makes. The recent announcement of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of the ten per cent. reduction in the list price of the Silvertown has met with unstinted approval on every hand.

"Such celebrities as Thomas Dixon, Jesse L. Lasky, D. W. Griffith, Pathe Lehrman, Francis X. Bushman, Robert Brunton, Mabel Normand, Edna Goodrich, Dustin Farnum and Blanche Ring are among the consistent users of the Silvertown tire.

APPELL TAKES OVER WILMER AND VINCENT HOUSES

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 19.

NATHAN APPELL, who recently sold his interests in the three largest theatres in Harrisburg to Wilmer and Vincent, has taken over all the interests and assumed all the liabilities of the partnership that existed between him and the Wilmer and Vincent Company, in York, Pa. The properties affected are the York Opera House and the Orpheum theatre, which he himself will conduct hereafter. Mr. Appell also purchased the interests of B. C. Pentz in the real estate of the York Opera House Company and is now said to be the majority stockholder. Both theatres are used in part for motion pictures.

The Angles of View of Cinematographic Objectives

An Important Item in Cinematographic Work Which Has Received Very Little Consideration by Cameramen, and About Which Very Little Definite Information Has Appeared, Is the Extent or Angle of the Field of View Embraced by Lenses Such as Are Used on Motion Cameras

AN important item in cinematographic work, which has received very little consideration by cameramen, and about which very little definite information has appeared, is the extent or angle of the field of view embraced by lenses such as are used on motion cameras.

By reason of the scarcity of accurate data along this line erroneous conclusions have been drawn by many users of cinematographic cameras, and these misconceptions are entertained, in many instances, by professional as well as amateur workers.

As an example—A 2-inch lens is generally spoken of by cameramen as a "wide angle" lens. The reason for this is—that of the 2 and 3-inch focus lenses (which are the sizes most employed in motion picture work) the 2-inch, of course embraces the wider angle of view. But the term "wide angle" is surely a misnomer for the 50 mm. or 2-inch cinematographic objective, as there are on the market numerous lenses for motion picture taking, which are of shorter focal length than 2 inches and in consequence embrace a considerably wider field of view than does the customary 2-inch objective.

In keeping with the policy of the Camera Department to supply its readers, and the profession in general, with accurate and hitherto unavailable information, we publish herewith a table which mentions all of the lenses at present supplied for use in cinematography with the correct angle of view which each lens embraces. Objectives up to and including 3 inches focal length only are given in this table—as lenses having a focal length in excess of 3 inches are only used for special work, and are frequently of different type than are the lenses regularly employed in motion picture taking.

Table of Lenses and Their Correct Angle of View

Name of objective.	Focal length[4] (Inches and Mm.)	Degrees angle of view embraced.
Zeiss Ic. Tessar (B. & L.)	1¼ in.—32 mm.	44°
Zeiss Ia. Planar	1⅜ in.—35 mm.	50°
Voigtlander Heliar	1⅜ in.—35 mm.	40°
Zeiss Ic. Tessar (Krauss)	1⅝ in.—40 mm.	37°
Goerz Kino Hypar	1⅝ in.—42 mm.	33°
Voigtlander "Special Cinema Objective" (Heliar)	1⅞ in.—45 mm.	32°
Zeiss Ic. Tessar (including those made by B. & L., Ross & Krauss)	2 in. —50 mm.	28°
Voigtlander Heliar	2 in. —51 mm.	28°
Voigtlander Helomar	2 in. —51 mm.	28°
Goerz Kino Hypar	2 in. —50 mm.	27°
Dallmeyer No. 1	2 in. —50 mm.	28°
Cooke Series II a	2 in. —50 mm.	27°
Goerz Kino Hypar	2⅜ in.—59 mm.	22°
Voigtlander Helomar	2½ in.—63 mm.	22°
Voigtlander Heliar	2¾ in.—69 mm.	20°
Zeiss Ic. Tessar (including those made by B. & L., Ross & Krauss)	3 in. —75 mm.	19°
Voigtlander Helomar	3 in. —75 mm.	18°
Goerz Kino Hypar	3 in. —75 mm.	17.5°
Dallmeyer No. 2	3 in. —75 mm.	18°
Dallmeyer No. 3	3 in. —75 mm.	18°
Cooke Series II a	3 in. —75 mm.	17.5°

The above angles are computed on a 1-inch base, conforming with the width of a film image.

In presenting this tabulated list of view angles we particularly desire to emphasize the fact that the data therein contained was in every instance procured from the makers of the various lenses listed, and may, therefore, be considered accurate.

A study of the table will show that, in most instances, lenses of the various makes but of like focal length subtend practically the same angle of view on the one-inch base. The only notable exception is the Zeiss Ia. Planar, which is possessed of a greater angle of view by reason of the fact that it is a different type of lens than the customary cinematographic objective. The Planar is of symmetrical construction (the back element just like the front element) and has no third or negative element between the two. Planars have a speed of f. 4.5 and are very well corrected lenses, although seldom seen on cinematograph cameras in this country.

Limited Field of View in Two-Inch Lenses

The tables of view angles will serve to acquaint many cameramen with the fact that the 2-inch lens (generally termed a "wide angle" lens) really embraces a very limited field of view, averaging 28 degrees, as shown. Let us now consider, for the sake of comparison, a medium angle lens such as is generally found on "still" cameras for view work and on hand cameras. The average lens used in still photography embraces a field view of about 45 degrees or 50 degrees, whereas a "wide angle" lens for still photography includes a field view of 90 degrees or upwards. It will therefore be readily seen that a 2-inch cinematographic objective, embracing the exceedingly limited field of 28 degrees, is in reality an extremely "narrow angle" lens and cannot be considered other than such.

There are points in favor of lenses embracing a limited view angle, however, not the least of which is that they give a pleasing perspective. A lens including a wide angle gives a very exaggerated perspective, as is well known to experienced workers. The most apparent result of exaggerated perspective in a motion picture is the rapid diminution in size which persons undergo when walking away from the foreground of the scene. They dwindle rapidly from giant size (when "close-up") to the size of pygmies as they reach the back of a set. Likewise when photographing exteriors, a street scene which might be three blocks in extent will look more like three-quarters of a mile if a lens of extreme wide angle is used.

These dangers are not to be feared, however, in using a short focus cinematograph objective, as the shortest focus lenses obtainable for this class of work are still of great enough focal length (compared with the dimensions of the film image) to be well within the "medium angle" class of objectives.

There are points in favor of using lenses of less than 2 inches focal length for the general run of cinematographic work. The greater angle of view included by some of these short focus lenses will be found to more nearly equal the view embraced by the eye, and when a short focus lens is employed in motion picture taking the results are frequently found, when viewed, to be quite a relief from the constricted scenes and settings generally noticed.

When working with a lens of 35 mm. E. F., or thereabouts, the cameraman will find that much less panoraming is necessary than is the case when using lenses of greater focal length. This point is quite worthy of consideration by producers, as panoramming always detracts from a scene and is resorted to only when strictly necessary by the most careful directors.

Most Valuable Property of Short Focus Lens

Perhaps the most valuable property of the short focus lens, however, is its almost infinite depth of focus. All serious students of photography are aware that the shorter the focal length of the lens used, the greater will be the depth of focus. A good 2-inch cinematographic taking lens will show very satisfactory depth of field—but to the uninitiated the depth possessed by a lens of 1⅜ inches focus will seem truly marvelous. We have used lenses of this focal length which, when focussed for infinity (or a distant view), would image objects perfectly sharp to within 3 or 4 feet of the camera with the diaphragm at f. 4.5. As might be inferred, lenses of this description can, therefore, be mounted to the camera at a "fixed" or immovable focus, and when used in this way a sharp and uniform negative is always assured, provided that the objective has been carefully and accurately focused when mounted on the camera.

We do not wish to be considered as advocating the short focus lens as a means of eliminating the focussing operation and thereby making camera work a "lazy man's" job; nor do we urge the adoption of short focus lenses in place of the customary 2-inch lens so frequently used. The 2-inch cinematograph objective has been so long in use that it may almost be considered one of the fixed and unalterable constants of cinematograph practice; so much so, in fact, that studio "sets" and scenes are constructed and laid out with regard for the field which the 2-inch lens includes at various distances.

It will be found, however, that there are certain classes of work in which the short focus lens clearly proves its right to consideration. Some producers, who should know better, have gone on record as stating that the use of film of larger dimensions than the standard would enable scenes to be filmed showing large numbers of people, such, for instance, as extensive military maneuvers or operations.

Those scientific craftsmen, the French film makers, long ago appreciated the value of the short focus lens (used with cameras and film of standard dimensions) for this class of work, and many fine subjects of this character have been issued by well-known foreign producers. There is no satisfactory substitute for the short focus lens in making scenes of public gatherings or large ensembles, and we believe that any producer who gives this class of lens a trial will be well repaid for the trouble by the novelty and quality of the results secured.

BOOKS OF CINEMATOGRAPHY

C. W., Columbus, Kansas; writes as follows:

"Through the columns of the Camera Department, please list a few good books on Motion Photography, suitable for an exhibitor or a beginner. Would the Bell and Howell camera be suitable for News Weekly work?"

In reply: The literature on Cinematography since its very inception is not very extensive and—aside from the articles buried in scientific and trade journals—consist of, perhaps, a score of books printed in several languages.

Of these, we will cite three which are probably the most widely known:

1. "Moving Pictures—How They Are Made and Worked." By Frederick A. Talbot. Published by J. B. Lippincot, Philadelphia, Pa. Price $1.50.

2. "The Handbook of Kinematography." By Colin N. Bennett. Published by the Kinematograph and Lantern Weekly, Tottenham street, London, W., England. Price about $2.50.

3. "La Technique Cinematographique" (In French.) By Leopold Lobel. Obtainable from the "Cinema Revue," Paris. Price $2.00.

Talbot's book, the first one mentioned, is not a technical treatise written by an actual film maker, but rather an attempt at describing film producing and exhibiting, with the addition of a very misleading series of preliminary chapters purporting to detail the early history of the cinematographic art.

Mr. Talbot is a "Bookmaker" e.g., an author who compiles books from collected data, and knows not (in this instance) whereof he writes. In spite of the inaccuracy of his historical data, and, also of the fact that Talbot does not go into the pertinent details of cinematographic work; his book "Motion Pictures —How They Are Made and Worked" is worth its price ($1.50) to anyone interested in motion photography, as it contains a wealth of really good illustrations.

Bennett's "Handbook of Kinematography" is miles ahead of the Talbot volume when considered from the technical viewpoint, as a large portion of this work is devoted to actual working instructions and data, such as can be utilized by the amateur film maker.

Although Bennett's technical data would likely prove helpful to amateurs in cinematography, his instructions are not in accordance with cinematographic procedure in this country. Although the British are unquestionably the leaders in ordinary or "still" photography, we have far outstripped our English cousins in the practise of cinematography.

Bennett has detracted from the value of his work by following the course usually adopted by other writers on the subject of the motion picture. He has tried to combine the subjects of film making, projecting, and theatre operation in one volume, whereas, any of these subjects is extensive enough to require a volume by itself if a comprehensive treatise is to be evolved.

We do not wish to detract from Mr. Bennett's ability, as he is a very competent photographer, and well grounded in the fundamentals of the art, and, we are sure that if he attempts another book it will be worthy in every way of his reputation along lines of scientific achievement.

The third book mentioned, Lobel's "La Technique Cinematographique" is printed in French and, therefore, many will not be able to successfully negotiate its pages.

This is, perhaps, the best work to date treating of the technical details of motion picture photography and laboratory work.

Like other writers Lobel has drifted outside of his subject, but only to the extent of adding a section on projecting machines and their operation. Lobel knows the subject of cinematography, as he was the Director of the Studio and Laboratory of the "Lux Film Company" in Paris. His book is crowded with technical material of considerable value, amplified by a host of instructive illustrations and diagrams. In the opinion of this writer "La Technique Cinematographique" is the best work on cinematography which has appeared to date.

The classic volume to the all absorbing subject of modern cinematographic practise has yet to be written, and the task of producing an adequate work on this involved subject will be no light one. What is needed is a book which, in addition to setting forth all of the "fine points" of camera procedure, will deal exhaustively with lighting systems, studio designing, and also include detailed descriptions and operating instructions covering all well-known types of cinematographic taking cameras.

Although such a work will not issue from the pen of any "lightweight," we have heard of several books in preparation. We shall see what the future brings forth, and we trust that the literature on cinematography will be materially enriched at a not far distant time.

With regard to the latter part of the correspondent's inquiry, we would say that the Bell & Howell camera should prove very suitable for news picture making. It is a high priced instrument of the most refined type and is, moreover, provided with a battery of lenses of various focal lengths, which would prove of great value in this class of picture making.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Luz

This department is maintained for the exhibitor's assistance with a view of suggesting proper musical illustrations for current photo plays. MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be pleased to help solve any difficulties the exhibitors may have with their musical programs. All communications should be addressed to the Music and the Picture Department.

Programing Music for Photoplay Synchronization

It Is Hoped That the Time Is Not Far Distant When Future Efforts Will Come from the Heart of the Musician Who Is Susceptible to Moods and Has the Musical Ability and Strength of Character to Allow Himself to Be Inspired

THERE has always been an erroneous idea among many interested in photoplay music that the proper programing of music was either impossible or unnecessary. This is very far from true. Ninety-nine per cent of picture players hide behind the fact that they try to select music that fits the picture regardless of whether their selections are befitting what might be called good entertainment. We should never lose sight of the fact that even though we are playing music to the picture we are to a certain extent caterers and while we may not cater in the inner man we cater to a more delicate organ, the ear. It is obvious for me to here state that when music continues for too great a time in a serious or frivolous vein it becomes monotonous to the listener and loses all its entertaining qualities. Still more important is the fact that when you have cheapened a certain serious musical effect by overplaying, you lack something when the psychological moment on the screen arrives for making such music more effective and of greater temperamental value to the picture screen.

Musical compositions are all illustrations of moods which have sufficiently inspired the composer to an effort. This is the paramount reason why picture music is so essential to the photoplay theatre. Music in the picture theatre should have the power to create this mood among the audience. Unless the music used is capable of creating these moods it has no value in synchronization. This does not mean that certain music which does not influence a certain temperamental mood has no value in picture playing. On the contrary it plays a very important part for such neutral numbers are the foundation from which we can get the proper musical moods and make them effective at the psychological moment suggested by the action on the screen. This is one of the important reasons for the proper programing of music when playing to pictures.

In operatic works where themes are quite often used you will note that the composers try to get the greatest possible contrast in their themes, placed to the different characters or types. This makes the cast stand out in its individuality. While the working of themes in picture playing cannot be accomplished as in prepared operatic words, nevertheless by following this rule of contrast it is quite possible to make the individual incidents on the picture screen, which are necessary to the picture clarity, stand out when the proper musical contrast is obtained.

Similarity of Numbers

I have noted in many instances that while new numbers were used at certain points of the picture where the picture was to be accentuated or a new line of thought was being created, the new number used was very often similar to the one preceding and the fact that new interest was to be created was lost in this musical similarity. Unless a new mood is to be obtained among the audience there is no reason why the music should be chopped up and hacked to pieces. The fact that a new character is coming on the screen is not sufficient reason to mar a musical program unless that character represents something thematically new to the picture.

Only recently I reviewed a six-reel feature wherein there was not the slightest temperamental change on the screen for eighteen hundred feet or about twenty-seven minutes of time. I later was a recipient of some musical suggestions, suggesting nine or ten different numbers and cues to be followed through this interval of time. Such suggestions waste useful energy and make the programing of music for music's betterment a farce. The mood requirements being equal and of neither serious nor frivolous temperament it would seem to me that these eighteen hundred feet would have permitted the best musical efforts of the musician. This would not mean that he could have played a number of bombastic or grandioso effects, for it has been long conceded that the picture theatre requires quiet and melodious music.

Every musician could have selected a beautiful program of uninterrupted numbers to fill this space of time knowing that he could play them properly and thereby create a light musical interest while the picture was developing its story in a strictly neutral and unsuggestive manner. We should get away from the idea that good and standard music must be chopped to pieces just because we are playing pictures and some obsolete thinkers imagine the music should change with every scene. At times such as cited above you will easily recognize the value of the music in your library which does not inspire certain temperamental moods. Others think that it is possible to take a number which would naturally illustrate pathos and lighten it, thereby hoping to get contrast. This is not only impossible but ridiculous and constitutes nothing less than musical murder. The same thing is sometimes tried on a light number and when I tell you that it has not only been suggested that a light number be played tremolo or adagio, etc., it is quite often done.

I cannot imagine what the player is thinking of when he is committing this musical murder unless he finds it the easiest way and is perfectly willing that his musical brain shall become stagnant. The player certainly lacks that respect he owes his profession when he allows himself to be influenced in this manner and maliciously becomes a musical butcher.

Follow Picture to Proper Climaxes

Following a picture with music does not mean any such thing, for unless the screen suggests, there is no reason for following the picture at which times it is certainly more entertaining and beneficial to the photoplay performance that you follow the music and thereby be assured of good musical results. The picture must be followed at its proper climaxes but these do not occur every minute. To avoid this musical similarity in all the plots that I issue in the NEWS I give a description of the music in the first column which should be an assistance to the player in programing his picture.

When segues are made from one number to another the succeeding number should at all times be notably different even if the same temperamental mood is to be continued. Some may think this impossible, for many are narrow enough to think that only one kind of music will express romance or pathos. This is not true and intelligent study will surely convince any enthusiast. Many more think that musical contrast consists only of more or less noise. This is certainly untrue, for the picture theatre does not allow for noise at all. The picture theatre affords every opportunity for getting all that is beautiful out of music. It is consequently a mistake that we continue in the old rut of promiscuously chopping music to pieces. With the influx of new publications wherewith we can musically portray the quick changing and suggestive screen action, it makes it possible to do commendable programing at the other points during the picture.

You will note in the plots published in this department that all such numbers are suggested as descriptive numbers with the mood suggestion of the screen following in parenthesis. Let us hope that the future efforts will come from the heart of the musician who is susceptible to moods and has the musical ability and strength of character to allow himself to be thereby inspired.

B. S. MOSS ADDS NEW BROOKLYN THEATRE TO HIS SYSTEM

DURING the past week B. S. Moss, in addition to announcing his plans for the monster million-dollar theatre he is going to build at 181st street and Broadway, on the northwest corner, stated that he has signed a lease for a number of years for the Flatbush theatre, Flatbush and Church avenues, Brooklyn.

This theatre is one of the finest and most modernly equipped houses in the greater city. It has a seating capacity of 2,000, and it is an absolutely fireproof house. It is a very recent construction, and therefore enjoys the latest innovations in a theatre building. It also possesses a remarkably complete electric light and ventilation system.

The decorations, which include silk wall tapestry and Persian carpets, are particularly noteworthy and luxurious. The policy of the Flatbush theatre will be similar to the other theatres he now operates; feature picture and vaudeville will be the program.

The doors of the Flatbush theatre under the B. S. Moss management will be thrown open to the public on Saturday evening, September 2, when a gala bill will mark the inauguration.

KNICKERBOCKER THEATRE ORCHESTRA CAUSES MUCH FAVORABLE COMMENT

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 19.

PERHAPS one of the biggest attempts to offer real substantial music of the better quality to the public at large that has ever been made by any moving picture house has proved successful at the Knickerbocker theatre during the past several months that this beautiful theatre has been open.

Manager Wassman has said many great things about his music, before and since the opening, and the best part of the matter is that his music has more than made good what he promised. The department is under the personal direction of Buel B. Risinger, organist and conductor of many years' experience, especially in this particular line, and his work, coupled with the artistic efficiency of the musicians with whom he has surrounded himself, makes this the most commendable organization Nashville has ever had in a theatre.

Mr. Risinger also presides at the pipe organ during the orchestra intermissions, and his offerings on that instrument have gained for him quite an amount of praise from the musical enthusiasts of Nashville. While the Knickerbocker programs are liberally sprinkled with popular numbers, the general trend seems to be toward standard and operatic works, and the perfect style in which these numbers are rendered is fast gaining popularity for Mr. Risinger and his orchestra.

The solo work of the individual members is exceptional, especially the violin, trumpets, flute and clarinet. These men have been associated with Mr. Risinger for some time, and it is a pleasure to listen to their efforts in the various operatic favorites. The orchestra is an innovation in Nashville theatre music, and Manager Wassman is to be congratulated on his success in securing such an aggregation.

ALABAMA GETS CLEVELAND'S BIGGEST TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM

DALY matinees at the Alhambra theatre, Cleveland, O., will be discontinued this week, except Saturday, owing to the fact that the management is installing a gigantic Typhoon cooling system.

This new ventilating apparatus is the largest that has ever been brought to Cleveland. It is also the first of its kind to be installed there.

The system has two fans seven feet in diameter and when they are both in use it is possible to get the temperature below 70 degrees. The two fifty horsepower motors are used to drive the fans.

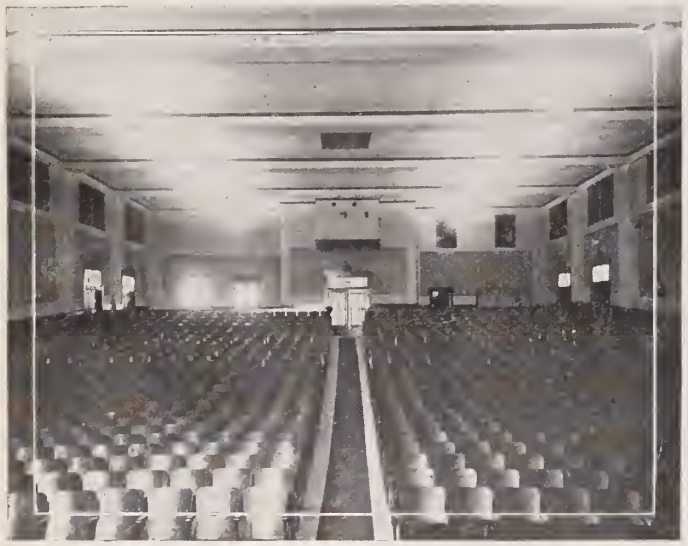
THE PALACE, PROVIDENCE, R. I., SEATS 1,000 ON MAIN FLOOR, BUT HAS NO BALCONY

THE Palace, Broad street and Montgomery avenue, Providence, R. I., is controlled by the S. and B. Amusement Company and is managed by Charles H. Stedman. The dimensions of the theatre are sixty-five by one hundred and twenty-five feet. It is built of steel and concrete. The Palace seats one thousand on the main floor and has no balcony. A Power's 6-A throws the pictures on a Gold Fibre screen ninety-two feet away. The seats were put in by H. J. Harwood's Sons. The music is furnished by a Jewett baby grand piano.



The Palace Theatre, Providence, R. I.

The lobby, twenty-six by fourteen feet, is made effective for publicity by the use of posters and photographs in brass frames. The theatre runs the General program, with Metro, Fox and World features. Eight reels are shown at a performance; three shows a day are given at an admission price of ten cents for matinees and at ten and fifteen cents at night. The Palace is a neighborhood house and has a steady patronage.

NEW STAR, VINCENNES, INDIANA, WILL SEAT 650 ON THE MAIN FLOOR AND 250 IN THE GALLERY

THEODORE CHARLES, proprietor of the Star theatre, Vincennes, Indiana, has announced that the plans and specifications for the new Star theatre building, to occupy the site of the present theatre, Fourth and Nusseron streets, have been accepted and that the contract for the new building is expected to be let within a short time.

The plans, which have been accepted, were drawn by John Bayard, a Vincennes architect, and call for an expenditure of about $10,000. The new structure will have an attractive castle front, facing Fourth street, and will be constructed of dark, ornamental brick. The building will be 62x70 feet and will have a gallery.

The main floor will seat six hundred and fifty persons and the gallery two hundred and fifty. The structure is to be as near fireproof as it is possible to make it. Both floors will be of concrete, as will also the supports, and opera chairs of the latest type will be used.

There will be ten exits, six on the ground floor and four in the gallery. Mr. Charles says that the idea of having one part of the gallery partitioned off for the exclusive use of colored patrons has not been carried out in the plans for the new building and that the theatre will only cater to white persons. The plans call for a ladies' rest room with all modern conveniences.

The work of tearing down the old building is expected to begin soon. Mr. Charles will continue to operate the Moon theatre, showing the best of his Star program at the Moon until the Star is completed. The theatre is to be completed in about three months.

PRINCESS, TROY, ALA., IS A 280 CAPACITY THEATRE IN THE BUSINESS SECTION

THE Princess, Troy, Ala., owned by Ramsay and Cranch, and managed by J. G. Cranch, was built in 1914, and soon became the amusement center of its locality. The theatre stands on a plot measuring thirty-two by ninety feet, and is described by the owners as being the "best naturally ventilated house in that part of the country," where ventilation is a prime consideration during the summer months. An indirect lighting system has been installed in the Princess to shed sufficient glow for finding the seats without interfering with the light on the screen.

The Princess Theatre, Troy, Ala.

The Princess has a seating capacity of 280. A Power's 6-A projector is the machine in use, with a Mirroide screen. The length of throw is seventy-five feet. A three piece orchestra and a Berry Wood electric piano furnishes the music for the exclusive showing of features. Usually about five shows, five and ten cents, with a ten cent admission at night, consist of the daily performances.

The lobby is made to serve as an effective advertising adjunct, with a full display of posters in brass frames. The theatre is located in the business district.

THE CIRCLE, INDIANAPOLIS, SEATING 3,100, WILL OPEN ON AUGUST 30

WEDNESDAY, August 30, has been set for the opening date of the Circle theatre, Indianapolis' newest and finest photoplay theatre, with a seating capacity of 3,100 persons. The theatre has been under construction since January, and although there is much yet to be done, a large force of workmen is trying to complete the work in time for the opening date. The ceiling decorations have been completed. The balcony will seat 1,100 persons and the lower floor will seat 2,000 persons. The balcony seats already are in place and workmen are busy putting the seats on the first floor in place.

S. L. Rothapfel, director of the Rialto theatre, New York, will direct the plans for the opening of the Circle and also will serve in an advisory capacity in its management throughout the winter.

The Circle will operate its own system of billboards in Indianapolis. Hand painted inscriptions, instead of posters, will appear on them, the announcement being changed each week.

CAPACITY ATTENDANCE IS THE RULE AT MOORE'S GARDEN, WASHINGTON, D. C.

TOM MOORE'S Garden theatre is one of the show places of Washington, D. C. Its appearance is distinctive and attracts attention the moment a pedestrian catches sight of the structure. The theatre was built in 1910 and was converted into a picture house two years later. Ample provision for combatting the effects of the hot weather in the capital have been made by the installation of a direct and indirect air washed exhaust. In winter the building is thoroughly heated by steam.

Both direct and indirect lighting are in use at the Garden. Ornamental side lights make the interior decorations effective in a subdued glow. Powers projectors throw the pictures on a Gold Fibre screen ninety-five feet away. The seating capacity is 1,100. On the main floor are 450 seats, the same number in the balcony and 200 in the mezzanine tier.

The interior decorations consist of a color scheme of old rose and cream white. Magnificient draperies, mahogany furiture, and the stage made to represent a garden, give the theatre an air of distinction.

An orchestra of nine musicians, with a relief pianist, has helped to make the theatre known from one end of the city to the other.

Mr. Moore is a firm believer in advertising for getting effective results. He uses the Washington papers, has a large mailing list, sends out a house organ, makes use of display boards for one, three and six sheets, has special frames for tranparencies and also uses framed photos of popular players.

The dimensions of the lobby is 65 by 20 feet, and conveys a sense of coziness to the amusement seeker. Nine shows a day make up the schedules, with five on Sunday. The admission prices are ten and twenty in the daytime and fifteen and twenty-five in the evening. Six to eight reels constitute a performance.

The Garden in located in the business district and employs twenty-five people. Moore's Garden was the first large picture theatre in Washington, D. C., and the first there to offer big features at an increased admission price. The attendance is always large; capacity is the general rule.

ELITE, JACKSON, TENN., IS AN UP-TO-DATE $30,000 SOUTHERN THEATRE

ONE of the finest theatres in Jackson, Tenn., is the Elite, which is owned and controlled by the Crescent Amusement Com pany of Nashville, being under the management of F. B. Wilson, who has had many years of experience as a theatrical manager.

The Elite was constructed with the idea of giving the amusement enthusiasts of Jackson one of the handsomest and most up to date motion picture theatres in that prosperous and growing city. In construction, adornment and equipment it leaves absolutely nothing to be desired.

The Elite has a seating capacity of some 329 all upholstered and comfortable seats. Fourteen large buzz fans have recently been installed, which are kept in continual operation. Something like $1,000 has recently been placed in the Elite in the way of added improvements. An order has been placed for a new 1916 model 6-B Powers, and for the installing of a new picture screcn and a mercury rectifier.

The interior has been designed with every requirement of a modern photoplay theatre and has ample exit and aisle space. Something in the way of an innovation was pulled off at the Elite the week before last, this being in the form of a baby contest, which proved to be one of the biggest drawing cards any theatre ever catered to. The theatre was packed throughout the entire week that the contest was put on.

MR. BARD BOOSTS PRICE TO 25 CENTS AT KANSAS CITY HOUSE

THE Tenth Street theatre, Kansas City, on Tenth near Main, in the heart of the theatrical district, at one of the busiest transfer points, has been sold by the Standard Amusement Co. to C. G. Bard, and its name changed to the Columbia.

Mr. Bard came to Kansas City recently and added twenty cents to the admission price of the Pearl, now the Rialto; it is highly successful as a 25-cent house, running semi-sensational features. The Columbia is being redecorated, and will be made a house catering to women. Between 2 and 6 every day women only will be admitted, though before and after those hours men will be welcomed.

A line on the character of plays to be shown is given in the fact that the first picture will be "The Little Girl Next Door." Mr. Bard will put on some special advertising stunts to accompany the opening, one of which will be a private view for ministers. There will be a charge of 25 cents for each performance.

The house seats 480; it is a beautiful theatre, and has had in the past the patronage of the best people. It is near the Willis Wood theatre, which will go from pictures to stock company this fall.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

CALIFORNIA

THE Electric theatre at Church and Market street, San Francisco, has been reopened after having been dark for some time. New equipment has been installed by Manager Joe Jacoby, and a strong effort will be made to make the house a popular one again with every prospect of success as the district is a good one.

Moving pictures are now being shown in the amphitheatre at Idora Park, Oakland, where band concerts have been featured in the past. Two late model Power's Cameragraphs have been installed there and a feature program is being offered.

The Royal theatre on Polk street, which will at once be the finest and largest moving picture house on that thoroughfare, will be thrown open to the public on September 2, the opening attraction to be "Miss Petticoats." This house is of fireproof construction and will be conducted under the management of Messrs. Oppenheimer, Karski and Levey, all well-known exhibitors of San Francisco.

The Lyceum theatre has been opened at Fresno, by John C. Tuck, who, despite his English sounding name belongs to the Chinese race. He will cater principally to a foreign clientele.

The Pastime theatre at South Berkeley, has been closed, now that the big Lorin theatre nearby is running again, and the equipment has been removed. It is considered unlikely that it will be reopened. This seems to be an off season for Pastime theatres in this vicinity as the theatre of this name at Fourth and Market street, San Francisco, is to close at an early date to make room for the new California theatre.

The Searchlight theatre, which has been in course of construction at Church and Twenty-eighth streets, San Francisco, for several months has been completed, and a successful opening was held recently. This house has accommodations for four hundred patrons, and will be conducted as a feature theatre, according to the present plans.

The Home theatre at Anderson, which has been closed for some time is to be reopened at an early date. Manager Hainline was in San Francisco recently, looking over film offerings and making arrangements for needed improvements.

CANADA

There is much speculation as to whether or not the St. John Opera House, N. B., at present offered for lease by tender, will be secured by outside theatrical interests or remain in the hands of local people. F. G. Spencer has controlled the house for the past four and half years, first booking road attractions, then producing stock and latterly showing Lasky and Paramount Pictures under the capable management of W. C. McKay. As a picture theatre the Opera House with its splendid Paramount Ladies' Orchestra and excellent selection of screen subjects has become extremely popular with the fans and is evidently now a good paying proposition.

ILLINOIS

Danville is to have a new motion picture theatre early in September. Nate Erber, the manager, has named the new playhouse the Palace. It is the intention to run the best of pictures in conjunction with a few vaudeville turns.

Mr. Schaefer acquires control of a frontage of 125 feet on North avenue and a depth of 208 feet on Washtenaw avenue, Chicago, having owned the fifty feet at the southwest corner of those streets, which is improved with what is known as the Crystal theatre, erected about seven years ago. In addition to the theatre on the corner the holding is improved with three four-story buildings and several cottages, which Mr. Schaefer plans to remove to make way for a theatre and store structure to cost $200,000.

INDIANA

The Star theatre, Dunkirk, which has been operated by John McAllister, has closed. Mr. McAllister will move the equipment to East Liverpool, Ohio.

The Arcade theatre, Attica, has been closed temporarily, while the new forty foot addition to the theatre is completed. The Arcade pictures, however, will be shown in the Lyric theatre until the Arcade is completed.

George F. Kreitlein, a South Illinois street merchant, Indianapolis, has bought the Iroquois theatre, 440 Massachusetts avenue, Indianapolis. It has been renamed "The Funny Show."

Raymond Friedman has bought the Star theatre, Jaspar, from William Geisler. Mr. Friedman also owns the building in which the theatre is located and expects to remodel the room and add more seats and put in a ventilating system.

The management of the Vaudette theatre, Connersville, has obtained control of the other two motion picture houses in that town. Alex Pierson, owner of the Vaudette has obtained a lease on the Lyric theatre, which will be managed by the Vaudette theatre's staff, of which Joseph Schilling is the manager. Mr. Pierson and Mr. Schilling also have taken over the booking of the shows at the Auditorium, although they have not leased the theatre. The new management will attempt to avoid a repetition of the same picture in two of the houses.

The Lyric theatre is to be improved materially. A forty-two inch fan has been installed and later on it is probable the front will be changed and the interior redecorated.

Jess Stevens has bought the Joy theatre, Crawfordsville. Under the new management on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings the admission charge will be five cents and ten cents on the other three nights. Mr. Joy has redecorated the theatre, adding to its attractiveness. Mr. Joy has inaugurated a new policy of patronage and friendship, and it is believed that he will make good with his new enterprise immediately.

The Princess theatre, Huntingburg, closed recently after one week's run under the management of W. J. Stanley, of Mt. Carmel, Ill.

Since the Harmony theatre, Woodburn, closed a month or more ago, citizens of Woodburn are interested in seeing another picture theatre started in that town. Several business men of the town are forming a stock company, and it is expected a picture theatre will be started in a room formerly occupied by a meat market there.

The floor of the room at the rear of the Starette theatre, New Castle, which fronts on Race street, has been lowered to the level of the sidewalk and is being overhauled. When the remodeling is completed, Manager Sipe of the Starette will move his screen to the rear of the back room and put in two hundred more chairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones, who have been managing the Royal theatre, Cambridge City, have moved to Lynn, Ind., where they have bought a picture show.

The sale of the Strand theatre, Indianapolis, formerly the Park theatre, for $7,500 to G. Schafer Ziegler by Carl H. Weyl, receiver, has been approved by Judge Moll of the Sueprior Court of Indianapolis. The theatre was opened as a photoplay house, January 15 by a group of Chicago men, of which E. C. Divine was the president of the company. The Strand put on motion pictures on a higher plane than ever before attempted in Indianapolis, but because of the location of the theatre, the sale of prices charged and the inferiority of some of the pictures shown, the venture was not a success. The most valuable part of the assets is the lease on the theatre building, which is located at Capitol avenue and Washington street. The theatre has been renamed the Park and will reopen September 4 with road shows playing the International attractions with a forty week season.

A new ventilating system has been installed in the Regent theatre, Indianapolis, which is operated by Bingham, Crose and Cohen, who also operate the Colonial theatre, Indianapolis. The new ventilating system makes the Regent theatre one of the coolest houses in the city now.

C. E. Hoffman, manager of the Theatorium theatre, has assumed charge of the Arcade theatre, Richmond, succeeding Roy Parks. An orchestra has been added to Arcade theatre, under the leadership of Claude Miller. Mr. Hoffman says he will run the Arcade theatre the same way he has been conducting the Theatorium, which has been improved and business increased considerably since he took charge.

Charles Blackstone has sold the Blackstone theatre, Martinsville to Frank F. Rembush, the Shelbyville screen man, who has owned the Grace theatre at Martinsville for several months. Mr. Rembusch has taken a lease for three years on the theatre building.

The Theatorium, in West Market street, Nappanee, which has been closed for some time, has been rented by Todd and Calbeck, who will reopen it about August 25 as a five cent movie house. It will be renamed the Crystal theatre. Mr. Todd is from near Ligonier and Mr. Calbeck is from Wolf Lake.

W. E. Hahn, manager of the Colonial theatre, Warsaw, has been forced to close his theatre, because the building was unsafe following the removal of a wall on the east side of the building.

Fred W. Sanders, owner of the Sanders theatre, Fountain Square, Indianapolis, has put up a large electric sign in front of his theatre, "Quality," which is one of the most attractive signs on any theatre in the south part of Indianapolis. The theatre, which seats 300 persons, has an excellent ventilating system and is one of the most popular neighborhood theatres in Indianapolis. Mr. Sanders has operated the theatre for about three years.

The Grand theatre, Bedford, has reopened under the management of McCarrell Brothers. The theatre has been redecorated throughout, a new machine and also a new screen have been installed.

Mrs. Sadie Henry, of South Whitley, has bought the Crystal theatre, North Manchester, from Harry C. Long, who has operated the theatre about three years. Mrs. Henry will run shows only on Wednesday and Saturday night until September 1, when she expects to move to North Manchester and run shows every night. Mrs. Henry has had several years' experience in the show business, having owned and managed a show in Chicago for several years, but has been out of the business for the last four years on account of her health.

Arthur Powell, has closed his downtown theatre in the King hotel building at Montezuma until cold weather.

N. W. Bryant has bought the Yale theatre, on the north side of the public square, Princeton, from William Lightner. Mr. Bryan, who recently moved to Princeton from Rockport, has had nine years' experience in the moving picture theatre business. Mr. Bryant expects to make several changes in the theatre, but is not ready to make an announcement of what he intends to do.

IOWA

W. H. Hodges has sold his interest in the Grand, at Cedar Falls.

Weber and Roberts have bought the Lyric, Columbus Junction. A. Kahn of the Casino, Mason City, has adopted the policy of big features all the time and reports it is a success. L. S. Felming is the new owner of the Lyric, at Corning. C. F. Dubois is the new owner of the Willup, Woodbine. James Martin has taken over the Magic at Fort Dodge from James Kearns. Martin is a live wire exhibitor from the word go. W. M. Millberg is the new owner of the Nemo, Belle Plaine.

Yerks and Fife have succeeded Russell and Fife as owners of the Idle Hour, Tama.

C. E. Olson has bought the Grand at Toledo, from W. H. Claussen. J. F. Gaylord is the new owner of both theatres at Hamburg, and is remodeling the Isis. The Allerton, at Independence, is closed while E. Klatt, proprietor, is on a vacation. A. Thorp, proprietor of the Plaza, Manchester, is at Rochester, Minn., undergoing surgical treatment.

J. H. Gaylord has purchased the Iris theatre at Hamburg, Iowa.

L. A. Fleming has purchased the Lyric theatre at Corning, Iowa, from Peregrine Brothers.

Stone Bros. have opened the Crescent theatre at Delta, Iowa.

J. Q. Page has leased the Lyric theatre, Dysart, Iowa.

MICHIGAN

C. W. Davidson has opened a moving picture house in the Salem Opera house at Salem, Iowa.

Weber and Saunders are building a new theatre at Macqueta, Iowa.

Henry P. Seaborg has been elected trustee of the bankrupt Grand Circus theatre, 301 Woodward avenue, Detroit. He will run the house until further notice.

Iron Mountain is to have a new theatre owned by A. E. Brauns, who has let the contract for the same to Hans Nelson, of Green Bay, Wis. It will be exclusively for motion pictures and will be opened this fall. The theatre will be 60 feet wide and 120 feet deep and will seat around eight hundred. It will be one of the most modern houses in Northern Michigan.

MISSOURI

The Dixie theatre, at 13 North Broadway, St. Louis, has been purchased by Ansell and Feinshriber, who after making alterations and improvements, have changed the name of the house to The Variety. This house is one of the oldest motion picture theatres in St. Louis, having been the first to open in the business district downtown, and catering to the shopping trade. Business has always been good at the Dixie, and no doubt The Variety will continue to run at a good profit.

The Acme theatre, 1517-19 Cass avenue, St. Louis, has been acquired by James J. Barrett, proprietor of the Knickerbocker and the Chippewa theatres in south St. Louis. Mr. Barrett has a very efficient method of management, which has made his houses popular with his patrons, and the Acme will be put under the same system as the other two theatres. The Acme will be ready for business in a few weeks, after undergoing alterations and improvements, and having new projecting apparatus installed. The seating capacity of the Acme is eight hundred.

The Rainbow Amusement Company of St. Louis, has purchased the Astor theatre, at 7 North Broadway, and has appointed John Angelich as manager of the house. The Astor is undergoing repairs and is being decorated and furnished with new appointments and new equipment is being installed in the projection booth. Altogether, the Astor, with its four hundred seats, will be a very modern and complete little theatre when it opens for business about the first of September.

NEBRASKA

The Brach will be the name of a new house to be opened by Mr. Brach at Hastings, sometime in September. H. L. Rothleitner of the North theatre, Columbus, was in Omaha with his wife, arranging for service for the coming season.

Donald Frazier, proprietor of the Sterling, Fairmont, was in Omaha last week on his way for the Colorado mountains, to take a much needed rest. While in the city he arranged for his winter's service. Frazier is one of the exhibitors who demands the best pictures, and who charges a straight price of ten and 15 cents. Judging from the quality of pictures he ordered through Manager C. W. Taylor of the General, there is to be no let-up in his policy of "the best."

NEW YORK

New York is to have still another small theatre. It will be under the management of a woman and is to be known as the Nine o'Clock Theatre. Miss Helen Freeman is to guide the destinies of the new theatre and it is planned to open the playhouse during the present season. It will be located in Fifty-eighth street, west of Fifth avenue. The name of the theatre is derived from the opening hour of the performances. Its seating capacity will be two hundred and ninety-nine.

One of the largest moving picture theatres on the lower East Side will be erected over the block bounded by East Broadway and Division, Market and Forsyth streets, beneath the Manhattan Bridge. Friedman Bros., who hold the property under lease from the city, are having plans made by M. J. Harrison. The building will be two stories and will contain about a dozen stores. The site has a frontage of 156.8 feet on East Broadway, 157.3 feet on Division street, 141.9 feet on Market street and 139.9 feet on Forsyth street.

Alexander McDonald will open a picture theater, 103 feet 3 inches by 64 feet, to cost $20,000, at the southwest corner of Ditmas avenue and East Second street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

OHIO

Daniel Gutilla, who will open a new motion picture theatre at Bellefontaine, Ohio, has purchased a Wurlitzer pipe organ, costing $4,000. The organ will be installed as soon as possible, as Mr. Gutilla expects to open the theatre in the near future.

RHODE ISLAND

The Oakland Beach Post Office, the moving picture theatre and six stores contained in Walsh's block at Oakland Beach, together with two cottages, were burned to the ground early this morning. The loss is approximately $25,000. Along the front of the block facing the railroad track were a bowling alley, pool-room and barber shop. The motion picture theatre occupied the greater part of the second floor of the block. John F. Walsh, owner of the business block said the loss on the building was $10,000. The contents of the several stores and theatre, together with the destruction of the two cottages and their furnishings are estimated to make a total of $25,000.

TENNESSEE

The Lyric theatre, oldest playhouse in Chattanooga, is again to be thrown open to the public. Business men there have leased the theatre and first-class legitimate plays and high-grade motion picture features will be shown there. Among some of the film features that will prove bright spots in the Lyric season are "The Birth of a Nation," "Civilization," "Ramoni," and others. Howell Graham, pioneer motion picture exhibitor will be the manager of the Lyric, it is understood. The theatre will be renovated and other improvements made.

Fire, caused by an explosion from a picture film, damaged the Star theatre, a colored moving picture show at 412 Cedar street, Chattanooga, on August 10, to the extent of about $100. Several engines were brought to the scene in answer to an alarm turned in from box 16. The blaze was quickly extinguished. The loss to the picture machine was covered by insurance. The theatre is owned by B. T. Lusky. Several patrons were in the theatre at the time of the explosion, but left quietly.

Exhibitors!

Special juvenile performances at the regular motion picture theatres received more attention at the recent Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in New York City than any other one topic.

The club women are right up on their toes and they are going to be mighty active from now on!

You are going to hear from them. They are coming to you to ask you to work with them in providing what they want, and we have tried to show them the reasonable way to approach you.

To do this, the Motion Picture News prepared a pamphlet called the Juvenile Motion Picture News for distribution at the Convention. Thousands of copies are already in the hands of the club women. There are a few left. Every wide-awake exhibitor should have a copy. So long as they last you may have one.

The pamphlet tells of the co-operation necessary between the local exhibitor and the women's club, and just remember that there are 9,000 of these clubs including 2,500,000 women in their membership.

The main feature, however, is the list of films adapted to juvenile programs, with the name of the producer and of the exchange.

Better write to-day for a copy, if you want to be sure of getting one.

Two Years Old!

Paramount Pictures

Paramount was a full grown giant when it was born, August 31, 1914.

Twice every week since it began, it has continued the distribution of a Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco or Pallas, photoplay. Those pictures have improved and that service has grown more perfect, but—

It is the Paramount exhibitor who has marked the big progress of those two years.

Hundreds of palatial theatres have been built, made possible by Paramount service.

Thousands of exhibitors have become wealthy because Paramount Pictures have made their theatres the leaders of their towns.

Millions of patrons have been entertained by Paramount pictures, and are waiting to pour their money into your pocket when you become a Paramount exhibitor and—

THE NEW & GREATER VITAGRAPH

ALBERT E. SMITH
PRESIDENT

J. STUART BLACKTON
VICE-PRESIDENT

THE BEGINNING

Vitagraph's expansion into "The New and Greater Vitagraph," with a capital of $25,000,000, is the most important development in the history of motion pictures.

The Greater Vitagraph is the largest motion picture organization in the world. It has the largest capitalization, the most extensive resources, the most far-reaching facilities. It is the giant of the motion picture industry—not only in size and strength, but also in the supreme quality of its pictures.

YESTERDAY

Backed by the genius, courage and far-sightedness of its founders, Albert E. Smith and J. Stuart Blackton, Vitagraph has been for twenty years the recognized leader in every phase of motion picture production. From the beginning, Vitagraph has been the go-ahead influence, the tireless pace-maker, the dynamic force for better methods and better pictures.

Vitagraph produced the first news reel (showing "Dewey's Return") in 1898; the first animated cartoon ("Funny Faces of All Races") in 1906; the first five-reel feature ("Life of Moses") in 1909.

Vitagraph has invented new methods, processes and devices—it has improved and perfected many others. And always Vitagraph has led in the making of better, bigger, cleaner, more powerful motion pictures.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

Now comes the New and Greater Vitagraph, with unlimited capital at its command, and directed by the master minds of the industry.

For many months Vitagraph has been preparing for this new era in its history. The most talented and popular stars of both stage and screen have been engaged for the Greater Vitagraph pictures. The world's most famous authors have been drawn upon for stories of life and force, and swift, strong action.

Everyone of the Greater Vitagraph's tremendous resources, under the direction of the founders—Albert E. Smith and J. Stuart Blackton—have been concentrated on the production of the most wonderful, the greatest pictures ever filmed.

Some examples of the big things being done by the Greater Vitagraph are shown on the following pages. Read them.

THE NEW & GREATER VITAGRAPH

THE ONLY Photoplays That Ever Have Been Made or Ever Will Be Made Featuring

E. H. SOTHERN

Most Powerful and Talented Actor of the Modern Stage

One of "The New and Greater Vitagraph's" first achievements—a big, wonderful achievement—is the perpetuation of E. H. Sothern's marvelous histrionic ability on the film.

Mr. Sothern had announced his retirement from the stage. His great work—his strong, gripping personality—bade fair to become but a memory to the public. J. Stuart Blackton suggested that he appear in motion pictures.

"No," said Mr. Sothern. "I prefer to retire absolutely."

"But," urged Commodore Blackton, "think of what the world lost because the work of the old masters of the drama could not be preserved. What would you not give if you could see John McCullough on the screen today?"

This reference to his old associate caused Mr. Sothern to think again. And as a result he consented to appear in three powerful film-plays under the auspices of the Greater Vitagraph.

These great features will mark the permanent retirement of Mr. Sothern. When they are completed, this genius of dramatic art will not again appear behind the footlights or before the camera.

Strong, vivid and compelling, the E. H. Sothern-Vitagraph pictures form a fitting climax to a strikingly successful dramatic career

Peggy Hyland, supporting E. H. Sothern in "The Chattel." At the right, E. H. Sothern in "The Chattel," the first Sothern-Vitagraph picture. Released September 25th through V. L. S. E

THE NEW & GREATER VITAGRAPH

A Striking Example of the Bigger, Better, Super-Features of the Greater Vitagraph--

ANITA STEWART

In the Sensational Realistic Drama The COMBAT

Produced by the Famous Director RALPH INCE

This is another Greater Vitagraph achievement which forecasts the bigness, the power, the super-quality of the Greater Vitagraph productions.

No motion picture star in the world today has a stronger hold on the hearts of the public than dainty, winsome Anita Stewart. Her charming personality, combined with her great dramatic talent, has won the love and admiration of millions.

In "The Combat"--the startling, stirring story of the life struggle between two women—Miss Stewart is seen at her delightful best. And the entire dramatic force of both the star and the story has been fully developed under the superb direction of Ralph Ince, famous as the producer of big pictures.

Anita Stewart, Ralph Ince, "The Combat"! A combination of the unusual in acting, direction and story, and typical of the Greater Vitagragh ideals.

Released October 9th through V. L. S. E.

Never before has so remarkable a group of celebrated story-writers been called to the service of motion pictures as now appear on the literary roster of the Greater Vitagraph, the recent addition of O. Henry being the latest achievement.

Their work is the most powerful that can be found in modern literature. And all the Greater Vitagraph pictures are faithful pictorial dramatizations of the stories written by such famous pens.

Star, story, author—each the greatest. That is the big idea which makes the Greater Vitagraph productions overshadow all else in motion pictures.

Mr. Edward Thanhouser,
President of the Thanhouser Film Corp,
New Rochelle, N. Y.

My dear Mr. Thanhouser:

Ths production of The Shine Girl, I received last night. I immsdiatsly scrssned it before an audience of 100 prominsnt Bostonians this morning at the Theatre. Had special music to go with it, and it met with an unanimous approval. Personally it is one of the best productions I have sesn in a long while. The acting throughout was very well done, detail work perfect, photography wonderful. Ths star Miss Glady's Hulstte played the part of ths Shine Girl to perfection. One thing that I must msntion about her is that shs is very attractive and knows how to drsss well, which makes her very pleasing to the eye. The picture is one of the cleanest productions I ever saw put together, as thsre is nothing there to offend anybody. It makes a pleasant entertainment for all those who wish to go to a good, clean show, and if you continue making such pictures, you will always find a big market for them, for thsy are just what the people want, and just what the exhibitors also want.

Very sincerely yours,

Thos D Soriero

TRIANGLE PLAYS

Triangle Plays are so Good They Have Made All Other Motion Pictures Better

Two million people will see Triangle Picture Plays to-day—and again to-morrow and the day after that. These two million are discriminating American folks who know what they want and when they want it.

They have been patronizing Triangle Plays in ever increasing numbers because they found them to be of the highest type.

Triangle Plays have come to mean what the word "Sterling" means to silverware—the very highest in dramatic quality and personal talent.

Are you sure you are getting your share of the motion picture patronage in your city?

I CONGRATULATE YOU, MARY!

You're a pretty shrewd as well as pretty little girl.

Nature not only graced you with a lovely countenance, but liberally upholstered your brains as well.

You were quick to read the handwriting on the wall. You saw the end of the old system the moment I introduced a fairer, squarer relationship between star, producer and exhibitor--the only basis for mutual profit and satisfaction.

Your endorsement of my theory is the greatest mark of encouragement I have thus far received.

What stronger evidence could there be that the CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG FILM CORPORATION is organized on the most progressive basis, than your adoption in the MARY PICKFORD FILM CORPORATION of the very idea and ideal that I originated.

You have strengthened my hand and I in turn offer it to you in sincere appreciation.

Will you please express to my friend, Mr. Adolph Zukor, my deep sense of obligation. It is indeed delightful to encounter among one's co-workers a man so broad-guaged, that neither false pride nor short-sightedness can deter him from the adoption of an excellent plan, even though it is conceived by another.

What the Exhibitor Wants to Know

TWO issues ago we published an editorial on reviewing pictures for the exhibitor, and one response received covers four letter pages closely typewritten.

It is from a prominent Southern theatre owner.

The letter is critical of trade paper review in general, and constructively critical; and we are applying some of its good sound business sense to our own reviews, in our constant efforts to increase their usefulness to the exhibitor.

I MIGHT add in the same connection that the writer does not question the honesty of our reviews. Like a good business man, he assumes this. He simply asks that they be always clearly informative.

As for reviews which are adversely, and even vindictively, critical instead of being intelligently descriptive, he alludes to several specific instances of the kind, and says that the paper carrying the reviews is, in his estimation, guilty of criminal libel.

THESE particular reviews, which probably cater only to the reviewers' own tastes, were found to be utterly misleading to the exhibitor and his audience.

However, we are now dwelling upon the contents of this letter, not in relation to trade paper reviews, but rather with respect to the good practical points it contains of general interest.

WHAT the exhibitor wants always to know, what he must know about each picture if he is to play it for all it's worth, is the class and kind of people it will particularly appeal to.

He doesn't want simply "good" pictures. He doesn't expect that all kinds of people will call all kinds of pictures good. People differ widely in their choice of pictures and reading matter, as every good showman and every good editor knows.

What the exhibitor does want is good pictures of varying kinds, and then he wants to know just what kinds they are.

Knowing this, he will advertise them to the people to whose taste and interest they will particularly appeal. This is the essence of good showmanship.

THE writer cites an instance of where he took hold, some time ago, of a losing house. At the very outset he insisted upon booking a picture which the exchange man, with equal insistence, said was a "lemon."

Undoubtedly it was a "lemon" from the exchangeman's own viewpoint of what makes a picture popular. But the exhibitor believes that the picture would interest a considerable number of certain people, and he advertised to these people.

As a result the "lemon" packed the house, and since then judicious advertising of the same sort has made the theatre pay.

THIS is good showmanship. It simply consists of knowing just what pictures you've got and then letting all the people within the radius of your theatre's neighborhood know that you've got them.

We believe it is our function to contribute to the exhibitors' knowledge of what the pictures are—to the level best of our reviewers' ability. We also believe it will pay the producer and exchange manager to follow the same course—through their advertising and through their sales force.

THE percentage of possible patrons for picture theatres is very high to-day. Probably it is half our population, but if it is only fifteen per cent, there are plenty of people in the neighborhood of every house to fill it regularly.

These fifteen millions of people don't all want the same kind and length of pictures. They don't any more than they want the same kind of books, magazines and newspapers.

They don't all want five-reel pictures; nor do they all want one and two-reel pictures. They don't all want big star pictures, nor society dramas, nor mystery stories, nor melodrama, nor Dickens's stories, nor cartoons, nor travelogues.

IT is futile for any producer to try to fill the demands of all the fifteen millions. It is equally futile for him to assert, with strength of superlatives, that his pictures are the best ever. This assertion, first of all, isn't believed by any one, and, secondly, it is too indefinite to mean anything or attract anybody.

What the fifteen millions want to know and what the exhibitors should know in order to tell them is: just what kind of a picture it is.

HAVING this definite knowledge, the exhibitor—who has the sense and ability to advertise—can appeal roundly to a full one hundred per cent of his possible patrons, instead of the very much smaller number of patrons who come pretty regularly and take pot luck.

WHAT better service can the producer render the exhibitor than to define to him in advance the exact nature of each picture, the people to whom it will appeal, and why and how?

What better way is there to give each picture its fullest possible circulation—than to let all the people who would like to see it know fully about it through the exhibitor?

IF the producer and distributor do not see fit to perform this service, and if it is to be left to the trade papers alone, we will cheerfully and exclusively continue the work.

The information must come from some source; that's certain. Correct advance information on his pictures is the most important factor to-day in any exhibitor's success.

We should like to see less variance between the manufacturers' announcements of pictures and our own reviews of them; we should like to see the manufacturer convinced that advertising exaggerations are wasteful, futile and bad business in the long run.

We should like to see the same ability used in the exaggeration of announcements employed in the analysis of pictures, in indicating their appeal and in devising advertising helps for the exhibitor.

WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON.

Censorship and the Police Commissioner of Detroit

"GENTLEMEN, the problem of censorship is right up to you."

With these words, Police Commissioner John B. Gillespie of Detroit closed his address to the exhibitors of that city on the evening of August 18.

IN straightforward language, Commissioner Gillespie told the exhibitors assembled that he did not favor censorship, nor did he believe there was any need for censorship.

Not because Detroit was a complacent city. Not because he had no complaints to deal with, no hysterical reformers to combat. The protest he received, he declared, amounted to at least two hundred a week.

Nor was he opposed to censorship because he did not believe in the existence of the bad picture. But the fact that a bad film was shown, he said, did not necessarily mean that strict regulation governing all motion pictures was necessary.

CENSORING of motion pictures, declared the Commissioner, is really the exhibitors' problem, and they should—he believed they could—handle the problem without any outside assistance or interference.

"If you are big enough men, and I believe you are, judging from the amount of money invested," said he, "you ought to be able to take care of your business so that there will be no occasion for outside assistance from the police department to suppress bad pictures. We want your co-operation because we are both interested in the cultivation and development of our citizens and our children."

WHAT a refreshing contrast Commissioner Gillespie presents to the men who shout themselves hoarse over the vileness of the motion picture, and scream themselves purple in the face over the menace and contagion of the screen!

Here is a man who sees the motion picture in all its phases, who realizes fully the problems it brings, along with its blessings, who can accord the screen praise where it is merited and blame where it is deserved, and yet keep himself free of the censorship fever that has made fools and cowards of so many in the business and out of it.

DECIDEDLY censorship is the exhibitors' business—and no one else's. It is to be hoped the Detroit exhibitors will make it their business forthwith.

The exhibitors of Norfolk, Va., have already taken steps in that direction. In concert, they have just formally notified the officials of that city that no more objectionable pictures will be permitted to enter their theatres.

NOTHING can kill the censorship movement quicker throughout the country than such action as this by exhibitors everywhere.

It should have been done long ago. MOTION PICTURE NEWS has repeatedly advocated such a course. It if is followed now it will still be in time to save the day.

Conditions In the South

FRANK J. REMBUSCH, who has just made a tour of the Southern States and a serious study of conditions there, reports the murmurings of official consorship.

His impressions are worthy of the producer's serious consideration.

For one thing, there is the negro element to consider. The racial problem is a serious one and the South believes it has a firm grip upon the situation.

The entire section will not look with favor upon pictures introducing the white woman in a fashion to disturb this grip.

AGAIN, the South is very jealous of its home life and traditions. Particularly in the inland South the church, preeminently the Methodist and Baptist creeds, is a controlling influence.

The influence may be narrow and exacting in its standards of what constitutes literature and art, but the influence is there and will have to be reckoned with.

Christie Comedies Will Be Placed On Open Market

"While I Expected the Independent Exchanges to Be Ready to Receive the Output of Our Studios, I Never Looked Forward to Such Enthusiasm as They Have Evidenced," Says Producer of High Class Light Comedies —Middle of September Is Time Set for First Release Under New Plan

AL. E. CHRISTIE, one of the best directors of light comedy in the business, has announced the placing of his entire output on the open market. During the past three months since Mr. Christie severed his connections with Universal, he has been steadily producing one-reel comedies with the result that at the present time he has about ten subjects ready to distribute to the independent exchanges when he is ready to start releasing.

Mr. Christie has been connected with the motion picture business almost since its inception. He is thoroughly acquainted with the business of producing refined comedy. While with Universal he produced two comedies a week for over three years under the brand name of Nestor. These subjects were always in great demand by the Universal exchanges.

Mr. Christie with his brother Charles, the business manager of the Christie Film Company, left New York City, Saturday, August 27, after completing arrangements for the release of their pictures. It is their intention to get back to the studio in Hollywood as soon as possible to take up the work of production. Mr. Christie said to MOTION PICTURE NEWS before his departure:

"While I expected the independent exchanges to be ready to receive the output of our studios, I never looked forward to such enthusiasm as they evidenced. Practically the whole country has been sold so far and with even the first two pictures we release on the new basis, I expect to have thirty-seven prints working.

Decide on Open Market

"My brother and I only decided on the open market after a thorough investigation of all available channels of release. I violate no confidence when I say, that we received attractive offers from some of the largest program and feature concerns in the country. But it is my belief that through the open market is the shortest and quickest way to reach the exhibitor. Under the arrangements that I have made, the exhibitor can secure Christie comedies without tying himself up to a contract for other pictures which he does not desire particularly to run. That the exchanges have been so eager to receive our pictures, I take as almost certain proof that the proposition will be a success.

"I want particularly to impress upon the showman that Christie comedies are no new venture in the motion picture field. They have proven their value in the past and I mean to make them better in the future. The casts that appear in our comedies are the same with only two exceptions as they were when the pictures appeared as Nestors with Universal. At present I have two companies, one under my own direction and the other in charge of Horace Davey. If things continue to develop along present lines it will not be long before I add still another aggregation of players.

Al Christie, Betty Compson, Billie Rhodes

"Present arrangements made by my brother and I with the independent exchanges call for one one-reel comedy each week, and every two weeks a subject of longer length, probably two reels. This program may be changed shortly, but we are waiting to see how the first releases go. Some of the exchangemen already familiar with my brand of comedy have requested that we start right off with a one and a two reeler each week, but whether or not this course will be followed we will learn very soon.

"Our studio in Hollywood is next to the best equipped comedy plant on the coast—for our purposes it is the best. We have plenty of space for settings, a large assortment of properties and our own developing and printing plant. Even a one-reel comedy should be laid in tasteful settings and I intend to pay attention to this end of the production as well as the others.

"The comedies we have to offer," continued Mr. Christie, "embrace every variety except slapstick. Light comedy, dependent upon humorous situations to carry it over with opportunities that give the players a real chance to act are more and more coming into public favor. However, the children and a lot of grownups still like the 'chase' picture, the burlesque and the rapid-fire farce. So you see we get the audiences going and coming as it were."

First Release in Middle of September

The first release of the Christie Film Company will fall on a Monday, probably in the middle of September, while other single reelers will follow on every Monday thereafter. The feature comedies will be released on alternate weeks.

The stars and support under the Christie banner deserve mention. Billie Rhodes, leading lady, is one of the most popular of comediennes, bright, vivacious and skilled in her work. Betty Compson, who plays leads with the other company, is also gaining popularity with each new release. She is undoubtedly one of the prettiest girls on the screen today and her presence adds much to the value of any picture. Dave Morris and Eddie Barry have a great appreciation for eccentric parts, while Neal Burns and Harry Ham handle straight roles adequately, the former sometimes appearing in character as well.

In support of these players there are Harry Rattenberry, Stella Adams, Gus Alexander, Ethel Lynne, Jane Waller, Nolan Leary and others, most of them people whose faces are familiar to picture audiences throughout the country.

CLEVELAND COMPANY MAKES "SNOW WHITE"

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 26.

Under the direction of Charles Weston, the Regent Photo Plays Company recently made a four-reel picture of the beautiful fairy tale "Snow White" in which about three hundred children, none over sixteen years of age, participated.

William Ganson Rose, who is at the head of the Regent Photo Play Company, just returned from New York, where he gave an exhibition of "Snow White" to several large motion picture concerns, all of whom think that there is a large market open for good pictures that will appeal to children.

The picture is now being reduced from four reels to three so as to make the action run a little faster. It has not yet been decided whether the company will sell the picture outright, or whether they will lease it on state rights. Several inquiries for it have already been made.

THREE NEW ACTRESSES ADDED TO FINE ARTS COMPANY

Winifred Westover, Mildred Harris, and Pauline Stark have been made members of the Fine Arts stock company. The first named made her debut in "Poor Papa." Miss Harris is playing in "The Old Folks at Home," and the last named is appearing opposite Wilfred Lucas in "Rummy."

Barney Bernard in "Phantom Fortunes"; Lucille Lee Stewart in "His Wife's Good Name"; E. H. Sothern and Peggy Hyland in "The Chattel"

E. K. LINCOLN WILL APPEAR IN "JIMMY DALE" SERIES

"Jimmie Dale, Alias 'The Grey Seal,'" will be released to the public by the Monmouth Film Corporation on October 16, and will appear weekly thereafter for sixteen weeks. E. K. Lincoln, Paul Panzer, Edna Hunke and Doris Mitchell lead the cast.

When George Barr McCutcheon's famous romance "Graustark" was dramatized for the stage, E. K. Lincoln was the unanimous selection for the leading role. Recognizing his qualities the Vitagraph Company obtained his services and his appearance in "The Million Bid" marked the opening attraction at the Vitagraph theatre. A special engagement previous to this with the World Film featured him in such well-known photoplays as "The World Against Him" and "The Almighty Dollar."

The events which marked his career with the E. K. Lincoln players are well remembered. His studio is at Grantwood, N. J.

FASOLD, PATHE NEWS, IS WITH HUGHES ON HIS TOUR OF THE COUNTRY

Karl W. Fasold, representing the Pathe News, is on tour with Charles Evan Hughes, Republican candidate for President, and his party who are touring the country in the preliminary campaign. Mr. Fasold was in Detroit on August 7, which was one of the first stops of the party. He made some excellent pictures of Mr. Hughes which were later shown at a number of the Detroit theatres. In all cities which Mr. Hughes visits Mr. Fasold is on the job to make motion pictures, which later become a part of the Pathe News and which are also shown as a special attraction by local exhibitors.

Sothern in "The Chattel" from "V" Last Week in Month

Other September Releases from the Company Include "His Wife's Good Name" on the 11th, "Through the Wall" on the 18th, and "Scarlet Runner"

ON Vitagraph's fall program, such names as E. H. Sothern, Barney Bernard, Peggy Hyland, Anita Stewart, Lillian Walker, William Duncan, Naomi Childers and Marc MacDermott stand out prominently in the all-star casts of the Blue Ribbon Features now ready, for release through V-L-S-E.

Starting on September 4, Vitagraph presents the famous Hebrew comedian, Barney Bernard, who will make his screen bow in "Phantom Fortunes," an original story from the pen of Samuel Tauber. Barney Bernard's name and fame are known for his inimitable characterization of Abe Potash, in "Potash and Perlmutter."

On September 11, Vitagraph will release "His Wife's Good Name," featuring Lucille Lee Stewart. This is a drama in which Miss Stewart has an exceptionally good opportunity to prove that she is one of the screen's foremost emotional actresses.

On September 18, Vitagraph will release "Through the Wall," a drama of a super criminal written by Cleveland Moffett. Nell Shipman, William Duncan and George Holt are featured. The picture is a Western Vitagraph that can be put in the same category as "God's Country and the Woman," and other pictures directed by Hollin S. Sturgeon.

On the last week in September the long-awaited Vitagraph-Sothern release will make its appearance. E. H. Sothern has for his first appearance in motion pictures a play called "The Chattel," written by Paul West. Supporting Mr. Sothern in "The Chattel," is the famous English beauty, Peggy Hyland. Fred Thomson, will direct Mr. Sothern in all of his Vitagraph releases.

Lillian Walker will be seen this fall in a screen version of "The Blue Envelope Mystery." Wilfred North has directed this mystery story, which was written by Sophie Kerr.

What is said to be one of the finest pictures which Anita Stewart has ever done is "The Combat," which will be a fall release. Ralph W. Ince is responsible for the direction of Miss Stewart in this picture.

During the month of September Earle Williams makes his bow at the wheel of "The Scarlet Runner," Vitagraph's Mile-a-Minute motor series in twelve episodes adapted from the book written by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. Mr. Williams plays the lead in every episode, each a complete story. As the genial Christopher Race, owner of "The Scarlet Runner," a motor which is famous for its speed, Mr. Williams succeeds in getting mixed up into one mysterious and thrilling adventure after another.

Twelve beautiful and talented young women appear in the various episodes of "The Scarlet Runner." Among them are Edith Storey, Lillian Tucker, Marguerite Blake, Zena Keefe, Betty Howe, Gypsy O'Brien, Adele Kelly, Billie Billings and Jean Stuart. The first episode of "The Scarlet Runner," entitled "The Car and His Majesty," and directed by William P. S. Earle will be released September 18. Mr. Earle also directed "The Jacobean House," the fourth episode and Wally Van has directed the other ten two-part episodes.

"CIVILIZATION" ENDORSED BY THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY

"Civilization," the Ince cinema spectacle, has received the distinction of endorsement at the hands of the theosophical body.

A. C. Warrington, national president of the American Section of the Theosophical Society, with offices at Krotona, Hollywood, Calif., has written to Mr. Ince to state that theosophists regard "Civilization" as a great theosophical play in all respects, and it should make a strong appeal to members of that body.

Metro Announces Autumn and Winter Plans

"Romeo and Juliet," Starring Bushman and Beverly Bayne, Will Be Ready in First Week of October—Elaborate Publicity Campaign Is to Be Conducted from Now Until the Picture Goes to the Exhibitors—Company Declares a Dividend of Twelve Per Cent. on Its Stock

Center Panel, Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in Two Scenes from Metro's "Romeo and Juliet"; on Left Emmy Wehlen, on Right Nance O'Neil

METRO'S fall and early winter plans, which have just been announced in the general offices of that corporation in the Longacre Building, include the most extensive program and a greater variety of activities than this company ever before prepared. First in importance, perhaps, is the definite announcement that the production of "Romeo and Juliet," with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in the title roles, will be ready for release the first week in October.

Between now and the release date, Metro will conduct an elaborate publicity and advertising campaign in the interest of "Romeo and Juliet."

Metro which recently declared a dividend of 12 per cent. on its stock, has appropriated a fund of $500,000 to be used in the production of the Bushman-Bayne serial. It will consist of fourteen episodes in two reels each.

W. Christy Cabanne, who heads the list of Triangle directors, and who has been D. W. Griffith's chief lieutenant for seven years, has been engaged by Metro to direct the serial.

In the meantinme, Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne have begun work on another five-part Metro play called "A Diplomatic Romance." They are now in Washington, D. C., with a company of players, where all of the exterior scenes and many interiors will be photographed. Charles Horan, who has been directing Lionel Barrymore in Metro productions, will direct the Bushman-Bayne Company in "A Diplomatic Romance." P. Thad. Vulkman will assist in the direction. This feature will be released on the Metro program October 16.

Ethel Barrymore in "Helena Ritchie"

Ethel Barrymore, who is under a long time contract to appear in Metro plays, will next be seen in "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie." This will be a five-part picturization of the play of the same name by Margaret Deland, and a strong supporting cast of stage and screen artists is being engaged, to appear with Miss Barrymore.

The fall releases of features in which Mme. Petrova is starred will include "The Secret of Eve," "Extravagance" and "The Weaker Sex." Two of these features are almost completed and the third will be put in readiness for release upon the return of Mme. Petrova from Bar Harbor, Maine, where she is spending a brief vacation.

Emmy Wehlen, who has just been seen in "The Pretenders," a recent Metro-Rolfe production, has signed a long time contract, and hereafter will appear regularly upon the Metro program. In addition to her work in Metro pictures, Miss Wehlen has been engaged as one of the stellar lights in the big Dillingham and Ziegfeld musical production, "The Century Girl," at the Century theatre.

Viola Dana will be seen on the Metro program September 4, in "The Light of Happiness." This feature was written and directed by John H. Collins. "Mister 44," with Harold Lockwood and May Allison in the stellar roles, will be released September 11. This is a picturization of the novel of the same name by E. J. Bath, and was scenarioized by Charles A. Taylor. Henry Otto is directing the production.

"The Wheel of Justice" is the name of the five-part feature in which Emily Stevens is starred. She is supported by Frank Mills and a big cast. "The Wheel of Justice" deals with the subject of circumstantial evidence and will be released September 18. George D. Baker is directing this feature.

Next Mabel Taliaferro Picture

Mabel Taliaferro, who is now working exclusively in Metro screen productions, will next be seen in "The Light O' Love." It is a story with the action laid along the coast of Maine, where Miss Taliaferro and her company are now at work. Edwin Carewe is directing the production and it will be released September 25.

William Nigh, the Metro director, who not only writes and directs his own features, but stars in many of them, will be seen on the Metro program in "Life's Shadows" on October 2. Irene Howley, who has been seen in other Metro plays, is starred with Mr. Nigh in "Life's Shadows." There is a supporting cast including Robert Elliott, Roy Clair and Kathleen Allairs. David Thompson assisted in the direction of the feature.

Nance O'Neil, who is a new star on the Metro program, will make her first appearance in "The Iron Woman," October 9. Miss O'Neil is supported by a cast of stellar proportions, which includes Alfred Hichman, Christine Mayo, Evelyn Brent, Louise Hale, Einar Linden, and others. Carl Harbaugh is directing this production, which is an adaptation of the novel of the same name by Margaret Deland.

"A Diplomatic Romance," with Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne, released October 16, will be followed by "Gates of Eden," with Viola Dana in the starring role. Mr. Collins is directing this feature and it will be released October 23.

Lionel Barrymore will be seen in "The Brand of Cowardice" on October 30. John W. Noble, who directed the big "Romeo and Juliet" production, is directing the Barrymore picture. This will be followed on November 6 with "Big Tremaine," with Harold Lockwood and May Allison starred. "Big Tremaine" is a picturization of the popular novel of the same name, and it will be directed by Henry Otto.

Emily Stevens in "Infelice"

Emily Stevens will be seen again on the Metro program, November 13, in "Infelice." Miss Stevens is to star on Broadway this season in "The Unchastened Woman," which proved a tremendous success in New York last season. She will not have a new play until after New Years.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, will be seen every week in a new one-reel comedy. Ralph Herz, the comedian, will also make a one-reel comedy every week under the direction of "Billy" Quirk. The weekly Metro Travelogue, will continue as a feature on the Metro program.

Metro has taken over another studio in New York City. The old Victor studio, located at Forty-third street and Tenth avenue, has been engaged and after it is overhauled and rearranged it will be the home of the Bushman Bayne players. The Herz comedies will also be produced there on the third floor of the studio.

FRANK POWELL DISCOVERS VETA SEARL

Frank Powell, at work on his first feature to be released under his own banner, has made another discovery in the person of Veta Searl, an actress whom he has already awarded a part in support of Creighton Hale, Linda A. Griffith and Sheldon Lewis. Mr. Powell's discoveries are well worth watching, for it will be remembered that he was largely responsible for the start given Blanche Sweet with Biograph, and the introduction of Theda Bara to the screen. "Miss Searl," says Mr. Powell, "possesses in abundance those qualities which make for prompt and lasting screen success. She has a wonderful personality and will undoubtedly be heard from."

"METER IN THE KITCHEN," WITH IVY CLOSE FOR KALEM

A one-reel comedy novelty is promised from the Kalem Jacksonville studio, where the Ivy Close company is working on "Meter in the Kitchen." With the exception of a few scenes at the opening of this picture all the action is being photographed at night, the comedy detailing the happenings that followed the shutting off the gas in a country town.

Director Ellis has been fortunate in securing some unusually striking scenes by the night photography. Henry Murdoch, Mary Taylor Ross and William McKey are in the cast.

"Meter in the Kitchen" is scheduled for release on Friday, September 8.

STILLMAN THEATRE TO SHOW PICKFORD AND YOUNG PICTURES

Cleveland, O., Aug. 26.

In addition to the pictures produced by the Mary Pickford Film Corporation, the new Stillman theatre in Cleveland, may also book the productions of the Clara Kimball Company. The theatre is to open late next month. It is situated next to the Statler and is expected to be one of the finest film houses between New York and Chicago. It will share the Paramount program with the Knickerbocker.

Serials and Series Take Strong Hold on Washington

"Gloria's Romance," "The Mysteries of Myra," "Beatrice Fairfax," "Grip of Evil," "Liberty," "Timothy Dobbs" and Others Find Favor with Public

Special to Motion Picture News.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.

SOMEHOW serials and series have taken a firm hold on the public of Washington. "Gloria's Romance," with Billie Burke, had proved a big drawing card at Moore's Garden theatre, in the heart of the downtown district. The people have shown as intense interest in this as in the continued story of the weekly magazine.

"The Mysteries of Myra" at the Plaza, another Moore house in the same block, has kept up patronage despite season and weather. The "Beatrice Fairfax" series at this same house promises to be equally as impelling to patrons. These two offerings from the International Film Service have also found favor in the residential sections and Mr. Fritz B. Wathne, manager of the local exchange, reports close booking for both throughout his territory.

The Pathe series, "The Grip of Evil," is being featured for several days at the Leader in the down-town section.

"Liberty," from the Universal exchange, has been given first showing at the Hippodrome. Its patriotic theme has caught popular favor in the light of the spirit of the hour. Young America has especially made manifest its approval by frequent outbursts during the showing of "Liberty." The Hippodrome has also captured the first showing of the "Timothy Dobbs" series which has met popular favor. From bookings at the Universal offices, "Liberty" and "Timothy Dobbs" are in unusual demand throughout this territory.

The Kernel Nutt comedies, starring Frank Daniels, have proved the cause of regular attendances on days of their showing at the Garden, Strand, Penn Gardens, and other houses. The same can be said of the Drew comedies at Loew's Columbia and elsewhere.

The series featuring the intelligent monkeys, Napoleon and Sally, offered by the E. and R. Jungle Film Company is sure to bring capacity houses.

The news weeklies are always in demand. The international, Pathe, Mutual and Universal are proclaimed by exhibitors to be excellent drawing cards not only among the men, but among the women and youngsters as well.

Exhibitors report that cartoons have proved profitable subjects for increasing attendance on evenings that were once unpopular. The masculine contingent especially find these food for laughter.

All this points to a popularity of "continued stories" on the screen and a "regular" attendance on certain days for a specific reason. It also points to a standardizing of the exhibiting end of the industry as against the hap-hazard show and the irregular attendnce.

New York League Asks Exchanges to Reduce Prices

Epidemic of Infantile Paralysis Hits Many Theatres Hard—Exchangemen Express Willingness to Meet Request on Basis of Fairness and Reason

AFTER a meeting marked by long and earnest argument, the New York branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League decided on August 25 to ask exchange managers to continue the present reduced scale of prices until the epidemic of infantile paralysis has abated and confidence restored.

The action was taken after two exchangemen had expressed their views, and announced their willingness to meet the exhibitors on any possible basis of fairness and reason. E. M. Saunders, manager of the Metro exchanges, declared that it was his intention to deal with each exhibitor separately, and not with the organization as a whole, as a flat rate of reduction is bound to work unfairly to many exhibitors. A number of exhibitors in Greater New York, he pointed out, have not been affected by the scourge of infantile paralysis and several are even doing increased business. It is manifestly unfair, in his view, to grant these exhibitors a reduction equal to that granted to the man whose business has felt the blow heavily.

A counter proposition was then made that any disagreement as to price between exhibitor and exchange should be left to a committee on arbitration, to be headed by President Lee Ochs. This was rejected after a hot debate, as it offered representation of the exhibitors' side only, and implied an inability on the part of the exhibitors to transact their ordinary business.

Nearly all the exchanges had signified their willingness to let the matter stand as at present until the epidemic scare is over; the original agreement provided for the restoration of normal prices on August 28, but the exhibitors showed that conditions had not improved as rapidly as they expected. The Metro exchanges saw the need of putting back the price to its normal level in certain cases, rather than continuing the reduction on a flat basis to include all exhibitors.

Joseph Partridge, of the V-L-S-E Exchanges, was also present. He declared his position to be such that he was outside the controversy, as he made no contracts and booked from week to week, at varied scale of prices. Nevertheless, he declared his intention to meet the exhibitors in any discussion of the matter, and announced that any reductions granted would be given first to members of the League, because of their affiliation.

A preliminary meeting was held on Wednesday, August 23, at which several exchange heads were present, notably Mr. Rogers of Fox Film Corporation, Mr. Sherry of the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company and Mr. Partridge. At that meeting both Messrs Sherry and Rogers expressed their inclination to postpone the return to original prices for the time being.

Famous Players Company Touches Third Year Mark

Since Its Inception, the Organization, Under the Guidance of Adolph Zukor, Has Brought Out Many Noted Stage Stars on the Screen—It Was the First Company to Devote Itself Exclusively to the Production of Feature Pictures Presenting Legitimate Players at the Top of Their Profession

WITH the coming of September, the Famous Players Film Company rounds out its third year as the producer of a program of motion picture features, under the guidance of Adolph Zukor, who has remained constantly at the helm ever since the inception of the company.

The first organization to devote itself exclusively to the production of feature pictures in which celebrated stage stars were presented, the Famous Players Film Company, likewise formed the nucleus and the inspiration for the organizing of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, on the program of which it is associated with the Lasky, Morosco and Pallas productions. The present Paramount organization is based upon the original Famous Players exchanges which were originally established to distribute the products of that concern.

With the decision to expand that method of distribution and to enlarge the program to 104 productions a year, a meeting of these various exchange heads was called in New York in July, 1913, by Mr. Zukor, with a view to determining upon a mutually satisfactory basis of operation. Out of this meeting there grew the Paramount system which is today the distribution medium of the Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco, and Pallas pictures, in the United States.

The production of the first two concerns are released throughout the rest of the world by joint arrangement which has been maintained for the past two years, and which is still further strengthened by the recently formed Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, by which these two concerns were united.

List of Many Successes

The launching of its program in 1913 by the Famous Players Company was preceded by the presentation of great stars on the screen, the first of these being Sarah Bernhardt, who starred in "Queen Elizabeth." Mme. Bernhardt was followed by James K. Hackett. The first of the productions on the actual program was Mrs. Fiske in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

On September 10, Mary Pickford, fresh from her triumph on the stage in "A Good Little Devil," was first presented in a five-reel feature by the Famous Players when she appeared in "In the Bishop's Carriage." She later starred in an adaptation of "A Good Little Devil" in the opening scenes of which appeared David Belasco, under whose direction she had been starred on the stage.

In January, 1914, there was introduced to the photoplay another star, who was destined to gain great popularity, in John Barrymore, who first appeared in "An American Citizen." The next of the company's permanent stars to be introduced was Marguerite Clark, who captured the motion picture public over night by her delightful performance in "Wildflower," in which she appeared October 15, 1914.

Three months later another luminary flashed upon the screen, who has since won great favor, when Marie Doro was introduced in "The Morals of Marcus" in January. April saw the introduction on the program of Hazel Dawn in an adaptation of "Niobe," after her previous appearance in "One of our Girls," which she followed by several successful productions.

Meanwhile, Pauline Frederick, her great success in "Innocent" and "Joseph and His Brethren" still in the minds of the public, had been sent abroad to England, France and Italy for the purpose of adapting Hall Caine's celebrated novel and play, "The Eternal City." This spectacular production opened at the Astor theatre in April, and immediately won Miss Frederick recognition.

With these artistes as a nucleus, the Famous Players contributed a series of notable productions to the Paramount program introducing various well-known stars to the screen from time to time. Then in June of the current year, another permanent acquisition was made in the person of Ann Pennington of "Ziegfeld Follies" fame, who scored a great success in "Susie Snowflake."

Now there is scheduled for appearance shortly the internationally celebrated dancing pair, Maurice and Florence Walton, who are to star in "The Quest of Life," an adaptation of the English play "Ellen Young."

In all, the Famous Players Company has introduced upon the screen over thirty well-known stage favorites during the course of its four years of existence, and has produced 135 feature photoplays, a record that is unapproached by any other producing concern in the business. Concerning these achievements, Adolph Zukor, the guiding spirit of the company, is very modest. After giving due credit to his associates for the progress thus far made by the organization, Mr. Zukor says:

Statement by President Zukor

"While it is true that we have, in a measure, scored a success, still that record of achievement during the last four years is only of interest insofar as it sets a mark which must be surpassed during the future. In a business that is growing and changing as rapidly as this, it scarcely behooves me to give much thought to the past, except as it indicated the probable course of the future.

"When you consider that men of every walk of life have gone into the motion picture business and that even the veterans of the industry are only its first generation, so to speak, there is small wonder that a great many loose ends should develop in every branch. Especially is this true of the exhibitors, many of whom are men who jumped directly from commercial pursuits to the management of their own houses. It cannot be expected of them that they would readily learn the secrets of a very complicated and hazardous undertaking and it is only natural that they should have to be shown.

"When I make these observations, I want it distinctly understood that I am not criticizing or condemning the exhibitor, but stating facts which I sincerely trust will be remedied. There is no suggestion of the lofty pedestal of achievement in my mental attitude, for I realize very keenly that many improvements must be made in the production of pictures as well as in their exhibition. Far from decrying the exhibitor, I am rejoicing at the fact that we are nearer together than we were ever before in the history of the industry, and I am glad that there is every prospect of our being linked even closer together in the future.

"What I am hoping and striving for is the time when 100 per cent. of the value of a picture will be gotten out of it in the theatres and as we improve the quality of our pictures it will be inspiring to know that their increased value will be realized by the exhibitors.

"It was just about one year ago—September 11, to be exact—that our studio in Twenty-sixth street was totally destroyed by fire. I am glad to say that the temporary inconveniences suffered at that time are but a memory now, and that the effects of the fire have been completely nullified during the year.

"Of course the most recent event of importance was the merger of the Famous Players and Lasky companies, which I believe to be of the greatest importance from an economical and productive standpoint. All in all, these last three years have been marked by reasonable progress, but I feel sure that the months to come will see even greater fields of endeavor undertaken.

RITER IS ALLOTTED MIDDLE WEST TERRITORY FOR MELIES

W. C. Riter, who has represented the Melies Manufacturing Company on the Pacific Coast, visited the New York office last week and has now been alloted the Middle West territory, with headquarters in Chicago, Illinois. Mr. Riter is a live, hustling young man who appreciates the quality of Knickerbocker Star features and Vim Comedies, released through General Film service, and is an enthusiastic salesman in consequence.

Mr. Riter knows pictures from the exhibitors' standpoint, having been press representative for the American and Liberty theatres in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1912. He later became assistant manager of the American theatre, and held this until the fall of 1913, resigning to accept the position of booker in the Salt Lake office of the General Film Company, where he was later made assistant manager. From there he was transferred to the Denver branch in the same position.

BENDELL SEES BIG BUSINESS AHEAD

R. S. Bendell, manager of the Bluebird productions for Michigan, reports business unprecedented and far beyond anything anticipated. Michigan Bluebird headquartesr are in the Universal Exchange Building at Fort and Cass avenues.

Irving Nearly Completes "Conquest of Canaan" for Frohman

Sherill Is Considering Five Big Plays from One of the Foremost Theatrical Concerns—These Productions Are to Be Filmed by Irving

UNDER the direction of George Irving, the next Frohman Amusement Company's production, "The Conquest of Canaan," is nearing completion after seven weeks of perfect weather conditions, ideal work on the part of the cast and more than satisfactory studio arrangements.

Having created "Jaffrey," William J. Locke's delightful story, for William R. Hearst's International Service, and having seen this production granted the honor of initiating that company's feature releasing, Mr. Sherrill, head of the Frohman concern, again sought the market of popular novels for a following feature, and Booth Tarkington's story was secured.

"The Conquest of Canaan," in its celluloid form, will have a cast of players, almost of the all-star variety.

Edith Taliaferro and Jack Sherrill, who was in "Just Out of College" and "Then I'll Come Back to You," are handling the two principal roles, with Ralph Delmore playing Judge Pike.

These three characters were the great outstanding incidents in the Tarkington novel, while the roles of Mamie Pike, played by Marie Edith Wells, Claudine portrayed by Gene La Motte. The Squire played by David Davies, and Peter, as played by Martin Mann, have been enlarged in scope, so that the tale has an added interest and added features which Mr. Tarkington himself indorsed after reading the scenario.

Just what form of releasing the Frohman Amusement Corporation will assume is not definitely known as yet. Mr. Sherrill and Harry Reichenbach are holding daily conferences with several of the program heads. Since "Jaffrey," "What Happened at 22," "Then I'll Come Back to You," and "Body and Soul" created so favorable an impression all over the country, various concerns have endeavored to secure options on Frohman material, but the concern's policy will not be shaped until further activities in the industry show whether open market or programs are to dominate.

The Frohman Company has under option now five big plays which were secured last week from one of the foremost theatrical producing concerns. These plays will be given the same thorough production as have these made under Mr. Irving in the past.

An announcement of more than ordinary import to the trade in general, will be made shortly by the Frohman Company. It will concern, it is said, one of the most successful plays ever produced, in which one of the screen's most popular personalities will play the lead.

For "The Conquest of Canaan," the fourteen principals and camera crews have traveled no less than twenty-four hundred miles in order to procure the proper locations and gain the local color and atmosphere called for by the author's suggestions.

In addition to those mentioned above, the cast of "The Conquest of Canaan" will contain John Sutherland, May Price, Madeline Cadeiux, Ralph Dean, Howard Messimir, George Melville, Frances Lincoln, Walter Heirs, and Jack Hopkins. The story contains three hundred and fifty-one scenes, and will, in all probability, be in six reels.

Burton Holmes Comes Back With New Material for Films

Beginning with September, Paramount Will Release Four Travel Pictures Devoted to Scotland and Ireland—Traveloguer Brings Striking Canadian Scenes

BURTON HOLMES, traveler and lecturer whose motion pictures have been released exclusively through the Paramount Pictures Corporation, has returned from his summer journeyings, during which he was in search of new material. He is now deep in the preparation of five new travelogues to be delivered by him personally in the principal cities throughout the country during the coming season, and the preparation of making new weekly travel pictures for Paramount.

This summer Mr. Holmes spent in Canada, taking pictures of the principal points of interest from Nova Scotia, "The Land of Evangeline," to Victoria and Vancouver. His lists of new subjects will comprise "Canada, Coast to Coast," "The Canadian Rockies," "La Belle France," "The Fatherland, the Germany of the Germans," and "Imperial Britain."

Mr. Holmes has taken thousands of feet of film to be released by Paramount and all of his Canadian subjects are absolutely new in every detail, while his European subjects abound in new and interesting travel points.

Beginning with September, Mr. Holmes' first four Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Picture releases will be devoted to Scotland and Ireland. Two releases on Scotland, one release on Ireland and another divided between the two countries. On these personally conducted "easy chair journeys" Mr. Holmes proves that all of Great Britain that is beautiful is not exclusively within the boundaries of England alone, nor does England fail to share with her neighbors the quaint and the picturesque, as well as the lovely and manly, in her sons and daughters and their habitations.

This little series of travels will take Mr. Holmes' fellow-travelers to the principal cities as well as through the lovely lake districts, to the Highlands, to the ship-building yards on the Clyde, to Edinboro Castle, to the Ballibunion Mono-railway, to Achill Island and to Fingal's Cave.

Selig Checks Rumors of "Amalgamation" for His Company

"I Am Considering, However, Plans Beneficial to the Organization and to the Picture Play Public" He Says, "and These Will Be Announced in Detail in Due Time"

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 26.

"When there is any news interesting to the pictureplay public or to the trade the same will be authoritatively announced," states William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, "I would say that the many rumors that seem to emanate from New York concerning the plans of the Selig Company are for the most part unfounded," continued Mr. Selig. "Speaking for the Selig Company I would state that we have completed no 'organization' and entered no 'amalgamation' despite the many and varied rumors to the contrary. It is true that I am considering plans beneficial to the Selig Company and to the pictureplay public. These will be announced correctly and in detail in due time.

"It is true that 'The Country That God Forgot,' the five-reel western drama, will not be released through V-L-S-E, nor will the original date, August 21, be observed. In many respects it is a worthy successor to 'The Spoilers,' although a picture of entirely different atmosphere. The correct date and the method of releasing this picture will be announced at the proper time. 'The Country That God Forgot' gives Tom Santschi many opportunities for clever character delineation and he is ably supported by Mary Charleson and George Fawcett. I hope to have some definite announcements to make concerning release plans for 'The Crisis' soon."

HE LIKES ALL PARTS OF THE "NEWS"

Motion Pictures News,
New York City.

Gentlemen.—There is no special part of the magazine that I can praise more than another. To put it in as few words as possible and to cover everything, one can truly say Motion Picture News is all to the good, the most instructive magazine in the trade published.

Yours very truly,

UNGER BOOKS METROS IN OAKLAND THEATRE

The Reliance theatre on San Pablo avenue, Oakland, Cal., has succeeded in getting first-run Metro pictures in that city, and will show these four days a week. J. J. Unger, district manager for the Metro Pictures Service, is as delighted to have the pictures placed in this fine new house as the management of the latter is to secure this service.

September Set by Steiner for Work on Next Serial

Director-General of Serial Film Company Promises Novelties in Production to Follow "The Yellow Menace," Released Through Unity Sales Corporation—"We Stand on the Quality and Strength of Our Pictures," He Says, in Speaking of Film Just Put on Market

HAVING set a new mark in the production of serials, with "The Yellow Menace," William N. Steiner, director-general of the Serial Film Company, is now arranging to start work on a new serial toward the end of September. The new production, he promises, will be something of a surprise in several ways, and in its production Mr. Steiner will follow much the same policy as he laid down in the filming of "The Yellow Menace," which is to be released through the Unity Sales Corporation, beginning Labor Day.

The novelty in connection with "The Yellow Menace," from the exhibitors' standpoint, is that the entire serial, of sixteen two-reel episodes, is completed, and any or all of the chapters may be seen at the exchanges before the production is booked. This is the first time in the history of motion pictures that such a thing has been done; it means that the exhibitor need not judge of the serial with the first two or three episodes as a sample, but may see the whole thing, if he desires, at any of the Unity exchanges.

"This is an immense advantage," said "Big Bill" Steiner, in discussing his work this week, "and it has already demonstrated its value, as the entire rights to territory in North America have been sold in advance of the release of the first chapter. Instead of the exhibitor being compelled to take so much on faith—a system which has proved disastrous more than once—he can walk into any of the exchanges and see the first, second, tenth and sixteenth chapters of 'The Yellow Menace,' or the whole sixteen if he so desires. The manager of one of the largest circuits in the East did the latter; he came in and sat through the whole sixteen—and then booked them.

"This means that we stand on the quality and strength of our production. It is just like selling merchandise; we lay them on the counter and let the buyer look them over. In addition, we are showing stills from every chapter at our various exchanges. We have compiled a little booklet, which exhibitors will distribute to their audiences with the showing of the first chapter. This booklet contains a still from each episode, and a synopsis of the story of each episode clear through to the finish. It will make it unnecessary for the exhibitor to get out heralds, and in addition, will stimulate interest on the part of the audience and strengthen the desire to see the story through.

Many Exhibitor Helps Offered by Unity

"This is only one of the aids for the exhibitor which have been prepared by the Unity people. The story, novelized by Louis Tracy, the noted English novelist, will appear in serial form in the New York World, Chicago Herald and other important newspapers in the leading cities all over the country, simultaneous with the release of the film on Labor Day. It has also been billboarded everywhere, and an attractive line of paper is on hand. This is the first time so thorough a campaign in the interests of the exhibitor has been prepared and put into operation before the films were released.

William Steiner

"I am glad personally that the Unity Sales Corporation has undertaken the distribution of 'The Yellow Menace.' They make their office a congenial place for the exchange men to drop into and the visitor is treated with great courtesy and consideration. This spirit is very attractive, both to exhibitor and exchangeman, and has made the Unity and the men who compose it, very popular with the trade generally.

"The topic with which the 'Yellow Menace' deals is easily the most important submitted to public notice in the United States during the present generation. In a nutshell, it is the case for preparedness. But a picture serial, with all its wonderful developments, has also the limitations of the screen. It can only depict; it cannot argue. So in the marvellous happenings featured by 'The Yellow Menace' authors, producers and actors have collaborated in an appeal to the intelligence of the people. Thus, the audience is shown how a leader evolved from the teeming masses of the East—a creation entirely possible—a scientist of real ability, and a thinker of depth and originality, can nevertheless become a brutal fanatic who stops short of no means to exalt the Yellow races at the expense of the White.

"Ali Singh, the miscreant, who figures throughout every episode of 'The Yellow Menace,' is just such an abnormal individual.. What he succeeds in doing throughout these exciting scenes indicates to the thinking mind a real danger lurking in the future. If this lesson can be driven home, this series of films will render a national service. There can be no questioning their excellence and dramatic effect, and pains have been taken to insure that their political significance will also make itself felt.

Cleveland Committee Makes Report on Wage Conference

After Meeting with Operators, Ernest Swartz Declares Against Increase, Contending That Present Conditions in the Business Fail to Warrant Higher Pay

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 26.

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors' League held its regular meeting on Tuesday, and heard the report of the special committee of eight, which was appointed last week to attend the meeting of the operators' union at their rooms, 310 Prospect avenue, last Friday evening, where an open discussion took place relative to the increased wage demand of the operators. Ernest Swartz, chairman of the committee, gave a brief resume of the arguments which he presented at the meeting against any increase. He contended that the present conditions in the motion picture business were not such as to warrant any further increase of wages; that the exhibitors were bearing the burden of a war tax; that there had been an increased cost of equipment, and that the running expenses had also grown. Mr. Swartz proved that 75 per cent. of the operators were getting outside wages, and 38 members admitted receiving over the wage scale.

The operators claim that their present demand is the outcome of an agreement made with the exhibitors two years ago when a five dollar a week increase was demanded. They compromised with a two dollar increase at that time with the understanding that the remaining three dollars be given them in two years. That time is now up, and they say that they are simply standing on their original demand. The exhibitors, however, say that no such agreement existed, and as no papers exist to uphold the operators, their statement holds little weight.

The League passed a motion to the effect that they are opposed to any raise in wage scale, that all members of the League be notified to such effect, and that a letter be written to the operators demanding arbitration.

LABOR DAY IS OPENING DATE FOR "CIVILIZATION" IN BOSTON

"Civilization" will open on Labor Day at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, which has been rebuilt at great expense.

Governor McCall of Massachusetts has accepted an invitation to attend, with his family, the private exhibition of "Civilization," to be given on Sunday evening previous to Labor Day. The Mayor of Boston and others will be invited to attend.

GRIFFITH IN NEW YORK FOR "INTOLERANCE" PREMIERE

D. W. Griffith arrived from California, Saturday, August 26, with the final touches on his colossal production "Intolerance" which opens at the Liberty theatre on Tuesday night, September 5. Mr. Griffith will take personal charge of the preliminary arrangements for this next offering and remain here until sometime after the opening which he was compelled to defer a few days from the original date announced in order to permit the final installation of numerous improvements in the Liberty theatre before the run opens.

THURLOW BERGEN AGAIN APPEARS IN A PATHE, "A WOMAN'S FIGHT"

Thurlow Bergen, who has had leading parts in a number of well-known Pathe features, is again to be seen in one. In "A Woman's Fight," the five-reel Pathe Gold Rooster Play made by Herbert Blache, he plays opposite Geraldine O'Brien.

Mr. Bergen will be remembered for his work in "The Stain," "The Boundary Rider," "A Prince of India," "The Fireman and the Girl," and "A Change of Heart," all Pathe five-reel features with the exception of the latter, a two-reel picture, which is to be released on September 10.

"Censor Your Own Pictures" Is Keynote at Detroit Meeting

Police Commissioner of Detroit, at Gathering of Exhibitors and Exchangemen There, Speaks Frankly on Certain Phases of Industry in His Town

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.

"ORGANIZATION" and "Censor your own pictures" were the keynotes of the special meeting of exhibitors and exchange managers to the number of seventy-five which was held at the Hotel Griswold, Friday evening, August 18. The special guests of the evening were Hon. John B. Gilliespie, Commissioner of the Detroit Police, and Ira W. Jayne, Chairman of the Detroit Recreation Commission. The meeting started about midnight, following the serving of a Dutch Lunch in the Crystal Room. It was indeed a compliment to the motion picture industry to have present two such important city officials at that hour of the day.

A. J. Gilligham, president of the Detroit Screen Club and owner of the Empire theatre, acted in the capacity of toastmaster, it being at his suggestion and call that the meeting was held.

The first speaker was Commissioner Gilliespie and he spoke openly and frankly to the exhibitors and exchange men on conditions in the industry. He called attention to the fact that his department had always been most liberal and open-minded in handling complaints against motion pictures—and he said he received in the neighborhood of two hundred complaints per week.

He said that he did not favor censorship and did not believe any group of men were capable of accurately censoring motion pictures; in fact, he said he could not see the need of censorship; the fact that occasionally a bad film was being shown did not necessarily mean that strict regulations were necessary for governing all motion pictures. The one big point the commissioner brought out and emphasized strongly was that exhibitors should censor their own pictures—that the censoring of motion pictures was really a problem for the exhibitors—and that they should be well able to handle the problem satisfactorily without the aid of censorship boards, city ordinances and police regulation.

He cautioned exhibitors against showing indecent, immoral, sensational and so-called reform pictures; he also cautioned them against misleading posters, out advertising and publicity. He said that the purpose of attending the meeting was to get ideas from exhibitors, to find out what they were going to do to censor pictures and what they would do to assure the police department of their co-operation.

In closing, he said: "Gentlemen, the problem of censorship is right up to you. If you are big enough men—and I believe you are, judging from the amount of money invested—you ought to be able to take care of your business so that there will be no occasion for outside assistance from the police department to suppress bad pictures. We want your co-operation because we are both interested in the welfare, in the cultivation and development of our citizens and children."

The other speaker of the evening was Ira. W. Jayne, who talked practically along the same lines. The point he dwelt upon was that organization was necessary first to assure the proper co-operation with the city authorities. He urged exhibitors and exchange managers to organize—and organize strong. He pointed out how every other line of trade was organized to safeguard its industries. He said that city ordinances and talk of censorship would not be necessary if the exhibitors would take care of their own problems—and that censorship was a problem for exhibitors to solve themselves. Coming from a man like Mr. Jayne, who has always been considered an advocate of censorship, this remark was a great relief to exhibitors.

A motion was offered that steps be taken toward the organizing of an association to comprise exhibitors and exchange managers, whereupon Chairman Gilligham appointed twelve exhibitors as a committee to meet with the Detroit exchange managers at 2 P. M., September 12, at the Hotel Griswold at which time the proposition will be thoroughly gone into. Everybody present was in favor of a strong organization locally.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Commissioner Gilliespie and Mr. Jayne.

"The Chaperon," Stage Success, Is Bought by Spoor

Edna Mayo Will Star in the Subject, Adapted by Sheldon from the Play by Marion Fairfax —Eugene O'Brien Is Picked to Support Actress in the Essanay Production

GEORGE K. SPOOR, president of Essanay, has just purchased the picture rights for another drama which made a big success on the stage not long ago. It is "The Chaperon," written by Marion Fairfax and adapted into scenario form by H. S. Sheldon, the playwright.

The play first appeared on Broadway with Maxine Elliott and Julian L'Estrange. Edna Mayo, who has just finished "The Return of Eve," will take the leading role and Eugene O'Brien, who supported her in the latter piece, will again be her main support in the new production. Sydney Ainsworth will take the heavy lead. Arthur Berthelet, the director, will at once begin work on the piece, which is expected to be ready for release late in October. The play will be a five-act feature.

A large part of the play is located in the Adirondack mountains, and it is planned to take a troupe of players to the Adirondacks to lay the scenes, in a location exactly according to the idea of the piece.

The drama calls for a beautiful summer lodge, and Director Berthelet now is endeavoring to find an available place. A large portion of the play is laid in the open and a spot of great natural beauty will be selected. Outdoor sports of the mountains will be shown, trout fishing, canoeing, bathing, et cetera, not for their own sakes but because called for in the piece.

That part of the play which touches New York City, will be taken in Chicago as it merely requires a large city home and does not bear on local color. The troupe will stop in New York long enough, however, to take the scenes at a steamboat dock, because of difference in style of ocean steamers here and lake steamers there.

The story deals with the problem of wealthy American girls marrying foreign noblemen. In this particular instance the girl weds a count partly because pressed by her mother and partly through pique, the American youth to whom she had secretly been engaged having insisted on reelasing her because she had inherited enormous wealth while he was comparatively poor. She finds it a bad bargain, however, and not being willing to stand for the count's attentions to other women, she leaves him and returns home.

Then in the Adirondacks she accidently meets her old sweetheart. He has regretted giving up the woman he loved even on the principle that she had too much wealth for him to wed her. The courtship is renewed and the piece ends with her promise to wed him when she is freed.

K-FILM COMPANY IS ORGANIZED TO BRING OUT ANIMATED KATZENJAMMER KIDS

The K-Film Corporation, organized to bring out animated cartoons of the Katzenjammer Kids, reports receiving a considerable number of inquiries for state rights and the closing of some territories. The first release is scheduled for October 1, and the K-Film Corporation believes that by that time the greater part of the state rights territory will have been signed up for the pictures.

The corporation is to handle the motion picture interests of the King Features Syndicate and the Newspaper Feature Service, two of the largest newspaper feature organizations to America.

Hughes Sees Pictures in the Making at "U" City

Candidate for President on the Republican Ticket Is Met at the Gateway of the Film Municipality by Carl Laemmle and General Manager Davis, Who Give Him the "Key of the City"— Troop of Cavalrymen, Cowboys and Cowgirls Act as Escort

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, candidate for president on the Republican ticket, visited Universal City on Sunday, August 20, and spent four hours there watching the filming of scenes in the new Universal serial, "Liberty," in which Marie Walcamp is featured.

Mr. Hughes was met at the gateway to the city by President Carl Laemmle and General Manager H. O. Davis, who turned over to him the key to the city. Mr. Hughes smiled in amusement as he took the massive gold key and unlocked the bronze gates of the city.

A troup of cavalrymen, cowboys and cowgirls met the candidate's party with a whoop just inside.

Mr. Hughes's party numbered sixty. Mr. Davis showed them all the interesting sights of the only moving picture municipality in the world and, although it was Sunday, many of the companies were at work on the big stages.

Mr. Hughes was all attentiveness while being taken through the film laboratory, noted with interest the hundreds of bungalows built by Universal employes in the vicinity of Universal City and smiled as he saw the baker's dozen of children who have been born within the confines of Universal City cooing in their carriages and toddling about "back on the ranch lot."

Presidential Candidate Interested in Picture Making

The sets recently erected for the big Universal submarine photoplay, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," particularly attracted Mr. Hughes's attention. He closely noted the construction of the mosques, Oriental towers and the city beyond the great Hindu gateway.

Some hurried telephoning brought many of the Universal stars flocking to the city to meet Mr. Hughes. Among these who were introduced were Stuart Paton, director of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," Ella Hall, Cleo Madison, Warren Kerrigan, Carter De Haven, William Garwood, Lois Weber, Phillips Smalley, Pat Rooney, who assured Mr. Hughes that he would get the vote of every Irishman in the country; Gretchen Lederer, who, although a German, said that she thought Mr. Hughes would receive an overwhelming German vote; Billie Ritchie, Louise Lovely, Marie Walcamp, Harry Carey, Myrtle Gonzalez, Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, Douglas Gerrard, Adele Farrington, Rupert Julian, Mary MacLaren, Hobart Henley, Ben Wilson, Dorothy Phillips, Allen Holubar, Herbert Rawlinson, Agnes Vernon, Eddie Polo, Jack Holt, Irene Hunt, Edith Roberts, and a host of lesser Universalites.

Mr. Hughes later met Wallace Beery, chief of police, and Ben Wilson, chief of the fire department, who ordered his men to slide down the brass poles in the fire house for Mr. Hughes's entertainment. Jacques Jaccard, then working on the burning of a replica city representing Columbus, N. M., sent in an alarm of fire and the engines and apparatus responded. The fire was put out under Mr. Hughes's eyes.

Later, in the City Hall or Administration Building Mr. Huges met the head of the Public Utilities Department, the "wire chief" at the head of the Universal City Phone Exchange, the representatives of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph stations, whose wires were used to send out the story of Mr. Hughes's visit to Universal City all over the country, and 200 Navajo and Pueblo Indians taking part in the Universal serial "Liberty."

A visit also was made to the carpenter and cabinet making shops, the ice plant, the great wardrobe and property department, the arsenal, blacksmith shop, the dormitories and dwellings and the great exterior stages. Mr. Hughes marveled at their size. It was pointed out to him that one measured 500 by 125 feet, another 300 by 100, another 400 by 100, another 125 by 100, and his particular attention was called to four interior electric lighted studios, each 400 by 100 feet.

Mr. Hughes and party took dinner at the palatial Universal City restaurant, the Ocean Casino, after which a visit was paid to the recently erected picture palace where the party witnessed a private showing of the seventh episode of "Liberty" and the underwater scenes from "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." Gretchen Lederer, who formerly sang in the Royal Opera House, Berlin, sang several arias from Wagner's opera for Mr. Hughes before he left the theatre, while other veterans of the legitimate, including Carter De Haven and Flora Parker De Haven, did very briefly the funniest bits of their vaudeville turns.

Before leaving, Mr. Hughes registered in Universal City gold-leaf register reserved for celebrities. His name followed that of Thomas Alva Edison who recently laid the cornerstone of the great electricity building, and that of William Jennings Bryan.

Weekly Single Reel Comedies from Paramount Pictures

Producing Companies Signed by Abrams Are the Klassic Pictures, Inc., and the United States Motion Picture Corporation, Making Black Diamonds

CONTRACTS were signed Friday, August 25, by Paramount with two comedy producing companies for single reel comedies to be released weekly by the Paramount Pictures Corporation. The producing companies are the Klassic Pictures, Inc., producing the Klassic Komedies and the United States Motion Picture Corporation, producing the Black Diamond Comedies. The first release will be issued September 25.

The addition of comedies to the single reel releases of Paramount Pictures Corporation rounds out their service. They are already releasing in connection with their four, five and six-reel features, produced by the Famous Players Film Company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company and Pallas Pictures, three single reel features each week, the Paramount Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen, the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures and the Paramount Bray cartoons.

Since the inception of Paramount just two years ago, the officers of the Corporation have been using every means to obtain a class of motion picture comedy that would blend with the quality of their features and weave itself into the exhibitor's regular program scheme.

"It was a pleasure at last to have reached the stage where a type of Paramount Comedy was produced," said President Abrams, when speaking of the new releases. "We had looked at hundreds of them and it was becoming a sort of second nature to say, 'They don't come up to the standard of pictures set by the Paramount Program.'

"I well remember when I saw the first Klassic Komedy, and then the first Black Diamond Comedy. It was a different kind of joy I experienced, than ever before, and I was a happy man, to say the least.

"These comedies are of the highest class and are not dependable upon burlesque characterization and the like, or even upon that over-indulgence of slap-stick work that is so prevalent in most comedies.

"They are comedies of action, backed by stimulating comedy suspense, which although rarely found in the comedies of today, is indeed the life stimulant of the new products. Every one of the productions contain these four fundamental requisites of good photoplay comedies, action, comedy, heart interest, comedy suspense and the ever necessary ultimate comedy justification."

PRODUCING COMPANY PLANNED FOR KANSAS CITY

The Kansas Film Corporation has been organized at Kansas City, Kansas, and proposes to erect a studio at Kansas City, Kansas, and in addition to making all kinds of pictures will include feature films. John B. Born is general manager, A. D. Allison, assistant general manager; L. E. Barnard and H. J. Kaelin, assistant directors.

CHAPLIN AT WORK ON HIS FIFTH RELEASE FOR MUTUAL

Charlie Chaplin is now at work on his fifth Mutual feature at the Chaplin-Mutual studios in Los Angeles. As yet the title is unannounced. Edna Purviance will play opposite him.

GATE CITY PICTURES COMPANY IS PRODUCING CONCERN FOR GREENSBORO, NORTH CAROLINA

Greensboro, N. C., is to have a motion picture producing company. The Gate City Pictures Company has just been organized, largely by men of that vicinity, and will build a studio in Greensboro, and commence the release of pictures through a large releasing company with offices in New York and Chicago.

The officers of the new company are: President, Julian Price, of the Standard Life Insurance Company; Vice-President, Charles W. Gold, of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company; Secretary and Treasurer, Frank C. Boyles, cashier of the American Exchange National Bank; General Manager, Garland Daniel, of the Caroline Fair Association; General Manager of Productions, Albert W. Hale.

Roland Hill and Barbara Deveron have been engaged to play the leads in the new productions. Pending the construction of the Greensboro studio, it is understood arrangements have been made to use one of the big Chicago studios.

Exhibitors in Norfolk, Va., Form Own Censor Board

Picture Theatre Managers Sign Agreement to Exclude Sex Problem Subjects from Their Screens—Eleven Men Pledge Themselves to This Course

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 26.

SEX problem plays will form no part of the programs of the theatres of Norfolk hereafter, for the exhibitors of that place have all signed an agreement to that effect, thus doing away with an alleged need for local censorship.

Some time ago the proposition was made that there be established by the council a motion picture board of review and President I. Walke Truxtun, of the Board of Aldermen, proposed an ordinance calling for the appointment of five citizens of Norfolk by the judge of the corporation court, three upon his own initiative, and two upon the recommendation of the League of Mothers' Clubs of that city.

"The duty of said committee," the draft of the ordinance provided, "shall be directed to improving the quality of the pictures, especially those of adventure and comedy, and to securing a large proportion of educational films as possible, without endangering the actual usefulness of motion picture theatres."

Norfolk exhibitors declared that the mayor and the police department can step in and stop any objectionable picture and it does not require the appointment of a censorship board. At best this board would simply repeat the work now being carried on by the national board and it would impose a great deal of hardship and annoyance upon the exhibitors of the city. Norfolk theatres do not exhibit indecent pictures and there is no need for censorship, despite the contentions of some few residents of the city who assume the position of dictators of the public morals. Nor is the plea of better pictures for the children valid, for they form a very small part of the total patronage of the houses.

There followed a number of conferences between the motion picture men and those backing the proposed ordinance and favoring the establishment of a board of censors and since then a resolution signed by all of the exhibitors of the city has been adopted, agreeing to certain things which will bring about better results than any legislation possibly could. This fact is realized by Mr. Truxtun and he has gracefully withdrawn his ordinance. The resolution of the exhibitors, presented by Tazewell Taylor and Moe Levy, representing them, reads as follows:

Whereas, We the undersigned owners, operators, and managers of the motion picture theatres in the city of Norfolk, Va., sincerely appreciate the spirit in which Mr. I. Walke Truxtun and others have advocated for the city of Norfolk, Va., a policy of eliminating the presentation in the said city of Norfolk of photoplays which will have tendency to shock and affect the morals of the community, and

Whereas, It is our policy to maintain a high standard presentation of photoplays in the city of Norfolk, Va., and co-operate with Mr. Truxtun in this movement, and

Whereas, We recognize that the laws on the statute books are sufficient to enable the Mayor and Police Department of the city of Norfolk, Va., to properly safeguard the public against the presentation of any lewd, immoral, or improper photoplay, and

Whereas, It is our desire to co-operate with the Mayor and city Police Department whenever they know of any violation such as hereinbefore recited:

We, the undersigned, do respectfully on our part, agree that we will not contract for, or allow to be presented, in any theatres in which we are interested, any immoral or sex problem photoplay.

Brady Casts Himself for Role of Sphinx Over World Plans

"Not Ready to Talk," He Says in Answer to Rumor That His Company Has Contracted with a Number of Conspicuous Stars of the Dramatic Stage in Addition to Fields and Miss Dressler

THERE are strongly developed surface indications of a sharp revision of policy in the World-Brady camp, and these indications are borne out to an extent by the fact that Mr. Brady himself declines to either affirm or deny their authenticity.

"Not ready to talk," is his brief declaration.

The recent simultaneous engagement of Marie Dressler and Lew Fields for separate Brady productions was a matter of quite sufficient moment to occasion remark, the more so in connection with the coincident expiration, without renewal, of the contracts of several minor stars in the World firmament.

The World powers were not in the least dissatisfied with the work of these players or the popularity of the plays to which they had been contributing their services. It thus becomes evident, even in the absence of official corroboration, that something is in contemplation which does not as yet appear to the cursory view.

A persistent rumor has it that Mr. Brady has already contracted with a number of conspicuous stars of the dramatic stage in addition to Miss Dressler and Mr. Fields, and that the names of these are being held back for announcement at the most propitious moment. If this report is correct, it probably means that the new stars will be seen in plays already made familiar to the public through the "regular" theatre.

Of these Mr. Brady personally controls a large number, either produced originally by himself or acquired since his association with motion picture work.

Better Accommodations for Kalem "Ham" Company

Larger Sets Will Be Used for the Single Reel Comedies and the Productions Are to Be Improved in Every Way—"Patented by Ham" in Work

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.

AN important change was made with respect to the Kalem Ham and Hazards companies last week, when the latter was removed to the Glendale Kalem studio, which will be closer to the Kalem railway station in Glendale, where most of the exteriors for the company's productions are made. This will also make possible better accommodations for the Ham comedy company, working under the direction of Lloyd V. Hamilton at the Hollywood studio. Larger sets are to be used by this company for the single-reel comedies, and the productions are to be improved in every way possible.

This week the Ham company is making "Patented by Ham," in which the comedian discovered a substitute for gasoline, which consists of Bud, who pushes the car, supposed to operate by the use of a magic power. Everything goes lovely until little Bud falls into a man-hole while propelling the car. A sewer ten feet in diameter and twenty feet in length has been built at the studio, and another one is being installed on the beach near San Pedro, where the miniature comedian will enter the ocean.

Vacation note: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd V. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Albert (Bud) Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Al. Edmundson, Ethel Teare and mother, have taken a bungalow at Ocean Park Beach for the remainder of the summer, and are commuting to the studio via automobile.

A REMINDER FROM PATHE

Several producing companies lately have been claiming credit for issuing the first series of three-reel pictures. In this connection, it is remembered that Pathé, a year and a half ago, issued the "Who Pays?" series in three reels a week.

GARSON PREDICTS POPULARITY OF YOUNG PICTURES IN WOLVERINE STATE

After making a ten-day trip to all points in the northern part of Michigan, Harry I. Garson, of the Harry I. Garson Productions, Inc., Detroit, distributors for Clara Kimball Young productions, is convinced more than ever that these productions will be a huge success in the Wolverine State.

Mr. Garson from the beginning was assured by exhibitors in the lower peninsula that they would be ready to sign contracts for the Clara Kimball Young productions, but the northern part gave him some "little worry." On his ten-day trip to the northern part he called on all of the leading exhibitors and it seemed as if they were just waiting for him. He landed signed contracts in every single town he visited, and exhibitors assured him that they were even preparing to advertise stronger than ever for the coming Young productions.

The new Clara Kimball Young exchange at 318 Woodward avenue, Detroit, will be ready to open not later than the middle of September, according to the statement of J. O. Kent, manager.

NATIONAL LEAGUE REALIZES $5,000 ON CHICAGO EXPOSITION

Louis Frank left Chicago for New York last week and gave Lee Ochs a check for $5,000. The check represented the National League's fifty per cent. share of the net profits of the Chicago Exposition.

This is easily the biggest sum ever realized on a motion picture trade exposition, and is a tribute to the Chicagoans who managed it. Louis is to be manager again next year, and hopes to break his own record.

He announces that the 1917 Exposition will be held July 7 to 15 inclusive. This makes the opening day the first Saturday after the Fourth of July. The convention opens July 10.

Bluebird Has Three Months' Releases Ready for Exhibitors

"Saving the Family Name" and "Wanted, A Home," Will Feature Mary MacLaren, with Phillips Smalley—"Idle Wives" Also a Smalley-Weber Film

GENERAL MANAGER M. H. HOFFMAN announces that there are enough Bluebird features ready for release to supply the program for three months to come, and Bluebird directors are busy with their preparations for future release.

September will start the season with four subjects of a widely diversified nature: "The Unattainable," a problem drama, introducing Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnson to the Bluebird program; "Saving the Family Name," a Lois Weber production, featuring Mary MacLaren, the heroine of "Shoes," with Phillips Smalley as her leading man; "Behind the Lines," a military drama, featuring Harry Carey and Edith Johnson; and "The Evil Women Do," a good old-fashioned melodrama, based on Emil Gaboriau's detective story, "The Clique of Gold," in which Elsie Jane Wilson, Francelia Billington, and Rupert Julian will be prominent.

There will be another Lois Weber's production October 2, to start the second month of the season, Mary MacLaren again being featured in "Wanted—a Home." Lois Weber wrote the scenario and directed

While the dates are not definitely set, the other October Bluebirds will be drawn from a large selection of subjects ready to release; among them being: Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," featuring Ruth Stonehouse and Rupert Julian; "The Social Buccaneer," wherein Louise Lovely and J. Warren Kerrigan, previous lone-stars on the Bluebird program, will unite in portraying Frederick S. Isham's story; "The Chalice of Sorrow," which will introduce Cleo Madison to the Bluebird series, under Rex Ingram's direction; and Lois Weber's presentation of James Oppenheim's story, "Idle Wives," wherein Miss Weber, Phillips Smalley, and Mary MacLaren will be featured.

Premier of "The Faucet" May Be Held in Pasadena

Sorver of Superior Films Company Makes Arrangements for Sufficient Prints to Supply All Demands at Once—State Rights or Straight Rental Is Plan

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.

AFTER several previews, attended by distinguished citizens and officials of California, the pretentious drama, "The Faucet," is ready for public presentation. It doubtless will have its premier in Pasadena, the city of its birth, for Robert E. Sorver, sole owner, is a leading citizen of that beautiful municipality.

Mr. Sorver is making arrangements for sufficient prints to serve the entire country immediately, whether by sale of state rights as desired or by straight rentals. All the work is being done by the Superior Films Company in Los Angeles.

"The Faucet" is based upon the evils of liquor.

"At no time in her career," according to an official of the company, "has Virginia Kirtley, leading lady, arisen to such heights of dramatic action as in 'The Faucet,' which imposes a burden upon her histrionic powers.

"Her death scene is a distinctive episode in screen dramatics of the year. Another climax is rendered by Josephine Dillon in her mad scene, while Barney Furey, the leading man, presents a new interpretation in the character of Louis.

"Among other stars supporting Miss Kirtley are: Edna Mae Cooper, ingenue; Herbert Sutch, Jack Fraser, who has just ended his season with Maud Fealey; Charles Wheelock, and Isabel Lockerby." "The Faucet" will appeal to champions of the temperance cause.

REEL FELLOWS BALL IN CHICAGO SET FOR NOVEMBER 10

Following their joy-ride to Cedar Lake last week, the Chicago Reel Fellows had a blowout at the Morrison. Although some of the boys are summering at Newport, the attendance was pretty good.

It was decided to hold the big annual ball November 10. This will be a titanic affair, attended by a brilliant constellation of screen players plucked from the highest firmament of stardom, by a galaxy of society leaders from the North Side, and by a representative film people from Coast to Coast. The committee in charge of this event consists of M. J. Flaherty, Dick Travers, and H. C. Miller.

During January the club will stage a monster vaudeville show in some Loop theatre. The public will be invited, and the proceeds will be contributed to a $50,000 fund now being raised to build a Reel Fellows club house. The show committee is headed by M. B. Watkins, and also includes Dick Travers, Mac Edmonds, and George Cox.

"SEVENTEEN" PICKED BY FAMOUS PLAYERS FOR JACK PICKFORD AND LOUISE HUFF

"Seventeen," the new novel by Booth Tarkington, has been chosen by the Famous Players Film Company as the vehicle for the joint presentation of Louise Huff and Jack Pickford on the Paramount Program.

The title, "Seventeen," refers, of course, to the age of William Sylvanus Baxter, the "indifferent" young man, and to that of Lola Pratt, the baby talk expert, who is his lady love. Jack Pickford will play "Will-ee," the doughty hero of the tale, whose savage struggle to withstand the ravaging eyes of Miss Pratt proves futile.

Miss Huff will play his little sister Jane, that most extraordinary child, whose unlimited capacity for bread, sugar and apple sauce, together with her absolute "obseity" in the matter of personal apparel, is a constant source of excruciating agony to her very much older brother.

With Jack Pickford as the redoubtable Will-ee and Louise Huff as the pestiferous Jane, "Seventeen," the company believes, should prove one of the most successful comedies ever produced by them.

NEW YORK EXHIBITORS PLAN BALL FOR THANKSGIVING EVE

The New York local of the Exhibitors' League are rapidly completing their plans for the holding of a ball at Madison Square Garden, New York City, on Tranksgiving Eve, November 30.

A general committee on arrangements has been appointed, consisting of Isaac Hartsall, William Hilkemeier, and L. M. Blumenthal. The committee on publicity. printing, and the program will be headed by Thomas Howard as chairman. Otto Lederer has been appointed chairman of the badge committee.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that the exhibitors have taken a five-year lease of the Garden for Thanksgiving Eve each year, for a function similar to the coming one.

MARION EARLE JOINS RIALTO FILM

Marion Earle, ingenue, is a graduate from legitimate stock production, having played for several seasons in the west before coming east. She has been engaged by the Rialto Film Corporation for an important role in its September release.

Vitagraph Stages Big Battle Scenes on Staten Island

Commodore Blackton Enlists the Services of a Coast Defense Command and a Company of Regulars—Engines of Warfare, New Here, Put in Use

STATEN ISLAND, situated in New York harbor, has been the scene of a four-day battle, waged with all the modern appliances of warfare. It was selected by the heads of the Vitagraph Company of America on which to stage some of the spectacular battle scenes of the forthcoming special production "The Battle Cry of War." Its proximity to the Vitagraph studio and its many miles of open country were responsible for its selection.

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, under whose personal supervision "The Battle Cry of War" is being produced had the co-operation of the Thirteenth Coast Defense Command, N. G. N. Y., and a company of regulars from the United States Army for these scenes. Beginning on August 18 and continuing for four days thereafter, the men went into camp, threw up trenches and destroyed them for the camera lens at a point near Grasmere on the Island.

Engines of warfare, never before in use by the American army, were secured for use in the scenes. Pipe coils, gas masks, steal headgear, hand grenades and parachutes were employed behind the lines of the opposing forces. Observation balloons, aeroplanes and armored motor cars also had their places in the four days' work. Huge guns were brought into use by the invading army and not the least feature of the production is their use after sunset.

The Vitagraph Company had the assistance of army and militia officers, so the maneuvers and charges depicted are technically correct. The Vitagraph players participating in the battle scenes as principals were Harry Morey, Joseph Kilgour, James Morrison and Walter McGrail. Comparatively few inquiries were reported considering the hugeness of the scenes taken. Director Earle got a bad bump from a flying rock and Harry Morey was struck by a flying missile after an explosion, but otherwise injuries were scarce.

Most of the less spectacular scenes of "The Battle Cry of War" have already been filmed in the studio and at locations in New York City. The battle scenes are practically the last to be taken for the big picture and consequently it may be judged that the piece is rapidly nearing completion.

"Civilization" Is Now Ready for State Rights Sale

Though Certain Territory Is Already Disposed of, Enough Is Still Unsold to Offer Rare Opportunities for Specialists in This Market Plan

"CIVILIZATION," Thos. H. Ince's spectacle which is still running to capacity audiences at the Criterion theatre, New York, and filling some of the biggest theatres throughout the country, is now offered to state rights buyers. Certain territorial rights have already been disposed of to zealous buyers. It was Mr. Ince's original plan to retain the whole proposition for himself and his associates. However, a cold analysis of facts, coupled with pressure brought to bear by enthusiastic buyers materially altered the initial plans. It was found that at least sixty prints would be necessary to accommodate the demand and that an organization of some proportions would have to be formed. Then, too, it was pointed out that Mr. Ince's best interest could be guarded by allowing individuals to continue to dominate their own territories rather than for him to enter into direct competition with them where it was not necessary.

As above stated, certain state rights have been snapped up, but there is enough unsold territory to permit of half a score of shrewd men making a success out of "Civilization" along with Mr. Ince and his associates.

At the Thos. H. Ince, New York offices in the Times Building, applications for territory and bookings receive prompt attention by J. Parker Read and Alec Lorimore.

PATHE NEWS IS CREDITED WITH THREE SCOOPS IN ONE WEEK

As a result of making three "scoops" within one week, the Pathe News has received orders for three more prints of each issue. The scoops were on the batttle of the Somme, the "Black Tom" explosion in Jersey City, and the German submarine Deutschland leaving Baltimore.

HARVEY F. THEW IS MEMBER OF FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY SCENARIO DEPARTMENT

Harvey F. Thew, well-known New York newspaper man and more recently a photo-dramatic critic of reputation, has signed a contract with the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company to devote himself exclusively in the future to the preparation and adaptation of material for the screen. In addition to adapting stories by famous novelists and dramatists, Mr. Thew will also do considerable original work for both the Famous Players and Lasky Studios.

Mr. Thew started newspaper work in Chicago and came to New York in 1905. Prior to an association of eight years on the reportorial and editorial staff of the New York Herald, he was connected with the New York World, New York Commercial and New York American.

With the New York Herald he made a specialty of navy reporting and made three cruises with the Atlantic Battleship Fleet. In 1911 and again in 1912 he went to Cuba as Herald correspondent to report political uprisings and did special work for the paper in Malta, Italy, France and Gibraltar.

In 1914, Mr. Thew devoted himself exclusively to motion pictures and was a member of the staff of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. He has made three adaptations for the Famous Players-Lasky studios, beginning with "The Big Sister," with Mae Murray, "The Years of the Locust" with Fannie Ward and "The Kiss" with Owen Moore and Marguerite Courtot.

GAUMONT EXPLOSION FILMS TWO WEEKS AT RIALTO

So popular were the pictures taken by the Gaumont Company of the great New York explosion for the Mutual Weekly that they were held over a second week at the Rialto, New York.

Leslie Elton, Cartoonist, Is with Paramount-Bray Forces

Enlargement of Staff Enables Producers to Handle Greater Variety of Subjects—Nine Cartoonists, Thirty Assistant Artists and Four Cameramen at Work

LESLIE ELTON, the well known cartoonist, who has contributed to the Philadelphia Record, Public Ledger, Motion Picture Magazine, Photoplay Journal and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, has joined the forces at the Bray studio and will contribute his comedy to the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoons, the weekly animated cartoon released by the Paramount Pictures Corporation and produced at the Bray Studios, Inc.

The enlargement of the staff of cartoonists at the Bray Studios will enable the producers to give a greater variety of subjects. The Bray Studios contribute to the motion picture cartoons the well known characters "Colonel Heeza Liar," by J. R. Bray; "Bobby Bumps," by Earl Hurd; "In Lunyland," by Leighton Budd; "Haddem Badd," by L. M. Glackens; "The Wild and Woolly West," by A. D. Reed; "Farmer Al Falfa," by Paul Terry; "Percy," by H. C. Greening, and "The Adventures of the Police Dog," by C. T. Anderson. Mr. Elton will work on a variety of subjects.

At present there are nine cartoonists, thirty assistant artists and four cameramen constantly at work at the Bray Studios, where the Paramount-Bray cartoons are produced. An idea of the amount of work entailed may be gained from the knowledge that there are thirty-four different processes to be undergone by each cartoon, and that there are from three thousand to four thousand cartoons in each thousand feet of complete film. Hence a week's output involves from 102,000 to 136,000 processes.

The accomplishment of this tremendous task is made possible only by a special method which Mr. Bray has invented and patented. As a result of his invention the work of preparing thousands of pictures is more than cut in half. When he has decided upon the desired scene for the antics of "Heeza Liar" or any other subject, he first draws a background, which is printed on many sheets of tracing paper.

This done, it is necessary for the artist only to draw the parts which are to appear in motion on the screen. The result is evident. The background remains absolutely stationary throughout the scene, so that the work of the artist is reduced to a minimum. If the man is to be represented as standing still for any length of time he is printed on the sheets. He does not have to be drawn again until he is supposed to move.

Edwin Thanhouser Adds O. A. C. Lund to Staff

Director, Who Is a Magazine Writer, and at Beginning of His Career Took up Scenic and Portrait Painting, Produced Many Successful Pictures

EDWIN THANHOUSER announces that he has added to his staff of directors O. A. C. Lund, who will start immediately to produce a five-reel feature to be released through the Pathe exchanges.

Mr. Lund has had a long career in motion pictures, having directed many of the best features produced by the Metro, World and Eclair Companies. He is a writer as well as a director. Among the many plays he wrote and produced are "Autumn," "The Dollar Mark," "The Marked Woman," "Silent Jim," "Just Jim," "The Price of Malice" and "Dorian's Divorce." Among the stars he has directed are Violet Merserau, Lionel Barrymore, Hamilton Reville, Barbara Tennant, Harry B. Carey and Robert Warwick.

Stockholm is Mr. Lund's birthplace. He was educated at Upsala University and was a writer on the Stockholm Dagblad. He studied painting and when he came to America took up scenic and portrait painting as a profession.

In 1899 he recognized the future that lay in motion pictures and went to the Pacific coast where he directed and acted for many of the new companies. He joined the Eclair Company to act with and direct Barbara Tennant and was with that company for three years.

Besides being a successful scenario writer, Mr. Lund has sold a great many short stories to popular magazines.

A. J. Cobe Leaves New York for Tour of Big Cities

Vice-President and General Manager of Unity Sales Expects to See Exchangemen in Southwestern and Middle Western States—"Yellow Menace" Bookings Are Large

FOLLOWING the Unity Sales Corporation's policy of doing everything to aid the exchange men and the exhibitors to properly exhibit the features put out by its company, A. J. Cove, vice-president and general manager, has left New York on a tour of the Southwestern and Middle Western States. While away, Mr. Cobe will visit the Unity Exchange offices in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Dallas. Mr. Cobe has but lately returned from a similar visit to the Southeastern territory, and before "The Yellow Menace" releases Labor Day, every exchange handling "The Yellow Menace" will have received a personal visit.

Before leaving, Mr. Cobe said: "Reports from all our exchanges indicate that 'The Yellow Menace' will open on Labor Day throughout the country with a tremendous number of bookings. We feel that we are backing our exchanges and their exhibitors in every possible way to make this serial a success, and we are already assured that our efforts have met with a profitable response.

"In our advertising, which has been appearing in the trade journals, we have endeavored to impress upon the exhibitor that he can see each and every episode of 'The Yellow Menace' before he books it. Our recent two-page gold sheet advertisement in MOTION PICTURE NEWS ought to drive home the fact to the motion picture industry the important point that we have tried to emphasize—that 'The Yellow Menace' is the first serial ever produced which was entirely complete before release day. In this advertisement we showed a still picture, actually taken from each completed episode of the picture. We have steadily maintained that this is a record, and our company should be congratulated on its achievement."

CRAIG TO APPEAR AGAIN WITH JUNE CAPRICE

Charles Craig, who played the part of Lord Rockingham in "Under Two Flags," the William Fox photoplay adapted from Ouida's novel, will appear again in June Caprice's third picture, now being filmed.

LOUIS BAUM HEADS INDIANAPOLIS BLUE BIRD EXCHANGE

Louis Baum, for many years connected with the General Film Co., Indianapolis, more recently on the road booking "Where Are My Children?" has become manager of the Indianapolis Blue Bird exchange. Mr. Baum succeeds Mr. Moore.

Mr. Baum is well known to film men all over the state as he formerly was booker for the General.

TWO COMPANIES INCORPORATE IN CALIFORNIA

Special to Motion Picture News.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.

Articles of incorporation of the Consolidated Film Corporation have been filed at San Francisco. The capital of the organization is placed at $50,000, and the directors are B. Coleman, J. F. McCarthy, and G. A. Ragan.

The Moral Feature Film Company, recently organized at San Francisco, to produce motion picture dramas bearing upon the liquor question, has been granted a permit, under certain conditions and restrictions, to issue stock and engage in business. The company will be permitted to issue 7,995 shares of stock to W. A. Hoefgen in payment for services and expenses and to sell 40,000 shares to subscribers.

Holding Is Engaged to Co-Star with Kathlyn Williams

Pallas Signs English Actor Who Appeared as Leading Man for Pauline Frederick and Marie Doro in "Sold," "The White Pearl" and "Bella Donna"

THOMAS HOLDING, who for the past year has been appearing in leading parts for Famous Players, has been engaged to co-star with Kathlyn Williams at the Morosco-Pallas studios for the Paramount program. Immediately after signing the agreement in New York, Mr. Holding left for the Los Angeles studios of his new associates.

As a photoplayer, Mr. Holding has gained a large following in this country since his motion picture debut in "The Eternal City," a little over a year ago. As leading man for Pauline Frederick and Marie Doro he appeared in various Famous Players successes including "Sold," "The White Pearl," "Bella Donna," "Lydia Gilmore" and "The Moment Before."

Prior to his advent to motion pictures, Mr. Holding enjoyed a most successful career on the speaking stage in this country as well as in England and Australia. His first appearance in New York City was under the management of Oliver Morosco, for whom he will now appear on the screen. At the Manhattan Opera House as leading man in Mr. Morosco's "Peg o' My Heart" he won immediate favor which resulted in an engagement with this company running thirty-eight weeks.

Thomas Holding

Later he again won considerable prominence over here in the title role of "Ben Hur," in which he appeared for a run of two years. In Australia he first appeared on the stage with Charles Hawtry in The Hawtry Comedy Company. Among his most successful appearances in England were those in "A Chinese Honeymoon," with Frank Curzon, "Are You a Mason?" with Edwards and Frohman, Shakespearean repertoire with George Musgroves, "The Tempest," as Ferdinand with Sir Herbert Tree, "Still Waters Run Deep," and other plays with Mr. and Mrs. Kendall for three years, "Loaves and Fishes," Charles Frohman's play at the Duke of York, London, and many others of equal prominence.

George Larkin Signs Long-Time Contract with Kalem

Actor Gains Reputation as a Daredevil in Many Stunts—He Was a Circus Performer and a Number of Years Later Went Into Vaudeville and "Legit"

GEORGE LARKIN, hero of screen "hair-breadth escapes," has signed a long-term contract with the Kalem Company. Larkin has put the finishing touches to a multiple reel feature in which he will be starred, and started for Kalem's Jacksonville studio on Monday.

George Larkin

Kalem officials promise that a complete announcement will be made within the week concerning the subjects in which Larkin will be featured. Negotiations are under way with a prominent author for the original stories and the work of engaging an all star cast is also going ahead.

In his six years of motion picture work George Larkin, in addition to his popularity as an actor, has gained a well-earned reputation as a dare-devil. In his youthful days Larkin was for some time a circus acrobat, until more ambitious leanings lead him to the stage. There he was for a number of years seen in vaudeville, stock and in support of prominent stars.

On his entry into motion pictures Larkin found that his early athletic training served him in good stead in the strenuous screen game. His willingness to take great chances in producing screen thrills soon gained him the name of "Dare-Devil" Larkin. After three years with eastern companies, Larkin went West in 1913 when Louis Joseph Vance wrote the "Trey o' Hearts" around his daring.

Among Larkin's daring exploits which screen followers will remember may be mentioned his seventy-five foot dive from the mast of a vessel in San Diego Harbor, a thrilling scene staged atop the iron work on the thirteenth story of a San Francisco skyscraper in course of erection, his thirty foot fall over the edge of a cliff and numerous spectacular fire scenes which found him performing all sort of courageous exploits. In 1913 Larkin was given considerable notice following his rescue of Ruth Roland from drowning at Santa Monica.

Regarding his new Kalem affiliation Larkin declared to a "News" representative, "When all the details are completed within a few days so that a complete announcement may be made, exhibitors will know why I am so well pleased to be under the Kalem banner. Kalem is going the limit in the matter of securing the highest class of stories and a strong company of players and you may be sure that I will not let anything stand in the way of my doing my share."

Mr. Wright, of the Kalem Company, said to the News, "Promising surprises is about the easiest thing a picture man does, but I can assure exhibitors that they will sit up when we round out complete plans for the subjects to feature George Larkin. The enthusiasm with which a player takes to a production is some indication of its worth, and if you could have seen Larkin spending all the spare time he could get from his work on a multiple reel production in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium for the past two weeks.

GRIFFITH WILL BE IN EAST FOR "INTOLERANCE" PREMIER

Los Angeles, August 25.

D. W. Griffith has left for New York to be present at the premier of his latest production entitled "Intolerance." Mr. Griffith will probably spend several weeks in the East. J. A. Barry, Mr. Griffith's private secretary, preceeded the producer about a week to aid in the arrangements for the premier.

ZIP, WILLIAM FOX BUYS A WHOLE TOWN—JUST LIKE THAT

Negotiations completed by General Western Representative A. Carlos and Director Richard Stanton in Los Angeles, and Clifford Elfelt, Stanton's assistant at El Paso, have made the entire town of San Felease, New Mexico, the property of the William Fox Corporation. The town will be used for raids and finally destroyed by explosion and fire for scenes in an international boundary story to be made by Stanton.

Gretchen Hartman and Allen Hale, formerly leading people for the Biograph Company, have been engaged by the New York Fox office, and reecntly arrived in Los Angeles to begin work in this picture. Another leading role will be taken by Bernice Burnham, who appeared in several Ince and Fine Arts subjects. Director Stanton and Company composed of about thirty in all, have left for El Paso, to make the exteriors for the production. Army equipment including armored automobiles and aeroplanes have been leased for this photoplay. Stanton will be remembered as the producer of "The Beast," recently released by Fox, but since making this he has been ill, and is now taking up his second Fox production.

HORSLEY ANNOUNCES REORGANIZATION OF HIS STUDIOS

David Horsley announces a reorganization of his studios for alignment of his facilities with a policy of quality feature production.

Operations at the Los Angeles studios of the Horsley concern have been reduced to a minimum for a period of a few weeks. Mr. Horsley is now in Los Angeles making preparations for the important changes to be instituted in the early autumn.

Mr. Horsley will come east in September for the purpose of closing new contracts and conducting various conferences with President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation.

It is announced that Crane Wilbur will remain with the Horsley concern and that he will be starred in a series of special feature productions to be made this fall. Mr. Horsley also expects to conclude negotiations now in progress with two widely known actresses of the stage who are to be cast in Horsley feature productions.

Horsley affairs in the east are now being conducted by Charles F. Pope, general representative for Mr. Horsley.

SHEER PLACES LINDEN, CUMMINGS AND ALMA HANLON

William A. Sheer, Inc., 126 West 46th street, New York City, has placed Eimar Linden with the Popular Plays and Players company. He is cast to play the leading male role in a forthcoming feature production starring Nance O'Neil, under the direction of the Blaches.

The same corporation also placed Alma Hanlon, leading woman, and Irving Cummings, leading man, with the World Film Corporation. These two stars are to carry important roles in "The Whip," the well-known melodrama which William A. Brady is supervising for World Film.

Edwin Thanhouser Now Has Four Companies at Work

Several Features Already Completed for Pathe Program and Vehicles for Florence La Badie, Valkyrien, Gladys Hulette and Others Are Ready

WITH four companies at work on new features and with a number of big productions already completed, the Thanhouser Film Corporation is prepared to keep its contract with the Pathe Exchange to release two first-class features a month.

Florence La Badie in "The Fugitive," was written by Philip Lonergan and directed by Frederic Sullivan, was the first Thanhouser-Pathe release. This was followed by Gladys Hulette in "The Shine Girl," by Agnes C. Johnston, directed by William Parke.

"Hidden Valley" with Valkyrien, the Danish beauty, will be the Thanhouser-Pathe release for September 10. It is a South African story by Emmet Mixx, directed by Ernest Warde. Valkyrien is the white goddess of an African tribe and a sacrificial dance by the goddess is one of the big scenes in the production.

Another Florence La Badie feature, "The Fear of Poverty," by Agnes C. Johnston, author of "The Shine Girl," directed by Frederic Sullivan, is to be released on September 24. Miss La Badie is supported by George Marlo, Ethyle Cooke and Edwin Stanley. Miss La Badie plays two roles, mother and daughter.

Mr. Thanhouser announces that Frederick Warde, the Shakespearean actor, will be seen in a production of "King Lear" early in October. This will be followed by Florence La Badie in "Saint, Devil and Women," a psychological drama dealing with a women of three natures.

The "Image Maker of Thebes" with Valkyrien, supported by Boyd Marshall, is a production that will be released by Thanhouser through Pathe later.

Pictures in process of production are "The World and the Woman," starring Jeanne Eagels, a stirring tale of a girl of the streets who rises and triumphs; "Through the Open Door," starring Marie Shotwell, supported by Fred Eric and Alphonse Ethier, an Italian story; Frederick Warde in "The Vicar of Wakefield," Florence La Badie in "The Pillory" and Gladys Hulette in "Prudence, the Pirate," a comedy-drama by Agnes C. Johnston.

Mr. Thanhouser is personally supervising every feature that he releases through Pathe.

Ince Is Ready to Pay a Thousand Dollars for a Good Idea

Producer of "Civilization" Offers This Amount for Best Scenario on Representative American Theme Submitted Before End of Year, and $500 for the Second

THOMAS H. INCE, producer of "Civilization" at the Criterion Theatre, wants more big stories representative of teeming, toiling America. He therefore announces a contest by arrangement with the Photoplay Magazine to remain open until midnight of the 31st day of December, 1916. Scenarios must be suitable for five-reel pictures and must deal with a representative American theme.

He will pay $1,000 for the best story submitted, $500 for the second, $300 for the third and $200 for the fourth.

Other scenarios suitable for Mr. Ince's purposes will be purchased at regular prices.

In speaking of the type photoplays he is particularly anxious to have submitted, Mr. Ince says: "I want five-reel plays representative of American life in any of its complex phases.

"I don't want political arguments or propaganda of any sort. I don't want dramas embroiling religious sects or political parties. I don't want any treatment of sex which will offend. My idea of a play is not sheer tragedy nor unrelieved comedy, but a serious story of real life—a story lightened here and there with laughter, brimful of the suspense of actual existence.

"Coming down to individuals I particularly want big, virile stories for William S. Hart; society or light comedy dramas for Bessie Barriscale; big dramas demanding strong characterization suitable for an actor of Frank Keenan's type; romantic plays (not costume drama) suitable for William Desmond, and strongly sympathetic plays—of the same generic type as 'The Coward'—for Charles Ray.

All manuscripts should be mailed to Ince Scenario Contest Editor, Photoplay Magazine, 350 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill. Mr. Ince announces that all stories about the winners and their subjects will appear in the Photoplay Magazine soon after the decision of the judges. No manuscripts will be considered which are not typewritten and on one side of the paper only. Everyone is eligible for the contest except persons in any way associated with Thomas H. Ince's Enterprises or with the Photoplay Magazine.

HE TOOK TWO SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE "NEWS"

Plaquemine, La., June 27.

Motion Picture News,
Gentlemen:

I would not for a moment be without the "News;" in fact I have been carrying a double subscription for the last two years, one in my name, and one in the name of Electra Theatre.

I look forward to the "News" weekly with keen interest.

Yours truly,
LIONEL DELACROIX,
Electra Theatre.

GREENBERG OPENS PUBLICITY OFFICE

Jacob Walter Greenberg, the personal representative of Linda A. Griffith and Dorothy Nichols, has just opened offices for general publicity work.

DORIS GREY TO BE STARRED IN "HER BELOVED ENEMY"

Edwin Thanhouser announces that Doris Grey is to be starred in a Thanhouser-made Pathe Gold Rooster play to be called "Her Beloved Enemy." The story, by Lloyd Lonergan, was written expressly for Miss Grey. Ernest Warde is directing the picture.

Miss Grey sprang into public notice at the Moving Picture Exhibitors' ball in Boston last December when she was chosen as the most beautiful girl at the ball. Miss Grey was promptly signed by Mr. Thanhouser with the understanding that if she proved to have talent as a motion picture actress she would be given big things to do. She accepted and made good.

Lloyd Lonergan, Doris Grey, Ernest Warde and Wayne Avey at Thanhouser Studios

"What Doris Did" was Miss Grey's first picture and it was such a success that she was immediately given leading parts in other Thanhouser plays. Miss Grey is only nineteen years old.

Wayne Arey, whose work in "The Shine Girl" received such favorable comment, supports Miss Grey in "Her Beloved Enemy."

RAYMOND B. WEST RETURNS TO CULVER CITY

Raymond B. West, co-director with Thomas B. Ince of "Civilization," has returned to Culver City from a six weeks' vacation spent in Honolulu. Mr. West worked night and day for eighteen months on the production of "Civilization" carrying out Mr. Ince's plans, and immediately after the completion and marketing of the picture suffered a complete nervous breakdown. Both Mr. Ince and Mr. West's physician insisted that he take a long rest.

Upon returning to Culver City Mr. West plunged into the work of making Ince-Triangle multiple reel features. Recently he completed "The Wolf Woman," featuring Louise Glaum. One set designed by Mr. West required three weeks to build.

Hot upon the heels of "The Wolf Woman" Mr. West produced "Home" featuring Bessie Barriscale with Charles Ray. In this Ince-Triangle multiple reeler Mr. West introduced some novel lighting effects.

Mr. West now has ready two plays which so far have not been named. The first, by J. C. Hawks, features Charles Ray. The second, by Monte M. Katterjohn, is enacted by three Ince stars—Dorothy Dalton, Enid Markey and Howard Hickman. Some of the scenes are taken aboard the yacht of E. A. Featherstone, a Los Angeles millionaire.

William L. Sherry Establishes New Publicity Department

Its Purpose Is the Operation of Local Advertising Campaigns, Centered Around Each Theatre—Morrison Will Visit Picture Houses and Plan Individual Advertising

THE latest move of William L. Sherry in carrying out the general Paramount plan of co-operation and advertising for the Paramount houses is the installation of a department for the express purpose of conducting local advertising campaigns centered about each theatre. E. V. Morrison, known to the exhibitor as originator of the business report system known as Manager's Screen Reports, has been engaged to conduct this department.

The establishment of the new department is in keeping with the Paramount's recent inaugural of local advertising managers for each exchange. Mr. Morrison's position is a new one and will supplement the general advertising done by the Paramount Company and the subsidiary companies releasing through the Paramount. His duties will be those of co-operating with the exhibitor in all local advertising work and bringing the fruits of the general advertising to bear right down on the individual house to the greatest extent possible, as well as creating new press material to suit local conditions.

The advertising problems of theatres are so distinctly individual that Mr. Sherry has decided the best way to assist a house in advertising the Paramount program is to have a man from the home office of the exchange visit the house, learn the exact conditions which the house must meet and co-operate with the house manager in solving these problems. Mr. Morrison will therefore spend much time on the road and comparatively little time in the office.

It is not Mr. Morrison's plan to simply travel through the state to take notes and conduct the Sherry advertising desk according to conditions as set forth in these notes. He will go to a town, arrange with the exhibitor using the Paramount program a feasible plan of publicity and advertising and stay on the ground until this is successfully put into operation, making definite arrangements to send directly to the theatre or the local newspaper such matter, and such matter alone, as will meet directly the need of that house and as arranged for that house when the campaign is started.

The general plan is to eliminate all waste in advertising and publicity work, all press matter hereafter to be written to meet local conditions more particularly than to encourage the theatre manager to use the Paramount program.

The Sherry house organ will be continued to assist the exhibitor in a general way and to serve as a medium to acquaint one house manager with the activities of the others and for general announcements emenating from the Sherry offices.

Many Camera Crews Out on Big Assignments for Rothacker

Edward Linden Leaves Chicago for Trip Through the Yellowstone and Will Cover Entire Pacific Coast and Canadian Northwest—Klingersmith at Work on Civic Subject

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Chicago, Ill., August 26.

A CONFERENCE of the National Dealers' Service was held at the Hotel Sherman on August 16. W. H. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, presented to the various advertising men and sales managers, facts and figures concerning the actual moving picture advertising achievements, and a general outline for the publicity of moving pictures as an advertising medium. After the conference all the members present adjourned to the new plant of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, where they spent half a day in seeing how advertising pictures are made.

One of the Rothacker camera crews, in charge of Wesley Smith, returned to Chicago last Saturday after completing a twelve-week tour of the Southwest. The object of the trip was to secure special scenic pictures, including some remarkable views of Estes Park, and various other Colorado show places.

Henry Birch, in charge of another camera crew, is now in Canada handling a big industrial contract there.

Another crew, headed by Edward Linden, left Chicago last week for a trip through Yellowstone Park, and covering the entire Pacific coast and Canadian Northwest. Linden's crew will be gone two or three months with the object of securing at least 20,000 feet of representative scenic film, as well as to cover several industrial contracts on the Pacific coast.

Another crew in charge of P. H. Miller is taking care of some special photographic work in Kansas City, Mo.

Another set of Rothacker cameramen, under the direction of W. B. Klingersmith, is now operating in Chicago on a big civic picture that will graphically portray Chicago's desirability as a summer resort.

E. H. Philippi, sales manager of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, has recently returned to Chicago after having made a tour of inspection of various Rothacker agents throughout Ohio and Michigan.

SLADDIN OFF FOR CHICAGO TO BEGIN "CRIMSON" ADVERTISING IN THAT CITY

Spencer G. Sladdin, director of publicity of the Consolidated Film Corporation, presenting "The Crimson Stain Mystery," the sixteen-episode serial, left last week (Wednesday) on the Wolverine Limited for Chicago to supervise the starting of the company's publicity campaign. Advertisements will be inserted in more than ten thousand newspapers, and the novelization of the serial, done by Albert Payson Terhune, will be started in more than four thousand representative newspapers.

Mr. Sladdin expects to be gone about ten days. While his temporary headquarters will be in Chicago his activities will take him over a large territory in the West.

During his absence Arthur M. Brilant will be acting director of publicity.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

"The 'News' wishes to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything in fact done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to send for publication the successful ideas that he has worked out, also to come to us for suggestions or information. Address the Editor."

How to Take Your Place as a Live Exhibitor and Keep It

"WE HAVE TAKEN OUR PLACE—AND WE SHALL CONTINUE TO TAKE IT—AND TO KEEP IT." This should be the daily slogan of every enterprising exhibitor whose previlege it is to control a picture theatre and who has the progress of the film industry at heart. How many are there who think of anyone outside themselves? It is feared we have too many who are contented with their present prosperity; they think they have reached the pinnacle of fame and they lord it over their employees as task-masters. They open their theatres as they would an ice-box—as if it contained all the good things of this world.

Just recently an exhibitor announced the fact that "posters keep people away," yet other men disguise their theatres with as many posters as they can put up. Both these men with their extreme ideas are wrong.

Another exhibitor is "tired" with the fickleness of the public. A man who gets tired of taking money from the public should retire and make room for the enterprising man.

What one man has done another can do, if he will try, but he must work and not leave it all to the pictures.

The other day a patron of a well-known theatre was heard to remark, "Oh, I don't know what the picture is to-night, but it is sure to be a good one. Smith never shows anything but the best."

Smith conducted a new, large, splendidly equipped theatre, but it was in a thinly populated district, however, with Mrs. Smith at the ticket window. He made a personal friend of every patron.

Later he moved to a house further downtown and began a campaign of advertising. A large advertisement in the city dailies set forth in big type the name of the play, the star, with a short note about the film in general. It set forth in equally large type the name of the house, the manager, the fact that uniformed girl ushers taken from the neighborhood passed round iced water, that the ventilation and projection were perfect.

"We heard you were down here, and we came to see you, Mr. Smith," said several people the first evening the theatre was open. These were all patrons whom Smith had made friends of at his uptown theatre.

Mrs. Smith was at the ticket booth and had a cheery smile and word of welcome for everyone.

"Did you notice how clearly the pictures were shown, Mrs. So and So?" asked Smith as his patrons began to file out, "I pride myself upon that," he added, as the woman commented favorably.

"Was it not comfortable?" he asked another. "Yes, but I would appreciate a fan," she said.

"The next time you come there will be fans for everyone." And there were. He arranged with a merchant to give them to him and at the same time advertise the merchant's name and business on the back of the fan.

One patron failed to compliment the picture, and Smith frankly admitted that it was not the best he had seen. He said, however, it was as good as he could get at the time, and he told the patrons of one he was going to show the next night.

"I have seen it and I give you my word it is fine," he said. The patron came the next night as he knew he could place confidence in Smith's word.

Smith's plan is simple, but comprehensive. First let the pictures draw them, then catch a few more by systematic advertising; don't hesitate to use the telephone as a few may be garnered in that way.

"I made good use of the corner grocery store to boost my pictures by sending out heralds with all groceries orders. After mapping out the territory from which I thought my house would draw from, I set out to thoroughly work the ground.

"I went from house to house with my wife, inviting the women and children to come to my theatre and in this way I met many old and made many new friends. When the show was over I spoke to each one asking them how they had enjoyed the pictures.

"We made a feature of children's matinees, theatre parties, and morning exhibitions for women's clubs."

How many Smith's have we in the film industry? We regret to say very few, but the time has come when every manager will have to realize that the slogan of the film industry is "WE HAVE TAKEN OUR PLACE—AND WE SHALL CONTINUE TO TAKE IT—AND TO KEEP IT."

BUSINESS POSSIBILITIES OF A TOWN SHOULD NOT BE JUDGED BY ITS SIZE

The population of a town is no criterion of its business possibilities, as many exhibitors in Kansas and Missouri are demonstrating. The chance to clean up on features in the villages is perhaps the best trade opportunity that any business man can find to-day. Two instances may be mentioned. There is A. F. Clark at Corning, Kan., a town of 400, who is cleaning up $15 to $30 a day with Gold Rooster features. And there are dozens of towns where these features—and others—are making big money for the exhibitors.

There's W. O. Austen of Agenda, Kan., who might have drilled along with his local patronage; but he went after the bigger trade, that of the farming members of the community. And he got them. His theatre seats 200, and on Saturdays it is filled nearly all day long. On week days there is business enough to pay expenses and then some. Agenda, be it noted, has a population of 80, his theatre seating 120 more people than there are people living in the town.

NEWSPAPER MAKES TICKET ALLOWANCE FOR SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENTS

La Petite theatre, Kankakee, Illinois, has made an arrangement with the Kankakee Gazette that is making a big hit with the fans of that city. To secure prompt payment on all subscriptions amounting to $2.50, the newspaper allows $1.25 in tickets to subscribers living in Kankakee and $1.50 in tickets to those living on R. F. D. routes. The Gazette reports that its paid-up subscription list is going upward in big jumps.

LEMONADE SERVED IN BOWER AT REAR OF PROMENADE

Here is one of the cleverest summer ideas for a motion picture theatre that has come to our attention. Joseph McCready and Mr. Yonker, of the Fifty-sixth Street theatre, Philadelphia, Pa., made up their minds that they would give their patrons a treat during the hot months, a treat that has eventually turned into a great advertising idea for the theatre.

A "bar." At least that is what Mr. McCready calls it, although it is in reality a bower in the rear of the promenade; a bower made of lattice covered with flowers. In this bower is a "barmaid" who serves grape lemonade to the patrons without any cost. From the very first night it has made a big hit, and all the people in that neighborhood are talking about it. We believe this is a new idea for motion picture theatres.

NEWSPAPER OFFERS TICKETS FOR FORTUNATE FANS

The Middletown, Ohio, News-Signal is offering an unusual contest to its readers who are taking to it with alacrity. A group of twenty-four motion picture stars was published in the paper, and the film fans were asked to pick out each individual star. From time to time a hint is given in the news columns regarding the identity of the players.

The management of the Gordon, Sorg, Grand and Rex theatres, have arranged to book all of these players during the period of the contest. To the first five persons credited with a full score in naming the stars, the News-Signal will give four tickets, good for each one of the four theatres named.

LOCATION IS NO HANDICAP TO GOOD PROGRAM MAKING

J. W. Brighton, director of the Morenci Club Picture theatre, Morenci, Arizona, is desirous of our opinion on the general get-up of his program and the pictures he projects. We have no hesitation in saying that the program he sent us is tastefully printed, the type has been carefully selected and each day's program clearly defined.

He also seems to have unusual ability in the selection of his program and we have seen far worse shows not many miles from Broadway. The excellence of the program is rendered all the more remarkable by the fact that this theatre is situated in the centre of a mining camp.

THEATRE FRONT RESEMBLES CIRCUS TENT

Swan and Swartz, proprietors of the Empress, Kearney, Neb., arranged the front of their theatre, on one of the busiest downtown streets, to appear like the entrance to a circus tent when "Peg o' the Ring" was first shown there. Ropes led across the walk to the door, and the path was sprinkled with sawdust. The girl selling tickets was stationed out in the street. A clown stood nearby.

The attendance at the Empress for the first episode was a record.

HEATH-PHOTOS-PHOENIX, ARIZ.

J. E. Rickards, manager of the Phoenix Amusement Company, Phoenix, Arizona, has sent us a photograph of a double spread which appeared in the Arizona Gazette.

In advertising the feature "Shoes" he obtained the co-operation of all the shoe men in the town. The newspaper, glad to get the opportunity of extra business, gave him the story matter for the display he ran. We consider this a very novel way of advertising "Shoes," and Mr. Rickards is to be congratulated on his ingenuity and enterprise.

Pay Attention to the Front of Your House and Use Stunts Appropriate to the Picture Running Inside

WE have recently commented on the excellent "front of the house" advertising from numerous live wire managers. This week Salt Lake City is well to the fore. Some of their stunts are clever, unique, original and well worth considering.

One in particular is connected with a lobby display and comes in the form of a shadow box with a painted background and wings which are changed with each production. The thing which catches the eye of the women and children being the neatly dressed dolls. For "Hulda from Holland" there was a typical Dutch blue sky and a cut-out of a windmill with Hulda standing in the centre in the regulation wooden shoes and Dutch costume.

For "The House of the Golden Window," there was the house with transparent amber windows in the background with a couple of dolls, girl and boy, with their backs to the glass front of the box gazing off at the far away house.

For "Little Lady Eileen," Famous Players, a doll dressed as a fairy was the centre attraction with appropriate backgrounds.

The dolls are beautifully and appropriately dressed and have created a great deal of comment among the exhibitors in that section.

Many exhibitors have been exploiting scenes from the productions that they are to show the following week by culling them from the reels which arrive a few days in advance, which idea is proving very popular.

ALLIANCE BETWEEN RELIGIOUS PAPER AND A THEATRE

The Strand theatre of Toronto, Ont., has formed an Alliance with the Toronto Star Weekly, a popular Sunday paper, by means of which the paper will publish photographs of the pictures taken by the Strand special service throughout the city. To date the idea has been most successful.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

"Velvet Paw," World Film, Is Set for Release on September 11—Deals with Lobbying at Washington.

THE World Film Corporation will release for the week of September 11, "The Velvet Paw," with House Peters and Gail Kane in the leading roles, a play dealing with a woman lobbyist and the havoc she raises in Washington, pending the passage of the Child Labor Bill.

For the local atmosphere required in the taking of this picture, Director Maurice Tourneur of the Paragon Studio took a company of thirty players to Washington, where they remained for three weeks taking pictures in and around the Capitol. Then an exact replica of the Senate chamber was reproduced at the Paragon Studio, where characters most resembling the leading lights of our national political center were chosen, giving not only the Senate atmosphere, but also characters representing all the prominent politicians at the Capitol.

The gallery, built to hold 300 persons, and the main chamber required more than half the entire floor space of the spacious Paragon Studio. The sets had to be built so solid that an infuriated mob of spectators would set upon a maddened ex-Senator and throw him over the railing into the assembled body which has just voted for the Child Labor Bill.

The story of "The Velvet Paw" tells about Mary Dexter (Gail Kane) whose father had invented a warship apparatus, but is unsuccessful in securing the backing to place the invention before the naval committee, and commits suicide. Senator Barring (Ned Burton) takes an interest in the girl, has her make her home with him, where she is a companion for Mrs. Barring. As she grows into womanhood, Senator Barring trains her to become a lobbyist. Charming, fascinating, lovable, she is successful in obtaining favorable legislation for Barring's interests.

She succeeds in having Congressman Drake (Frank Goldsmith) vote in favor of a certain bill under promise of marriage. Drake is defeated and she refuses him. His constituents infuriated, elect Robert Moorehead (House Peters) to take Drake's place in Washington. As with all other men, Moorehead is taken up with Mary Dexter. However, loyal to his people, Moorehead consistently and persistently refuses to accede to the demands of the woman lobbyist. It comes to a showdown with Senator Barring and Mary Dexter. He orders her to exert every influence to gain Moorehead in favor of his bill. His love for Mary put to the test, Moorehead promises to stay away from the house while the vote is taken.

Realizing to what extent she has degraded herself as well as the man she really loves, Mary seeks Moorehead and releases him from his pledge. As he is debating on the question, Drake comes upon Mary and fires at her with intent to kill. The bill is passed, the spectators seize Drake and hurl him over the banister into the crowd on the lower floor. Moorehead rushes to Mary, finds that she is but slightly wounded and together they rejoice over his victory and her narrow escape.

Besides House Peters, Gail Kane, Ned Burton and Frank Goldsmith, Charles D. Mackay, Charles Edwards and Alex Shannon also play prominent parts. Photography is the work of cameraman John V. de Brock.

"SEEING AMERICA" IS A SERIES OF 4 SCENICS FROM INTERNATIONAL

Edward S. Curtis, famous author and photographer, has returned from the West and Northwest, where he made a series of photographs for the International Film Service, Inc. These will shortly be shown by the International as a series of four features under the title, "Seeing America."

The first of the scenic features, "Nature's Miracle," will be released throughout the country on September 9. It is a screen interpretation of the scenic mysteries of the famous "Yellowstone Park." Following "Nature's Miracle" will be "The Giant at Sunset," showing a series of motion pictures of the animal life of Yellowstone, the canyons and other scenes in America's wonderland.

Next will come "In the Valley of the Yosemite," with the forests of gigantic trees, the unparalleled falls and the entrancing scenery of the nation's most beautiful park. The final features of the series will be "The Canoe Indians of Alaska," showing the life and customs of these picturesque and historic people who are known by Curtis as Remington knew the Indians of the plains.

"MUTT AND JEFF" ARTIST BACK AT THE EASEL

After several weeks of illness due to an automobile accident, in which he had his nose, three ribs and his jaw broken and necessitated his getting store teeth, Bud Fisher has resumed his usual vocation of having Mutt and Jeff appear in the various newspapers throughout the United States.

It will be recalled that Mr. Fisher was seriously hurt in an automobile accident, his car having skidded and turned turtle.

THIRTEEN REELS FROM PATHE FOR WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 10

Pathe has a program consisting of thirteen reels, for the week of September 10. The feature "The Fear of Poverty," is a five-reel Gold Rooster drama, featuring Florence La Badie in a dual role. It is produced by Thanhouser and directed by Frederic Sullivan. It is the story of a girl's impoverished childhood that instills within her heart a fear of poverty which clings to her all her life.

"A Change of Heart" is a two-reel Pathe drama. It is a story of a crook's redemption through the memory of his "best girl," his mother. Thurlow Bergen is the star.

The current release of "The Grip of Evil," "The Dollar Kings," is built around a strong theme. Because he lives up to his labor reform ideals, the son of the President of a Cardboard Trust loses his home. John Burton backs him with his huge fortune and gives him free rein to build up a workingman's Utopia.

"Busting the Beanery" is a slapstick Heinie comedy.

"Pear Growing" and "Historic Mobile" make up a split reel. The Pathe News No. 74 on Wednesday, September 13, and No. 75 on Saturday, September 16, finish out the program.

EDNA GOODRICH IN "HOUSE OF LIES," NEXT MOROSCO OFFERING

As its next release on the Paramount Program, the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company announces, Edna Goodrich in "The House of Lies," a stirring dramatic subject by L. V. Jefferson. In her new Morosco vehicle the star is given opportunity not only to display her talent, but her charm as well.

Among the more elaborate sets used in "The House of Lies" is an outdoor theatre, which necessitated a tremendous outlay, particularly considering the fact that it was used only in one scene. This structure was built in the private gardens of a well-known multimillionaire in Pasadena under the personal supervision of William D. Taylor, who directed the subject.

Supporting the star is a typical Morosco cast, including Juan de la Cruz, Kathleen Kirkham, Lucille Ward, Harold Holland, and that veteran actor, Herbert Standing. The photography is by Homer Scott.

Ham Tries to Find a Gasoline Substitute in "Patented by Ham," for Release on September 11

KALEM'S first release for the week of September 11 finds Ham coming forward with a substitute for gasoline that might find favor with motorists complaining of the sky-high price of that necessity.

"In Patented by Ham," the big fellow sets out to earn a $50,000 reward offered by a prominent automobile manufacturer for a gasoline substitute. It is released on Tuesday, September 12.

Kalem's next release for this week brings "The Treasure of Cibola," sixth episode in "The Girl From Frisco" series. Marin Sais and True Boardman meet with exciting adventures in this episode following the trail of legendary treasure. For this release Director Horne used the tribe of Moqui Indians belonging to the Santa Fe Railroad's exhibit at the San Diego Exposition, and with their pueblo huts a strong touch of realism is given the production. Wednesday, September 13, is the date of issue for "The Treasure of Cibola."

On Friday, September 15, Ivy Close is presented in "The Mysterious Double," which finds the English beauty playing two roles. Henry Murdock, Arthur Albertson, William McKey and Mary Taylor-Ross are others in the cast.

In "The Hoodoo of Division B," issued on Saturday, September 16, Helen Gibson performs one of the most novel feats of her career. Aboard a locomotive, she jumps to a flat car, uncouples it from a runaway engine, and then jumps back to her own locomotive on the adjoining track. Then, coming to a switch, Helen takes it just behind the runaway engine and succeeds in coupling up, bringing it to a stop.

Two La Badie Features Through Pathe in September Is Thanhouser Plan; "Fear of Poverty" is the First

EDWIN THANHOUSER, president of the Thanhouser Film Corporation, has decided to release two Florence La Badie features through the Pathe exchange in September.

"The Fugitive," starring Miss La Badie, was the first Thanhouser and Pathe feature and such a success was it that exhibitors have sent letters into the Thanhouser and Pathe offices for more Florence La Badie plays.

To attempt to satisfy the demand, Mr. Thanhouser will release on September 10 Miss La Badie in "The Fear of Poverty," a five-reel drama, written by Agnes C. Johnston and directed by Frederic Sullivan.

"Saint, Devil and Woman," featuring Miss La Badie, a play by Philip Lonergan and directed by Mr. Sullivan, is to be released on September 24.

In "The Fear of Poverty," Miss La Badie is supported by Robert Vaughn, George Marlo, Edwin Stanley and Ethyle Cooke. Miss La Badie plays two parts, a mother and her daughter and a great deal of double exposure work was necessary in order to perfect the play.

Miss La Badie is supported in "Saint, Devil and Woman" by Wayne Arey, Hector Dion and Ethyle Cooke. Philip Lonergan has written a different sort of a play—a story of a girl of two natures.

"SOMEWHERE IN MEXICO" CHANGED TO "THE PAINTED LIE"

Announcement is made that the military Horsley-Mutual photodrama starring Crane Wilbur, originally announced as "Somewhere in Mexico," will be released under the title of "The Painted Lie."

This production, the locale of which is divided between Mexico and New York, was written by Mr. Wilbur, and was filmed under the direction of Robert B. Broadwell.

The story of "The Painted Lie" deals from a new angle with the important Mexican situation which is now engrossing the attention of the Washington diplomats.

In support of Mr. Wilbur will be seen such well-known Horsley-Mutual favorites as Mae Gaston, in the chief supporting role to Mr. Wilbur, Harrison Ingraham, Ida Lewis, Marie Corteaux, and others.

UNICORN PLANS COMEDIES, JOCKEY BRAND

The Unicorn Film Service Corporation is now making releases of its new brands of film, and General Manager Schlank states that a large part of the program will be devoted to comedies. The first of the new comedies is released on August 30, entitled "A Foolish Romance," the principal parts being played by Tapple Berg, Billie Leslie, Harry Fischer and Jane Keckley, and directed by James Schneider, for a long time a Keystone producer.

Scene from "A Foolish Romance," to Be Released by Unicorn

These comedies are made by the Metropolitan Film Company of Los Angeles, and are being put out under the Jockey brand in two rcels. They are a mixture of comedy-drama, comedy, slap-stick and sensation. They follow a clearly defined story.

In "A Foolish Romance" Miss Billie Leslie, a dainty pretty girl, does straight work. Harry Fischer, a hotel clerk, and Tapple Berg, a bogus count, are in love with the girl, and amusing complications result.

An automobile crashes through the railing of a high bridge and falls in the river below and a street car picks up the elopers on the fcnder.

"THE BUTTERFLIES" IS SEVENTH "GRIP OF EVIL"

The seventh episode of Pathe's "The Grip of Evil," "The Butterflies," shows Jackie Saunders as Beatrice Tourneur and Gordon Sackville as Arthur Hardwicke at sea in an open boat, and their landing upon a barren island in a driving storm.

They are forced to spend a night in a deserted cabin and Dr. Merriam (Edward J. Brady), an unscrupulous physician, discovers them in what he terms "a compromising position." Later he attempts to force his attentions upon Beatrice, who repulses him and in a terrific hand-to-hand encounter, Hardwicke thrashes the doctor.

Beatrice and John Burton become engaged and Merriam, seeing an opportunity for blackmail, presses his demands for money. He says that he has arranged his affairs so that if anything happens to him, the newspapers will be given his version of how Arthur and Beatrice spent the night on the island.

Merriam is killed by Burton's automobile, while Beatrice and John are in the car. Hardwicke tells Burton the true story and the two arrange to suppress that given to the newspapers at Merriam's instructions. The editors agree not to use it, but through error one paper prints it. The result is the suicide of the young girl and the man with whose name hers is coupled in the sensational story.

"HER SURRENDER" IS IVAN RELEASE FOR SEPTEMBER

"Her Surrender," the newest all-star cast Ivan production, from the pen of Ivan Abramson, has been completed as a five-reel feature for September release under the Ivan banner.

The all-star cast who were brought together to enact the various roles required by the story are Anna Nilsson, featured in the sensational serial success "Who's Guilty?" by Pathe; Rose Coghlan, the distinguished artist of the legitimate stage; Harry Spingler, starred for a year with William Farnum; Wilmuth Markyl, star of "The Blindness of Virtue" and co-star with Virginia Pearson; William H. Tooker, starred by William Fox in "A Fool's Revenge" and other plays; and Frankie Mann.

The new Ivan play treats of a novel theme. Can love be transfused? is the question which will be asked by the audiences who see "Her Surrender," for a transfusion of blood between two people causes one to fall in love with the other.

The production was made by Ivan Abramson in the Ivan studios, and at Bradley Beach, the Duveen Estate being employed to make some exterior views required by the story. Several novel lighting effects have been introduced by M. le Picard, chief of the Ivan camera forces.

The Ivan exchanges throughout the country will release this feature as the regular Ivan production for September.

THREE FOX PLAYS STARRING VALESKA SURATT, THEDA BARA AND LAW READY FIRST THREE WEEKS OF SEPTEMBER

Three photoplays starring Valeska Suratt, Theda Bara, and Walter Law, are announced for the first three weeks in September by William Fox. The first picture in which Miss Suratt does the principal work, tells of a woman's revenge plot which nearly brings disaster upon herself and her own daughter through an unforeseen contingency.

By permission of Warden Osborne, several hundred feet of film were made at Sing Sing for some of the scenes, and the big gray walls register faithfully. Another of the interesting scenic parts is the thoroughly realistic effect of lightning striking a house. There is a flash during a hard thunderstorm and the entire wall of a house crumbles beneath the stroke. Two and a half weeks were spent building the set just to destroy it.

Miss Bara's picture shows her in the last of her sympathetic roles before she begins "vampiring" again. War forms the background for a large part of this photo-drama, and Theda Bara plays the role of a Red Cross nurse with remarkable effect. The story, and the question which Miss Bara, as Mary Doone, the nurse, must face will appeal to every motion picture audience.

Walter Law, the new William Fox star, whose whiskers are already the eighth wonder of the movie world, makes his second appearance on the screen in the third week in September, as a man risen from the sea. The scenes of the ocean, the sunrise and sunset, were taken on the Maine Coast.

"SALESLADY'S DREAM," NOVEL MODISTE PLAYLET, IS AN INTERNATIONAL OFFERING

"The Saleslady's Dream," the latest fashion playlet of the International Film Service, Inc., is now being staged and will be shown for the first time on September 4. "The Saleslady's Dream" is considered by the International by far the most pretentious fashion playlet they have yet produced and introduces a number of illusions.

The saleslady is seen in the show-rooms of a fashionable modiste. It is closing time. Tired by her work, she sits down, with a book, "A Princess for a Day." She reads a few lines and falls asleep.

Instantly she is transformed into a gorgously gowned princess seated on a throne. The "dummies" upon which other wonderful gowns are draped, suddenly become beautiful women of the court who parade before the throne and pay homage to the princess.

The store watchman, who has changed into a court attendant, hands the princess a glass of rare old wine. She drinks it and—awakes to find herself again a tired saleslady, the women of her court dummies and the court attendant again only a shabby watchman, who is shaking her and telling her it is time to go home.

The part of the saleslady is played by Mineta Timayo. H. E. Hancock is directing the playlet.

Violet Mesereau Will Be Seen in "The Narrow Path," on Universal Program for Week of September 4; Priscilla Dean in a Nestor on the 4th

IN the week of September 4, the first fall program of the Universal will be released.

Violet Mersereau will be seen in "The Narrow Path," a five-reel Red Feather drama written by Catherine Carr and produced by Francis J. Grandon. Miss Mersereau will be supported by William J. Welsh, Joseph W. Girard, Niles Welch, Clara Beyers, Anthony Merlo, Nellie Slattery and Leonora Von Ottinger.

Carter De Haven will make his appearance in "From the Rogues Gallery," a two-reel episode of the "Timothy Dobbs-That's Me" series, written by Bess Meredith and produced by Wallace Beery, in which De Haven will be supported by Robert Milash and George Hernandez.

"Dead or Alive," the fourth two-reel episode of "Liberty," the new Universal serial featuring Marie Walcamp with Eddie Polo and Jack Holt, will be released running the week of September 4. Besides the principals mentioned Neal Hart, Bertram Grassby, G. Raymond Nye, and L. M. Wells are in the cast of the serial.

On September 4, Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean will cavort about in "The Boy of the Gilded East," a Nestor comedy written by James Dayton, and produced by L. W. Chaudet.

The features for the following day will be J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Code of the Mounted," a three-reel Canadian northwest mounted police drama written and produced by Jacques Jaccard in which Mr. Kerrigan will be supported by Helen Leslie, Ethel Phillips, Norbert A. Myles, Wilma Wilkie, George E. Marshall, Buck Connor and T. D. Crittendon. On the same day Harry Depp plays a girl's role with amusing skill in the Victor comedy, "Love's Boomerang," which was written by Harry Wulz and produced by P. C. Hartigan. Others who assist in the portrayal of this delightful little comedy are Ernie Shields, Hal Cooley, Yvette Mitchel and O. C. Jackson.

Irene Hunt will be featured on September 6, in the Laemmle drama "Circumstantial Justice," which was produced by Fred Kelsey from the scenario by Calder Johnstone. Appearing with Miss Hunt will be T. D. Crittenden, Jessie Arnold and J. F. Connolly. On the same day, Billie Ritchie will appear in "Crooked from the Start," a hilarious two-reel L-Ko comedy in which Gertrude Selby and Dan Russell will assist with the padded mallet. Number 36 of the Universal Animated Weekly also will be released on September 6 with a well selected program of news events of the day.

On September 7, Pat Rooney will star in the Victor comedy, "He Became a Regular Fellow," written by Ben Cohn and produced by Roy Clements. Appearing in support of Rooney will be Ed. Sedgwick, Mrs. Lydia Titus, Jessie Arnold, Ed. Clark and "Kewpie" Morgan. Following the Rooney release, Cleo Madison will appear in "The Triumph of Truth," a Big U two-reel sea drama scenarioized by Harvey Gates from the story by J. F. Abbott, and produced by Miss Madison herself. Thomas Chatterton, Seymour Zeliff, and J. F. Abbott will appear in support of Miss Madison. On the same day the Powers educational, "Making a U. S. Soldier" will be released.

"The Pinnacle," a two-reel Imp society melodrama featuring Myrtle Gonzalez, Richard Stanton and Hayward Mack will be released on September 8. The principals will be supported by Fred Belasco and Edward Brown. "The Pinnacle" was produced by Richard Stanton from the story by F. McGrew Willis. On the same day Edith Roberts, Lee Kolmar and M. J. Wilson will be featured in the Rex drama, "His Country's Call." There will be no Nestor release on September 8.

September 9 will see the release of Francis Ford and Grace Cunard in "The Princely Bandit," a Bison two-reel drama written by Grace Cunard and produced by Francis Ford. The principals will be supported by Pete Gerald and Jack Holt. On the same day, Ben Wilson will appear with Edna Hunter in the Big U drama, "The Laugh of Scorn," which was written by William Addison Lathrop and produced by Director Wilson. Joseph W. Girard and Charles Ogle appear in the same picture in character roles. The comedy of the day will be "The Deacon Stops the Show," in which William Franey and Gale Henry play the principal roles supported by Lillian Peacock, Milburn Moranti and Charles Conklin. This joker was written by Ben Cohn and produced by Allen Curtis.

On September 10, Molly Malone and Jack Nelson will be seen in the Big U drama, "Mountain Blood," written by Fred Burns and produced by George Cochrane. Vestor Pegg, George Berrill and Fred Burns will appear in support of the principals. On the same day, Jean Hersholt and Irene Hunt will co-star in "As the Candle Burned," an Imp drama written and produced by Joseph Le Brandt. Billy Mason also takes a leading role in this picture. There will be no release under the L-Ko brand this week.

Two Triangles Released in September Were Made in the East, "The Social Secretary" and "Manhattan Madness"

TRIANGLE'S releases for the month of September bring a wealth of material to the program from the Fine Arts, Kay-Bee and Keystone studies. Included in the features are two that are in the nature of a novelty in that they were made in the East instead of out on the Pacific Coast.

The first of the eastern pictures is "The Social Secretary," in which Norma Talmadge is starred and the second is "Manhattan Madness," starring Douglas Fairbanks. Incidentally it might be mentioned that both stars are now hard at work on new pictures, the releases of which, of course, will not be made until some time later.

William S. Hart is the only one of the Triangle stars who will be seen in more than one picture during the month. He appears in "The Patriot," scheduled for release on September 3 and again in "The Dawn Maker," due to be released on September 23. Both pictures are typical Hart stories.

Coupled with "The Patriot," for release on September 3 is "Gretchen the Greenhorn," in which Dorothy Gish is starred.

September 10 brings Mae Marsh and Robert Harron as co-stars in a Triangle-Fine Arts feature, "The Little Liar."

The same week Frank Keenan scores again in "The Thoroughbred," a typical Keenan story.

On September 17, the Triangle-Ince feature, "The Wolf Woman," will be released and at the same time Louise Glaum will be launched as a full-fledged star. Advance information heralds "The Wolf Woman" as a sensation.

The Lillian Gish feature, "Diana of the Follies," scheduled to be seen the week of September 23. For some of the scenes a musical comedy company was enlisted.

Last but not least is a Bessie Barriscale feature of which more will be heard later.

HELPS HIM TO SELECT PROGRAMS

Crystal Theatre,
Glencoe, Minn., August 12.

You folks are certainly putting out a wonderful journal. It is a great help to me in selecting my program, and I prefer your paper to any other that I am getting.

Yours truly,
Jay E. Gould.

SOCIETY FOLK FILMED FOR "MISTER 44," A METRO PICTURE

More than one hundred California society folk appear on the screen in "Mister 44," a new Metro-Yorke wonderplay, in which Harold Lockwood and May Allison are co-starred. The fashionable pro tem actors and actresses were lured into the camera's range of vision through an exhibition of fancy diving given by Aileen Allen, champion woman fancy diver of the United States, who has a part in the production. The scene was made at Lake Tahoe, California, in the vicinity of which all of the exteriors of "Mister 44" were filmed.

The ultra fashionable crowd, who were all guests at the Tahoe Tavern, seemed to enjoy their experience hugely. It was all new to them—something that erased their ennui for a few moments, and when they realized that the clicking camera was pointed their way they entered into the spirit.

The five score "extras" had nothing to do in the scene but "atmosphere." The scene was a representation of a society summer resort, and the wealthy persons did "atmosphere," even to the complete satisfaction of Director Henry Otto. He said afterward that a more vivacious and happy summer resort crowd could not have been obtained.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

WHEN Director Maurice Tourneur selected his characters for "The Velvet Paw," he chose types bearing strong resemblances to the important personages prominent in our political life in Washington, and all those who see this World Film production will at once be impressed by the close likeness of Champ Clark in the Speaker's chair, and old standbys of the House of Representatives, such as "Cy" Sullaway, the "Tall Pine" for New Hampshire, Representative Mann, Representative McLenore, and Representative Fordney, who figured prominently in the child labor legislation which recently took up the attention of the national legislators.

"The Man She Married" is the title of a drama now being filmed at the World studios under the direction of Travers Vale, with Gail Kane, Arthur Ashley, Montagu Love, Louise M. Bates, and Muriel Ostriche.

Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell are again appearing together in World pictures, just now being engaged in the making of "The New South," which is being directed by Robert Thornby. Besides Miss Clayton and Mr. Blackwell, Stanhope Wheatcroft, Henry West, Louis Grisel, Jessie Lewis, and the youngest World Film star, Madge Evans, are in the cast.

"The Revolt," one of the biggest of the Shubert Broadway successes, is now being made into a five-part motion picture feature by the World Film Corporation, with Frances Nelson, Arthur Ashley, Clara Whipple, Frank Beamish, Madge Evans, and George McQuarrie in the cast.

Marie Dressler has started working in her first World Film production, "Tillie's Night Out," which was written especially for her by Frances Marion. Harry Davenport is directing, although Miss Dressler herself has considerable to say as to the direction. Just to show that she had no fear for hard work, Miss Dressler made thirty-nine scenes in one day, and returned the next to take twenty-two more. In this first of a series of "Tillie" pictures, Miss Dressler is capably assisted by Johnny Hines, Frank Beamish, Ruby de Remer, Ruth Barrett, and Jack Brown.

Convent Experience of Alice Brady

Alice Brady spent several years of her childhood in the Convent of St. Elizabeth in Madison, N. J., and there became familiar with the personnel as well as the religious regulations under which a convent is conducted. This experience stood her in good stead when she started working in "The Gilded Cage," as in it she plays the part of a princess who forsakes society for the convent, finding the convent life a great relief compared to the career of a princess in a palace. In this picture Miss Brady is supported by Arthur Ashley, Montagu Love, Irving Cummings, Gerda Holmes, Clara Whipple, and Alec B. Francis.

Mollie King, who scored such a hit in "The Summer Girl," will next be starred with Robert Warwick by the World Film Corporation in "All Man," a quick-pulsating comedy directed by Emile Chautard. In this picture the supporting company includes Johnny Hines, Henry West, Louis Grisel, Alec B. Francis, Gerda Holmes, George McQuarrie, and several real Western cowpunchers.

Forty-one students, comprising the summer session class of the Columbia University School of Journalism, led by Professor Franklin Matthews, made a trip last week to the William Fox studios in New Jersey to get material for "copy," as part of their reportorial training.

Twelve states were represented in the party. After they had spent the afternoon under the hot glass roofs of the Fort Lee, Cliffside and Grantwood studios, all agreed unanimously that acting before the camera under the strong violet rays is thoroughly difficult and patience-trying work.

Virginia Pearson's new picture of a Scotch girl's adventures during war-time is said to be remarkable for the close-ups which it will show. The Southern beauty has never done a finer piece of acting in her entire career, and director Kenean Buel takes full advantage of this fact by giving a number of views of the William Fox star's features at close range.

June Caprice is at work on a new picture for William Fox which will deal with a girl's life in an orphanage.

Vaughan with Johnson

Arthur Vaughan, assistant to Director Will S. Davis, who made "The Straight Way" for William Fox, has been transferred to Tefft Johnson, the new director who joined the Fox forces reecntly.

The William Fox baseball team, like the Fox pictures, has winning ways. The employes of the World Films fell before the onslaught at McCombs Dam Park; score, 8-3. Virginia Pearson showed her loyalty to the cause by throwing out the first ball. It wasn't a bad throw, either, when one considers that she had driven her car from Palisades, New Jersey, to perform the feat. About 5,000 persons saw the game. Next week the Fox players will cross bats with the Triangle representatives.

A large number of ferocious looking Sioux Indians have been engaged for Bertram Bracken's new photoplay for the William Fox Films. The picture has an unusual plot, and the action revolves about a girl's infatuation for an Indian.

Theda Bara has returned to the vampire role. She is highly pleased with her latest part, and says it was like a homecoming after playing Cigarette and Isabel in "Under Two Flags" and "East Lynne," in both of which Miss Bara scored.

The exteriors for many of the scenes in the new Bara picture were taken at Long Beach, New Jersey.

Joan Sawyer, who has joined the William Fox photoplayers, will begin work this week on her first picture as the leading woman with the Tefft Johnson Company. Mr. Johnson is one of the new Eastern directors, whom William Fox recently added to his producing staff.

Miss Sawyer has achieved an international reputation because of her valiant service on behalf of the dances which have swept the country in the last few years. Besides creating the "Joan Waltz" and the "Joanelle," she did pioneer work in the United States for the Congo trot, the artist's dream, the maxixe, the aeroplane waltz, and the Congo Schottische.

Miss Sawyer is a native of El Paso, Texas, and she says that although she had loved dancing as far back as she can remember, she got her first real inspiration for the terpsichorean the first time her father took her to the theater.

After several years on the stage with Richard Carle, Raymond Hitchcock, and other musical comedy notables, Miss Sawyer had fame literally forced upon her. The manager of the play in which she was appearing did not like her dancing. He told her so. Miss Sawyer left the company and proceeded to become one of the best-known dancers in the world within a very short time.

For a couple of seasons she graced the vaudeville stage, then went to Narragansett for a summer of success at the Pier, followed this up with Paris, and returned to America to begin spreading the gospel of the tango.

There are times when Richard A. Rowland, president of Metro Pictures Corporation, likes to forget business cares and take a spin out into the country. He and Mrs. Rowland recently took a run out to Briarcliff Lodge.

"Now let's forget the city," he said. "Let's forget motion pictures. Let's forget everything and just have a nice restful day."

Cameras, Cameras, Everywhere

They had been sitting a few moments under the trees when Mr. Rowland sat up with a start. "Is this brain fag?" he asked, "or do I really see a motion picture camera?"

His question was answered by Ralph Herz. "Hello, gov'nor. I thought this would be the right spot to give atmosphere to the new one-reel comedy, "Winning an Heiress."

"What's the use?" said Metro's president. "Guess I'll go back to work."

Supplemental scenes of light effects have brought the actual time spent before the camera in the Bushman and Bayne screen production of "Romeo and Juliet" up to thirteen weeks. Cameraman Rudolph Burquist has secured some exquisite pictures of dawn, sunrise, and night effects, which add materially to the pictorial value of the great production.

To obtain the desired results, Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, and the cameraman remained at their posts for twenty-four hours of perfect weather, to catch the different phases of sunlight, moonlight, and dusk for the purposes of the picture, refusing to trust to artificial lighting. Different combinations of light and shade make the production a triumph of photographic art as well as the visualization of Shakespeare's most beautiful poetic drama.

The camera was first turned on the picture May 25; the story proper was completed August 16, and the supplemental scenes required another week.

Gladys Hulette (Thanhouser)

Ormi Hawley, who has been on a hunting trip in the woods of Northern Maine has returned to New York. Immediately after completing her last picture with the Popular Plays and Players with Edmund Breeze. Miss Hawley left for Maine, and accompanied by two women friends and a guide went game hunting with cameras. Most of their journey was made in a canoe, camping wherever a location appealed to them. They secured some remarkable pictures of deer by flashlight.

Of course, President George K. Spoor of Essanay has always practiced putting his best players in his short reel productions, but he had not planned on Henry B. Walthall taking a minor role in a one-reel George Ade fable. Nevertheless, Mr. Walthall and E. H. Calvert, Essanay heavy and director, played in one of the comedies and didn't know it. It happened at the Westmoreland Country Club, Chicago. The two stars were having a round of golf, unaware that an Ade fable was being filmed on the course.

Their game served to illustrate a section of the fable excellently and several scenes were taken before the absorbed golfers saw the camera. So Henry B. Walthall is acting even in a one-act comedy entitled "The Fable of the Kid Who Shifted His Ideals to Golf."

Replete with Scenes of Starved Rock

A party of Essanay players, headed by Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton, have returned from Starved Rock, Ill., where scenes were taken for a five-act adaptation of George Barr McCutcheon's famous novel, "The Prince of Graustark." These exteriors, together with those taken on estates along Chicago's beautiful north shore, complete the out-of-door scenes.

Miss Clayton, supposed to be pulled off a pier by a large fish, fell onto a sharp rock and was severely lacerated, but continued to play the scene. The scene called for an expensive outing suit, and one fall into the water with such—even for a motion picture actress—is enough. Miss Clayton didn't relish ruining another suit, so she went through the scene regardless of her injury.

Mr. Washburn, as the Prince, was due to march out into the water in a beautiful white uniform and with elegant courtesy offer his arm to the distressed heiress. This he did with excellent grace.

Henry B. Walthall is starting a new five-act feature at the Essanay studios.

Harry Beaumont's next appearance on the screen will be in "His Little Wife," 3-act Essanay drama.

Niles Welch, who played opposite Pearl White in "The Blossom and the Bee," an Astra-Pathe production, has taken a hurried trip to Boston to take part in the swimming races there. While at Yale and Columbia Welch achieved quite a reputation for himself as an athlete. He won innumerable cups for swimming and has continued along so, although his screen work keeps him so busy, that his only opportunity to enter competitions is between pictures.

Anthony P. Kelly, the photoplaywright, who has been at Lake George for the past few weeks following all lines of least resistance, has returned to New York and officially announces that he is getting ready for a big autumn drive on eastern studios. Kelly's last screen play, "The Blossom and the Bee," was recently completed by Astra-Pathe with Pearl White in the leading role.

Florence La Badie's new Thanhouser picture, which is as yet unnamed, is based upon the ultra-modern ideas of marriage and divorce. Frederic Sullivan is directing the picture. Miss La Badie will be supported by J. H. Gilmour, Edwin Stanley, Kathryn Adams, Sam Niblack, Ethylmary Oakland, and Arthur Levine.

Vincent Serrano, famed for his portrayal of Lieutenant Denton in "Arizona," has been engaged by Edwin Thanhouser to be starred in a five-reel feature called "A Modern Monte Cristo." The scenario is by Lloyd Lonergan. Eugene Moore, who has just finished directing Jeanne Eagles in "The World and the Woman," is to direct Mr. Serrano.

Clara Kimball Young and Conway Tearle in a Scene from "The Common Law"

Mr. Serrano has appeared only once before in motion pictures—when he was costarred with Pauline Frederick in "Lydia Gilmore."

More than a thousand times has Mr. Serrano played Lieutenant Denton in "Arizona." In the recent all-star revival of the play he was Tony, while Dustin Farnum played Denton. No one who ever saw "Arizona" forgets the plaintive song that Tony sings. Mr. Serrano is the author of that song.

Mr. Serrano was a member of Richard Mansfield's Company for several years, and later supported William H. Crane. He also has had important parts in "The Little Brother of the Rich," "On Parole," "The Secret Orchard," "The Lure," "The Revolt," and "Pay Day."

Mr. Serrano was born in New York, and is half-Spanish and half-Irish. He has been on the stage nineteen years.

Thomas A. Curran has the part next in importance to Mr. Serrano's in "A Modern Monte Cristo." Gladys Dore and Helen Badgley are in the supporting cast. The feature will be released through the Pathe exchanges.

E. S. FILM COMPANY WILL MAKE PICTURES IN JACKSONVILLE

Special to Motion Picture News.

Jacksonville, August 26.

An application for letters patent have been filed in Jacksonville by the officers of the U. S. Film Company, who will begin productions of feature films as soon as their incorporation papers are received. The officers of the company are: F. H. Michealis, President; Lollie Abernethy, vice-president, and Gen. Frank Custer, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Michealis was formerly connected with the Serial Film Company, which produced "The Yellow Menace" in this city.

Negotiations are under way between Jacksonville capitalists and the owners of Bostock's Animal Shows, whereby that organization is preparing to locate in this city for the purpose of producing motion pictures for the Sentor Film Company.

Charles L. Gaskill, formerly connected with the Vitagraph Company, has organized the Phoenix Picture Players Company, and purchased land for the erection of a studio at Orlando, Fla., a short distance from Jacksonville. Among the players connected with the new company is Miss Helen Gardner, who will be featured in their productions. The company is capitalized at $1,000,000 and will start to work on their buildings immediately.

WINNER OF $10,000 SCENARIO PRIZE WILL BE ANNOUNCED SOON BY MUTUAL

The winner of the prize of $10,000 for the best sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky," the Mutual Film Corporation's famous sixty-reel film novel, is shortly to be chosen.

The board of judges, sitting in Chicago, has narrowed the contest to a choice between the efforts of forty scenario writers. This has been the result of a painstaking survey of the vast mass of scenarios totaling 101,716 in number, which were received while the contest was in progress.

A decision from the judges naming the winning scenario is to be expected in a short time, as soon as choice can be made between the forty particularly meritorious scenarios now under consideration.

The sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky" will mark the conclusion of an enterprise which has made history in the photoplay industry. "The Diamond" was the longest and most pretentious film production of its character ever made and released. It ran through a most successful career in the United States, and is now playing to big attendance in foreign fields.

CAREY AND OLIVE GOLDEN WILL REMAIN WITH UNIVERSAL

Contrary to rumor, Harry Carey and Olive Fuller Golden will not leave the Universal at the expiration of Carey's contract in September. Nor will they become affiliated with the Stern Film Company and make Bluebird subjects exclusively for that program.

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.

SIX of the eight William Fox directors are busy with as many productions. The two not engaged in filming at present are R. A. Walsh, who is preparing a story, and Richard Stanton, whose work has been delayed as leads for his next picture are to be sent out from the East. It is rumored that probably Theda Bara will play lead in the next production, but this information does not come from an official source.

William H. Clifford, well known on the screen because of his work in Universal pictures for three years, his appearance in four Quality-Metro releases, and his late affiliation with the Horsley producing staff as leading man, has been engaged by Western Representative A. Carlos, to play leads in the first subject made under the direction of Frank Lloyd. Gladys Brockwell is to be featured in this, and another prominent member of the cast will be George Webb. The story is to have a Northwest and tropical atmosphere.

Director Otis Turner, with George

True Boardman (Kalem)

Walsh and Juanita Hansen as principals, and Oscar Apfel, with William Farnum and Nell Shipman, are working at the Edendale studio. Mr. Apfel, in an effort to complete the production at the earliest moment, is putting in from five to eight hours' overtime every day. The reason for the overtime is to enable William Farnum to take a vacation that he may recover his health. He has been ill since early in January when he was over-exposed while making tank scenes during the coldest weather California has ever known.

The two Fox comedy companies, one under the direction of Walter Reed with Ana Luther as lead, and the other in charge of Charles Parrott, with Hank Mann, Carmen Phillips, Charles Arling, John Lancaster, and Joe Lee, are both starting new two-reel comedy subjects at the Hollywood studio.

Camp life and primitive living conditions are distasteful to members of the William Fox producing organization who went to the mountains in the vicinity of Fresno recently, for scenes in the Western comedy drama being filmed by Director Otis Turner. This is an adaptation from the Roy Norton story, "The Mediator," which gives George Walsh, a semi-comedian role, he taking the part of the man who is always trying to preserve peace, and gets into the thickest of every Western mix-up. Juanita Hansen plays the feminine role, and big Jim Marcus is the character lead. Exteriors were made in the vicinity of Cascada, and the players came home sore from the tips of their toes to the crowns of their heads, as the result of climbing mountains, sliding down gullies, and rolling off cliffs.

Fox Orders Armored Autos

William Fox has made arrangements for the rental of armored automobiles of the type used by the United States Army. These are to be delivered at El Paso, where Director Richard Stanton and Company will make exterior scenes for a coming production.

Manager Dwight Whiting of the Rolin Film Company, upon advice from Hal Roach, director general of the company, now in New York City, has made the announcement that in the future Lonesome

Lou-Tellegen (Lasky)

Luke Comedies, heretofore consisting of one reel, will in the future be made in two for Pathe Exchanges, Inc. Mr. Roach had hardly been out of Los Angeles long enough to reach New York than over the wire came the information that he had been successful in making a new contract with the releasing organization of Pathe, which will double the output of this company's producing organization.

The Rolin producing companies are now working at their new studio on Court street, and during the absence of Mr. Roach, Mr. Whiting is in charge of direction of one company. He is engaged in making a comedy with early English settings and costumes, and an important part of the wardrobe necessary for this are a number of suits of armor. The comedians are finding the designers did not take into consideration any falls when the armour was made, and practically every one of the players has a number of cuts on various parts of the anatomy as the result of the metal pinching when they alighted.

The new plant of the Rolin company will be complete in every particular. Workmen are now engaged in installing the laboratory equipment, and as soon as this is completed will begin the work of inclosing the smaller of the two stages, which is sixty feet square. A battery of Cooper-Hewitt lights will soon reach Los Angeles for use in this studio, making it possible for the company to continue production regardless of weather conditions. The location of the new studio is on the top of the highest foothill near the business section, and the company will not be prevented from production here nearly as much as at lower locations.

Another improvement to the Rolin producing plant, added this week, is a small theatre. This has been equipped with a late model Power's 6-B projector. The new laboratory equipment is being furnished by the Bell and Howell Company.

While a Rolin producing company was returning to the studio one evening last week, the Cadillac eight car, the property of Hal Roach, in which they were riding, was hit by a large truck and badly damaged. The players were dashed to the side of the road and all more or less injured. Fred Jefferson was the most unfortunate, sustaining a fracture of the collar bone in the fall. Joe Mattice received a deep cut on the hip. Billy Fay, a Rolin comedian, was injured the same day at the studio, in a fall, when bones of his arm were broken. Fay is one of the oldest members of the Rolin organization, having played parts in practically every subject made by this company.

Charlotte Burton, American-Mutual

Margaret Nichols New Rolin Lead

Margaret Nichols is the new leading woman for Rolin and Pathe comedies, and last week did her first work in the second Rolin organization making juvenile slapstick comedies. Miss Nichols is well known to Pathe Exchange patrons as a result of spending more than a year at the Balboa studio, where subjects for this releasing organization are made. Since that engagement she has played with the American company at Santa Barbara. In Rolin comedies she will share honors with "Fat" Lampton, the three-hundred-pound, fifteen-year-old lad, who is being featured.

The second Lou-Tellegen-Lasky subject is now in production under the direction of Edward J. LaSaint, and a company of more than two hundred have gone to Balboa Beach, where they will spend several days' making water stuff. Cleo Ridgley has been cast to support Mr. Tellegen in this production, and Sessue Hayakawa has been assigned to an important role. The subject, as yet unnamed, will have a decided Oriental atmosphere. Los Angeles society girls, pupils of the Ruth St. Denis school of dancing, will take part in Oriental dance scenes.

A Brittany atmosphere is to be given the next Lasky subject, starring Marie Doro, which is now in production in charge of Director James Y. Young. Elliott Dexter will play opposite Miss Doro. The photoplay has been titled "The Lash."

Because of the long hours required by Director William de Mille, in making the final scenes for "Anton the Terrible," members of the producing staff have suggested that the title be changed to "William the Terrible." The players, on the last lap, worked from nine o'clock one morning continuously until the following morning, some of them not getting away from the studio until after seven o'clock. This subject features Theodore Roberts, supported by Anita King and other well-known players of the Lasky stock. The photodrama was adapted from the Thomas H. Uzzell story which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, the screen version being adapted by Jules Eckart Goodman. Members of Mr. de Mille's Company believe it would greatly reduce the number of applicants at the studio if a big poster giving the hours required of players be placed in a conspicuous place in front of the studio.

With the completion of all scenes for the next D. W. Griffith release, "Intolerance," the army of extra players have shifted their position of attack to the Lasky plant, and these hundreds are being used daily in a big production being filmed by Cecil B. de Mille. No announcement has been made from the studio of this subject, but one may judge from the crowds assembled about the employment department that more extra people are being used daily at this studio, than any other one on the Coast. Local publications have been making guesses as to the title of the feature which Mr. de Mille is engaged in making, but up to this time those who knew have retained a sphinx-like silence.

Joseph "Baldy" Belmont, Keystone comedian, was making an aerial dive through a brick wall following the explosion of gasoline in the range of a cafe for a Keystone subject now being filmed. While he was soaring with arms and legs stretched—this made possible by the supports—two of the wires snapped, and he fell several feet, alighting flat on his back. He was not taken to the hospital, but at the suggestion of the director, ran to his dressing room to add liniment to the bruises. The sprint was made in record time, showing what a photoplayer will do when urged on by a voice through a megaphone.

"She Loved a Sailor"

The filming of "She Loved a Sailor" has been a hoodoo from the start, effecting practically every Keystoner in any way connected with the comedy. In the first place four people cast for the number could not begin work immediately as they were busy in other stories, which tied up the remainder of the company for two weeks. Then the company went to sea. First the ballast shifted, and in high tide the boat sank. A tug recovered it, and ballast consisting of rocks was placed between the boards of the deck. This proved too heavy and held the boat so low in the water line that waves washed over, filled it to the brim, and again it went to the bottom. The cast includes Claire Anderson, Hugh Fay, Shorty Hamilton, Joseph Swickard and others. The last report of the jinx from Director Hearman was that the recently purchased ship had broken anchor at Los Angeles harbor and drifted out to sea.

Fred Mace received a letter from an Australian maid for a photograph of his handsome self—and the letter came marked six cents due.

Reggie Morris, juvenile leading man of the Keystone organization, was last week one of the principals of a wedding, the bride being Mae Rapeto, a St. Louis girl.

A Keystone company, the principals of which are Charles Conklin, Martha Trick, Guy Woodward and Marie Manley, are home from spending ten days at Balboa Beach, forty miles south of Los Angeles, where they filmed exteriors for a houseboat story. A crew of stage carpenters went to the beach days ahead of the company and built an elaborate houseboat with interiors completed. Most of the action of this comedy melodrama is filmed about this houseboat. Chester Conklin has the featured part, that of the engineer who continuously has a weather eye for fair women. No title has been given this Keystone. It is said the magnificent houseboat cost approximately $5,000.

Three "slims"—Somerville, St. Clair, and Potel—all working in as many different subjects at the Keystone, now cause many mix-ups as the result of the call boy using their nick names. At each call the three bound into the set named, only to find that two are in wrong.

A distinguished visitor and party participated in the hardships of comedy making at the Sennett plant last week, when the hose used on a fire scene was accidently turned on the fair audience. Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., was swept off her feet by the force of the water, as were one or two other members of her party who were watching a scene in a comedy which features Fred Mace and Harry Gribbon. The real cause of the catastrophe was that too large a charge of powder was used in the fire scene. This required the calling out of the studio fire department in addition to the prop one being used in the set.

A Fight on a Yardarm

The last scene to be made for the Keystone subject, "She Loved a Sailor," was that filmed at Los Angeles harbor when Willie Gilbert and Shorty Hamilton climbed the mast of the Alden Besse, fought for a few second on the royal yard arm, and then Gilbert dived head first into the sea, a distance of, so it is said, one hundred and ten feet.

Fred Mace, Charles Murray, Harry Gribbon and Mack Swain constitute the members of the all-star Keystone quartet formed at the studio this week, when a minister asked Keystone players to take part in a benefit program. The four players plan to make this a permanent organization, that they may be at all times prepared to take part in other programs.

One thousand dollars damages were caused to a big hotel motor bus when it was used, while loaded with passengers, for a dash through an art glass window of a handsome exterior cafe set. Bobbie Vernon was the driver, and he made the smash scene without injury to any one participating. No name has been selected for the picture in which this scene will be used.

A company of Universal players spent the past week at San Diego, where they used buildings of the exposition for the palaces of an imaginary land in the three-reel production, "Honor Thy Country," being filmed under the direction of Ben Wilson.

The company producing "The Place Beyond the Winds" is home from spending ten days in Big Bear Valley, where exteriors were made by Director Joseph de Grasse. The leads of this production are Dorothy Phillips and Lon Chaney, and de-Grasse appears in an important part.

Lee Kohlmar, who has been at U City appearing in photoplays produced by Director Frank D. Ormston, has left for London, where he will play leading roles in "Abe and Mawrass" at the Queen's theatre.

Hyman Simms, late of the production department of U City, has been transferred to the prop rooms, where he has been placed in charge as manager of the department. He has been with the Universal for three years, two years of which time he served as purchasing agent.

Lloyd B. Carleton and his players including Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnson as leads, and Richard Morris as character man, are back from a trip to San Francisco, where they made exteriors for the five-reel subject, "The Road of Destiny." While there Carleton and the company spent three days on an ocean-going yacht, and were in a sea so rough that it was impossible for the company to secure pictures.

Another company returned this week from five weeks' absence in Humbolt County, where they made exteriors for "The Measure of a Man" in the redwood forest district. Jack Conway is in charge of this production, and has Jack Kerrigan and Louise Lovely as his leads. The scenario was adapted by Maude Grang from the story of Norman Duncan.

Ella Hall is to be the star of a five-reel Bluebird, written by Fred Myton, Universal staff author. This has not been placed in production as yet. The title is "Pawn," the story getting its name from the girl who knows practically nothing of the world beyond the pawn shop in which she has spent much of her life.

Allen Holubar, who has been appearing in a star part of the ten-reel subject, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," has been placed in charge of a company and will direct Flora Parker De Haven. The first picture to be made will be "The Little Dream Child," in which Charles Cummings plays the male lead.

A big set has been erected in the back half of U City representing a street scene in Normandy, for the five reel Rupert Julian subject, "We Are French," in which Ella Hall plays the opposite lead. The producers have found so much good action in this story, that it is probable it will be made into eight reels. To secure the best results, Miss Hall has become a French

The Lynn Reynolds U company have gone to the redwood district in the vicinity of Fresno, where they will make exteriors for "The End of the Rainbow" from an original story by Reynolds. This features Myrtle Gonzalez.

Average of One Reel a Week

Six Universal comedy companies are turning out on the average of more than one reel of finished negative each week, in fact, the output will average about a reel and a half each week for each company.

The Nestorites, under the direction of Louis Chaudet, have produced the one-reel subject entitled "Who's Who." The action of the comedy centers about a pair of newlyweds at a masquerade ball, and their attempts at deceiving each other about their costumes land them in the police station. Eddie Lyons and Priscilla Dean are the newlyweds, and Lee Moran appears as a tramp.

This company is now at work filming the one-reeler entitled "Model 46." Most of the action takes place at a beach hotel, and the trouble is caused by Eddie taking a wax model to the beach where he is seen by his sweetheart, and getting in bad with a romantic actress and her physician. The same players with Gretchen Lederer and Fred Gamble appear. The story is by Tom Gibson.

Director William Beaudine has completed the one-reel comedy entitled "The Inspector's Double," with Gale Henry, William Franey, Charles Conklin, Lillian Peacock, Milburn Moranti and Harry Mann as members of the cast. Mistaken identity is the cause for the comedy contained in the subject, and also creates a number of chases. The company is now working on "From Soup to Surgery," being a comedy in which a surgeon mistakes the sweetheart of the family maid for one of his wife's callers.

"He Meant Well" is the title of the one-reel comedy just finished by Director P. G. Hartigan. C. C. Jackson, Yvette Mitchell and Ernie Shields are the cast.

The Universal company making comedies under the direction of Wallace Beery filmed three subjects during their stay at Catalina Islands. The first of the three is entitled, "It's All Wrong, Cupid," which features Carter De Haven, supported by Margaret Whistler, Mina Cunard and Dan Duffy. In this De Haven falls in love with a fair passenger on the same boat, and his many attempts to prove himself a hero in order to win her love, create the comedy situations. The second is entitled "When Right is Might." Director Beery appears in the part of a janitor with a nagging wife. He falls to sleep and dreams he is on an island dressed in skins and surrounded with pretty women. He is forced to fight many battles with the king and his guards, and awakens to find himself fighting with the mop. The director is supported by Margaret Whistler, "Kewpie" Morgan, Dan Duffy and Mina Cunard.

The third to be made is entitled "The Goddess of Mutiny."

The U Comedy company under the direction of R. Dillon have just finished the filming of the one-reeler, "Their Sporting Blood." Rival lovers decide to have a horse race, the winner to have the girl as the prize. Pat Rooney is the featured comedian and is supported by Marcia Moore, Al Ebright, Walter Clinton, and Malcolm Shafer.

The Dillon company is now busy with the filming of "Pat Turns Detective." Pat, a dime novel fiend, is mistaken for a detective by a jealous wife who hires him to follow her husband, a cop. His attempts to put what he has read into practice gets him in wrong with his sweetheart and rival, and he is forced to float out into the ocean for safety. Pat Rooney and Marcia Moore are the principals of this subject, and the supporting members are Fred Fralich, Jane Bernoudy and Hayward Mack.

"Bared By a Bear" is the title of the one-reeler filmed by the Roy Clements Universal company. This has an atmosphere of a western ranch. Ed. Sedgwick gets a job on the ranch and falls in love with the owner's daughter who is engaged to marry the foreman. The cowboys make life miserable for him, and when they turn a bear loose, Fatty seeks shelter in a tree. After many trying situations he is successful in overpowering the foreman and elopes with the girl. Belle Bennet, Jack Frances and Tom Webb are the other members of the cast.

Universal Director Al. Rice and company are home from Pine Crest, where they filmed exteriors for two subjects, one of which is entitled "The Scar." It is a story of an old mountaineer and his daughter. George C. Pearce, Jane Bernoudy, Lloyd Whitlock and James Farley are the principals of the cast.

The second subject is entitled "The Water Rights." Like the first this has mountain atmosphere, and has to do with a dispute between two families regarding a water hole.

Ruth Stonehouse Completes "Mary Ann"

Ruth Stonehouse has finished the direction of her first subject entitled "Mary Ann." The subject is in one reel, and most of the action takes place in an orphanage. Miss Stonehouse plays the principal part, that of one of the children, who because she is not pretty, imitates those who are, thinking perhaps some one will adopt her. It is decidedly a juvenile picture, as most of the parts are taken by child players. Peggy Coudray, Marvel Spencer, Freddie Fralick and Helen Wright appear in the principal parts.

"His Housekeeper," is the title of the one-reel Universal drama produced by Director M. K. Wilson, who also plays in the cast. Malcolm Blevins, Edith Roberts, and Manine Wright appear as the other principals. The scenario is by Harvey Gates.

Another one-reel Universal drama entitled "Her Honor" has been produced by Director Donald MacDonald from a story by Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude. A husband becomes so engrossed with business affairs that he neglects his pretty young wife, all of which allows another man to pay her attention, which causes much gossip. Lee Hill, Maude George, Paul Byron and E. P. Evers are the principals of the cast.

Film News From Foreign Parts

Movement for British Association Under Way

Special to Motion Picture News.

London, August 17.

ALL branches of the British industry are much concerned with the possibilities of big trade developments offered them. When the European conflagration occurred just two years ago, very satisfactory progress in film producing was being made, and from the nucleus of manufacturers who in the interval have been vindicating a worthy reputation, there are hopes that there will emerge a film organization which will be a credit to the best traditions of cinematography. Viewed in the light of recent achievements the British film producing industry is on the high road to success, and whilst the film quality is of the finest craftsmanship in conception, staging, and photographic execution, the quantity is deplorably inadequate to meet the requirements of even the British exhibitor. Visit any cinema in any part of the United Kingdom, and one will find that the vast preponderance of film subjects have been imported from the United States. In putting forward the plea for more British films, there is no suggestion that foreign productions generally do not coincide with the tastes and wishes of British patrons, rather do they interpret the various phases of life in a manner extremely creditable to all concerned. The more film producers there are the greater is the stimulus for really meritorious films, new ideas in presentation, etc., which are all to ultimate benefit of the industry. Of the British manufacturers, the Ideal, Hepworth, Broadwest, Lusocque, Gaumont, B. and C. studios all turn out distinctly commendable work, but more subjects are wanted, more, and still more. The British market is big, but the foreign market is bigger, and well worth cultivation. The war is exercising a much desired "speeding-up," and the disabilities of the conflict notwithstanding, the prospects of great advancement in the cinematographic art are very rosy for Great Britain.

Organization Movements

A hearty movement is now in full swing to provide film men with a real live organization, which will give expression to the aspirations of the real cinematograph interests. Additional zest has been lent to this movement by the existing restrictions on trade in films—e. g., the Import Tax and the much talked of Official Censorship. There are two proposals, which are being urged, (1) the formation of a Film Trade Protection Society, which is being enthusiastically supported by the "Bioscope" and "the Kinematograph Board of Trade," a project zealously advocated by the Kinematograph Weekly.

According to these respective journals the schemes in their order named are as follows: Trade Protection Society, (1) for all concerned in buying, selling, hiring, or renting of films and posters; (2), members to agree to buy or sell, rent or hire to one another only (special conditions attaching to trading with countries outside the United Kingdom); (3), membership to all persons subject to agreement to the conditions of the association; (4), association to act as defense committee against attacks on the industry whenever and however arising; (5), to appoint press agent; (6), to appoint censorship board as follows: (a), Members shall decide according to principles laid down by the organization, if possible with the approval of Home Office; (b), they shall receive fixed salaries from association; (c), the fees charged for censorship are to accrue to the organization; (7), efforts should be made to obtain official recognition, and, if possible, statutory recognition, especially in relation to its censorship work; (8), provision to be made for the consideration by censorship board of scenarios submitted by manufacturers of intended productions; (9), members suffering from the attacks or public authorities on the films shown, in suitable cases, to be defended by the organization; Kinematograph Board of Trade, to weld together all the present scattered forces or industry, for which purpose a scheme is being prepared to put before members. This project if carried through promises to be a most serviceable body, without in any way deterring from the usefulness of any of the sectional organizations, which, as a matter of fact, would be strengthened and consolidated by being associated with a "Kinematograph Parliament."

Amusement Tax Complaint

Serious complaints come from South Wales on the difficulties which the operation of the Amusements Tax on cinemas is causing. Receipts had dropped generally from fifty to seventy-five per cent.; several pictures had already closed, and unless there is a modification in the measure there is an imminent prospect of others having to take the same course. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has agreed to receive a deputation from the trade and a deputation is being appointed.

A new make of films will make a bid for British trade in the very near future, being the productions of the African Film Productions of Johannesburg. The very nature of South African territory, its wild beauty and its numerous types of people will lend themselves very effectively to photographic reproduction, and provided that the subjects are of the quality to which British audiences are accustomed, and there is no reason to doubt it, and there is a good wholesome story, the films have a good augury for success. At any rate, one expects that they will strike a new and novel note. The first six subjects embrace "A Zulu's Devotion," drama, 1,027 feet; "An Artist's Inspiration," comedy, 845 feet; "A Kract Affair," comedy, 950 feet; and "Bathurst," interest, 668 feet; "Grahamstown," scenic, 302 feet, and "A Cruel Plant," scientific, 420 feet.

The American film spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," when being shown at Newcastle had some distinguished warriors as spectators, being a number of veterans who fought in the American Civil War and also in the war between the United States and Mexico. These old soldiers, one of whom has passed 90 years of age, were thoroughly regaled by the memories reviewed by the pictorial representation of some of the scenes in which they themselves actually took part. Afterward they were entertained to tea by the management of the picture theatre.

A British Shakespeare Film

No class of film is more difficult to produce with the full poetic effects than that based on the dramatic works of William Shakespeare. On the screen it is only actions that count, not words, while on the legitimate stage there must be a combination. Hence, deprived of their rich phrasing, it is hard to give a perfect representation of Shakespeare on the screen. Broadwest Films, Ltd., are therefore to be congratulated upon the enterprise in undertaking such an ambitious project as the filming of "The Merchant of Venice," which has been received with utmost enthusiasm. Interpreted by Mr. Matheson Lang's company of artists, the film is a superb conception of ideas of Shakespeare, and is undoubtedly a subject which will be much sought for.

Another noteworthy film is "The Broken Melody," featured by Martin Harvey, produced by the Ideal Company. a $5,000 drama. One is enthralled by Mr. Martin Harvey's inspired acting, and the story, so well known, is full of charm.

Other important films of the week are: "Grim Justice," Turner drama, based on the novel by Rita. A happy story of a girl, whose part is taken by Florence Turner, who lives by making others happy.

"When Knights Were Bold," London Film Company, comedy, showing James Welch at his best. The numerous droll scenes are extremely well presented .

"Nursie, Nursie," Samuelson comedy (2,000 feet), of a man who has a weakness for falling in love at first sight; starring Clarice Wayne and J. W. Tate.

Kineto, Ltd., also announce, "Beautiful

A Trio of Glimpses from the Latest Signal-Mutual Feature with Helen Holmes as Star, "The Diamond Runners" (August 28)

English Lakes," interest, 460 feet; "Interesting Incidents Here and There," 515 feet.

Forthcoming British Films include: "The Lifeguardsman," five reels, British Film Actors' Company; "Tatterley," from Tom Gallon's novel, featuring Charles Rock, Lucocque Company; "The Marriage of Wiliam Ashe," and "Coming Through the Rye," Hepworth; the British and Colonial studios are engaging themselves on a Renaissance film entitled, "Dr. Nikolo."

Joseph R. Darling, of the Fox organization, left England last week for South America and expects to return to this country within the next four or five months. He is immensely pleased with his visit to London.

Among the most notable American films of the last few days have been: "The Mapcap," (Red Feather); "John Needham's Double," (Blue Bird); "His Secret Marriage," (Trans-Atlantic); "The Lorelei Madonna," (Broadway); "Silks and Satins," (Famous Players Company); "Fighting Blood" and "A Woman's Past," (Fox); "The Lamb and the Yellow Fang," (Triangle); "Law Decides," (Vitagraph), and "The Race," (Lasky).

FRED GRONBACK.

KALEM FINDS FERTILE FIELD IN JAPAN

Japan is the latest foreign country to loom up strongly as a field for the exportation of American films, and reports would indicate that before the war is over the popularity of American screen stars will make it a difficult task for French and Italian producers to regain a foothold there.

The Kalem Company is finding a particularly fertile field in Japan. "Stingaree" has been shown successfully there and "The Social Pirates" is scheduled to start its release soon. Because of the favor greeting "Stingaree" much interest has already been shown in "The Girl From Frisco," which features the same stars, Marin Sais and True Boardman.

But it is for Ham and Bud that the Japanese audiences show their greatest partiality. The humor of "the tall and short fellow" seems to be the type that particularly strikes the Japanese taste.

President Laemmle and Manager Davis at Universal City

Executives of the Company Make No Announcement of Plans for the Picture Community—Mr. Laemmle Expects to Stay Indefinitely on the West Coast

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.

PRESIDENT CARL LAEMMLE and General Manager and Vice-President H. O. Davis have arrived at U City from New York. Previous to their arrival it was expected that several changes would probably be made at the plant, but no statement can be secured from the gentlemen, nor did the men have any announcement to make relative to the proposed improvements recently under consideration—the building of a new laboratory with capacity three times that of the present one, and the erection of a library building.

Production continues at the plant without changes, and to the average observer, the big men of the corporation are as silent as though they were still in New York.

Mr. Laemmle, it is understood, plans an indefinite stay at the coast. The exact time of the arrival of Messrs. Laemmle and Davis was learned by 1,500 employes at the city, and they gathered at the entrance of the plant and warmly greeted the chiefs on August 17.

Henry Lehrman, formerly head of the L-Ko Motion Picture Company, accompanied Mr. Laemmle west, and it is understood, with the intention of organizing another producing company which will make only five reel comedies.

One new director, Maxwell Ryder, has been added to the production staff during the week, and will make program dramas of one, two and three reels. He is now engaged in filming the first, which has been titled "Prize Roses," and offers Wadsworth Harris and Mrs. A. E. Witting in important roles.

D. F. Whitcomb, formerly with the Balboa Company, as scenario writer, has been added to the staff by Editor Eugene B. Lewis.

J. C. JESSEN.

Alice Brady Is the Star in "Bought and Paid For"

Photodrama Is Based on the Attraction with Two-Year Run to Its Credit at the Playhouse, New York, and Successful Tours All Over the Continent

ALICE BRADY will be starred in the principal feminine role of "Bought and Paid For," upon which work has been begun by World Pictures Brady-Made.

"Bought and Paid For" was Mr. Brady's initial offering as producing manager at his then new theatre, the Playhouse, and the extraordinary favor into which it sprang from the very first night went far toward establishing this resort in the high regard which it has since maintained.

The drama ran far into its second year in New York without a break, although the weather conditions of that particular summer were extremely distressing. It afterwards toured every nook and corner of the American continent, attracting audiences which in a great number of instances eclipsed all records.

"Bought and Paid For" was written by George Broadhurst, the author of "The Dollar Mark" and other plays which have already held enviable places in the motion picture field. It tells a story of marital infelicity brought about by the influence of liquor upon a husband, who in his natural state was one of the most noble and lovable of human creatures.

This serious side of the narrative is offset by a wholly uncommon vein of comedy supplied by a vivacious young woman married to a chap in whom optimism and conceit are so interwoven that he believes himself a positive genius—if he only had a chance.

William A. Brady, under whose personal direction "Bought and Paid For" was first introduced to the public from the stage of his own theatre, will also superintend its transit to the photodrama.

SPECIAL EDITION OF "CRISIS" PLANNED

A special edition of "The Crisis" is to be issued to appear simultaneously with the Selig film of the same title. The photoplay edition will contain scenes from the film drama. The publishers are planning an elaborate publicity campaign.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Philadelphia Exchanges Are Center of Activity

J. A. KOERPEL, the recently appointed manager of the World office, Philadelphia, went there from the New York office of the same company and was formerly district manager for General Film.

Mr. Koerpel, in order to know his patrons, as soon as he got acquainted with Philadelphia, took a little run up the state and in five days returned with nine new contracts.

The new manager already likes the Quaker City immensely. He believes in close co-operation amongst film people and is working hard to further his views in his new field. He is also very proud of the Brady-made pictures, not a scene nor a title was cut by the rigid censors of Pennsylvania. Mr. Koerpel attributes this to the extreme care exercised by Mr. Brady in supervising his pictures. When the Arcadia, a new 1,400 seated house opened in Readng, Pa., recently, the World features were run for twenty-two days in rotation, although the policy of the house is to change three times a week. A contract for one year has been made with the Regent of Philadelphia (now being extensively altered) to run World features three days a week on its reopening, about September 1.

On September 1 the Philadelphia Pathe office will inaugurate a new hard and fast rule that "all bills must be paid before films are delivered."

H. M. Osborn, the manager, has stuck this up in a conspicuous part of the exchange and says it will be rigidly adhered to. Geo. W. Beihoff, formerly with the World Film Corporation, is now Pennsylvania travelling representative for Pathe.

J. W. Pierce, Mutual representative, is back from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where for three weeks he was managing that exchange in the absence of Wm. H. Rippard from his post.

The Mutual has just closed a contract with the Regent theatre, the biggest in the resort of Wildwood, N. J., whereby Chris Hanff, the manager, will use all the many branches of Mutual service until the end of the season.

This deal, engineered by Representative B. R. Tolmas, includes the regular Mutual service, two Masterpictures, three Mutual Star features, the Chaplin specials and all fifteen epsodes of the "Girl and the Game" serial, one being shown each day.

The Kalem new series, "The Girl from Frisco," with Marin Sais and Tine Boardman is taking well on Philadelphia's general program.

Earle Sweigert, manager of the International Film office, took in the Chicago convention in July and had a short honeymoon in June, so he counts himself ahead of the game up to date.

"Beatrice Fairfax," the new International series, was released in Philadelphia on August 7 before the paralysis edict went into effect and met with favor. On account of New York conditions the first release in that city will not be shown until August 28.

J. H. Butner, Philadelphia manager for Triangle, has been transferred to the management of the Washington exchange. Arthur Lucas, Triangle district superintendent, is at present looking after the Philadelphia office with Herbert Given, formerly of Famous Players exchange, as his chief assistant.

Mr. Lucas, who has just swung around the big circle of his territory, reports excellent conditions all through and an increasing demand for Triangle output.

N. G. Steen, Unicorn's manager, found business good on Unicorns all summer and contrary to the usual rule of summer happenings, the week of August 13 just ended the biggest since the exchange opened some months back.

Edward Kurpa, of the Monarch exchange, who runs an independent service, found business better than usual this season, in fact not one customer was lost during the summer and an increase over other summers was noticeable.

Harry F. Grelle, of the Supreme Feature Films, finds an increased demand for "Where Are My Children?" Many Philadelphians denied the opportunity in Pennsylvania will see this feature in Atlantic City, where it is opening this week in the Cort theatre, of which Ed. O'Keefe is manager. This will be followed by the "Dumb Girl of Portici" and the "Unwritten Law," two other "Supreme" releases. Mr. O'Keefe, who also owns the City Square theatre, will take the features to that house when their boardwalk run is over.

At the Strand theatre, Wildwood, N. J., the "Dumb Girl" had the two biggest days in the history of the house, according to its manager, Charles Thropp. Although 900 seats are available, the crowds were so great they strung a line clear to the boardwalk and police were called to help handle them.

"Where Are My Children?" will open in St. Louis on August 17 at the new Grand Central for an indefinite run. Ed. Sievers is manager of the theatre. Jos. F. Vion, a well known Broadway publicity man, will handle the press matter for the St. Louis campaign. Mr. Grelle will shortly go to St. Louis to open a branch office for distributing his features in the recently acquired states of Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska and their territories.

The Fox office in Philadelphia has just closed a big contract with the Poli theatres in Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, Pa., whereby the Fox features will be shown three days each week at both theatres for fifty-two weeks consecutively.

J. D. Clark, president of Metro exchanges, has taken his vacation by spending the week ends at Bradley Beach, N. J., where his family are domiciled for the summer. Treasurer Bethell says his "ends" were only one end in which he motored to Atlantic City for a couple of days.

Business has kept generally good with Metro all summer, the recently released Metro Travelogues making a big hit in the territory around Philadelphia. The Victoria theatre at Ninth and Market has the first run on this feature.

All managers reported a vacationless summer, week ending being their only solace and a small end at that. Many had planned to take the last two weeks in August, but the acute situation which the infantile paralysis may develop at any moment, has caused a general abandonment of plans, and all are sitting tight, prepared for any emergency that may arise.

PAXTON IN CHARGE OF PARAMOUNT PUBLICITY IN CHICAGO

H. R. Paxton, former manager of the advertising department of the International Harvester Company, has been put in charge of the publicity department of the Chicago Paramount Exchange, with offices at 220 South State street.

The policy of the publicity department, under Mr. Paxton's direction, will be to be at the service of exhibitors in arranging publicity plans for attracting patrons to theatres showing the Paramount program.

Mr. Paxton is a man well qualified to conceive and carry out novel and effective publicity methods, as his success with the Harvester Company testifies.

McKENNY MADE BLUEBIRD MANAGER IN ONTARIO

Exhibitors in Ontario were agreeably pleased to hear that R. J. McKenny had been appointed manager for Ontario for Bluebird photoplays. Mr. McKenny's appointment followed a reorganization of the Bluebird department in Canada, which brings it more directly under the control of the Canadian Universal Film Company.

Mr. McKenny, who has been traveling representative of the Universal Company for several months, has made for himself a most enviable record, and is sure to achieve even greater success in his new capacity.

ADVANCE PAYMENT DECIDED UPON IN ONTARIO

The most discussed subject in Toronto during the last week has been the new policy of Pay-in-Advance for the film service decided upon by Ontario exchanges.

This policy, which has met with considerable success in other parts of the country, has been under consideration here for some time.

The exchanges are all agreed in this movement and for the purpose of avoiding any difficulty the meeting was arranged for August 15 between the executive committee of the exhibitors' association and the exchange managers.

Another important decision of the meeting was that all such problems would be referred to a joint committee of three exchangemen and three exhibitors. The Universal Film Company is notifying its exhibitors by letter that all film bills must be paid up completely to cover the week ending September 2 and that the following week, when the new ruling becomes effective, the bills must have been paid by check presented the week before or the film accepted under C. O. D.

LAVELLE TAKES PLACE OF YATES IN ILLNESS OF LATTER

During the illness of J. L. Yates, manager of the Washington, D. C., Universal exchange, J. A. Lavelle, manager of the Universal forces of Clarksburg, W. Va., is at the helm. Mr. Lavelle reports, that the warm weather is having no material effect on his bookings and that Bluebird and Red Feather features are especially popular, as are also the single reel comedies.

Mr. Yates is improving slowly, and is impatient to return to his desk. It is believed his present breakdown is due to the strenuous work entailed in opening the new offices there with its wider field and the incorporation of the Bluebird features.

During the absence of Mr. Lavelle, the Universal Film exchange at Clarksburg, W. Va., is being ably looked after by Sol. Burka, a man who has associated with its manager and is thoroughly familiar with the exchange business.

CORN IS WITH WILLIAM L. SHERRY

Aaron A. Corn has been added to the Wm. L. Sherry offices as salesman covering Manhattan and the Bronx, New York City. Mr. Corn began work in his new position at the new Sherry office, Seventh avenue and Forty-ninth street, on August 21, and has been spending most of his time receiving congratuations and well-wishes from his friends among the exhibitors where he is well known through his long connection with the picture business.

Mr. Corn comes directly from the International Film Company. Previous to this connection he was with the Pathe Comany, and is covering practically the same territory for the Paramount Program that he previously covered when with those companies. He is best known, however, as a theatre manager, having successfully managed big theatres in New York City for several years before entering the exchange business.

Big Profits in Pictures? It's Better in the Law—Harden Gets Judgment Against Rodger Brothers and the Lawyer Takes It All

THE drouth of July and early August aroused apparently more distress and anxiety among the public of large cities that feared further increase in food costs, than it did among the motion picture exhibitors in Kansas and Missouri. The corn crop has, in fact, been cut down to one-third of what was expected. Unfortunately, many farmers who previously had raised wheat, had turnel to corn this year, the acreage being a record one. And wheat was a fine crop. However, the country is not pessimistic, and the theatres have been doing a good business, and the exhibitors have confidence that there will be no decline. There is some grumbling in the Middle West over crop conditions, but the fact that town people and country people as well continued to patronize the motion picture shows through the drouth, speaks well for Kansas optimism.

Charles Harden, manager of the Metro Picture Service, recently secured a judgment of thirty-four dollars in the Kansas City courts against Rodger Brothers, who operate a picture show at Wamego, Kan. Mr. Harden attached Rodger Brothers' account in the Fidelity Trust Company at Kansas City, where they had the money in deposit. The judgment was given by default, Rodger Brothers failing to appear. Mr. Harden gave the lawyer the thirty-four dollars.

The Screen Club's new home will be ready in a few days, according to Charles Harden. Mr. Harden, chairman of the House Committee, and Frank Newman, president of the club, have purchased the furniture to go in the home. The furniture, which will all be of oak, cost over $2,000. Mr. Newman said that the best and the most lasting articles had been bought for the Screen Club's house over the Columbia theatre on East Tenth street.

Fred Pickeral, formerly an exhibitor at Ponca City, Okla., now traveling for the Pathe Exchange, is proving that an exhibitor knows how to sell films. Mr. Pickeral is doing a good business, and seems well satisfied with his position.

Charles Scherrer, manager of the Navajo Film Company, is having a hard time taking care of the heavy demand for "Wild West" pictures that are so extremely popular.

The following exhibitors have visited the Kansas City exchanges during the past week: P. W. Lamphere, Junction City, Kan.; D. Fillizola, Theaterette, Ft. Scott, Kansas; Mr. Horton, Electric theatre, Pittsburg, Kan., and Mr. Beeson, of Chalk and Beeson, Dodge City, Kan.

Quite a number from the Kansas City office of the Pathe Exchange attended the dance at the convention at Topeka. C. S. Edwards, Jr., manager; Miss E. A. Guenther, cashier, and Howard Jameyson, were some of those who left the city recently for Topeka.

D. M. Majors, Harry Young, C. B. Pittinger, L. B. Douglas, all salesmen for the Mutual Film Corporation of Missouri, stopped at the exchange recently before leaving for the convention at Topeka.

Farrell and Hasse Reported Ready to Take Up Handling of "Civilization" for New England

IT has been stated about town that Edward Farrell and Sam Hasse, who recently resigned as manager and assistant manager of the General, together with Frank Grady, recently resigned as manager of the World, are to combine to handle "Civilization" in New England. The rights to this film have just been purchased by David and Jacob Lourie and associates of the Beacon and Modern theatres, incorporated as the New England Distributing Co. It is also rumored that some of this trio will eventually find a birth with Paramount.

Harry Asher of the Boston Paramount office, is likely to be promoted, it is rumored, to a good position in the home office of the Paramount.

Manager Campbell of the Boston Fox exchange has made alterations in the poster department—and has added two to his office force.

Competition between the Boston exchanges is approaching an appalling intensity not only by the rival plants, but within the individual houses themselves, as witness the events of last week, when Manager Fred Murphy, of the Unicorn, was constrained by the force of circumstance to pass out the cigars, and five days later, E. B. Connolly, Mr. Murphy's head booker, also received congratulations. Mr. Murphy's was a girl and was not, as first reports had it, named Cleopatra. The allegation that Mr. Connolly's boy has been named Julius Caesar is also characterized as greatly exaggerated.

Herman Rifkin's new auto is all yellow in color, to advertise the "Yellow Menace" serial.

W. C. Youngson and Edward McCarty of the Nickel theatre, Roxbury, are renewing the old time "spook minstrels," talking pictures.

Mr. Brennon, recently Fox manager in Montreal, visited Manager Campbell of the Boston Fox exchange, Monday, on his way to Old Orchard Beach. He is now connected with his brother in a film proposition.

Stanley Hand, formerly manager of the Boston office of the World Film Corporation, succeeded Frank Grady, who resigned.

A new Fox exchange building, to be moved into next spring, and which it is announced by Manager Campbell, will be the biggest and best equipped in the city, an eye-opener to trade in many respects, is being projected. Plans are already drawn, but the site is not announced.

Bill Shapiro is making the last White Mountain trip of the season for Fox. Charlie Phillips is touring Rhode Island, and Mrs. Pease, bookkeeper, is on a two weeks trip to Nova Scotia.

DETROIT MAY HAVE FILM BUILDING FOR ALL EXCHANGES

There is a very good chance that Detroit, Mich., will soon have its own film building, similar to that at 729 Seventh avenue, New York, which is also the headquarters of Motion Picture News. A Detroit business man has made a proposition to several of the exchange managers relative to the erection of such a building downtown, providing the exchanges will contract for space. He promises to have the building designed to meet the particular needs of the exchanges.

He also promises a building that will be absolutely fireproof and one that will contain every facility and convenience that could be asked for. He is even willing to go so far as to have one part as an auditorium where meetings can be held and projections made.

For the purpose of considering his proposition a half dozen exchange managers got together for a conference on Tuesday afternoon, August 15, and all those who attended expressed favor toward the proposition.

Such a building would save exhibitors much running around to book films.

HENRYIOULLE USES AUTO TO "MAKE GOOD" WITH EXHIBITOR

H. J. Henryioulle, booking agent for the International Film Service, Inc., in San Francisco, recently made a wild automobile trip from San Francisco to Sacramento in order to keep his word with one of his exhibitors.

He had promised the film of the arrival of the German submarine Deutschland to the Empress theatre in Sacramento on a certain date. The film did not arrive in San Francisco until 11 o'clock in the morning of the day upon which it was advertised to appear at the matinee performance.

There was no train, but Mr. Henryioulle was not dismayed. He jumped into his automobile and covered the 100-mile trip from San Francisco to Sacramento in a little more than two hours. The audience was just entering the theatre, and the picture was shown as advertised.

TAYLOR OF GENERAL IN OMAHA BACK FROM VACATION

Manager C. W. Taylor of the General exchange at Omaha and Mrs. Taylor have just returned from spending a week with his folks at Chalmers, Ind. J. E. Flynn, assistant manager, was on the job during the manager's absence.

H. Simons, proprietor of the West theatre, Geneva, Neb., was in Omaha last week arranging his fall and winter service. He has been running but two days a week. Now he plans to run at least five and shortly after the middle of September seven days a week.

E. O. Gurney, auditor from New York City for the Universal, might have been in Omaha just to make a general audit of of the Universal headquarters, but he did more than that, he made numerous friends. He also installed a new accounting system that Manager Jake Mitchell says is excellent.

Price, Canadian General Manager for Mutual, Is on Inspection Trip of Branches from Vancouver to Halifax

C. B. PRICE, Canadian general manager of the Mutual Film Corporation of Canada, Limited, was in St. John, N. B., this week on a trip of inspection of the branches of the company extending from Vancouver to Halifax.

Mr. Price states that he has found business exceptionally satisfactory throughout Canada, that of the Eastern Provinces even exceeding expectations.

The St. John offices of the company under Charles Kerr, are undergoing extensive alterations, which in space area, projection room and facilities for serving exhibitors will be the most up-to-date in this territory.

The policy of the Mutual Company first of all is quality, Mr. Price remarks, and the fact of the Mutual's contributing manufacturers being now on a percentage basis is certain to result in the very best grade of films being turned out.

The detail work of all the Mutual offices is now uniform throughout the Dominion, permitting of the dispatch of business with greater facility and uniform satisfaction. The advance booking recently instituted enables all exhibitors to select features and advertise them at least ten days ahead of release dating.

St. John moving picture men are to play a prominent part in the meeting to be held in Halifax on September 16, at the time of the Exhibition. The three provinces will be largely represented and effort will be made to form permanent organizations with the idea of bettering conditions in Eastern Canada. The following committee has been selected to take charge of New Brunswick affairs: Walter H. Golding, Steve Hurley, A. J. Mason, L. Rosenfeld, St. John; S. W. Dimock, Campbellton; Charles E. Stevens, S. Torrie, Moncton; A. A. Ayre, Sackville; W. T. H. Fennety, Fredericton.

A meeting of St. John exchange managers was held this week, representing the following companies: Fox, Mutual, General Film, Universal, Metro, Famous Players, World, Triangle, Motion Picture Sales Company, Pathe. It was decided to establish a pre-payment policy in order to protect the exchanges from fly-by-night exhibitors who have made a practice of securing films from different exchanges and neglecting to pay for them. All the above exchanges have agreed to abolish book debts for both service and features commencing with the week of September 11. All films shipped from St. John offices must be paid for in advance or they will be sent out C. O. D. Invoices will be sent a full week in advance which should give ample time to make remittances. An executive of one of the big producing companies said to the News man that the principal reason for the inauguration of the new system was that every time an unscrupulous person secured service without paying, it hurt the honest exhibitor and the new plan would permit only legitimate theatres to operate and prevent the present loss to both exhibitors and exchanges.

Walter H. Golding, manager for the Keith and Albee moving picture interests, is on a business trip to Montreal.

Many Theatres in New England Sign for Paramount Pictures; Business of Company in That Territory Takes Big Leap

THE business of Paramount Pictures in the New England territory has grown so rapidly in the past year that the Famous Players Film Company of New England has been forced to build a new exchange, which is one of the most complete and up-to-date exchanges in the country, where every known device for efficiency has been arranged for.

In a recent communication from the Boston Exchange handling Paramount Pictures, it was stated that "To show the fallacy of the open market as far as New England is concerned, some of the biggest houses in this territory have disregarded all of the alluring talks and advertising on the merits of the open market by signing up for the Paramount Program."

"The recent acquisitions are four of the biggest and most advanced houses in the country, costing almost half a million each, and including the Crystal Theatre, Worcester, which opens Labor Day; Gordon's Washington Street Olympia in Boston; Gordon's Scolly Square Olympia in Boston, and the Fenway Theatre of Boston.

"Each house is run on a big scale and it reflects credit upon the Paramount Program to secure such theatres. Loew's Bijou, Fall River, Mass., the representative theatre of that city, also starts Paramount Pictures on Labor Day."

In the same communication it was stated that "Manager Williams of the Strand, Providence, R. I., reports the largest business ever done sinec his house opened with Paramount Program."

The Olympia at New Bedford, Mass., a half million dollar proposition, begins Paramount Pictures on Labor Day, September 4.

HOFFMAN COMPLETES CANADIAN TOUR FOR UNIVERSAL

M. H. Hoffman, general manager of exchanges of the Universal Company, has just completed a tour of Eastern Canada, during which he made new arrangements with Mr. Hague for the bettering and extension of the Universal business throughout Canada. The close co-operation between the head office in New York and the Canadian company has been a great factor in the phenomenal success achieved by the company in Canada.

PATHE SERIALS RUN IN 243 HOUSES IN IOWA

A letter received from the Des Moines, Ia., branch of the Pathe Exchange, states that in the State of Iowa 243 theatres are running Pathe serials against 82 theatres running competitive serials.

A story within a story is to be told in the film entitled "The Crystal," which will offer Cleo Madison as star, supported by Francis McDonald, as the handsomest man of Paris. Wedgewood Nowell, Howard Crampton and John George as the other principals. The story is written with a prologue in which Miss Madison appears as the daughter of a French novelist just home from a convent. Five years later, the new life has affected a change of character, and she is a coquette in spirit, manner and dress. The father discovers this and tells her the story of "The Black Orchids," in which a coquette brings ruin to herself, and death to practically all of her friends. Rex Ingram is producing this five-reel picture.

The three-reel Universal subject "The Gates of Eternity," written and being produced by William V. Mong, who plays the lead part, will serve to introduce Harry Holden, one of the best known stock producers of the country, in films. Mr. Holden is a member of the firm of Holden

The James Montgomery Flagg Portrait of Mae Murray, Lasky Star

Brothers, who for the past fifteen years have conducted stock companies in the principal cities throughout the central states including Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Chicago, and as far west as Denver.

He came to the film producing hub to dispose of picture rights on a number of plays he owns, and here met Mr. Mong, former player in the Holden companies, and was induced to appear in a character part in this photoplay, pending decision of the company with respect to his plays. The Holden Brothers introduced a number of very well known melodramas including "The Denver Express," "Nobody's Claim" and a score of others which for many years were highly successful as stock productions and road attractions.

"The Gates of Eternity" is of a decided melodramatic type, dealing as it does with the release of a man from prison, and the attempts of his former pals to force him to give up the loot he is supposed to have in his possession since before going to prison. Mong is supported by Nellie Allen, George Dayton and others.

Discovering the attention given signs placed about the city bearing an ordinance number, Director Henry Kernan of Vogue comedies, applied this plan to "Don't touch this set" sign, and the placard now bears ordinance number five hundred and is proving effective.

One Hundred and Fifty Scripts in 15 Months

The writing of one hundred and fifty-nine stories within fifteen months is the record set by L. V. Jefferson of the Pallas-Morosco scenario staff. These subjects range from one to five reels, and have been purchased and produced by Ince, Lasky, Morosco, Pallas, World-Equitable, American, Horsley, National, Nestor, Selig, Lubin, Ivan and Universal. The stories combined caused the production of more than eighty miles of negative film, the subjects being of an average of about three reels each.

The William S. Hart subject, "The Dawn Maker," made several months ago, but just completed by the cutting department at the Ince Culver City studios, went forward last week to the Triangle company in New York City. When released in the near future this will show the star in an entirely new role, that of a quarter-breed Indian, and a part Mr. Hart was able to play without the use of make-up of any sort, other than a well-fitting wig made of genuine Indian hair.

This picture is laid in the far North and most of the scenes were made on the snow-capped crest of Mt. Baldy, the highest of the California Sierras, where Hart and the company, including a big array of talent, spent three weeks. The photoplay chronicles the struggles of the quarter-breed, Joe Elk, between love and racial allegiance. He is an intelligent man, this quarter-breed, with ambitions to uplift his race, but offers himself in sacrifice that a white girl and man may be happy. It gives the sterling actor a role in which he is perfectly at home, for during his boyhood days he spent many years on his father's ranch in the Dakotas, where he mingled with the Indians daily and learned their habits, customs and mannerisms. Hart is supported by William Desmond, who is the other male of the triangle, and Blanche White is the leading woman. Joe Goodboy, Indian actor, and J. Frank Burke have important roles.

New Frank Keenan Drama Finished

Directors Reginald Barker and Walter Edwards this week completed Ince Triangle plays so far as filming is concerned, at the Culver City studios. That of Barker's stars, Clara Williams in an Italian story by C. Gardner Sullivan, and the other offers Frank Keenan in a drama of the reunion of a family made possible by the daughter's arrest.

The next story for Clara Williams gives her the role of a nurse of Italian birth, who is recalled from America to serve her country as a nurse at the battlefield hospitals. There she becomes the central figure of many adventures, and the romance born in a New York City boarding house is culminated. The other two points of the triangle are taken by Charles Gunn, who appears as a young Austrian officer, and George Fisher, in the role of an Italian illustrator. The story is spoken of as an intensely dramatic narrative and being from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan is sure to contain new and pleasing action. Director Barker will be in charge of the filming of this story and Miss Williams will be supported by J. Frank Burke, Thomas Guise and other well known Ince players.

Dorothy Is Going to be a "Vamp"

Raymond B. West is engaged in filming a tri-star Ince subject which gives Dorothy Dalton the role of a vampire, with Enid Markey and Howard Hickman playing the other principal roles. In a number of the scenes Miss Dalton appears in a costly black evening gown which has a history. It was the property of her great-grandmother when she was one of the leading society women of Chicago a half century ago. When assigned to the part Miss Dalton immediately brought the gown from the attic and it has been remade into modern style.

William S. Hart will attempt to enact the two most hazardous stunts in his three years' work before the camera this week, for a play written by J. G. Hawks. One requires that the player of western bad-man roles, ride a horse to the rear end of a speeding Pullman train and swing aboard from the horse's back. This in itself does not seem as dangerous as when it is considered that Mr. Hart must be followed by a motor-driven hand-car bearing the camera which must travel at the same speed of the horse, and should he fall he will be in great danger of losing his life under the wheels of the following car. Another scene requires him to ride a spirited horse through a window of a Western saloon set, lasso two men and drag them out. All who know Hart and are acquainted with his physical training believe he will be able to successfully perform both acts without injury to himself or others. Both scenes require close-up views which will bear out the statement that Hart never permits anyone to double for him in hazardous acts, but has the pluck and strength to accomplish all such stunts.

Myles in Hart-Triangle Film

Norbert A. Myles, well known in films, has been specially engaged to appear in the Hart Ince-Triangle picture, playing the role of the heavy. Others in the cast of this production are Alma Reubens, Nina Byron, Walter Perry, Lewis Durham and Leo Willis.

A most unusual setting has been provided for this Hart story, which consists of an early day newspaper office of a Western type, and a most important prop is an exact duplicate of a Washington hand press. It was not possible to purchase such a press on the West Coast, and models were made by the Ince technical department, from drawings by Art Director Robert Brunton, and the press is being made at a local foundry.

New Laws and Court Decisions

This department is designed to keep the industry informed of all news concerning new or projected laws, Federal, State, County or Municipal, that may affect the business, and all events involving any branch of the trade with the authorities in all sections of the country

Turner and Dahnken Fight Censorship Methods of Sacramento, California—Battle Started Over "Twilight Sleep"

EVER since the censorship of moving pictures became the prevailing fad the city of Sacramento, Cal., has been in the limelight on account of the methods of suppression employed there, and its residents have been deprived of the privilege of seeing some of the very best productions because of the attitude of its official censor.

Censorship is vested there in one person, the Commissioner of Education, and for several years this position has been held by E. J. Carraghar. No pretense has been made of viewing the films shown in local houses and where productions have been censored, it has been on the findings of censorship boards in other parts of the country. Exhibitors have thus never been able to tell whether their offerings would be acceptable to the censor or not until they began to advertise them.

Recently the T. & D. theatre, conducted by the Turner & Dahnken Circuit of San Francisco, announced that it would show the film "Twilight Sleep" at an early date. Plans were made for presenting this along the same lines that had proved so successful at its other houses, where lectures were given by a trained nurse, and where it was shown to selected adult audiences. Despite the educational character of the production, Commissioner of Education Carraghar refused to allow it to be shown, stating that in his opinion it was immoral and not fit to be seen. The film was brought up from San Francisco for his inspection, but he even refused to see it personally.

Plans were then made by the Turner & Dahnken interests to show it regardless of the censor, and the latter sought to put an end to the matter by attending a meeting of the City Commission, and inducing that body to pass a resolution instructing the Chief of Police to prevent the picture from appearing. The management of the theatre retained legal counsel, and announced that the matter would be thrashed out in court. The censor, hoping to smooth matters out, then consented to view the film, which he finally did, but after an inspection declared that he would stand by his former orders.

Manager A. E. Northy, of the T. & D. theatre, in speaking of the matter, said: "Our whole contention in the matter is that we do not believe the city of Sacramento intends to give one man the power to tell us what pictures we may show, without first seeing the pictures. It is not a matter of showing 'Twilight Sleep,' because this picture has been shown all over our circuit, and the only place we had any trouble was at San Francisco. We showed the picture there, but had to go to court and have the matter heard before a jury before we were vindicated."

Commissioner Carraghar is confident that the court will uphold his right to stop the presentation of this, or any other pictures of which he may personally disapprove. He said, "I will be represented in court by the city attorney, if they take the matter there. I feel that I am right. I don't think they can beat me. As public censor, I think I have full right to prohibit any picture being shown that I do not consider fit for young girls and boys to see."

The California rights to "Twilight Sleep" are held by H. J. Gosliner and associates, of the Edison theatre, San Francisco, and they are upholding the Turner & Dahnken Circuit in the censorship fight. When they took over the State rights to the film the production had already been booked in Sacramento, but they had not been apprised of this fact. They then booked it to the rival house, and this may account, in a measure, for the apathy that is being shown by some of the other exhibitors in Sacramento in this, the first real test of the legality of the censorship ordinance.

OFFICIAL IN SAN FRANCISCO MAKES ACCUSATIONS OF CARELESSNESS IN FILM CARRYING

H. B. Eyde, of Berkeley, of the United States Bureau of Explosives, has called the attention of film exchange men of San Francisco to the fact that he has seen the messenger boys of several suburban houses on ferry boats with cases of films not bearing the yellow caution labels. While the owners of theatres in Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, and other suburban cities on the east side of San Francisco Bay, express a desire to comply with the regulations governing the carrying of films some of the messenger boys employed by them are very lax, and are even accused of removing the caution labels. The attention of express companies is also being directed to the fact that some of the packages of films handled by them are very insecurely fastened. In many cases, it is pointed out, web bands are used that have long outlived their usefulness and are not to be considered as "secure fasteners," as is required by the regulations.

DETROIT THEATRES SEATING LESS THAN 600, PAY $25 LICENSE

Detroit motion picture exhibitors with houses seating less than six hundred, now pay a license of twenty-five dollars per year; houses seating six hundred and over pay fifty dollars per annum, according to a new ordinance which became effective August 1.

Health Commissioner in Pennsylvania Threatens to Close Practically All Motion Picture Theatres in That State from Paralysis Scare

IN announcing that, because of infantile paralysis, all schools and colleges of the State of Pennsylvania must remain closed until September 18, Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State Health Commissioner, declared further that as soon as he can obtain the formal approval of the advisory board of the State Board of Health, he will close all of what he terms "objectionable" motion picture theatres, which, under his definition of that word, is taken to mean practically all the motion picture theatres of the State.

When asked what he meant by "objectionable" theatres, Dr. Dixon said:

"I mean by that those that are illy ventilated. Local conditions will have much to do with this matter. In some districts there are open-air theatres, and at some institutions there are arrangements for moving picture show that would make it possible to keep the theatres in operation without the danger of infection."

Dr. Dixon says the gathering of children in open air is not dangerous at this time. His statement with relation to motion picture theatres is interpreted to mean that he intends to close all save those that are open air theatres or practically so. As there are comparatively few of that type of theatres in Pennsylvania, the contemplated order of Dr. Dixon will affect almost all of the thousands of motion picture houses throughout the state.

FILM DELIVERY IN DETROIT MAY BE MADE BY AUTO

Owners and managers of photoplay theatres in Detroit are in a quandary as to how they are going to get their film from the exchanges each day, starting the first of September. The street car company has ruled that "no film will be permitted on street cars after September 1," which is similar to the ruling in some other cities.

It will mean that all film will have to be delivered and called for by motor cars, and some systematic arrangement is now being planned.

BAN ON CHILD ATTENDANCE WENT INTO EFFECT IN BALTIMORE ON AUGUST 21

The ban placed by the health department of Baltimore upon children under thirteen years of age from attending "legitimate" theatres as well as motion pictures went into effect on Monday, August 21. This was done in order to check the spread of infantile paralysis that has swept over New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and other Eastern States.

However, motion picture theatres are not the only ones that have been affected, for, beginning next week all public soda fountains will use paper "glasses." Other measures are also being adopted to prevent the spread of the epidemic. Public swimming pools, Sunday schools and other places where children assemble, are under discussion.

The exhibitors are all adhering strictly to the law, and everything seems to be working quietly. It is expected that someone will be appointed to guard the theatres to see that the measure is carried out.

AGITATION FOR TWO SETS OF FILM TITLES IN QUEBEC

The agitation for two sets of film titles for pictures being used in Quebec Province has at last, it seems, reached the government and it was reported that a forthcoming amendment to the present law will require this. Film men are unanimous in stating that it will be impossible to conform to any law such as this, in its entirety. The Universal Company is at present using both French and English titles on all Bluebird films used in Quebec Province.

EAGLE PLANS TO MAKE COMEDIES FOR UNITY RELEASE

The Eagle Film Manufacturing and Producing Company announces the engagement of Benj. S. Garetson for its publicity department. Mr. Garetson, at present, will have his headquarters at the Chicago office but expects soon to move to Eagle City, near Jacksonville, Fla., where the Eagle company has its studios and where it is engaged in the production of a number of comedy series to be released through the Unity Sales Corporation.

TEN MORE SUNDAY OPENING CASES IN FORT WORTH, TEXAS

Ten additional cases were filed against the owners of motion picture theatres at Fort Forth, Texas, August 13, charged with Sunday opening. This makes a total of sixty-nine cases that have been filed. One case was tried recently, in which the defendant was acquitted. Each of the other sixty-eight exhibitors will be tried one by one until all have been tried.

COURT WILL WIND UP AFFAIRS OF LIBERTY ON THIRD MONDAY IN SEPTEMBER

Cornelius Haggerty, Jr., and J. Burton Mustin, temporary receivers, and J. Burton Mustin, permanent receiver of the Liberty Motion Picture Company, have filed their first and final accounts, which will come before the Court of Common Pleas No. 3, Philadelphia, Pa., for action on the third Monday of September at 10 A. M., at which time the court will be asked to audit the accounts and decree distribution. All parties interested are, therefore, notified to make and prove their claims at that time or be barred from coming in upon the fund for distribution.

UNIVERSAL WARNS AGAINST PIRACY OF ITS PRINTS

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company wishes to call the attention of exhibitors to the fact that pirated prints of Universal releases are being offered for sale by persons who have no right thereto, and who have no right to dispose of them.

Warning is given them and to all exhibitors that all Universal pictures are copyrighted and protected from infringement by law.

Wherever any Universal film, negative, prints, or pictures are found for sale outside of regular distributing channels—i e., exchanges, the offenders will be prosecuted to the limit of the law. Any exhibitor found showing any such Universal picture is also liable under the law, and the Universal will take legal action against them as well as against the seller of the same.

HART HOXIE ADDED TO "FRISCO" COMPANY, KALEM

Hart Hoxie, well known on the Pacific Coast as a juvenile lead, is the latest addition to the Kalem forces. Hoxie will be seen in support of True Boardman and Marin Sais in "The Girl From Frisco." Among the early episodes in which he will appear are "The Oil Well Conspiracy" and "Tigers Unchained."

The recent addition to the "Frisco" forces brings that fifteen week Western series by Robert Welles Ritchie to all-star proportions, including as it does, Marin Sais, True Boardman, Frank Jonasson, Ronald Bradbury, a newcomer to Kalem with this series who is scoring strongly in the "heavy" roles, Edward Clisbee and Hoxie.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By LONGACRE

Things have been going so well with Frank Powell's new picture, now in course of construction at the Flushing studios, that it has been decided to add two reels to the story. Accordingly, the members of the cast, most of whom had been dismissed, were summoned back to the studios for new scenes, last week. As it now stands, we understand, the feature will run about eight reels.

John W. Allison, of Allison and Hadaway, New York, disappeared last week. The only information he left behind was that he was going on an auto trip, and he preferred to keep the route and destination to himself.

John Henry Goldfrap has severed his connection with the B. S. Moss interests, to conduct the advertising and publicity work for the Dansk Films Corporation, in the World's Tower Building, New York.

Although when extended to its full power and vibrance, the voice of Ralph Dean has been known to break windows on the nineteenth story, as a rural ballyhoo he is something of a Ford runabout. Last week Ralph was helping George Irving direct a mob scene for the Frohman Company's new production, "The Conquest of Caanan." The court house at Mineola, L. I., was selected for the setting, and advertisements sent to the Mineola and Hempstead papers invited the resting public of that locality to come join the mob. The advertisements were lost in the shuffle, and only about twenty persons showed up at the courthouse, and of these twelve were too tired to join the mob. So Ralph took a couple of assistants and started a "bally-hoo" through the streets of Mineola and Hempstead. Their voices bent trees along Nassau Boulevard, and backed up the surf off Point o' Woods for forty minutes, but they only got three more recruits. The only inference is that our dearly beloved public is getting used to the "movie" camera just the same as it did to automobiles.

There are many things which combine to drive the picture reviewer into the side entrance, and keep him walking in circles, and it is not always the quality of the picture shows. As instance this note, handed to us, and signed by several prominent reviewers. It is addressed to one of the operators at the V-L-S-E projection room, at No. 1600 Broadway, New York:

"In the projection department of MOTION PICTURE NEWS our expert will answer the simplest questions, as well as the most complex. He will tell you how to distinguish between the fourth, fifth, and sixth reels of a feature, and doubtless will supply information regarding the correct way in which to keep a light in the lamp house for more than three minutes at a time."

A Gathering of Exhibitors During the Meeting in New York of the Executive Committee: To Be Seen in the Picture are W. Eisenberg, Peter Jeup, Thomas Furniss, Harold H. Rosenthal, L. L. Levine, A. P. Tugwell, C. H. Phillips, William J. Sweeney, L. F. Blumenthal, Samuel H. Trigger. Louis H. Frank, Fred Herrington, Frank Rembusch

Old M. P. Rumor (meaning Motion Picture, or Mary Pickford, according to the time of day and state of the weather) having disposed of Little Mary, and located her in her own suite of offices in the Motion Picture News Building, will now concern himself with General Film and V-L-S-E for a while. He ought to give us something good along these lines, and when that source runs out, there is always Little Mary to practice on again.

The Bayside Bugle

"Bigger, Busier, Brighter Bell Ave." Bayside, L. I., September 2, 1916.

Editorial

—One thing the bugle feels called upon to condemn is the practice indulged in by our city fathers of not having any lights at Warburton ave, just where it turns into Bell ave. As these are two of our most principal streets and much favored by automobilists, of which we now have quite a few in our midst, some serious accident might easily occur at this corner, which is a constant source of danger. Lots of our residents, being compelled to work in the various studios all day, must needs do their automobiling at night, and nearly everybody passes this corner. So fix it up before anything happens, is our advice for the good of the community.

Exhibitors Anxious to Book Mary Pickford Pictures

Announcement That the Popular Screen Artist Is Now "On Her Own" Brings a Host of Inquiries to the Artcraft Company, New York City

THE announcement that Mary Pickford had organized her own company for the production of better than her previous best motion picture plays, has brought in a single week a deluge of applications for bookings to the office of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation at 729 Seventh avenue, New York. Walter E. Greene, president of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation and his associates are rapidly completing the organization and they now emphasize this point.

Every exhibitor in the United States may show in his theatre the Mary Pickford productions of distinction and originality. Miss Pickford has said that she wants no bars erected against the exhibitor who is ambitious to improve the quality of his entertainment and clientele.

"We are carrying out her wishes to the letter," Mr. Greene adds. "It is to correct any misconception that there exists a favored class to whom Miss Pickford's pictures will be distributed that Artcraft emphasizes the statement that the field is open. Soon twenty-five branch managers will be combing their territory. All applications received at the main offices will be turned over to them in order of receipts and the man who has never shown a Pickford picture in his theatre, has just as much chance to have territorial protection as his previously more fortunate competitor.

Mary Pickford

"In a short time the Mary Pickford Film Corporation will announce the character of the picture the star and her company are now working on." Mr. Greene says in conclusion, "I may not reveal the details now but I can say that this first production will set the highest standard for notable direction and acting of distinction. It will be a genuine master work, presenting Miss Pickford in a characterization that will increase the affection of her immense following. We believe that its presentation will mark the beginning of a new era in motion pictures."

To which Miss Pickford adds briefly: "I am working from sunup to sundown in rehearsals and actual filming of scenes for my first very own release. These are long nights of study, too, but I don't mind because I have never had a role in which I was happier."

Thirty Stars in Generals for Week of September 4-9

"His Brother's Keeper," Selig, Leads Off, Followed by a Vitagraph Comedy, "It's a Bear"—"The Pacifist" Is an Essanay, Set for Release on the 6th

GENERAL Film Company's program for the week September 4-9 inclusive, begins with a Selig three-part drama "His Brother's Keeper," featuring Eugenie Besserer, Fritzi Brunette, Leo Pierson, Edward Piel and Harry Lonsdale. This will be followed by a Vitagraph one-reel comedy with Mary Anderson in the title role, "Its a Bear." Selig-Tribune displaying pictorially all the big events of the world will follow. Then will come a Mary Pickford picture, "Iola's Promise," a Biograph reissue in which Alfred Paget also is featured.

"The Pacifist," an Essanay two-part comedy, will start the program the following day, giving motion picture theatre patrons an opportunity of seeing what Harry Dunkinson and Camille D'Arcy can do in the silent drama. "Ham the Fortune Teller" of the Ham and Budd Series in which Ethel Teare figures prominently, will then be shown.

The first picture Wednesday will be Essanay's Canimated Nooz Pictorial and a scenic feature. This will be followed by a Vim comedy, "The Chalk Line," with Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby in the titular roles. Then will come the Fifth Episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco," a Kalem serial under the title of "The Ore Plunderers." In this Episode Marin Sais and True Boardman appear. Biograph will then present a three-part drama reissue, "Man's Enemy," featuring Lillian Gish and William Jefferson.

Thursday will be devoted to Selig-Tribune and a Vim comedy, "Side Tracked," featuring Plump and Runt.

Friday begins with a three-part Knickerbocker Star Feature drama with Virginia Norden in the titular role "A Deluded Wife." Next will be seen a Kalem one-reel comedy in which Ivy Close will be the chief fun maker. "A Villianous Villain" with Hughie Mack and all his avoidupois is starred. The day's program should end in a hearty laugh with the Vim comedy, the latest release of the Pokes and Jabbs Series, "A Bag of Trouble."

Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton, two of Essanay's noted stars, are featured in the first picture to be shown Saturday, a three-reel drama "A Million for a Baby." This will be followed by "Ablaze on the Rails," an episode of the Hazards of Helen Series, a Kalem production starring Helen Gibson. The week's program will be brought to a conclusion with a Selig Tom Mix one-reel comedy, "Taming Grouchy Bill."

General Film Company's information department calls attention to the fact that in the week's program, thirty noted stars are offered.

ARTHUR LESLIE ISSUES BOOKLET CONTAINING NAMES OF 1,001 FILM FOLK

Arthur Leslie has issued a valuable little booklet containing the names and addresses of one thousand and one film folk, titled 1,001 Film Folk I Know Personally and by Correspondence. The names are arranged in alphabetical order. Included in the pages are letters and telegrams from prominent persons in the industry praising Mr. Leslie's work. On other pages, Mr. Leslie speaks of the power of personal publicity to the actor and cites instances where special publicity campaigns have resulted in enormous profits to motion picture players.

HARRY WATSON IS GOING TO REMAIN WITH KLEINE

Harry Watson, Jr., who plays the title role in George Kleine's "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer," wishes to deny a report which is in circulation to the effect that he has returned to the legitimate stage. Mr. Watson, now under the direction of Louis Myll, emphatically states that he is in the picture business "for all time."

UNICORN ESTABLISHES BRANCH IN HARRISBURG, PENNSYLVANIA

Special to Motion Picture News.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 26.

The latest distributing concern to enter the Central Pennsylvania field at this point is the Unicorn Film Service Corporation which has just established a branch of its Philadelphia office at 824 Market street, this city.

The new Harrisburg office is in charge of W. A. Kline, as manager, and he is working a wide territory, extending as far west as Altoona. Mr. Kline is known in motion picture circles of this part of the state, having until a year or so ago been manager of the Palace theatre in Harrisburg. Since then he has been associated with the Unicorn people in Washington, D. C. His assistant in the Harrisburg office is Louise Kuhlwin, of this city, who has been associated at different times with both the Mutual and General exchanges in this city.

ELLISON NO LONGER CONNECTED WITH PARAMOUNT-EMPRESS IN SALT LAKE CITY

In a recent issue of Motion Picture News, Homer Ellison was mentioned as manager of the Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake City, Utah. Mr. Ellison has not been connected with this house for three months, as it is now managed by George E. Carpenter. Mr. Carpenter operates the house in connection with the Notable Feature Film Company, Salt Lake City, and still holds down his desk as publicity man for that concern.

DAILY BULLETIN OF SALES IS OPERATED BY UNICORN OFFICE IN NEW YORK

There is a chart hanging in the office of Manager Davis, of the New York office of Unicorn, which is attracting more attention among Unicorn employees than war bulletins. It shows the business being rolled up every day by the solicitors, and the high man is to get a substantial prize at the end of each month.

Martin Harra now leads, with H. A. Fuld a close second, and Dolan and Kronacher crowding them both.

"What the Public Wants, in 'Shielding Shadow'"—Gasnier

"We Have Combined Everything the Patrons of Picture Houses Expect," Says President of Astra; "Love, Adventure, Mystery and a Strong Element of Suspense"

"THE public is familiar with the tricks of the camera," says Louis J. Gasnier, president of the Astra Film Corporation, which is producing "The Shielding Shadow" serial for Pathe, "therefore, we must give them exactly what the scenario calls for."

"In 'The Shielding Shadow' we have combined everything which experience has shown that the motion picture public wants. We have a beautiful girl in the lead, supported by two splendid actors and an actress, famous both on the stage and screen, Grace Darmond, Ralph Kellard, Leon Bary and Madeline Traverse."

"We have adventure, love, mystery, and a strong element of suspense throughout. There is a mysterious character called Ravengar, which will baffle audiences more than did the mystery of the Laughing Mask in 'The Iron Claw.' Then there is 'The Shielding Shadow' itself. This is a mask of black with two gleaming eyes and white hands clutching a dagger. It appears whenever Leontine, the heroine, is in danger."

"There are more thrills, greater thrills, than there ever have been in any other serials. We show a prisoner escape at sea by being thrown overboard in a coffin. We show him washed to the rock shore of a barren island. He finds the treasure for which hundreds of men have sacrificed their lives. As he sits on a rock examining it, an octopus creeps out of the sea, and after a terriffic fight, drags him into the water.

"In the first episode there is a fire at sea in a crowded ship. This is probably the most realistic fire scene ever filmed. Fifty members of the caste were fitted out with asbestos suits. They were soaked with oil and the match applied. While the camera clicked, the human torches plunged into the sea.

"In one of the early episodes there is a balloon race in which twelve ballons take part. The scene shows Miss Darmond and Ravengar in a balloon in which the villain has planted a dynamite bomb. In mid-air the bomb explodes. There is only one parachute. In it Miss Darmond escapes by dropping into the sea. Ravengar is compelled to jump. The audience sees the real parachute drop and a real jump into the sea with the balloon's basket as Ravengar's parachute."

"There are plenty of other thrills in 'The Shielding Shadow,' said Mr. Gasnier —at least one great big sensation in each episode.

"There is the destruction of a lighthouse in a terrific storm. A brick structure was actuallly demolished, and Miss Darmond and Ravengar were both badly hurt in this scene. In one chapter, crooks hide in a quarry where dynamite has been placed for blasting. The suspense is at fever heat when the fuse is touched off. The entire side of a hill is blown up and the human moles killed. In another a gypsy van dashes over a cliff with Miss Darmond and Ravengar in it, and in still another a motorcycle and its rider fly through the air off the height of a wharf to make good Sebastian's escape from the police."

RUTLEDGE IS PICKED TO HANDLE PICKFORD PICTURES IN MICHIGAN

Special to Motion Picture News.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.

Frank Rutledge has been selected as the man to represent the new Mary Pickford special releases in Michigan, according to the announcement by Al Lichtman, general manager of the corporation, who was a Detroit visitor on August 23. Mr. Rutledge has the great respect and admiration of the bulk of Michigan exhibitors. He has been managing the Detroit exchange of George Kleine and has been concentrating his efforts on the Billie Burke serial "Gloria's Romance."

He is a showman of many years experience. Mr. Rutledge has not announced his permanent offices and will take a few weeks to make a selection. However, he is sure to be located in the New Madison Theatre Building, Broadway and Witherell streets, when it is completed late in the fall.

George Nathan, succeeds Mr. Rutledge as manager of the Detroit office of George Kleine.

J. PARKER READ IS GENERAL MANAGER FOR "CIVILIZATION"

J. Parker Read, who is the general representative, or in a sense, the business manager of Thomas H. Ince's million dollar spectacle, "Civilization," is one of the best known, and at the same time best equipped, of the modern school of motion picture men.

Mr. Read entered the business some years ago and was a contemporary of Mr. Ince under the Laemmle regime. Then Mr. Read struck out for himself and became a producer and impressario on his own account, bringing out many successes.

Last year Mr. Read joined Mr. Ince in California and lent technical and artistic assistance in the production of "Civilization."

Blackton Brings $1,000,000 Suit Against Ford for Libel

Vitagraph Official Charges That Auto Manufacturer Caused to Be Published an Article in Which "Battle Cry" Film Is Said to Be Financed by Munition Makers

SUIT has been filed by the Vitagraph Company of America against Henry Ford, asking damages of $1,000,000 on account of statements made in the newspapers regarding the "Battle Cry of Peace." The Vitagraph Company, through J. Stuart Blackton, charges that last May Mr. Ford caused to be published in leading newspapers all over the country, an article opposing national preparedness, and that in this article he declared that "The Battle Cry of Peace" was inspired and financed by munition makers, especially Hudson Maxim, on whose book, "Defenseless America," the picture was founded.

"Mr. Ford caused full-page advertisements to be printed in newspapers all over the United States saying that 'The Battle Cry of Peace' was inspired by munition manufacturers and backed by their capital," said J. Stuart Blackton in connection with the announcement.

"I have sued him because his false and malicious allegations have injured both my reputation and my business. I am bitterly oposed to his pacifist views and think that his propoganda is working damage and injury to this country, but I do not print false statements and page advertisements stating that he is assuming his present spineless attitude for the purpose of increasing the sale of Ford cars.

"Mr. Ford has a right to his own opinions. If he thinks that the great industry he has built up and the millions he has made should be left unprotected for a lot of barbarians to come and acquire almost without a struggle, he is welcome to such opinions. He may even spend time and money in spreading his silly propoganda, but he has no right to maliciously attack others who differ with his views.

"Every sane man wants peace, but the man who preaches against patriotism, who urges young men to refuse to protect their families and homes, who tells his employees that if they answer their country's call they wil not get their jobs back when they return, is beneath contempt and not entitled to manhood sufferage.

"I wrote and produced 'The Battle Cry of Peace' to further the interests of practical preparedness, to arouse in the hearts of American citizens the sense of their strict accountability to their government, and through the tremendously powerful medium of the motion picture to counterbalance the pernicious influence of the apostles of 'peace at any price.'

"The accusation that munition interests are responsible for the picture is absolutely without foundation. In the latter part of April, 1915, Hudson Maxim sent me a copy of his book, 'Defenceless America.' It contains many valuable and remarkable statistics about the deplorable condition of this country's defences, and I realized that a motion picture illustrating the facts set forth in the book would reach millions of people in a short period of time.

"Mr. Maxim was paid a stated sum for the use of the material in his book, and around these facts I wrote the drama of 'The Battle Cry of Peace.' That was the only connection Mr. Maxim had with the affair.

"This was in April, 1915, and the Maxim Munition Company of which I had never heard until Mr. Ford's advertisements appeared, was not in existence until about December, 1915.

"The cost of producing the picture and presenting it in an elaborate manner with extensive advertising for three months in New York, Boston and Chicago before its general release to the motion picture theatres, amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"The investment was borne entirely by the Vitagraph Company of America and this extensive advertising campaign resulted in a larger subsequent distribution than any other film production we have ever put out.

"Mr. Ford's printed statement, however, that munition manufacturers were back of the picture, prejudiced many people against 'The Battle Cry of Peace,' and damaged the business of theatres in many cities.

"This suit is being brought firstly to vindicate my own reputation, and, secondly, to demonstrate that the possession of money and power does not carry with it the right to publish with inpunity false and malicious statements that have no foundation whatsoever."

The article referred to was published as a full-page advertisement in all the leading newspapers, in May. The Vitagraph company contends that the publication has injured the good name and business of the producer, and has held them up to public obloquay.

Although the suit was filed in New York by William Ulman, attorney for the Vitagraph company, last June, the news just became public last week, when the complaint was served personally on Mr. Ford in New York.

A "Novelty Pictorial" Is Coming from Superior Films

Short Travelogues, a Scientific and Mechanical Section, Course of Salesmanship and Novel Scenes from Various Localities Is the Plan

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.

ANNOUNCEMENT is shortly to be made by Robert A. Brackett, manager of Superior Film Company of Los Angeles, of the release weekly of a decided novelty which will consist of short topical subjects, none more than two hundred feet in length. Prints will be sold to independent exchanges on contract basis only.

The "Novelty Pictorial," according to plans of Mr. Brackett, will have short travelogues, scientific and mechanical sections, teach salesmanship, and show to the world novelties of all localities. The plan is to put into each release matter that will not become out of date and will be as good an addition to a program one year from now as at the preesnt time.

"It is not the intention of the Superior Films Company to enter the news weekly field, Mr. Brackett said in speaking of the plans of the company, "but we intend toe put into our pictorials short topical scenes that have interest for everyone. This week we found a woman who was making three thousand dollars a year by using her small back yard. The other day we took scenes in which germs played the part of actors—every one was a heavy—and attacked a human being. We have engaged the services of cameramen in a number of cities to act as our representative, and shortly will have someone in every section to secure for us just the kind of pictures we want for exhibitors."

Mr. Brackett has been connected with the film industry since its inception. He was manager of the first New York City theatre to give Sunday evening motion picture entertainments, then known as "concerts." This was at Shepards' theatre in 1899. Prior to that he was a legitimate stage director, who had produced vaudeville, musical comedy and burleque. Since he has served as theatre manager and for several seasons was with Lyman Howe. He has been on the West Coast for the past few years, where he has served as manager of several of the largest motion picture houses.

The Superior Films Company in connection with entering the producing field will conduct a commercial studio and laboratory in the Knickerbocker Building in Los Angeles. Here they are installing all modern equipment for speedily serving anyone who desires the use of a studio, or wishes a film produced. The plant will have the only indirect arc lighting system of today and tests made show the effects to be secured by this system to be most satisfactory.

Mr. Brackett has engaged a very able staff which included Leonard Quick as superintendent of photography and laboratories; Ed. Jahrous, late technical director at Universal City, in the same capacity here; and others of similar experience and ability. The first picture made at the new studio is titled "The Fawcet."

THE SQUEALING PIG NEED NO LONGER FEEL HE'S NEGLECTED, FOR THEY'VE GOT HIM IN PICTOGRAPHS

For the week of September 11 the two chief features on the Paramount program will be the Famous Players production, "The Reward of Patience," in which Louise Huff will be starred, and the Morosco production, "The House of Lies," in which Edna Goodrich is featured. Both are six-reel features.

Surrounding the big features are Paramount single-reel features, the 31st edition of the Paramount Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen; Burton Holmes Travel Pictures, "Glimpses of English Town and Country," and the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoon, "Col. Heeza Liar's Bachelor Quarters."

The Paramount Pictographs have a variety of interesting subjects in their 31st edition, in which they show how "Better Pigs" are raised: how to "Keep Well Babies Well"; how 1,200 boys have been gathered together to be taught by military standards, self-control, obedience, self-reliance and other necessary qualities, and also the microscopic "wonder-picture" showing the horrible microbes that are contained in the water people drink.

Burton Holmes in his easy chair journey for this week gives the American public glimpses of English town and country, delightfully wandering through the historic and lovely portion of England, where can best be shown the typical English farms and the methods of agriculture. Action is brought into the picture by the showing of the crack English polo teams at play and life at Oxford University, and a motor trip to Stratford. The journey also takes in a delightful coaching trip through the lake district.

COLUMBIA RIVER IN GAUMONT'S "SEE AMERICA FIRST" SERIES

One of the latest scenic marvels available for tourists is now to be shown in pictures by the Gaumont Company in its "See America First" series. This is the Columbia Highway, which not only furnishes wonderful views of the river of the same name in the State of Oregon, but also provides mountain scenery of unsurpassed loveliness. These views will be presented on Number 52 of "See America First," which will be released September 6.

"WAR'S WOMEN," INCE, IS SCHEDULED FOR RUN IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

Samuel Cummins, who holds the middle eastern territory on Thomas H. Ince's much discussed picture, "War's Women," has announced that the production will begin an indefinite run in Tom Moore's Strand theatre, Washington, D. C., on September 17. The picture was shown in the National Press Club, Washington, recently where it was proclaimed the most vital picture dealing with war's horrors yet produced.

The cast includes such well-known Ince stars as Frank Keenan, Enid Markey and Charles K. French. The picture lays bare the most brutal aspect of warfare—the shocking mistreatment of women. It has been proclaimed by the National Board of Review, "remarkable from a dramatic standpoint and the most convincing argument against the barbarity of war so far presented on the motion picture screen."

PLAN SCIENTIFIC PICTURE PLANT IN LOS ANGELES

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 26.

F. R. Edwards, a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society of England, has been in consultation with the Chamber of Commerce with a proposition to erect a motion picture plant in which would be taken pictures of surgical operations, botanical life and other things of a scientific nature, as well as historical and geographical pictures for colleges and universities. According to his plans a $75,000 plant would be erected.

Charles Chaplin, Edna Purviance and Marie Doro have been among the well-known stars who have been recent guests at the U. S. Grant Hotel and Hotel del Coronado. Miss Doro and her husband were down for a rest, while Chaplin and party came here to film several scenes in one of his new pictures.

Dave Morris, comedian with the Christie Film Company of Los Angeles, brought his family down by auto for a visit with his aunt, a resident of this city.

Captain Wilbert Melville, manager of the Lubin plant at Coronado, which has been closed for the past two months, has sold his second private yacht, the Lucero, to Bryant Howard, a wealthy resident of San Diego.

The presentation of "Where Are My Children?" at the Cabrillo theatre, recently, filled the house at seven productions a day for two weeks. Many times crowds were turned away.

MISS MINTER TO MAKE DEBUT AS MUTUALITE ON SEPTEMBER 4

September 4 marks the release of "Youth's Endearing Charm," first of the series of Mutual Star productions filmed at the studios of the American Film Company, Inc., in which Mary Miles Minter makes her debut as a Mutualite.

"Youth's Endearing Charm," it is announced by the Mutual, will be released in six reels instead of in five, as originally planned.

This production, in which Miss Minter essays the role of a little orphan, whom fate transforms from the slums to a mansion, was adopted from the story of the same name by Maibelle Heikes Justice, a noted author and writer of scenarios, and screened under the personal direction of William C. Dowlan.

For Miss Minter's initial appearance in Mutual releases an unusually capable company of players were chosen for the support, chief among them Wallace MacDonald, juvenile lead; Gertrude Le Brandt, Harry von Meter, Alfred Ferguson, Bessie Banks, Harvey Clark, Margaret Nichols and others of equal note.

FIRST "FANTOMAS" FROM GAUMONT ON SEPTEMBER 7

The first episode in Gaumont's Mutual Series, "Fantomas," is called "The Phantom Crook." It will be released September 7, and will be followed the next week by "The Man in Black."

METRO, DETROIT, IN NEW QUARTERS

The Detroit branch of the Metro Film Corporation is now in its new quarters in the building at 73 Broadway, where it occupies one-half of the second floor. Manager Richardson says the surroundings are now so attractive and inviting that they are proving a stimulant to go after new business and he predicts that the coming fall and winter seasons will be record-breaking ones for Metro productions.

In addition to the Detroit exchange which handles business in lower Michigan, there is a branch at Escanaba, Mich., which takes care of all business in Northern Michigan.

Macauley Plans Picture as Forum for the People

Noted Cartoonist Begins Campaign to Open Screens of the Country to a Fifteen Minute Daily Discussion of National Problems

TO make the motion picture theatres a sort of forum for the people, in which to discuss on the screen topics of national interest and moment, is the object of the Motion Picture Forum, which has just been incorporated, and has commenced a campaign among the exhibitors of the country. The campaign is in the hands of Charles R. Macauley, the noted cartoonist, who has already commenced operations to open the 20,000 motion picture screens of the country to a fifteen minute daily discussion of various national problems of current interest.

The idea, as well as the name, is culled from the history of ancient Rome. Mr. Macauley and his associates point out that early in its career as a struggling village of mud-huts. Rome drained off the swamp between the Capitoline and Palatine hills, and dedicated it as a forum, where all the people might meet and discuss their public questions. The idea was successful, and as Rome grew, the fora grew also, until in the height of its glory the city had nineteen fora dedicated to the public.

Mr. Macauley says of the new project:

"After the feature and the comedy, the news pictorial has rightly won its place upon the screen of every theatre in the country. But on the days when no animated news weekly is available, there is a deficiency in the program; a deficiency the theatre manager is obliged to supply in a more or less hit or miss fashion.

"By establishing the screen as a public forum this weak spot can be made one of the strongest, most attractive and vitally interesting parts of the programs of all theatres.

"Such action upon the part of the men in control of the destinies of the motion picture industry would at once set the screen upon the important plane occupied by the book, the press and the spoken word.

"National and state censorship would instantly cease to be a menace to the progress of a graphic new art, as no body of legislators would venture to introduce or enact laws designed to throttle an industry engaged in promoting a great public service.

"I appeal to the motion picture exhibitors to dedicate fifteen minutes of their programs on at least three days of each week to the service of their patrons by opening wide their screens to the discussion of all subjects of national interest.

"There is no question that the public will respond by a generous increase of patronage, and that a new threatre-going public will be created. Moreover, a step forward shall have been made in the motion picture industry that cannot be measured merely through the increase in box office receipts that will assuredly follow."

Mantzius, Scandinavian Tragedian, May Go in Films Here

Actor Is Considered the Mansfield or Tree of His Country—Only Man Not a Member of the Court Who Became Director of the Royal Theatre, Copenhagen

DR. KARL MANTZIUS, the Scandinavian tragedian, is expected to visit the United States early in the autumn, probably during October, and, it is reported, may be prepared to take an active part in motion picture work in this country. Primarily, a lecture tour is the reason for the visit, but Dr. Mantzius has devoted considerable time during the past few years to motion pictures in Europe, and is said not to be averse to engaging in the same work here.

Karl Mantzius

Among European theatrical men Dr. Karl Mantzius is, at the present time, one of the most prominent, and is considered the Richard Mansfield or Beerbohm Tree of Scandinavia.

He is this not only on account of his special talent, but also on account of his theatrical career. He is first a student of philosophy and speaks and writes, besides the three Scandinavian languages—he was born in Copenhagen, Denmark—English, French, German and Italian fluently.

When he was about twenty-five years of age he commenced his career as an actor and very quickly advanced to a position in the first rank.

He has acted in all kinds of parts, the grand tragedies of "Lear," "Richard III"; parts which lay between the tragic and the comic as Shylock, and also entirely burlesque parts as Sir Andew Aguecheek.

At the same time he has continued his scientific studies and has devoted himself especially to the history of the theatre. The results of these studies are laid out in a big work called "The History of Theatrical Art," which is also well known in America. This book came out in Danish, English and French. The part of it which treats of Shakespeare has been honored by Queen Alexandra of England, who accepted its dedication to her by the author.

Fourteen years ago Karl Mantzius received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Copenhagen which has never, before or since, been given to an actor anad therefore caused comment throughout Europe.

A few years later he became director of the Royal theatre in Copenhagen, a position which, previous to this, had always been occupied by a member of the Court.

DISPATCH FILM CORPORATION GETTING READY

Half a floor at 145 West Forty-fifth street, New York, is now being put into shape for the quarters of a new film rental concern known as the Dispatch Film Corporation.

This concern has been incorporated for over two months, and during this time General Manager Walter Scheuer has busied himself preparing to make a bid for his share of the rental business of Greater New York and environs.

He has been buying up all the cold prints of good productions obtainable in single or multiple reels. The concern begins business with an extensive stock of film and supplies and wishes picture makers to know that they are in the market to bid for territorial rights on forthcoming productions.

UNITY ESTABLISHES SOUTHERN EXCHANGE IN ATLANTA

Following his visit to Atlanta last week Andrew J. Cobe, vice-president and general manager of the Unity Sales Corporation, announces the opening of a new exchange in Atlanta, to be known as The Unity Film Service.

R. M. Savini has made arrangements with the Unity Sales Corporation to take charge of this exchange and will handle "The Yellow Menace" in the Southeastern territory, as well as other productions of the Unity Sales Corporation. Mr. Savini is well known in that section, having been in the exchange business there for a number of years.

SHIRLEY NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH

Arthur Shirley, now playing a special engagement with an Ince company, narrowly escaped death this week when the front axle of his automobile broke while he was driving to Long Beach. However, it was possible for him to continue the trip to fill an engagement to appear at the Louchlin theatre, where the Dixon film, "The Fall of a Nation," in which he is starred, was shown. He arrived about an hour later by trolley and was presented to the audience and made a few remarks.

GORDON HANDLES PUBLICITY FOR POWELL

Kilbourn Gordon, well known in theatrical and newspaper circles, is now handling publicity for the Frank Powell Productions, Inc. Mr. Gordon was for four years on the Washington Post and the Washington Herald. He left the latter to do the press work for Richard Bennett's production of "Damaged Goods," and the following season publicized and managed Arthur Byron and Edmund Breeze in the Broadhurst play, "To-Day."

CABANNE LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

Wm. Christy Cabanne has completed the Fine Arts production, "Diana of the Follies," which offers as its star Lillian Gish. This feature was this week given final studio inspection and sent to New York City. This completed, Mr. Cabanne finishes his work for this producing organization and Friday leaves for New York to take up his work as director of a serial for the Metro Corporation.

Balboa Is Maker of Many Successes Released by Pathe

The Organization Is Among the Best Known of the Companies Assembled by J. A. Berst Under the Title, "Producers of Gold Rooster Plays"

THE Balboa Company is among the best known of those companies which J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, has assembled under the title "Producers of Gold Rooster Plays." Three years ago when Pathe was still releasing through the General, Mr. Berst purchased from H. M. Horkheimer some of the very first photoplays which had been made under the Balboa mark.

Since that time, Balboa pictures have been almost continually upon the Pathe program. Nor has their work upon Pathe serials such as "Who Pays?" "Neal of the Navy," "The Red Circle" and "The Grip of Evil" interfered with their production of a number of Gold Rooster Plays. "Comrade John," "Little Mary Sunshine" and "A Matrimonial Martyr" are a few of the titles.

Henry King Harry Harvey

Three Balboa directors are identified with these Pathe productions. Henry King, who first became famous as a star playing in Balboa pictures, by reason of his length of service with his company, deserves first mention. Mr. King was one of Balboa's first players and it was only a little over a year ago that he joined the ranks of the directors. Born in Christiansburg, Va., after going through Roanoke College he decided to make the stage his career. His education as an actor was gained in stock company work in Atlanta, Buffalo and New York. Then, he went on the road for several seasons.

Going to Balboa in July, 1913, he has remained in the employ of the Horkheimer Brothers ever since.

For the last twelve months, Henry King has been directing his own productions. His biggest work to date was done in the now famous "Who Pays?" series with Ruth Roland.

Mr. King's first Pathe Gold Rooster production was "Little Mary Sunshine," in which he co-starred with the Balboa and Pathe "Baby Grand."

Just now Mr. King is again directing "Little Mary Sunshine" in a series of Pathe Gold Rooster plays, and will co star with the baby actress in some of them.

A little later Mr. King and Ruth Roland will again appear together in a series of plays by Will M. Ritchey of Balboa, who wrote the "Who Pays?" series.

Bert Ensminger is Mr. King's assistant director, Joseph Brotherton, of the famous Brotherton family, is chief cameraman, and Jack Blake, assistant.

Harry Harvey, another Balboa director of Pathe Gold Rooster plays, was born at Kansas City, Mo., about thirty-five years ago. He was educated in the public schools of the Western Missouri metropolis and when only a boy enlisted in the Hale Zouaves of the state militia as bugler.

Later he enlisted in the Seventh Cavalry, U. S. A., and when his term expired, joined the Marine Corps, U. S. A.

He resigned from the army to enter the moving picture field, then in its early infancy. He served his apprenticeship with the first company that made pictures on cards which were turned through a machine to get the effect of motion.

Since joining the Horkheimer Brothers at their Long Beach studio, he has put on some notable things, such as the "Who Pays?" series and the "Neal of the Navy" serial.

Mr. Harvey has been on the regular staff of the Balboa Company for three years, and his work has placed him in the front ranks of his profession.

His crew is composed of Harry MacPherson, assistant director; Roland Groom, chief cameraman, Cullen Landis, assistant, all experts.

It was while practicing law in New York that Sherwood MacDonald, the third of Balboa's directors of Gold Rooster Plays was bitten by the moving picture bug.

He went to work as an extra just to learn the technique of the game. One day he appeared at the Balboa studio, Long Beach, and was put on in stock. This was the beginning of Mr. MacDonald's real career in the movies for he manifested so much intelligence and resource that he attracted the attention of the Horkheimer Brothers and was very soon promoted to a directorship.

His big chance came when Pathe contracted with Balboa to film the great animated picture book "The Grip of Evil."

Mr. MacDonald gives much credit to his assistants for his success. They are: Assistant Director Jack Reach; Chief Cameraman William Beckway; Assistant Cameraman Jake Wiese.

THIRD HORSLEY COMPANY AT WORK

The third Horsley company is making a two-reel dramatic story with a cast composed of Al Blake, whose most recent work was that of the heavy in "Where Are My Children?" Edith Calvert and others. In this story, which as yet is unnamed, the heavy has the leading part.

S. R. O. FOR "INTOLERANCE" ON COAST

The D. W. Griffith feature, "Intolerance," was given additional public tryouts during the past week, when it was shown at a theatre at Pomona, Calif., for two nights. On each occasion the seating capac was sold out long before time for the house to open.

GRIFFITH GETS "FASHION PLATE"

Jerome Binder, late model for fashion plate artists, has been engaged by D. W. Griffith to play leads in Fine Arts subjects.

Conway Tearle and Clara Kimball Young in the First of the Selznick Pictures, "The Common Law"

PANTAGES CIRCUIT BOOKS "THE YELLOW MENACE" FOR ALL ITS HOUSES

An announcement from the United Film Service's office in Chicago states that "The Yellow Menace," the Unity Sales Corporation's sixteen episode serial, has been booked by the Pantages Circuit for a week's run of each episode in all its theatres.

Pantages has one of the largest chains of theatres in the country, with houses in twenty-six cities throughout the West, and the booking of "The Yellow Menace" by so large a circuit speaks volumes for its popularity and assured success. The principal cities controlled by this circuit are San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Salt Lake City, Spokane and Los Angeles. These have all booked the serial for a week's run and, in addition, "The Yellow Menace" will show in the smaller cities reached by this circuit.

The first release of "The Yellow Menace" will be on Labor Day, September 4. Prominent newspapers throughout the western territory will publish the story simultaneously with the showing of the pictures.

Selznick Plans to Star Kitty Gordon in Series of Pictures

First Subjects Will Be an Adaptation of "Vera the Medium," by the Late Richard Harding Davis—G. M. Anderson Is Picked as Director of Actress

ANOTHER deal was effected by Lewis J. Selznick this week when he closed negotiations for the control of a big series of pictures starring Kitty Gordon. The transaction was with Lawrence Weber, and G. M. Anderson, better known as "Broncho Billy" Anderson of Essanay fame.

The first of the new Kitty Gordon pictures indicates the character of all the productions. It will be an adaptation of "Vera the Medium," by the late Richard Harding Davis, war correspondent and writer of stirring fiction.

With the new Kitty Gordon features, Mr. Anderson will return to studio activity. He will be director in chief of all the productions, and has already begun preparations for the first picture at the Blache Studio, Fort Lee, where the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation will share quarters with the new Selznick company.

Miss Gordon has appeared in only a few pictures, but her beautiful face and figure are already known to picture patrons. The new series of pictures will be chosen from subjects that will give Miss Gordon full opportunity to make the most of her personality and dramatic gifts already well known to the public.

With such men as Stanley Mastbaum of Philadelphia, Green and Abrams of Boston, Jones, Linick and Schaefer of Chicago, Sol L. Lesser of San Francisco, Harry I. Garson of Detroit, A. W. Blank of Des Moines, H. A. Rosenberg of Seattle and J. A. Cressey of Texas as his partners in the distribution of the Clara Kimball Young and other features, Mr. Selznick is in a position of complete independence toward all programs.

In addition to the Clara Kimball Young productions, the Herbert Brenon pictures beginning with Mazimova in "War Brides," and Mary Garden in "Thais" and the Kitty Gordon features, Mr. Selznick is negotiating for the absolute control of a number of other stars of the first magnitude, all of whom will be exploited under the new trade mark—Selznick Pictures.

SYD TAUBE IS NOW WITH FAMOUS PLAYERS IN TORONTO; PRICE ON WESTERN TOUR FOR "U"

Syd Taube, formerly co-manager of the Montreal Universal office, has resigned and is connetced with the Famous Players Company in Toronto, in charge of the booking of the serial "The Yellow Menace."

Another change of the week is that of Harry Price, who has been appointed special representative of the Universal Company throughout the west of Canada. Mr. Price will cover the territory between Winnipeg and Vancouver, however, using Toronto as his headquarters. Mr. Price has been in Toronto for some time making thorough preparations for a sweep through the west, and his previous record leads one to suppose that he will be able to fulfill all expectations.

The Famous Players Company of Toronto has formed a publicity department in its main office, headed by Mr. Howard, formerly of the Star. Mr. Howard has brought out a semi-monthly magazine, the first issue of which offers a prize of twenty-five dollars for suitable title.

THREE COMPANIES ORGANIZE IN LOS ANGELES

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.

Three new companies are now being organized in Los Angeles, or will locate their producing plants here. One is named the Emerald Film Company of Chicago, and negotiations are on for the lease of the Pacific Film Laboratories' studios on Santa Monica Boulevard. This firm has been manufacturing and releasing the "Tom and Jerry" series of one-reel comedies.

Another company is being organized, according to Julius Frankenburg, who has been director for the Dudley Motion Picture Company at Redlands. The producing studios of this organization will be at Redlands.

The Sunday Examiner is responsible for the story that Mary Pickford is coming to Los Angeles and negotiations for a studio there are now on.

BROTHER OF CHATKIN LOCATES IN DENVER

"It's a pleasure to live in Colorado" is the motto that attracted A. A. Chatkin, brother of D. J. Chatkin, into locating in Denver. Chatkin arrived in Denver the early part of last week and is doing the roadwork for H. Bradley Fish, manager of the United Exchange of that city. Fish reports that bookings for "The Yellow Menace" are big. The windows of the United exchange are decorated with thousands of advertisements of the new serial and attract much attention from passers-by.

GORDON GRAY, VITAGRAPH, HAS PART TO HIS LIKING

Gordon Gray, Vitagraph, has just finished work on a three-part drama which is soon to be released. In this picture Mr. Gray has a role, which he says was very congenial. He portrays the part of an artist, with much inspiration and little cash, and failing health in addition.

As Mr. Gray had intended taking up art as a profession, this characterization came easy to him.

STORY OF "THE YELLOW MENACE" TO APPEAR IN MANY DAILIES

Simultaneously with the release of "The Yellow Menace," sixteen episode serial, produced by the Serial Film Company, the story will appear in a large number of prominent newspapers throughout the country.

In New York, The Evening World was the paper selected; and the other big newspapers, which will publish the story, are the Chicago Herald, Philadelphia Telegraph, Boston Herald, Pittsburgh Leader, Indianapolis Times, Minneapolis News, Atlanta Constitution, Baltimore Star, Birmingham Age-Herald, Cleveland Leader, Fort Worth Record, Houston Post, Kansas City Journal, The Evening Wisconsin, New Orleans Sunday States, Omaha News, Buffalo Times, St. Louis Star, Louisville Post, Denver Times, Salt Lake City Telegram, Portland Telegram, San Francisco News, Detroit Times and Los Angeles Express-Tribune.

In addition to these, the story will appear in a large number of other papers in smaller towns.

ALL-STAR CAST FOR "BEATRICE FAIRFAX"

Basil Dickey, who is writing the scenarios of the episodes of "Beatrice Fairfax" from letters received by the famous confidante, has been recalled from his vacation, which included an automobile trip to the Pacific coast.

In addition to Harry Fox and Grace Darling, who will appear in all of the episodes of "Beatrice Fairfax," the International Film Service, Inc., has decided to introduce a number of other prominent players as co-stars. The first of these will be Betty Howe, who has prominent parts in two of the episodes, "The Stone God" and "Mimosa San."

Wherever it is necessary Mr. Dickey will strengthen the parts in which these co-stars appear. In this way the International Film Service, Inc., proposes to offer practically all-star casts for the various episodes of "Beatrice Fairfax."

PLUMP AND RUNT RUN INTO ARTILLERY PRACTICE IN "STRANDED"

Louis Burstein, who directs Vim Comdies, is constantly working into his scenarios the things that his stars do better than the average man and makes them part of the action.

Babe Hardy, who is "Plump" in the Plump and Runt series of Vim Comedies, weighs as much as four ordinary men but is a wonderful rifle shot in spite of his bulk.

In the new Vim Comedy, "Stranded," just released, Plump and Runt run afoul of the artillery practice and their boat is sunk.

They reach an island on which a rich merchant and his family are encamped.

The girl is kidnapped by the villain, who makes off in the sail boat, and here Babe shows his prowess, for with the second shot from shore he breaks the rope which holds the sail and stops the runaway boat. Vim Comedies are released on the General Film program by the Melies Manufacturing Company.

THE USCAN IS A CANADIAN PRODUCING COMPANY

Special to Motion Picture News.

Toronto, August 26.

Reliable authority has it that a new film company will be added to the steadily increasing ranks of Canadian producers very shortly. This corporation, the Uscan, is headed by H. W. Young and his wife, Marjory Adams, both well known figures on the Canadian stage. It is said that the company will be located in International Park opposite Cornwall, so that the many beauties of the Thousand Islands may be utilized.

"TWENTY THOUSAND LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA" FOR BROADWAY THEATRE IN EARLY FALL

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company announces that Jules Verne's best loved story, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," will be produced at one of the Broadway theatres this fall. German submarine merchantmen and the northward tours of West Indian sharks have played into the hands of the Universal in arousing keener interest than ever in the submarine feature.

The well-remembered scenes of the tale, including the fight with an octopus, Captain Nemo's discovery of the pearls, the hunting parties sent out from the "Nautilus" across the ocean's floor, and the burial of a comrade in a coral reef cemetery, all these are actually acted far below the surface of the deep and filmed by special apparatus constructed for the picture.

Work on this production has been in progress for two years.

BENJAMIN CHRISTIE, DANISH ACTOR-MANAGER, ARRIVES WITH "BLIND JUSTICE," SEVEN-REELER

Benjamin Christie, general manager of the Dansk Biograf Company of Copenhagen, Denmark, a concern in which a syndicate of northern European business men is interested. Mr. Christie has just come to this country bringing with him one of the first features produced by the new concern at its Copenhagen studios. It is a seven-reel photo drama entitled "Blind Justice." In it Mr. Christie, who was a featured player of the endowed Royal theatre, Copenhagen, before entering his career upon the screen, portrays the leading character—that of a poor devil unjustly convicted and hounded by the law, till in wolf-like desperation he turns upon his persecutors and fastening his fangs deep into their lives, attempts to wreak a venegeance which results only in his being shot down—wronged to the last.

Katherine Sanders, a young Danish actress, has the leading feminine role and a numerous company of players support Mr. Christy, who, besides starring in the drama also wrote and directed it.

Mr. Christie's first screen appearance was in the star role of the Lieutenant in the well-remembered "Sealed Orders." Since that time he has visited every studio in Europe, studying the methods employed with minute care. One of the objects of his visit here (though he may decide to produce here) is to make the same plans-taking observations. So far he has confined himself to visiting theatres where American features are shown.

LEIBER JOINS FOX FOR INDIAN ROLE

Fritz Leiber, who can recite practically all of Mr. Will Shakespeare's lines at one broad jump, has joined the William Fox photoplayers. Mr. Leiber, who was for many years the leading man of Robert Mantell, Julia Marlowe, and Ben Greet, will go before the camera this week in a new William Fox production under the direction of Bertram Bracken.

Mr. Leiber is cast for the part of an Indian chief's son. The photoplay, however, is entirely modern. The setting is 1916, not 1816, and the Indians are not of the type that throws tomahawks about with the reckless abandon of their colonial-day forebears. Mr. Bracken wrote the scenario himself, and the point around which everything revolves is the attempt of a wealthy Easterner to purchase the large land holdings of the red men.

"BEATRICE FAIRFAX" READY FOR PUBLIC ON AUGUST 28

"Beatrice Fairfax," the new photoplay series of the International Film Service, Inc., will be seen in the New York district for the first time next Monday, August 28. The series was to have been shown simultaneously throughout the country on August 7, but was postponed in New York because of the infantile paralysis scare.

Harry Fox and Grace Darling have the principal parts in all of the episodes. Other co-stars will appear with them from time to time, the first to be featured being Betty Howe.

The first episode is entitled "The Missing Watchman." It is preceded by a prologue in which Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Evening Journal and other famous newspaper workers appear. "The Missing Watchman" will be followed by "The Adventures of the Jealous Wife." Then in order will come "Billie's Romance," "The Stone God," "Mimosa San," "The Forbidden Room," and others that are now in course of preparation."

FIRST VIEWS FROM NEW CABLE CAR OF NIAGARA WHIRLPOOL OBTAINED BY MUTUAL WEEKLY

The opening of the cable line over the Niagara Whirlpool, three miles below the Falls, has been signalized by filming the views obtained over the boiling water by a Gaumont cameraman for The Mutual Weekly. The pictures are now on the screen, having been incorporated in Number 87 of this motographic news reel. These have been obtained exclusively for The Mutual Weekly.

This new aerial scenic tramway is 1,800 feet long, and has been built exclusively for carrying passengers across the Whirlpool. It is the longest of its kind in the world, and was constructed by a Spanish company, which had already built a smaller tramway of similar design at San Sebastian, Spain.

Another series of pictures which make this issue of the Weekly notable is Gaumont views of the Battle of the Somme.

HOPPER IS PUTTING ON "THE RIGHT DIRECTION"

E. Mason Hopper, who went to the west coast to direct for the Universal Company, has been engaged by the management at the Morosco plant, and recently took up the filming of a picture featuring Vivian Martin, at present known as "The Right Direction." The subject will have scenes in all parts of the country. A particular feature will be a set built on the stage at the studio showing the entire interior, as well as the exterior, of a California bungalow, in which much of the action takes place.

The Algerian desert story being filmed under the direction of Scott Sidney and starring Lenore Ulrich, was finished last week, and the actress will depart for New York where she will take up rehearsals for a coming Belasco production. The working title of this subject, which may be permanent, is "Hafsa."

HARWELL, MANAGER OF THE LITTLE PLAYERS OF AMERICA, INC.

H. W. Harwell, manager of the New York office of the Unicorn Film Service, has severed his connection with the Unicorn to accept the position of general manager of the Little Players of America, Inc.

Mr. Harwell, although a young man, is ripe in experience in the exchange and exhibiting branches, having established a reputation as manager of the photoplay department of the C. P. Walker Syndicate, the Western Canada Theatres Company.

He represented the Mutual Film Corporation in Ontario, and later was appointed manager of the Universal office in Montreal.

BINFORD RESIGNS AND IS SUCCEEDED BY LUSTIG

William T. Binford has resigned as manager of the Metro Exchange in Denver and in the future will look after his mining properties. He is to be succeeded by Harry Lustig, who goes from the Metro Exchange of Los Angeles. Lustig is well known in Denver as he was manager of the Mutual Exchange of Denver in 1915, until he accepted the managership of the coast exchange.

E. & R. JUNGLE FILMS BOOKED AT TIVOLI, FRISCO

The Turner & Dahnken Circuit, which has been showing the E. & R. Jungle films at the Tivoli Theatre, at San Francisco, for the past three months, has booked these for the entire circuit of eight houses. Napoleon and Sally, whose antics are featured on these films, are expected to appear at the Tivoli Theatre at an early date.

HOWARD YOUNG WRITES SCENARIOS IN CAMP

Howard Irving Young, one of the foremost of the younger scenario writers, who gave up that work to answer the call to arms and go with the Seventh regiment, N. Y. N. G., to the Mexican border, has sent word to the Metro officials that he is completing two original scenarios in Camp McAllen, Texas, which will be forwarded within a few weeks. Mr. Young, together with Fred. de Gresac, was engaged in writing the scenarios for the Bushman-Bayne serial of fourteen episodes, when he was called to the front.

Mr. Young writes that he is handling a shovel more than a gun, and that he finds little time away from drill and his regular duties to devote to his writing. He found it impossible to continue work on the Bushman-Bayne serial and Paul Price, a former Baltimore newspaper reporter, was engaged to take up where Mr. Young left off. Mr. Young says the regiment has built many frame buildings of a more or less substantial nature, and that this augurs that they will remain there for some time to come.

With Mr. Young in the ranks of the Seventh is "Silent Alexander" Duane, a member of the Metro publicity staff, who was off with the regiment at the first call. "Alex" is enjoying good health and is anxious to get into Mexico.

MAY FORM ORGANIZATION IN CANADA

St. John, N. B., Aug. 26.

As a result of the gathering here of so many moving picture men from the three eastern provinces, there is likely to be some form of organization adopted. At a preliminary meeting held before the visitors left the city; a manager's league, a branch of the motion picture operator's union, and an exchange manager's association were under discussion. The Halifax exhibitors extended an invitation to the St. John theatre workers to be their guests in Halifax, Sept. 16, and at this meeting it is the intention to take up seriously the matter of Maritime Provincial Organization.

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"YOUTH'S ENDEARING CHARM"

(Mutual Masterpicture—Six Reels)
REVIEWED BY E. DRAW

THE first Mutual-Minter-Masterpicture cannot be proclaimed a triumph. However, this is not the fault of Mary Miles Minter. The little star is as charming as ever and her work distinctly shows that the best is yet to come. Probably under the direction of James Kirkwood we have a pleasant surprise in store. The character role of Mary Wade is well suited to Miss Minter's screen temperament and under different conditions this picture could have been greatly improved.

The direction is decidedly poor and the supporting cast weak. The settings are inadequately furnished; one scene in particular is positively ludicrous. In a room which would hold two hundred people there are two chairs, a settee and a small table. Such stage craft is unpardonable today.

One redeeming feature in this production is the photography and lighting, which is all that could be desired. The story had great possibilities which the director has failed to materialize. Some of the situations are carefully worked up whilst others would be improved by judicious cutting.

Mary Miles Minter will get this picture over and it would be well for exhibitors advertising this film to put Mary's name in large type.

After two years of misery with the Jenkins family Mary Wade escapes and goes to the city. Having no means of support she begs and is taken into custody. At the police station she meets Harry Disbrow, who secures her release.

Though somewhat dissipated Harry is a good fellow at heart and after telling Mary's story to his mother and father he succeeds in getting them to install her as a maid. The following day a ball is given and Mary dons a dress which she finds in the maid's room and enters the ballroom as a guest. Harry sees her and to avoid explanations introduces her as a niece of the family.

Thet deception is kept up and Mary soon has an opportunity to repay her benefactors. During a struggle between Harry's father and Horton, who has robbed his company, a pocketbook containing securities falls to the ground. Mary secures it and her bravery wins Disbrow's heart. Harry comes in at this moment and realizes how much he loves Mary. In the course of a very short time Mary is no longer a homeless orphan but the wife of Harry Disbrow.

"THE TEST"

(Pathe-Gold Rooster—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

A PICTURE excellently cast and just as well acted and which presents a well worked out drama, sufficiently spiced with the element of sex to make it pungently sustaining is "The Test" and its widespread success seems ascertained by these elements. If this is not sufficient stamp on the production's worth, it might be mentioned that it is an adaptation of an Al Woods play, a successful one at that, and a successful Al Woods production is nothing that a picture exhibitor can afford to snicker up his sleeve about.

The Threat

"The Test" was made by the Astra company under the superlative direction of George Fitzmaurice. Mr. Fitzmaurice has no weaknesses. He gets the most from his players, procures convincing atmosphere for all his scenes and he is a great stickler for detail. His management of the prison scene wherein the forger suffers from the imageries of a disordered mind is excellent. The closing scenes were taken on a wonderful Long Island estate containing an enclosed swimming pool and beautiful gardens.

The central figure of the story is the wife of a country hotel clerk, a worthless fellow who has raised a check. The new owner of the hotel, a rounder from the city, discovers this and makes the wife pay the price to save her husband. The rounder goes back on his promise and has the clerk arrested anyway. Thereafter the woman is despondent. She resolves to take her life but is prevented by an author, the first decent man she has met. She does work for him and gradually they grow to love one another. The author proposes and then he learns of her husband. This obstacle is removed by the timely intervention of death. At the author's country home she again meets the rounder who is courting her benefactor's sister. She again makes a confession, saves the younger girl from a hapless marriage, and even then receives the love of the author.

Jane Grey in the role of the wife acts with a skill that one seldom finds on either screen or stage. She has many difficult scenes to do and goes through every one of them with flying colors. Carl Harbaugh as her worthless husband plays adequately and Claude Fleming, besides being an excellent type for the role of the rounder, is a fine actor. Lumsden Hare is again a wonderful type for the author, endowing the part with an exceedingly good performance. Inez Buck appears as the author's sister.

"THE GIRL FROM FRISCO"

(Episode 5-Kalem—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY H. S. FULD

THE title of this, the fifth number of the "Girl From 'Frisco" series, is "The Ore Plunderers" and is very appropriately named.

The first three episodes had the theme that "a woman could do a man's work as well as any man"; the fourth was a regulation melodrama with the heroine in distress rescued by the hero in regular melodrama style; and in this one we are back to the first theme again.

Marin Sais as Babara, the daughter of Ace Brent, goes to her father's mine to track a gang of thieves, who under the leadership of one Miller, are stealing ore and carrying it off in their dinner pails.

In the disguise of a car boy she befriends another car boy and learns of the operations of the gang. Under the guidance of her new friend she goes to an abandoned portion of the mine and finds the cache of the robbers. Miller discovers them and he and his gang overpower them and tie them to a pipe in the pit leaving them to drown when he plugs up the intake pipe with his coat. The pump, now sucking air instead of water, allows the pit to slowly fill and only by Bab's managing to free her hands in the nick of time are the two saved from drowning.

In the meantime, the absence of the two car boys having been discovered, they are hunted for by the mine superintendent and Wallace, Bab's congressman lover, the latter having come from the city to look after his sweetheart.

The gang is rounded up, but the district attorney, sheriff and jury are so in terror of the gang that there is small likelihood of their being convicted until Wallace takes a hand.

After the charge by the judge to the jury Wallace is placed in jail by the sheriff on a trumped up charge of "carrying concealed weapons" and Babara mounts and rides for the troops who are camping some twenty miles away.

The troops, led by Babara, arrive just as a mob is about to lynch Wallace and her father, who has arrived in the meantime. The gang is convicted and sentenced to long terms of imprisonment while the troops keep order in the courtroom.

True Boardman as Wallace, Ronald Bradbury as Miller, and Edward Clisbee as the mine superintendent all do creditable work, while Marin Sais in her under-water stunts deserves special mention. The camera work in the taking of the under water scenes is the best effort along that line that we have ever witnessed.

The interest is certainly holding remarkably well in the series, and with each episode complete in itself and so full of thrills and suspense it is not so remarkable after all.

"THE COUNT"

(Mutual-Chaplin—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY E. DRAW

THE fifth Mutual-Chaplin depicts Charlie back in his old business, with his familiar baggy trousers, cutaway coat, dinkey derby, diminuitive mustache, slender cane and his celebrated brogans. This release will delight his thousands of admirers and is probably the best Mutual-Chaplin we have yet seen. The fun making is fast and furious as Chaplin introduces some original and hilarious stunts.

Taking It Easy

Charlie is an assistant in a clothes pressing establishment conducted by Campbell and we see him measuring Edna Purviance for a suit. His ideas of proportion are unique and in order to fit a customer he thinks it necessary to take mouth, ear and feet measurements.

Campbell, the boss, finds an invitation to a ball in a suit which he is pressing. He decides to impersonate the Count and accept the invitation. Charlie's sweetheart is the cook in Edna's house, where the reception is being given. Whilst paying his nightly call he is compelled to hide in the dumbwaiter to avoid detection.

The dumbwaiter begins to move and Charlie finds himself on the first floor of the establishment. Peering between the curtains, he espies Campbell, who has just arrived and introduced himself as the Count. Charlie confronts him and in the excitement is hustled into the ballroom and announced as the Count. He is immediately lionized and becomes the hero of the night. Campbell is furious and the absurd situations which ensue are unique and mirth provoking. As the evening progresses Leo White, the genuine Count, arrives and the imposters are discovered. The police are called and in their endeavor to arrest Chaplin and Campbell they provide a fitting end to a splendid comedy.

Excellent assistance has been rendered by Chaplin's supporting cast, which includes Edna Purviance, Eric Campbell, Leo White and Charlotte Mineau.

Tsuru Aoki (Center) in "The Honorable Friend" and Two Scenes from "The Victory of Conscience," with Lou Tellegen, Two New Lasky-Paramount

"THE VICTORY OF CONSCIENCE"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS latest Lasky picture of current release is strikingly original from situations and treatment even down to the plot itself. That it will attain success is little short of certain, as the whole fabric is based on conflict, friction; or by whatever term you prefer to designate that dramatic element that is practically essential to any production. The whole film presents a battle between two such unusual characters that the "strikingly original" definition goes two-fold.

The scenario was made by Margaret Turnbull from the story written shortly after the outbreak of the European war by Alexandro de Jannelli. Miss Turnbull has emphasized the high lights of the book to an excellent degree. The action sticks to the main theme in practically every scene, and that theme is strong enough and interesting enough to warrant the introduction of no parallel. The production tendered the picture is of a very good sort. There is a jump or two in the action when intervening time is not fully accounted for and the few battle flashes shown in the final scenes are not very realistic, but otherwise, there is nothing to complain of.

The scene of action is France and the realism is introduced by way of several unique settings and plenty of good types. Louis, a gay young man, is the cause of the spiritual downfall of Rosette, a dancer. Her lover attacks and almost kills him. He is rescued by a priest and on his recovery he is persuaded to join the order. He devotes the rest of his life in an attempt to restore Rosette's faith in God that he so ruthlessly destroyed. He is successful at length and she joins a convent. With the outbreak of the war, Louis enlists as a soldier, Rosette as a nurse, and both meet death on the battlefileld.

Lou Tellegen is starred as Louis. A fine actor, fitted well for the role, he makes a strong impression. Cleo Ridgley gives a talented performance as Rosette, acting with skill, though dancing unskillfully. Elliot Dexter appears as Dimitri, at first the companion of Louis and later his enemy. Others are Thomas Delmar, Laura Woods Cushing and John McKennon.

"THE RAIL RIDER"

(Paragon-World—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

THIS is a railroad story with an unusual plot, and a good love story well worked into the thread of more thrilling narrative. The scenes are all well staged, and the atmosphere is real and convincing. All in all, it is a good picture, well calculated to hold the interest and please the average audience.

House Peters is featured as Jim Lewis, an engine driver on the D. & O. system. For some time the employees have been annoyed by peremptory orders from the far-away New York office of the road, signed "B." Nobody knows who "B" is, but all suppose him to be Barker, president of the line.

"B" keeps such a sharp eye on things, that the slightest transgression is met with one of the telegrams meting out punishment in the name of "B." The climax comes when a fast express train, driven by Lewis, jumps the rails on a bad piece of track. The orders from "B" prescribe a fine of two weeks' pay, and a month on a yard engine for Lewis, who was innocent of any blame for the accident.

The men, on the verge of strike, almost start a riot on hearing of this order. They have a meeting, and it is decided that Lewis shall go to New York and remonstrate with Barker.

Arrived in the city, Lewis is astonished to find that Barker is a kind, humane elderly man, who invites him to dinner at his home. There Lewis meets and falls hopelessly in love with Mildred, Barker's daughter. He finds that "B" is Bradley, the general manager, and when he is sought it is discovered that he has decamped with all the road's funds.

Lewis offers to trail Barker, and he follows him through several states, and finally recovers the stolen securities, returning with them to Barker's house just as the directors have decided that the road will be unable to stand the loss, and must go under. His reward is Mildred, and a place in the main office of the company.

Assisting Mr. Peters are Bertram Marburgh, Harry West, A. Harrington and Zena Keefe. The piece was produced by Maurice Tourneur.

"CHUSHINGURA"

(Oriental Film—Seven Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS is perhaps the first Japanese production seen in America. It was made in Japan by a Japanese director, acted by a Japanese cast and presents a story which is probably typically Japanese. Its novelty along these lines will undoubtedly awake curiosity in the public mind and many will go to see it much in the way a smoker is always willing to try a new cigarette. But to continue the simile, the smoker will usually drift back to his steady brand after he has sampled the other. "Chushingura" was made for Japanese audiences and in all probability it gets over with an audience composed of yellow men, but truly it is just as much Greek as Japanese to the American mind.

The Japanese players have an entirely different code of emotions and expressions than the home players. They will enact out a long scene that perhaps tells part of a thrilling story, but it fails to get response to your average American who has not made himself acquainted with far eastern histrionic facial expression. As the picture has been edited here, an explanatory subtitle precedes each lengthy scene and informs the observer just what is going to happen. The entertainment comes in in trying to fit the editor's explanation with the pictured action.

Japanese directors, like most of the Europeans, are unaware of the closeups, the cutback or any appliances employed by our own directors. The scenes in "Chushingura" are all laid at quite a distance from the camera, presumably on a stage. There are very few real exteriors shown, although those that do appear are very pretty. The photography is average in most places, while in some scenes it rises above this plane.

The picture is being handled in this country by Jose Linde. Associated with him in the capacity of manager is Harry Havens.

"THE WOLF WOMAN"

(Kay-Bee-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

IF IT is possible to brush facts aside and tread intrepidly along, believing whole-heartedly in the ancient and honorable adage. "To the pure all things are pure," then "The Wolf Woman" and its contents will pass as entertainment of the crystalline variety. Some of us, however, refuse to countenance the application of the phrase with respect to the motion picture. A vampire picture which shows the vampire at her unclean work of destruction is not relished by, say the man who takes his wife and daughter to the theatre. That man may be hypocritical or two sided enough to sneak off and seee it by himself, but accompanied by his family—never!

Another Victim of Leila's Wiles

"The Wolf Woman" features Louise Glaum as Leila Aradella, one of the most vicious soulless women ever seen on the screen by the writer. Miss Glaum plays the role well—realistically is perhaps the right word. She wears a different gown in practically every scene, and none of them pretends to perform the correct functions of civilized wearing apparel—they are distinctly vampire creations and reveal—we blush as we write and leave the rest of the sentence to the reader's imagination.

C. Gardner Sullivan created the vehicle which presents Miss Glaum and her gowns, and also an excellently constructed story. He has defined to a nicety the workings of the minds of Leila's principal toys. He has displayed much attention to detail and his contrasts between Leila and Adele, a woman of the opposite type, are delightful and restful to the extreme. In carrying out these points in the story Director Raymond West has fared excellently.

Leila captivates a young man, Rex Walden, who wants to marry her. His brother, Franklyn, a thinking man, attempts to interfere, but Leila, tired of Rex, sets about to win Franklyn and succeeds. Rex in despair takes his life. Franklyn continues to see Leila, to the sorrow of his mother, who finally persuades Adele to interfere in her son's behalf. Adele consents and succeeds at length by the mere matching of her own goodness against the wickedness of the other, until Franklyn's eyes are opened. Leila, angered at Franklyn's reformation, drinks heavily. She cuts herself on a mirror and, her face hopelessly marred, she is deserted by all the men who once idolized her.

Charles Ray as Rex Walden gives a notable performance, and Wyndham Standing as Franklyn makes the most of the role. Others are Howard Hickman, Marjory Temple and Gertrude Claire.

The photography and settings are quite adequate, in some instances gorgeous. The subtitles tend to run in the same vein often commented upon before in Ince subjects. They are flowery and unduly sentimental in several cases.

"LITTLE MISS HAPPINESS"

(Fox—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY E. DRAW

THE second vehicle provided for June Caprice is a very charming story, with an unusually refreshing atmosphere, from the pen of Clarence J. Harris. The theme treats of the experiences of a girl who has passed her days surrounded by the flowers of the field and God's pure air. June Caprice, as Lucy White, is delightful; her work is harmonious and absolutely natural. John G. Adolfi, who directed this production, has shown excellent choice in the selection of his locations. The action throughout the film is smooth and many human situations have been masterfully handled.

The photography is not what we are accustomed to see from the Fox studios and the lighting in parts is indifferent. The editing of this picture has nothing to commend it and it is to be hoped that before it reaches the exhibitor several minor faults will have been rectified.

Surely some explanation is necessary to show the course Max Blake is pursuing atfer he deserts his wife early in the story. Yet for no apparent reason a letter is flashed upon the screen just as the picture is ending asking for Sadie's forgiveness. This situation has been crudely handled and is the weak spot in the production.

Lucy White lives with her grandmother and earns a living for them both by selling yeast. Complications begin when Sadie Allen, daughter of a neighbor and customer of Lucy's, returns to the home village. Sadie has been trying to make a living in the city, where she has met and married Max Barker. In time Barker tires of her and she is compelled to return home with her baby.

The Baby Is Discovered

To ward off her father's anger Sadie begs Lucy to take care of the baby until things can be explained to him. Lucy, who has always loved children, is glad of the opportunity. She boldly declares to the community that she has a child of her own. She even tells this to Dave Allen, Sadie's brother, who has just returned from college and is madly in love with her.

Finally Barker comes to the village. He meets Sadie and begs her to return to him. Then she explains the whole affair to her father and Lucy's name is cleared. Dave and Lucy are now made happy.

A capable supporting cast has been brought together and includes Harry Hilliard, who is very good. Special praise should be accorded Sarah Alexander for her excellent interpretation of Grandma White. Others in the cast include Zena Keefe, Leo Kennedy, Sidney Brace, Robert Vivian and Lucia Moore.

"THE LITTLE LIAR"

(Fine Arts-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

DISTINCTLY a character vehicle for Mae Marsh, one which gives the star every opportunity to register the varied emotions for which she is justly famous, is "The Little Liar." Miss Marsh is fully responsible for all the entertainment offered in the five reels. Anita Loos, who prepared the scenario, was obviously not trying to establish an epoch in photoplay writing. She understood the requirements and accomplishments of Miss Marsh and constructed her story accordingly.

That the picture will please its audiences is practically a certainty, except perhaps for the fact that the ending is tragic, whereas the body of the subject is a pleasing cross between light comedy and equally light drama. Miss Marsh has the faculty of producing smiles or tears at will and Miss Loos has favored her with more of the former mode of situations than the latter. Some of the humor of her scenes cannot be measured in cold type and her character of Maggie will do a lot to please any intelligent collection of people.

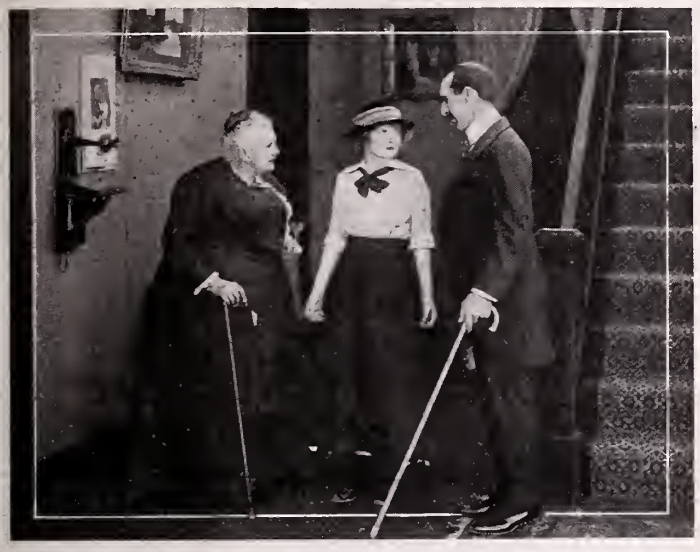
Maggie is the daughter of a laborer who tells lies because she allows her imagination to walk away with her. In a boarding house she works as a slavey and falls in love with the star boarder, a floor walker in a department store. This man is in league with a shoplifter, Fanny, and the two have plied their dishonest trade successfully for a long time. Maggie goes to work in the store as a cash girl. Fanny, learning that she is suspected of stealing, hides several pieces of lace in Maggie's room and she is imprisoned on a charge of shoplifting.



Maggie Falls for the Duke

Bobby, a would-be reporter, also a boarder in the house, gets a clue and finally apprehends the real thieves. Maggie's release is procured, but it is too late; she has taken poison, believing she is in for a long term in jail. Neglected and spurned by all who knew her in life, Maggie's funeral is attended by a number of mourners, including her mother, father and the boarding house keeper, who at last realizes how completely neglected the child was in her brief existence.

The direction was in charge of Lloyd Ingraham. His work is very good, as usual. Although the production called for nothing out elaborations or [illegible] entertainment without really knowing why—and they have produced their picture accordingly.

The fourth number, "The Plot of a Demon," has two big thrillers in it. One shows an automobile going through a weakened bridge in such a realistic fashion that one entertains fears for the safety of the occupants, while the other shows the explosion of a yacht. The story depicts Hong Kong Harry's violent attempts to make off with Najla, at last being foiled by the police. The Higher One and Katisha take refuge on a yacht but escape their pursuers at the last moment.

The next episode, "The Haunted House," finds all the girls, Najla, Margaret and May the captives of Ali Singh, the Higher One, after a ruse. Bronson's father is killed in London by an agent of Singh and Bronson himself swears vengeance. The girls are threatened with torture if they attempt to escape.

The torture comes to light in "The Torture Chamber," when Singh places Najla on a stretching machine for attempting to get out of his power. Hong Kong Harry, because of his love for the girl, cuts the electric wires which operate the machine and so saves her life. For doing this he is placed on the contrivance himself but is saved when the wires are broken by May, as she escapes from the house.

The producer has succeeded in giving the scenes the necessary oriental atmosphere. Unity realized that there are a great many picturegoers who are interested in Asiatic types and plots based on the sinister cunning of the East.

"THE NARROW PATH"

(Red Feather—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY E. DRAW

EXCELLENT opportunity has been given to Violet Mersereau in this production to prove her well known screen ability. Bessie, as portrayed by Miss Mersereau, is an artistic triumph which will gain for her many more admirers; in fact, we do not remember seeing her in a better film for some time past.

"Is the Lady Your Wife?"

The direction by Frank J. Grandon is good and the situations capably handled. The employment of "close ups" is effective and not too frequent, whilst at times there is a well introduced human element running through the picture. One remarkable feature about this production is the strong resemblance which it bears to "The Heart of a Child," by the late Frank Danby. We are given to understand that the story of "The Narrow Path" was written by Catherine Carr, though at times it is hard to know where "The Heart of a Child" ends and "The Narrow Path" begins.

The acting throughout the production is highly commendable, the cast having been well and carefully chosen. The story is centered around Bessie, a girl of the east side slums, whose life was one of eternal drudgery. Soon after she has become an orphan Bessie is knocked down by Mrs. Latham's auto. After her discharge from the hospital she is employed as a cabaret dancer and there meets Shirley Martin, a club man. Martin is induced by a theatrical agent to back Bessie in a Broadway production which is an instantaneous success owing to the dramatic ability of Bessie, the star.

Meanwhile Shirley has fallen in love with Bessie, but Mrs. Latham has designs on Shirley herself and by deceit and conspiracy tries to separate the two lovers.

Luckily her intriguing is of no avail and Bessie and Shirley are happily united.

Among the supporting cast are Leonora von Ottinger, Nellie Slattery, Anthony Merlo, Clara Beyers, Niles Welch and Joseph W. Girard.

"A MILLION FOR A BABY"

(Essanay—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2nd

HERE we have the all too familiar spectacle of an experienced and able cast vainly trying to make something out of a clumsy, impossible plot. Through sheer perseverance, the players are able to create some dramatic intensity in a few of the situations. The cast consists of Bryant Washburn, Marguerite Clayton, John Lorenz, and Lillian Drew. The settings, photography, and general details of production are good.

He Demands an Explanation

Mrs. Gallard's millionaire father realizes that her husband is a worthless parasite, and so leaves her only an adequate allowance. Daniel Druce is made the executor of the estate. Gallard finds that he can get the entire property if a child is born to him. He tries to pass off an adopted orphan as his own son, but Druce foils him.

Mrs. Gallard gives birth to a son, and her husband is jubilant. In order that Gallard may not get his wife's money, Druce flees with it. When Gallard finds that his wife is penniless, he divorces her. Then Druce returns and marries the divorcee.

"THE INVISIBLE ENEMY"

(Z Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

"THE Invisible Enemy" is one of the best pictures released in some time. It has all the things necessary for an entertaining and instructive story told in picturized narrative form. The Z Film Company should find a ready market for the feature, the moment its merits become known to exhibitors. There is an interesting plot, the cast comprises actors and actresses of ability, the director and the cameraman have contributed their share with commendable skill, and each incident carries on the story with telling effect. A wide range of scenes gives the picture a pleasing variety. Many delightful glimpses are shown of California life, from the mansions of the well-to-do to the productive agriculture of the state.

Then there are scenes of congested district in a big city, when Zamah Clark, moved by pity for the poor, helpless children prostrated with infantile paralysis, goes on an errand of mercy to the stricken little tots in the tenements. The heroine's desire to do good in a world of suffering also sends her to a hospital, where her aid and inspiring presence give hope to the children in the clutches of the epidemic.

Zamah Oswald as Zamah Clark, the young woman who feels that her wealth should be devoted to relieving suffering, makes the role charming, bringing to the part beauty, grace and ability to "feel" the character she is portraying. She imbues the young woman with a deep womanly sympathy, which makes a lasting impression on the spectator.

"The Invisible Enemy" is a story of cross purposes, with a well-defined love interest, developed effectively in a well-constructed scenario and by a cast who put their best efforts in every reel.

Miss Oswald, the star, wrote the scenario. She has managed to sustain the interest throughout in a plot simply constructed, by a deft use of contrast of scene and characterization.

In the support of Miss Oswald are Leon Kent as Dr. Wilson Vernas, the bacteriologist who devotes himself to finding a cure for the infantile paralysis germ; Lucille Young as Rose, Frederick Vroom as Colonel Clark, who is consumed by political ambition; William Parson as O'Connor, the corrupt politician, and Jack Cummings as Paul Clark.

"The Invisible Enemy" is an exceptionally good picture and can be shown with profit to the exhibitor in any theatre.

"SAVING THE FAMILY NAME"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"ENGAGING entertainment without guile" is the manner in which the Bluebird press agent aptly describes this picture. It is engaging from start to finish and furthermore it strikes a different note than the majority of productions. Everyone knows that the poor show girl is usually painted as running after the long green and letting her reputation get along as best it can in the world of pictures, but here we have a chorus lady that revolts against such a conventional formula of existence and shows a strict sense of respectability. The effect is quite refreshing and the struggle that the poor girl has to convince society at large and one of it in particular that she is as good, if not better, than her critical enemies would have her, is most entertaining.

A young man of good family commits suicide because his people forbid him the company of Estelle Ryan, a chorus girl. Estelle is denounced by the dead boy's mother and, embittered by this, the girl profits by the tragdey; she allows herself to be publicized because of it and later becomes a star. Jansen Winthrop falls in love with her, but his mother and uncle determine to prevent a marriage. The uncle, Robert, lures her away on his yacht and keeps her captive on an island. Jansen thinks her false. Robert discovers that the girl is as good as the best and sends for his nephew to make things aright, but Estelle prefers Robert to a man who doubted her and Robert agrees before he finds out what he is doing.

Lois Weber did the scenario from a story by Evelyn Heath. It makes a smooth running picture, with the exception of the ending, which is rather sudden and unexpected. It would have been more logical if Estelle and Jansen had been reunited. The Smalleys' direction leaves little to be desired.

Mary MacLaren is featured as the show girl. Miss MacLaren lacks personality and plays her big scenes rather mechanically but manages to create an average impression nevertheless. Her support numbers Phillips Smalley, Jack Holt, Carl von Schiller and others.

"THE YELLOW MENACE"

(Unity—Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Episodes)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

A GENEROUS supply of melodrama, thrills and yellow villainy runs through these three episodes of Unity's serial. Of course there is heroism too, which is always introduced at the crucial moment, just as the villain is about to do away with some character or another that is arrayed on the side of the hero. In this respect the producers have shown judgment. They know the crowd they are catering to—those that prefer the elementary without elaborations of furbelows, or rather those that seek such entertainment without really knowing why—and they have produced their picture accordingly.

The fourth number, "The Plot of a Demon," has two big thrillers in it. One shows an automobile going through a weakened bridge in such a realistic fashion that one entertains fears for the safety of the occupants, while the other shows the explosion of a yacht. The story depicts Hong Kong Harry's violent attempts to make off with Najla, at last being foiled by the police. The Higher One and Katisha take refuge on a yacht but escape their pursuers at the last moment.

The next episode, "The Haunted House," finds all the girls, Najla, Margaret and May the captives of Ali Singh, the Higher One, after a ruse. Bronson's father is killed in London by an agent of Singh and Bronson himself swears vengeance. The girls are threatened with torture if they attempt to escape.

The torture comes to light in "The Torture Chamber," when Singh places Najla on a stretching machine for attempting to get out of his power. Hong Kong Harry, because of his love for the girl, cuts the electric wires which operate the machine and so saves her life. For doing this he is placed on the contrivance himself but is saved when the wires are broken by May, as she escapes from the house.

The producer has succeeded in giving the scenes the necessary oriental atmosphere. Unity realized that there are a great many picturegoers who are interested in Asiatic types and plots based on the sinister cunning of the East.

"HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER"

(Selig—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2nd

THE public is undeniably interested in crook plays—especially when the jimmy-wielders always wear evening clothes. In its eagerness to see this romantic tribe of Jeckyls and Hydes in their migrations between the upper and lower crusts, the average audience may overlook the antiquity of the picture's plot, its conventional handling, and its improbability.

Fritzie Brunette was well selected to portray the role of an immoral heroine, who later reforms. Lillian Hayward is good in an adventuress part, and Edward Piel is convincing in one of the leads. The remainder of the cast was not so happily chosen. The photography and settings are adequate.

Elaine Drury is a combination "fence" for crooks, and a society leader. She tries to keep her daughter Margaret in ignorance of her double life. Marley, a gentleman crook, is in love with Margaret, and when Elaine forbids him to marry the girl, he swears vengeance.

Margaret becomes engaged to Dr. Burke, a brother of the chief-of-police. The chief warns him that his fiancee is dishonest, but is unable to prove this.

Marley seeks to incriminate Elaine and Margaret. He gets them to a millionaire's home on a pretext, and then telephones the police. The chief tells his brother to come and see for himself that his sweetheart is a crook. Elaine is shot by mistake, and then Drury confesses that Margaret is not dishonest. Dr. Burke and Margaret embrace.

SERIAL FILM COMPANY ENLARGES STUDIO AT CLIFFSIDE, NEW JERSEY

WILLIAM STEINER, general manager of the Serial Film Company and supervising director of "The Yellow Menace," announces that his company has added a new exterior glass covered studio and doubled the stage space of the interior studio in its plant at Cliffside, N. J. These additions make it possible for four producing companies to work at the same time.

In addition, the laboratory has been enlarged through the building of a new drying room in which one hundred and fifty thousand feet of film can be dried in half an hour.

These improvements will make the Serial Film Company's plant at Cliffside one of the most complete in the business. The demands for "The Yellow Menace" serial have been very large.

PRESIDENT SEES UNCLE SAM THROUGH HIS PACES

Special to Motion Picture News

Washington, August 26.

PRESIDENT WILSON and the members of the Cabinet saw themselves in a new form of motion picture at B. F. Keith's theatre here and Mrs. Wilson and several hundreds of other women and men of the official circle were present also at the private showing and were given unusual and interesting views of the men actively in charge of the government of the United States.

The principal picture exhibited was entitled "Motion Picture Portrait Studies of the President of the United States and the Cabinet." It was made in Washington last month by the Motion Picture Forum of New York under the personal direction of C. R. Macauley, the cartoonist. The film might be called just as appropriately "The United States Government in Action."

FLORIDA FEATURE FILM COMPANY FINDS THAT "TRUTHFUL" ADVERTISING GETS CONFIDENCE OF BUYERS

SPEAKING of the results thus far obtained through the advertising announcements of the Florida Feature Film Company, Thomas J. Peters, who is personally supervising the production of all the company's five-reel features, says: "During the two weeks that the pictures of our company have been offered to the trade, through the advertising columns of the trade papers, two things have been proved to my complete satisfaction. One is that there is a good market for business-producing and money-making features and the other is that 'truthful' advertising pays."

"We have made it a hard and fast rule not to elaborate on any of our statements in our advertising," said Mr. Peters, "believing that buyers would more readily respond to announcements that had the clear ring of truth and sincerity.

"The Florida Feature Film Company will continue to make plain and unadulterated statements of fact, and if those statements make an appeal to the buyer, if what we say we have is what he wants, we intend he shall come to know that he can buy on our given word.

"All the buyers who have called for screen examinations of 'The Human Orchid,' our first production, in response to our advertisements, were not disappointed by seeing a feature that did not live up to what we claimed for it, and in consequence they are now more willing to take our word on future productions."

MANY PRINTS OF "BATTLE CRY OF PEACE" ARE SENT TO MEXICAN BORDER

WHEN the commanders of the troops stationed on the Mexican Border sent word to Washington asking for some form of entertainment for their men, the government officials immediately got in touch with the Vitagraph Company of America and asked for a number of copies of Commodore J. Stuart Blackton's photoplay spectacle, "The Battle Cry of Peace," which they wished to have run at each and every post along the border.

In response to the request from Washington Vitagraph has shipped several prints of this celluloid classic to a number of the commanders, and they in turn will see that all of Uncle Sam's boys are given the opportunity of witnessing a showing of the picture.

A sequel to "The Battle Cry of Peace" is now in course of production under the direction of Commodore Blackton. The picture, when completed, will be known as "The Battle Cry of War," and it is Vitagraph's intention of following up with prints of this latest offering if the troops are not recalled before it is finished.

WILLARD BRADLEY RECEIVES $1,200 FOR STORY FROM UNIVERSAL

THE Universal Company has just paid Willard Bradley $1,200 for an eight-page synopsis of a five-reel photoplay entitled "The Beloved Imp." This is the record price. The previous high record for a synopsis is $750.

Offers of a thousand dollars have been made for various compositions, and under special arrangements, all of which have had certain strings attached to them. The Universal paid $1,200 strictly on the merit of the story.

"The Beloved Imp" is a story of Scotch domestic life, the scene of which is laid in the mountain regions of Northern Scotland. Mr. Bradley's story has been placed on a par with Sir James Barrie's "The Little Minister," which speaks volumes for the increasing merit of photoplay stories.

Willard Bradley, the author, has over a hundred produced scripts to his credit. He sold his first scenario when he was thirteen years old, and has been a prolific writer ever since.

BIG FOUR "ROUND TABLE" DISCUSSIONS IN PITTSBURGH IS IN LINE WITH V-L-S-E PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT

IN line with the spirit of co-operation and progressive endeavor that runs through the entire V-L-S-E organization, the Pittsburgh branch under the guidance of Branch Manager F. C. Burhans has just instituted weekly discussions called "Round Table Discussions."

At these meetings, which are largely inspirational, all the problems not only of the exchange but of the helpfulness to exhibitors is brought up. Many of the prominent managers of theatres in the Pittsburgh territory find the newer co-operation always makes for their better interests.

Tabloid Reviews for the Busy Exhibitor

PRODUCTIONS FROM ALL PROGRAMS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"The Sunbeam." (Biograph. Reissue.)—A plain little drama in which an old maid and a bachelor are brought together by an orphaned child and some pranks played upon them by playful children. No member of the cast is at all prominent. The production is laid totally in interiors, and there are few settings, although those introduced suffice to present the picture realistically.

"The Unveiling." (Biograph. Reissue.)—A show girl makes a play for a rich boy's money through his heart, but she is shown to him in her true colors when his friends pretend his fortune is lost. This is a real old-timer. The story is slightly strained in its later phases, while the out-of-date clothes worn by the players are always to be noticed. Mabel Normand and Robert Harron have the principal parts.

"For the Son of the House." (Biograph. Reissue.)—A penniless girl, sheltered by a social worker, shows her gratitude when she takes the blame for a robbery committed by the scapegrace son of the house. All winds up nicely, however. Mae Marsh has the stellar role in this piece, which, though exceedingly conventional, offers a fair form of entertainment.

"The Pacifist." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., Sept. 5.)—This comedy drama is particularly timely. There are some real laughs in it, most of them created by the good character work of the cast and the humorous situations of the play. Harry Dunkinson takes the lead, and is given admirable support by Camille D'Arcy, Tommy Harper, Frank Hamilton and Edgar Murray.

Henry Alswell is a henpecked husband, the butt of his son's contempt, and a nonentity in his office. His favorite occupation is writing letters to the papers pleading for peace. His business partner is Bill Mars, a belligerent, two-fisted man. One day Alswell's son and Mars's offspring indulge in a fist fight. Alswell tries to pull them apart, but Mars holds him back. When Mars's child is knocked down, his father attacks the Alswell child. Henry's ideas of peace are forgotten, and he gives Mars a terrific hay-maker. Alswell is now the idol of his son, the pride of his wife, an dthe Czar of his office.

"Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 15." (Esssanay. Split reel. Wed., Sept. 6.)—Wallace A. Carlson contributes to the reel 500 feet of animated drawings burlesquing the news weeklies. The remainder consists of scenic.

"A Million for a Baby." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., Sept. 9.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"Ham the Fortune Teller." (Kalem. Tues., Sept. 5.)—A Ham comedy, in which figure a band of gypsies, a reward of 10,000 dollars, a jealous husband and a pretty wife. Ham and Bud are, in turn, suspected by the husband as being his rival, a band of gypsies having warned him that he had a rival. Some very amusing situations are evoked during the run of this number, and it is up to the Kalem standard for the series.

"Ablaze on the Rails." (Kalem. Sat., Sept. 9.)—Again Helen Gibson, in her role of the girl operator at Lone Point Station, gives one the shivers as she essays another of her hazardous stunts. This time she flings herself at a passing freight car from the rear seat of a motor cycle on which she has been riding tandem. Both the cycle and the car are going at a good clip when she makes the jump; and it provides some thrill. In the car are a railroad detective and his assistant, who have been fastened to the side of the car by two escaping robbers, the latter jumping off after setting the car on fire. There is a good plot for this number, and the photography and acting is all that can be desired.

"The Ore Plunderers." (Fifth of the "Girl From 'Frisco" Series. Kalem, Wed., Sept. 6.) This number is reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"His Brother's Keeper." (Selig. Three reels. Mon., Sept. 4.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"Taming Grouchy Bill." (Selig. Sat., Sept. 9.)—Admirers of Tom Mix will doubtless enjoy this Western comedy, although it contains little of the Mix riding, shooting and lariat stunts. There is a large amount of slap-stick work, much of it being entertaining. Appearing in Mix's support are Victoria Forde, Pat Chrisman and Joe Ryan. Grouchy Bill maltreats his wife Vicky so much that it is a county scandal. Tom, a cowboy, plans to teach Bill a lesson. He disguises himself as Vicky's mother-in-law, and pays the couple a visit. Every time Bill opens his mouth, Tom either kicks him or knocks him down with his fist. After several days of this treatment Bill is thoroughly subdued, and when Tom reveals his identity Bill swears that he will be a model husband.

Selig-Tribune, No. 68 (Thurs., Aug. 24.)—On the River Somme, France; submarine mine layer captured by English on exhibition, London, Eng.; civilians prepare for naval cruise, Brooklyn Navy Yard, N. Y.; President confers with railroad men; Illinois National Guard reviewed by Brigadier General Parker, Brownsville, Texas; new tractors plow soil at Cedar Rapids, Ia. during farming demonstration.

Selig-Tribune, No. 69 (Mon., Aug. 28.)—More scenes from River Somme, France; personal views of guardsmen at San Antonio, Texas; Governor Dunne of Illinois visits training camp at New Braunfels, Texas; Ohio Building moved from exposition at San Francisco down bay to San Carlos, Cal.; health authorities meet in Washington, D. C., to discuss infantile paralysis; coast defense guns at Fort Totten, L. I., in action; Walter C. Hagen wins open gold championship at Milwaukee, Wis.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"The Spite Husband." (Horsley. Sat., Aug. 12.)—An interesting story has been skillfully woven and carefully treated in this production. The theme is a gripping indictment of hasty marriage where love is no consideration. A rich society girl jilted by her fiance declares that she will marry the first man she meets. Later she is rescued from drowning by a fisherman to whom she proposes and is accepted. Shortly after she has a chance meeting with the man who jilted her earlier in life. A quarrel ensues and her husband thrashes the interloper and denounces his wife. Some months later Kathleen learns what true love means and a reconciliation follows. The cast includes Crane Wilbur and Mae Gaston.

"Nell Dale's Men Folks." (Mustang. Fri., Aug. 25.)—A strong story with human interest and a Western setting depicting how a man is judged in the Far West. Nell Gale keeps house for her father, who owns a small Western road house. Zeb, her brother, is half-witted. Nell has many suitors, but Bart Trexis is the favored one. Trevis is falsely accused of horse stealing, circumstantial evidence pointing strongly to his guilt. He comes to Nell and pleads with her to flee with him. The pair are overtaken in their flight, and when about to be arrested Zeb, knowing his sister's love for Trevis, swears that he committed the theft. Nell and her sweetheart are therefore allowed to continue on their way. The cast includes Anna Little and Frank Borzage.

"Enchantment." (American. Mon., Aug. 21.)—An excellent film with a combination of artistic allegory and wonderful woodland scenes, which make this a very unusual production. The scenario was written by Anthony Coldeway and produced by Carl M. Le Vines. Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh are presented in dual roles. "Enchantment" concerns a young wife and her equally young husband. The former is insanely jealous, and in one of her spells of anger on learning that he has fallen in love with his model, she destroys his masterpiece. In the various scenes which take place in the artist's studio there appear a number of nude poses. These, however, have been artistically treated and are not in the least suggestive.

"In a Prohibition Town." (Beauty. Wed., Aug. 23.)—This is only a fair comedy with nothing new to recommend it. Boozley is a slave to Demon Rum and is discovered by his wife, a temperance advocate, manipulating a well filled bottle. Securing the bottle, she throws it out of the window. Boozley gives chase, hoping to secure it, but is arrested in his pursuit by suspicious looking men entering a secret trapdoor. Boozley's curiosity leads him to investigate and he discovers that an anarchists' meeting is in full swing. He has many adventures before making good his exit. Wearily he returns home and discovers a dozen bottles of special brew, but he has by this time had enough and his wife throws the remainder away. The cast includes Orral Humphrey, Jo Taylor ,and Joe Massey.

"The Rookie." (Cub. Fri., Aug. 25.)—This is quite an amusing comedy which will delight George Ovey's admirers. Jerry has fallen in love with his employer's pretty daughter. Her sweetheart, however, is Jack, an army lieutenant. Jerry is willing to become a soldier in order to win her love. He is rejected at the recruiting office, but undaunted, he secures some uniform and lines up with the new recruits. Jerry is quickly "spotted," but makes good his escape. He goes to the girl's home and seems about to conquer, when Jack appears and Jerry is compelled to make a hasty exit.

The cast includes George Ovey, Jefferson Osborne, Janet Sully, Claire Anderson.

Mutual Weekly, No. 85.—One hundred and thirty-seventh anniversary of the fall of the Bastile, Paris; floating hospital, Boston; German U-boat puts out to sea from Baltimore; swimming taught on dry land, Berkeley University, California; King and Queen attend services in Westminster Abbey, London; Japanese training ship at Los Angeles; capture illicit still in heart of Los Angeles; new armored motor car for army, Washington, D. C.; summer fashions displayed at Atlantic City, N. J.; Charles E. Hughes at Detroit, and other events.

PATHE EXCHANGE, INC

"Luke Joins the Navy." (Phunphilm.)—A slapstick comedy in which Luke joins Uncle Sam's fleet and has divers peculiar and fairly funny experiences. There is a deal of rough and tumble work in which respect the offering is similar to others of this brand. Harold Lloyd and Beebe Daniels are the principals.

"Some Foreign Birds." (Pathe. Split reel.)—This half reel which shows various rare birds in close views would be more interesting if some of the scenes were cut shorter. It hasn't enough variety to make it completely interesting. On the same reel with "Historic St. Augustine."

.."Historic St. Augustine." (Pathe Split reel.)—Views of this ancient city of Florida divide the reel with "Some Foreign Birds."

"Caught in a Jam." (Mittenthal.)—A Heine and Louie comedy that contains far too much earth throwing to be diverting. Mud slinging brings the picture to a close.

"Picturesque Havana." (Pathe. Split reel.)—Interesting views of this well known city in Cuba take up this portion of a reel. Morro Castle is shown. Fairly interesting.

"Good Pals." (Pathe. Two reels.)—In this two reel melodrama Pathe has a picture of the vintage of 1908 or thereabouts—a fact which will be discernible to the most untrained eye. Its situations are crude and the acting strained and unrealistic. A collie dog, very well trained, is the life of the piece, but a canine can't make a picture with so much against him.

"The Grip of Evil." (Balboa. Ninth Episode. Two reels.)—"The Dollar King," as this chapter is called, goes on in the same track set by preceding numbers, being if anything, more exaggerated than its fellow pictures. In it the millionaire sees his hopes of a labor Utopia completely blasted by the might of the trust while he is also witness to a tragic love affair. Obviously not designed for any one learned—but probably a sure fire hit with the masses.

Pathe News, No. 68. (Sat., Aug. 23.)—Railroad men confer with President Wilson, Washington, D. C.; Catholic convention, New York City; Hughes speaks at Tacoma, Wash.; Paris fashions; gulf storm wrecks property and causes loss of life, Miami, Fla.; farmers of Fort Worth, Texas, use automobiles as motive power for plows; Princess Louise visits British naval training ship, Hammersmith, Eng.; Austrian soldiers Russian captives, Bukowina, Russia; water sports at Rockaway, N. Y.; women train at Lake Geneva, Wis.; aeroplane vs. motocycle, Readville, Mass.

Pathe News, No. 69. (Sat., Aug. 26.)—Boys of Valcour, N. Y., dress as Highlanders to learn warfare; the Ohio building moved from San Francisco Exposition to San Carlos; new motor biplane tested at Newport News, Va.; women march for equal suffrage in Amsterdam, Holland; Paris, France, witnessed bicycle race; troops reviewed, London, Eng.; Atlantic squadron assembles off Newport, R. I., for annual war game; annual archery tournament, Jersey City, N. J.; Lewis machine gun used at El Paso, Texas; how to save person from drowning.

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"The Call of the Past." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., Sept. 1.)—A well presented crook story, exceedingly good in the matter of types, showing the reformation of a crook through his marriage and his ultimate escape from the police for past deeds because of the self-sacrifice of his pal. It is generally well done and averagely directed, the crooks being the recipients of all the sympathy. Harvey Gates wrote the scenario and William Lowry directed with a cast including himself, Kingsley Benedict, Agnes Vernon and Frank Brownlee.

"The Boy from the Gilded East." (Nestor. Mon., Sept. 4.)—In which the tenderfoot is thought to be a bandit on his arrival in the West and his actions have the whole town scared for a while until his real identity becomes known. This is a fairly good comedy with one or two hilarious spots in it, although in the way of smoothness it is not up to the Nestor mark. Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean are the principals. James Dayton wrote the scenario for Louis Chaudet's direction.

"The Code of the Mounted," (Gold Seal. Three reels. Tues., Sept. 5.)—Confronted with the alternatives of sticking to his duty and arresting the brother of his betrothed or yielding to her pleadings to let the man go, the member of the Northwest Mounted chooses the former course, but later he is exonerated in the eyes of the girl by a strong chain of incidents that place a fitting climax on an exciting tale. J. Warren Kerrigan is featured in this pleasing release, while his support consists of Ethel Phillips, Norbert Myles, Buck Connors and George E. Marshall. Some beautiful light effects have been caught with the sun playing through thick forests, and the whole production is ideally set. Jaccard directed from one of his own scenarios.

"Love's Boomerang." (Victor. Tues., Sept. 5.)—The favored suitor of daughter's poses as a girl and as her chum succeeds in running away and marrying her. Conventional in every degree but averagely humorous. There are no prominent faces in the cast. Harry Wulze is author and P. C. Hartigan director.

"The Triumph of Truth." (Big U. Two reels. Thurs., Sept. 7.)—A melodramatic romance laid at the seashore in which fisherfolk and a Government surveyor are chief characters in a plot that holds throughout. Cleo Madison, co-director with Joe King, also plays the heroine and has done exceptional work in both capacities. The locations are excellent. Tom Chatterton, Seymore Zeliff, H. Van Norman and J. F. Abbott are also in the cast, the last mentioned having prepared the scenario.

"Circumstantial Justice." (Laemmle. Wed., Sept. 6.)—An attorney prepares his case against a man convicted of murdering his wife's lover. The attorney's wife hears the other woman's story and then acts out the same story that her husband may see the other man's case from his point of view. The attorney then promises leniency. Probably the best picture on the program this week, as the idea is original and it is presented neatly and convincingly. E. M. Ingleton is author, while F. A. Kelcy directed a cast including Irene Hunt, Jessie Arnold and T. D. Crittendon.

"The Pinnacle." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., Sept. 8.)—A society drama by F. McGrew Willis unusual in theme and treated very well by cast and director. A good fight is staged which adds a thrill. Save for the ending, which is rather weak, the picture is very good. Richard Stanton directed himself, Myrtle Gonzalez and Hayward Mack.

"His Country's Call." (Rex. Fri., Sept. 8.)—A Frenchman, son of a veteran of the war of 1870, deserts his regiment in the present conflict, but his honor is reawakened in him by the patriotism of the parent. He leaves again and later returns to his wife and father, one arm gone and his face battle-scarred. This one-reeler has been produced excellently, is full of true pathos, especially in its finale and thrills one over its entire length. Lee Kohlmar is the veteran, while M. K. Wilson and Edith Roberts have the other principal parts. Harvey Gates is author and Frank Ormston director.

"The Laugh of Scorn." (Big U, Sat., Sept. 9.)—When the school master from the city arrives and enters upon a romance with the daughter of an ignoramus, the lover, equally an ignoramus, gets spiteful and in attempting to shoot his favored rival wounds the girl. The school master pursues him and they engage in a fight on the top of a cliff and the ignoramus gets worsted. This makes a fair release, although there is nothing distinguished about it. Ben Wilson and Edna Hunter are the principals, while Charles Ogle and Joe Girard are chief support.

"The Deacon Stops the Show." (Joker, Sat., Sept. 9).—Allen Curtis can do much better than this. William Franey as the Deacon goes to a burlesque show with the intention of stopping it but falls for the leader of the chorus. It's old stuff for the most part, while Curtis has fallen down on his direction. William Franey, Gale Henry, Lillian Peacock, Milburn Moranti and Charles Conklin are the principals. Ben Cohn wrote the scenario.

"From the Rogues' Gallery." (Universal Special Feature. Fourth Episode. Two reels. Week of Sept. 4.)—In this chapter of the "Dobb's" series, Timothy, still chucking his big bluff, gains a position with a motion picture company in which he is to play the crook part. The director takes his players to a rough part of town to gain local color and Timothy is mistaken for a real crook by inmates of the underworld. The fun in this is considerable, while so much bluffing on the part of Timothy creates quite a bit of suspense.

"Mountain Blood." (Big U. Sun., Sept. 10.)—A moonshiner story with a noriginal twist that makes it unusually interesting. Two brothers love the same girl and the case of one is hopeless. For the sake of his brother he engages to fight the revenue officer and meets death. The other two are then left to themselves. Very well produced by George Cochrane from a scenario by Fred Burns. Vester Perry, Jack Nelson and Mollie Malone are the leads.

"As the Candle Burns." (Sun., Sept. 10.)—Joseph Le Brandt has made a very interesting and exceptional picture in this release. It has been well produced and the characterization of John Ayres by Jean Hersholt is beyond praise. The story centres around the visualization of Ayres's early life. The old man is looking through a box containing photographs, letters—all of which arouse distant memories. As a young man we see him meet his sweetheart and later the wedding ceremony where he receives the congratulations of his many friends. Tom, his only son, is born. A few years pass and we see Ayres and his wife giving a children's party for Tom. The time arrives for Tom to go out into the world, and it is not long before the old man's cup of bitterness is filled to overflowing; his son has been arrested for embezzling funds of the bank. The shock kills his mother. Ayres takes all his life's savings and makes good his son's deficits. Unable to support himself, the old father lives in constant dread of the poorhouse, where he fears he will be sent. Fate, however, has decreed otherwise. Later the officers have arrived to take the old man away, only to find that his spirit has gone to join its mate in heaven. The cast includes Jean Hersholt, Irene Hunt and Billy Mason.

INTERNATIONAL

"Beatrice Fairfax." (International Third and Fourth Chapter.)—The third and fourth chapters of this serial are maintaining their novelty of theme and treatment. Suspense, sensation and thrills are plentiful and this serial bids fair to become one of the strongest now running.

The third chapter, entitled "Billy's Romance," is the story of a messenger boy who writes to Beatrice Fairfax on a love problem. This involves Beatrice and Jimmy Burton in a kidnapping case. A man escapes from Sing Sing and is secreted by his sister in her apartment. In sending a message to her brother's confederates she employs the Morse telegraph code by tapping on the window with a thimble. Billy recognizes the code and takes a copy of the message which contains a threat to kill his little sweetheart's father. He hastens to Beatrice and together with Jimmy Burton, after various adventures, they rescue his sweetheart, who had been kidnapped, and capture the gang.

"The Stone God" (Chap. 4) hinges on a murder mystery laid in India. An army officer steals a statue of Buddha and brings it to America. Some time later a priest follows him to secure the idol and to revenge the sacrilege. McRay is killed by the Indian who in turn is shot by a mechanical device installed in front of the idol.

The unravelling of the mystery is undertaken by Beatrice Fairfax and Jimmy Burton who succeed after demonstrating their remarkable sleuth-like methods.

Everything for Theatre, Exchange and Studio

Sticking to the Picture Line

THE duty of every publisher toward those who read his publication is absolutely clear. As stated last week on this page, he must stop when possible all newsless editorial matter—he must not allow advertisers, whose goods are not to his best knowledge as described, to use his advertising columns. We are doing everything in our power at the present time to give this protection and will continue to do so—even going further than this.

WE have recently received advertising from some of the most reputable advertising agencies in the country which we could not accept for MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

The copy was honest and the goods were standard in every way, yet they did not have any bearing on the motion picture trade—which is the theatre man ONLY. In one particular instance it was an advertisement of a talcum powder. This is hardly in demand among theatre men.

The only advertising which we will accept, therefore, is that which is applicable to the theatre, the men who operate them, or some manufacturing branch of the industry.

THIS advertising, when kept careful watch of, is as much text to the readers of the publication as the editorial columns. Every class of goods which is advertised is a necessity in some form to the running of the industry and as far as space will allow each piece of copy is descriptive of the articles advertised.

All advertising copy is naturally limited—as far as I know there never was an advertiser who could say all he wanted to in the space he used. In most cases, therefore, all that the manufacturer tries to do is to arouse the interest of the readers and dealers so that they will communicate with him for further information or will go to their dealer and see the goods in question.

SOME people seem to look upon advertisers as a class to be fought shy of—as though they were trying to wish some worthless commodity off on them—a kind of peddler of gold bricks.

They do not realize that all goods whose advertising is accepted in a reputable journal are manufactured to fill a particular need of their own—that they or some others like them are necessities in running their business or some other particular branch of the industry.

THERE may be several commodities fulfilling the same function—one may be better under certain conditions than another, yet in the case of an exhibitor how can he tell which is best without knowing all about each one?

This is information which he must have if he is to be posted and pick his equipment intelligently, yet there is only one way to get it—obtain all the information possible from the advertiser by writing him for data and then actually seeing the goods in operation at the dealers.

THE "News" will, within the next year, attempt to describe all the best articles manufactured for the trade—this is done in order to co-operate with both the exhibitor and the manufacturer.

These articles will merely help make a demonstration clear. They will be treated with the idea of giving help as to when and how the commodity should be used; in other words written with the idea of telling the trade facts about the goods and not as a boost for the product, unless it merits that boost.

It may be of value to cut these out and file them away as there is no telling when they will come in handy. Many of them will probably never be advertised.

SOME time ago we started the Buyers Service Department "Better Satisfaction.' It has grown wonderfully—between ten and twenty blanks coming in each week.

It may be interesting to know that the reason for starting this was because many theatre men for some reason did not want to answer advertising.

They will send us the inquiry and through us get from the manufacturers just what they would have gotten had they written direct except that the manufacturer receiving the inquiry does not know in detail the exact function which his instrument is to fulfill and therefore is not able to be of as much help as he would be were he to be written to direct.

THE theatre man should also consider carefully the equipment dealers in his territory—some of them may handle the very goods on which he wants information; if so and the dealer is reputable and you know that the goods when sold by him will be backed up by actual service it would be far better to get them there, but first have an actual demonstration before purchasing.

This is far more satisfactory than buying at long range from the factory. Then, too, there is another advantage, for if anything goes wrong there are two instead of one to look to, to make good.

WE therefore advise every theatre man not to be reticent but to keep up with the progress of the industry at all times, both through the reputable dealers, through the manufacturer direct and through your trade journal whose duty it is at all times to give all the information possible on all subjects.

E. K. GILLETT.

The A B C of the Motion Picture Operating Room

More Wrinkles on Projection—Now That It Is Understood How to Make Our Calculations, We Will Go Into the Subject Still Deeper and Treat of the Current Itself and the Different Wiring Systems—The Direct and the Alternating

NOW that we have an understanding as to how to make our calculations we will go into the subject still deeper and treat of the current itself and the different wiring systems. The current is of two kinds, alternating and direct, commonly known as A.C. or D.C.

Direct current is generated by a dynamo, the armature of which has a commutator from which the current is taken off through the brushes. It always flows in the one direction and has a positive and negative side. It is said that the current flows out from the positive dynamo brush, and travels along the circuit to the current consuming device, returning to the dynamo over the negative wire. It is seldom if ever found with a greater voltage than 500 for the reason that it would be a difficult matter to insulate the commutator bars from each other, effectively.

Alternating current is a different proposition altogether. It is used extensively by light and power companies for the reason that it can be more cheaply generated, and is "stepped up" to a higher voltage, or "stepped down" to a lower voltage by means of a device called a transformer, which has no movable parts and requires but very little care or attention.

Alternating current, unlike direct, does not flow in one direction but is constantly changing, flowing first in one then the other direction, the period of flow depending upon the number of cycles. The "cycle" is the frequency with which the alternations occur and for our purpose the 25 and 60 cycle current is all we need to consider. The 25 cycle is the best adapted for conversion to direct current, but for general distribution of lighting and power the 60 cycle is used. The majority of operating rooms where alternating current is used has the 60 cycle, for it has been found by experimenting that it produces excellent light, and is at the same time economical for power, and has been adopted as standard by practically all plants which furnish both light and power.

Difficulties in the Early Days

In the first days of projection, when alternating current was supplied to the motion picture machine it was most unsatisfactory for the reason that it was almost impossible for an operator to get and maintain a good light; rheostats were used to reduce the voltage and the enormous waste from their use was a big item in the expense of the exhibitor. To overcome this waste many schemes were practised, and while some of them were practical none of them were really efficient, as the word efficient is now known.

One of the first devices was the ordinary choke coil, which later developed into the Compensarc, Inductor or Economizer; from these came the later type machines known as Rectifier, Transverter, Motor Generator, etc.; all of these machines have a high efficiency and are the results of years of experiments by some of the brainiest men in the electrical world.

While rheostats are still in use in many of our "best theatres," it is not economy that prompts their use for rheostat resistance is never economical. The real reason lies in the fact that exhibitors are not willing to improve their shows by the necessary equipment in their operating rooms. No matter whether the current be A.C. or D.C. there is a device manufactured that will cut down the electric light bills materially. The D.C. to D.C. motor generator set as put out by either J. H. Hallberg or the Fort Wayne branch of the General Electric Company, have in a large measure helped to overcome this waste, for by the use of these machines there is no necessity for rheostatic resistance. These machines are nothng more nor less than a dynamo of peculiar construction, which is driven by a D.C. motor and generates direct current at the arc voltage and automatically supplies the necessary voltage and amperage without any resistance being used with which to "ballast." There is no appreciable waste in the use of field rheostats, therefore, the only loss is caused by mechanical or electrical friction in either the motor or generator.

Knowledge of Both Wire Systems Necessary

The operator should have a fairly good general knowledge of both wire systems, for he is the man who must deliver the goods and unless he does understand electrical action he will soon find himself up against it.

Of the two wiring systems generally used we will take first the Two Wire System, known as the multiple arc or parallel, this is the system the operator most generally finds; the Three Wire System being simply a variation of the same as far as electrical effect is concerned.

In Fig. 1, we have a multiple arc, or two wire system, the action of which is as follows: Lines A-A are the street mains, B-B the house feeders. As I said before, the current flows out from the dynamo, over the positive wire, does its work and returns to the dynamo over the negative wire.

It is possible to connect to any part of this system if the wires, switches, etc., are heavy enough to carry the current needed at the arc in addition to any other current it may have to carry, and that you have your circuit fused heavy enough to carry all the current being used. It is also necessary to have a meter capable of carrying the entire load.

The Three Wire System is a little more complicated, but very simple, when once you get an understanding of it. In effect, it is the output of two generators combined, these generators may be used singly or both together, according to how the connections are made. With two dynamos connected in series as shown in Fig. 2 the voltage of dynamo No. 1 is added to that of dynamo No. 2.

If they should be 110 volt dynamos the total pressure between the two outside wires will be 220 volts, but if they should be 220 volt dynamos the line pressure would be 440 volts.

By adding a third wire as shown by dotted line in Fig. 3, we have a "Three Wire System," and if we connect a lamp between the middle (Neutral) wire and the lower wire we would only be using the one generator, and would only get the pressure of that machine which is usually 110 volts. The same thing would happen should we connect to the upper wire and the neutral, and we would be using that dynamo with its voltage. As a rule both dynamos are of the same voltage. Now, if we connect to both outside wires we will be pulling the entire voltage of both machines which will give us double the pressure or 220 volts.

Balancing the Load

In practice, the purpose is to have both dynamos do an equal amount of work so as to "balance the load." To do this it is necessary to so connect our lamps and motors between the neutral and one outside wire, and the neutral and the other outside wire, so as to use an approximately equal number of amperes.

A very simple and inexpensive method of finding the voltage of a circuit is shown in Fig. 4. Two 8-candle power, 110 volt incandescent lamps are connected in series with each other and when one and two are connected across the circuit and the lamps burn at full candle power you can be sure that you are working on 220 volts, should they not burn to full candle power; it is probably because your voltage is much less, to be reasonably sure you would then touch either one and three, or two and three, to the circuit wires and if the single lamp burns to its full candle power the result will be that you are using 110 volt current.

It is not possible to get the correct voltage by this method, but it is near enough for our purpose, and practical too, for the lamps may be used for many other tests which I shall take up later on.

Next week I will try and give you wire tables, their resistance, carrying capacity in amperes, etc. I. G. SHERMAN.

NICHOLAS POWER INSTALLS LARGE NUMBER OF CAMERAGRAPHS IN EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

THE Nicholas Power Compaany reports an unusually large number of installations of their Power Cameragraph in educational and industrial institutions during the present month and asserts that it is reliably informed that many more of these institutions would use motion pictures for educational purposes were it possible to obtain a regular film program suitable for this work. Among the most notable installations are:

Board of Education, Passaic, N. J.; St. Mary's College and Academy, St. Joseph County, Ind.; Hamilton High School, Hamilton, Ohio; Jewish Orphans' Home, New Orleans, La.; Young Men's Christian Association, Fortress Monroe, Va.; Ford Motor Car Company, Detroit, Mich.; Avondale School, Cincinnati, Ohio; Board of Education, Norwood, Ohio; Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, Manchester, N. H.; Young Men's Christian Association, Tobyhanna, Pa.; St. Michaels' R. E. Church, Jersey City, N. J.; State of N. Y., Utica State Hospital, Utica, N. Y.; St. Joseph's Church, Rosebank, Staten Island; Assembly Hotels Company, Pocono Summit, Pa.; Young Men's Christian Association, Mt. Vernon, N. The educational campaign of the Nicholas Power Company is being pursued with great vigor, and the above enumerated installations made in the past thirty days are eloquent proof of the immense field for motion pictures which educational and industrial institutions offer.

This department of the Nicholas Power Company is under the supervision of Elwood Ernest DeHart, who has had extensive experience with this work and is thoroughly familiar with requirements and special conditions of this new field for motion pictures.

PICCADILLY IN ROCHESTER, N. Y., IS A $250,000 HOUSE AND IS LOCATED IN THE BUSINESS CENTER OF THE CITY

RAPID progress is being made on the new Piccadilly Photoplay theater on Mortimer street in Rochester, N. Y., just off Clinton avenue north, and it is expected it will be ready for its opening early in Setpember. It is a $250,000 building, and is expected to surpass anything in the photoplay house line in Rochester. Its location is but a stone's throw from Main street, on one of the main cross streets of the city, the Fifth avenue of the city.

A model of the stage of the new theatre was displayed in the window of a large department store here. The model was five feet long by four feet high, and was made to scale an inch to a foot. It was not only an interesting little replica, but was an exceptionally skillful piece of workmanship. The model was constructed by Rex Stovel, an artist and theatrical expert who was called from Los Angeles to design it and fit the house plans drawn by Foote, Headley and Carpenter, who developed the complete design for the house, both in side and out.

The general interior will be English in style, with a touch of Gothic, but the stage is mainly suggestive of the Venetian. A delicately moulded white marble fountain occupies the center of the stage in the background. An airy figure of cupid, holding aloft in each hand a lamp, is conspicuous on the fountain. It is a double basin fountain, with two streams playing into each. Moss and semi-aqeous plants are found about the base. The fountain is set in an arched alcove, which has a straight upright frame in soft gray, covered with flowering vines.

A white lattice work on a dull gold background is seen in the rear of the fountain, forming the back of the alcove. An urn full of roses is found on the top of each column of the alcove frame. A long narrow box, full of tall, flowering plants is at the frame's base, and at each upper corner is a small triangular panel with dull gold background and a garland and ribbon in soft gray. It is this frame that holds the screen, which draws up from below when the entertainment begins. Back of the fountain and its frame appear tall cypress trees and blue sky. At either side of the frame at the rear is an arched entrance and exit with a festoon above.

Two tones of brown, running into gray, are found in the woodwork of the stage and the auditorium in general. The front part of the stage is raised only a foot from the level of the front of the auditorium floor. The orchestra will be seated on this part of the stage. Already arrangements have been made to turn the leadership of the orchestra over to Susan Tompkins, a local violinist who has won honors on the vaudeville stage and in concert work. The pipe organ keyboard will be located in the usual orchestra pit.

The part of the stage not set apart for the orchestra, including the rear and a narrow section along the wings on either side, is raised above the "down stage" part, with a short flight of steps on either side. Balustrades run along the edges of these sections of the stage. Each corner post has on its front and side panels of purple on dull gold backgrounds. A small cypress tree stands at the front of each side section. From the wings on either side is an entrance and exit. Above the balustrades along the wing sections of the stage are balconies supported by carved brackets, and for each balcony there is an entrance and exit, above which is a festoon.

A beveled proscenium arch is outside the proscenium opening, with a panel across the top and part way down the sides of English and Gothic composition ornament, with scenic tapestries hung below the side sections of this panel. These tapestries and the parts of the panel immediately above conceal the openings of the pipe organ. Along the edges of the outer proscenium arch is a narrow fluted ornament with high lights in gold and the interstices in blue. Across the top and down a short way on both sides, bordering the panel, run parallel narrow mouldings, and tipping the ends on the sides are Gothic comedy and tragic masks. The inner proscenium arch and the proscenium opening are in a darker brown, running into gray. In triangular panels above the proscenium opening are English shields with ribbons. Along the border of the opening is a narrow large leaf ornament done in dark brown and tipped with gold. At the top of the opening is a grand drapery, beneath which will be drawn from each side, on proper occasion, a curtain.

The curtains and the outer drapery are of dull red velour, and the latter has a gold fringe and a long panel formed by a gold braid. There is an inner grand drapery of a neutral shade. At the base of the curtains on either side is an English lamp on a pedestal.

Watler H. Seely is managing director in charge of the theatre.

ORCHESTRA HALL IS CHICAGO PICTURE PALACE

ORCHESTRA HALL, Michigan avenue, Chicago, is one of the finest motion picture theatres in that city. While not built for the purpose of exhibiting motion pictures, nevertheless it is an ideally situated theatre for that purpose.

It was founded by Theodore Thomas, leader of the famous Thomas orchestra, to give to the people of Chicago musical concerts that would help develop the artistic. During the summer months cinema concerts are given daily from 12 noon to 11 P. M. The show is continuous and the price of admission twenty-five cents for the afternoon, with a few box seats at fifty cents. At night the prices are twenty-five and fifty cents, with box seats at seventy-five cents.

The seating capacity is 2,600 and it is so arranged that every seat in the house presents a clear and unobstructed view of the stage. H. W. Hill is the manager.

The operating room, in charge of Brothers Philip K. Upp and William C. Dorsey, who by the way are real operators, was located in the box which is occupied during the winter season by Victor Larsen, owner of the Chicago Daily News, flanked on the right and left by the boxes of Marshall Field and John J. Glessner. The equipment consists of two Simplex projectors, taking direct current through a Power's 75 ampere rheostat. The operating room was well ventilated and the walls were painted of a dark color that did not allow any light being reflected that would be detrimental to the eyes of the operator or the projection. The program consists of an overture by an orchestra of twenty-six pieces, seated on the stage, which resembles a Venetian garden, with electric fountains at each side. A Kimball organ is part of the musical equipment. After the overture a Travelogue (which is prepared expressly for the Orchestra Hall cinema concerts and is not shown elsewhere) is shown, followed by a solo by Evelyn Wyne, who has a really excellent mezzo-soprano voice, as is testified by the manner in which the audience applauds her efforts at every performance.

Then a reel is shown that is interesting for the fact that it shows brief glimpses of historical places, which are always more or less interesting.

Now comes what was to my mind the piece de resistance; the conducting of an orchestra by Arthur Dunham, the musical director of the Orchestra Hall cinema concerts, from the screen. Efforts have been made heretofore to photographically record the general style of orchestra conductors, but this is the first time an orchestra has been actually conducted by motion pictures. When the announcement was flashed upon the screen, the musicians faced about and were ready to obey "their master's motions."

It was wonderful to note the perfection with which the music synchronized with the gestures of the leader, and to me it was more than wonderful, for there was no mechanical control whatever, the operator being the sole arbiter over the speed of the machine used for projecting the film, and the speed could not have been any better regulated by any mechanical device than it was by the master hand of Brother Dorsey. Great credit is to be given to Philip K. Upp, the operator-photographer who took these pictures; the photography was excellent.

After this feature came the big picture, which the day of my visit happened to be Mary Pickford in "Hulda of Holland," a Paramount, followed by one of the Bray cartoons; and then we made a visit to the basement of the hall, where was located the air filtering apparatus which keeps the air clean and wholesome at all times.

Summing it all up, the Orchestra Hall is undoubtedly a credit to Chicago picturedom, for it is clean, cleanly conducted, and the pictures are well projected.

To Brothers Dorsey and Upp I want to extend thanks for the many courtesies extended to me. My visit to the Reel Fellows Club and the manner in which I was received and entertained while there will live long in my memory.

JOHN J. CORCORAN IS DEAD IN TROY, NEW YORK

ONLY a short time ago, while on a visit to Troy, N. Y., I had the pleasure of meeting among others John J. Corcoran, president of local 285, I. A. T. S. E.; now comes word of his death.

Brother Corcoran, for forty-five years a resident of Troy, died suddenly while on duty as a motion picture operator at the King theatre on King street shortly after returning from his home after having his supper.

Mr. Corcoran was a member of Company C, Seventh United States Cavalry of Colorado at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, eighteen years ago, and his company was among the first to land in Cuba. He was in the San Juan Hill charge at the battle of El Caney and he received a wound in the chest which troubled him through his after life. At the close of the war he was honorably discharged and upon his return he became a member of the Marcus D. Russell Camp, No. 2, of the Spanish War Veterans. For the past year he was president of the local union of motion picture operators, local 285, I. A. T. S. E., a position which he held with great credit to himself and the members of the local. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Anna, Mary and Elizabeth Corcoran; one sister, Mrs. Mary Conway, and three brothers, James, of San Francisco, William T. and Daniel H., of Troy.

It would ill become me to try and eulogize this man, for the work he has accomplished during his term of office speaks for itself. My only hope is that the members of local No. 285 will try and carry on the good work as commenced by the late brother, and may he reap the reward of his labors by hearing the welcome words: "Well done, good and faithful servant," when he appears before the Great Executive Board presided over by the Master Workman.

PHILADELPHIA OPERATORS' UNION IS FLOURISHING

BROTHER LOUIS KROUSE, business agent (who says "business agenting" requires no brains) of local union 307, I. A. T. S. E., reports his local in a flourishing condition, all members employed and "everybody happy." And even though it is not polite to contradict, I must take exception to the remark of Brother Krouse.

A business agent does require brains, and quite some too, for if he did not possess "brains" he would not be holding down the job, and I might add, doing so with credit to himself and local 307.

WHITE SCREEN AT FIFTY-FIVE FEET THROW?

E. J. Seybt, Castine, Me.—We are using a 6-A Power's with Gundlach lens, two 7½ inch condensers, making a picture 14 by 17 feet from a fifty-five foot throw, using forty-five amperes.

The carbons are the V. I. O. (A new brand on me—Ed.), with a ⅝ cored on top and a ½ inch solid on bottom. The current is 110 volts D. C.

Our operator finds trouble in getting a pure white screen, although our projection is as good, if not better, than the average house.

Will you please tell me if our condensers are right or if we can get a perfectly white screen at this throw?

Answer—You forgot to mention the focal length of your projection lens, but it is probably a three-inch E. F. If your operator finds any difficulty in getting a perfectly white screen it is probably due to one of these causes: Either the optical system is not lined up or the proper focal length condensers are not being used.

Try a 6½ and a 7½, with the lamp about sixteen inches from the aperture plate of the machine, seeing to it that the carbons are set properly, that is, with the upper, or positive, slightly behind the lower, or negative. This seems to be the only solution of your trouble, for all other conditions are as they should be, but if after trying this plan out it does not give you the results which it should, why, "come again."

IS THERE DANGER WHEN COILS OF A RHEOSTAT BECOME HOT?

James McArthur, Mobile, Alabama.—Am writing you to ask if there is any danger when the coils of my rheostat become hot; that is, the coils show red in the dark, and I would like your opinion in the matter, as the manager claims there is danger of fire.

Answer: If your connections are all right, the redness of your coils is probably due to a slight overload, and is not a serious matter. The only way that it will affect you is to shorten the life of the rheostat. As far as the danger from fire is concerned, if the rheostat is located in the proper place there can be no such danger. Come again, brother, we want to help you in all matters on the projection end that we are able to.

PRECISION MACHINE EMPLOYEES HOLD ANNUAL OUTING ON LONG ISLAND

THE employees of the Precision Machine Company, manufacturers of Simplex projectors, with a membership of four hundred, held their annual outing at Belvidere Park, L. I., on Saturday, August 19. The outing was an all day affair and the various matches and sports arranged were hotly contested by the employees.

A baseball game between men from the eleventh and twelfth floors of the Precision factory ended in favor of the former at a score of 26 to 16. The sport of the day was the many attempts of the boys to ride a kicking mule. Ten dollars would have gone to the man able to stride the animal for any length of time, but nobody won the prize.

HORNSTEIN, OLD TIME OPERATOR, GOES TO HIS FINAL REST

IT is with regret that we learn of the death of Harry Hornstein, brother of the genial sales manager of the P. T. E. Company. Mr. Hornstein was one of the old-time operators, and for some time had been running a theatre in Yonkers, N. Y., of which he was the owner. He had been at the Kingston Hospital, where he died, for only a few days suffering from pleural pneumonia, and passed away on Tuesday, August 8, the age of 27 years. Funeral was held at his late home in Brooklyn on Wednesday, August 9.

To the family we extend our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement, and express our own feelings best when we say: "May he rest in peace."

THE CONGRESS THEATRE, ST. LOUIS, SEATS 1,100 AND IS AN IDEAL PHOTOPLAY HOUSE

THE Congress, Olive and Sarah streets, St. Louis. is in many respects an ideal home of the motion picture. It has a seating capacity of about 1,100 on one floor. The projection is done by a most efficient operator behind two latest model Powers 6-A machines. Every minute detail has received its proper attention. The entrance of this theatre and the front of the lobby is one of the most brilliantly lighted theatre fronts west of New York. The ticket is taken from the patron by a courteous attendant, and then you are led to your seats by an attendant who rivals Rothapfel's adherents with his courtesy and pleasant manner.

The Congress, St. Louis

The patron seats himself on a comfortable seat. The curtain rises and the title of the film is flashed on a blue drapery with a gold monogram. The drapery is slowly lifted and the pictures begin on a Minusa Screen. At the intermission of each performance the drapery slowly covers the screen. The stage is slowly illuminated from a beautiful blue into a purple. Then the illumination of the theatre is gradually becoming darkened. The intermission is ended. Then the performance is again presented on the screen. The manager of this theatre is Hector M. Pazmezoglu, who is also the Greek counsel in St. Louis. Mr. Pasmezoglu has made staunch friends of his patrons. His acquaintances have named him the Rothapfel of St. Louis.

WEBBER SPENDS $75,000 ON SUBURBAN THEATRE IN DENVER

CURTIS street, Denver's great white way, must look to its laurels, for the suburban theatres of Denver, with spacious interiors and splendid appointments, are coming into their own. The few thousand dollars necessary to equip a neighborhood theatre a few years ago is insignificant when compared with the expenditure necessary for the modern suburban theatre.

Therefore the news that Dewitt C. Webber, former owner of the Iris theatre of Denver, is spending $75,000 on his new suburban playhouse in Denver and that the Moore and Greaves Amusement Company is building a large new house—within a radius of three blocks of the new Webber theatre—indicates that Denver is swinging into line with other cities which have boasted of more pretentious structures on the outskirts. The first named house will be known as the Webber Show, the second, the Queen.

NEW REGENT, DETROIT, IS SCHEDULED FOR OPENING ON LABOR DAY

THE New Regent theatre, which will be Detroit's largest photoplay house when it opens on Labor Day, will be under the management of Charles W. Porter, a successful showman, who for the past few months has been managing the Duplex theatre.

The New Regent is on Woodward avenue and Horton, contains over 2,500 seats, and is a magnificent playhouse in every particular. When it opens in September the public and the moving picture industry is promised many surprises. It will be exclusively for motion pictures.

SQUIRES OPENS THE FRANKLIN AND THE FULTON, EQUIPPED WITH TYPHOON FANS

HARRY SQUIRES, of Union Hill, N. J., has just opened two theatres on Bergenline avenue—the Franklin and the Fulton, the latter having just been renovated. The Franklin theatre has just been completed and equipped throughout with modern improvements. One of the features of this new house, also the Fulton, is the ventilating system, which was designed by J. F. Daily, of the Typhoon Fan Company, 1,544 Broadway, New York City.

A Typhoon multiblade twin set, worked in conjunction with a cool air chamber and driven by a five horse power motor, furnishes a perfect ventilation system for these houses, which have a seating capacity of eight hundred seats in each theatre. The chairs were installed by the American Seating Company. Projection is furnished in the Franklin by two late model Simplex machines and in the Fulton by two Power's 6-B Cameragraphs. All these machines are equipped with Speedco Arc Controllers. The lobby display frames are of a unique design and were manufactured by Menger and Ring. Both these houses are showing first run pictures of Triangle, Metro, World and V-L-S-E on Minusa Gold Fibre screens.

ROTHACKER ENTERTAINS 40 SALES MANAGERS IN SESSION OF NATIONAL DEALERS SERVICE CONFERENCE

THROUGH the courtesy of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, forty sales managers who have been attending the sessions of the National Dealers' Service Conference at the Hotel Sherman were given an opportunity of seeing movies in the making.

Before the trip to the plant was made, E. H. Phillipi, sales manager of the Rothacker concern, spoke to the executives on the subject of "Putting Your Story Over." Mr. Phillipi told of the short, dealer-advertising films now being generally adopted by some of the largest manufacturers in the country. Since the sales managers have been attending the conference to discuss ways and means for manufacturers to render the dealer greater service in promoting sales, Mr. Phillipi's talk was vastly entertaining to them.

The party then motored to the new Rothacker plant. Upon their arrival, they were filmed by a Rothacker cameraman. The film was later shown to the "actors."

The managers were then shown every phase of picture making, from the operation of the camera to the projection of the film on the screen. The managers voted their trip through the world's largest commercial film manufacturing plant the most instructive experience of the conference.

UNION ANNOUNCEMENTS

WALTER A. BEMIS, president, and Ira G. Sherman, past president of Local 384, Moving Picture Operators of Hudson County, N. J., were at the convention of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, held at Orange, N. J., August 20, 21, 22, as delegates from their local union.

LOCAL 244, I. A. T. S. E., NEWARK, N. J.

Reginald Cooper, president.
Edward Burns, vice-president.
M. A. Carney, recording secretary.
William Uessler, treasurer.
John R. Walsh, business agent.
Michael D'Anton, assistant business agent.
Joseph Valentino, sergeant at arms.

The local meets at 224 Washington street, Newark, N. J., the first Wednesday of every month at 12 o'clock, midnight. The report of this local is "progress." All of their men are working and the union controls all the best houses in the city.

It is rumored that the theatres of Newark are to open on Sundays, beginning Sunday, September 4. This will mean an increase in the salaries of the operators and will act for the good of the industry, for sooner or later Sunday concerts will be given in every city of any importance. It is the will of the people, and the law-makers will have to abide by it.

The Camera

A Department Devoted to Motion Picture Photography in All Its Phases, Studio and Laboratory Work
Inquiries relative to motion photography promptly answered

HYDROKINONE DEVELOPER

N. F. C., New Orleans, La.—We would like to have information as to what developer is best to use for negative and positive. We want Hydrokinone developer only, that we can put through at least fifty to seventy-five thousand feet in a fifty gallon tank.

Answer—This inquiry shows an almost total lack of knowledge of film development as practised in motion picture laboratories, but we will endeavor, to the best of our ability, to straighten the correspondent out and provide working data.

With regard to a bath which can be used to process both negative and positive cine film we will state that we are unalterably opposed to the practice of using the same developer for both negatives and positives.

The emulsion of the negative stock is considerably different in character than is the emulsion of positive stock and the qualities desired in a negative differ from those which should be present in a film positive of good quality. A high class negative is generally characterized by the softness of its developed images, whereas, a good positive should be possessed of vigorous, snappy images.

Taking the customary Metol-Hydrokinone developer as an instance—the bath, when mixed for negative developing, should contain more Metol in proportion to the amount of Hydrokinone than is used when mixing a bath for developing positives. The amount of carbonate used in preparing a negative developing solution is likewise more than that used in preparing a positive developer; the capacity of the tank (it is understood) being the same in each instance. In the best laboratories potassium carbonate is used in the negative bath instead of the sodium carbonate incorporated into a developer for positive films.

The correspondent, however, expresses a desire for a straight Hydrokinone formula. Here, again, we desire to point out that we are opposed to the use of a plain Hydrokinone developer in processing motion picture film. The failings of the Hydro bath are well known to those who have ever used it for this class of work.

Hydrokinone is a hard working (contrasty) developer, giving excessive density in the highlights. It can therefore be appreciated that, when it is used for negative developing, soft images of pleasing gradation will not be secured, at least not of equal quality to those obtaining with the use of some softer working reagent. Moreover, a Hydrokinone bath is extremely sensitive to changes in its temperature (as has been pointed out in the Camera Department) and if the temperature of a Hydrokinone developer rises slightly above the normal, excessive density in the images will be the result.

In compliance with the correspondent's request we furnish, however, a formula for a straight Hydrokinone bath. As it is extremely improbable that any other than Eastman film stock is being used at present, we give the formula supplied by the Kodak Company, which is as follows:

Water	10 gallons
Hydrokinone	13 ounces
Sodium Sulphite	4 pounds
Sodium Carbonate	4 pounds
Potassium Bromide	3 ounces

Temperature, 65 to 68 degrees Fahr.

For negatives developed on drum add an extra 1½ ounces of potassium bromide and develop at a temperature of 62 degrees.

With regard to the processing of from 50 to 75 thousand feet of film through 50 gallons of developer, we would like to see a solution of such qualities that 50 gallons would develop that amount of film or even half that amount. A reagent that would accomplish such a feat would be a wonder, and its discoverer would become wealthy over night.

INSTRUCTION IN CINEMATOGRAPHY

O. G., Englevale N. D.—I want to take some six or seven thousand feet of pictures of American ways of doing farming, railroading and the like, to show in certain foreign countries, and would not take an expensive course at a photographic school if I, from instruction books and a little practice could acquire the necessary ability to take such pictures successfully.

Answer—While we are personally inclined to favor a photographic school (such as that conducted by Professor Wall at Syracuse) where the fundamentals, as well as the practice, of photography are taught, we believe that with conscientious study and plenty of practice the correspondent would be able to film the subjects he has in mind in a satisfactory manner.

It will be noticed, upon referring to the Camera Department of the NEWS of September 2 that the matter of suitable text books, for those ambitious to use a motion camera, is there dealt with at some length.

Our frank and honest opinion of several of the works at present available is there set forth. For those, who, like the correspondent, have had no previous instruction, we believe, however, that no book at present available would prove so helpful as would a complete set of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS since the inception of the Camera Department, which commenced in the issue dated March 25.

The early articles which appeared in the department were specially prepared for the purpose of guiding the uninitiated in the preliminary steps of cinematography. Although the Camera Department is still young, its purpose is to provide accurate data and definite instruction in all that pertains to the scientific and photographic end of motion picture production.

The correspondent and all other readers of the Camera Department may rest assured that no information pertaining to cinematography, no matter how exclusive, will ever be held back; and, in the absence of more comprehensive treatises on camera work than those now available, we trust that a continued study of the material appearing here will prove of positive assistance.

The mere study of books and technical articles will not, however, serve to make an efficient cameraman out of a novice. The correspondent is therefore advised to purchase a camera and after he has familiarized himself with its workings and capabilities, some negative film stock should be secured and trial exposures should be made.

It may happen that several thousand feet of film will have been exposed (and developed) before satisfactory results are secured, but this is the only practical way of learning correct exposure, uniform cranking, and other elementary details of cinematographic procedure.

We assume that the correspondent proposes to have his developing and printing done by some laboratory, and we advise that this be done; as developing the negative and preparing the positive, in addition to taking the picture, would be found a somewhat involved task for an absolute beginner.

ROBERT C. SMITH, CRACK CAMERAMAN, BACK WITH POPULAR PLAYS AND PLAYERS

ROBERT C. SMITH, a well known cameraman, has returned from Cleveland, Ohio, where he has been working on a feature produced by the Midland Film Manufacturing Company. Mr. Smith has taken back his old post in the Popular Plays and Players studio, where he is doing the camera work on the five part feature, "The Iron Woman," in which Nance O'Neil is starred for the Metro program.

Mr. Smith photographed "The Scarlet Woman," in which Mme. Petrova was starred on the Metro program, introducing many novel effects in photography which he originated.

"MONOMET" A SUPERIOR DEVELOPER INTRODUCED BY THE ANSCO COMPANY

SHORTLY after the outbreak of the present European war the British Government subsidized certain concerns to engage in the production of aniline dyes and other derivatives of coal-tar and benzine. The amount of money advanced by the government was large, but the proposition is now commencing to bear fruit.

A concrete instance is the appearance upon the American market of a new developing reagent called "Monomet." The developer Monomet occurs in the form of a grayish powder, which is possessed, however, of a definite crystalline structure. It is readily soluble in water, forming a pinkish colored solution which disappears when sodium sulphite is added. Upon addition of the carbonate the color of the solution becomes light green.

As yet the chemical constituency and symbol of the substance has not been made known, but the fact has been established that this new developer is not identical with Metol, as its behavior in an acid solution when treated with a nitrite differs from that of Metol under like conditions.

We have witnessed a bona-fide demonstration of Monomet in use, and, like others familiar with the action of the various well known developers for years, were vastly surprised at its performance and the desirable qualities which it exhibits.

A developing solution was mixed from a standard and well known Metol-Hydro formula. Monomet was substituted for Metol (part for part) in preparing the bath, and no extra ingredients, uncalled for by the formula, were added to facilitate the action of the Monomet.

Films were then developed, whereupon the following facts were unquestionably established. The image appears quickly (as with Metol) and with correct exposures development is complete in five or six minutes. The gradations are splendid, and when developing positive rich black tones, equal if not superior to those obtained with a Metol bath, are secured. A slightly more vigorous image is secured with Monomet than with Metol; time of development being equal in both instances.

On an under exposed negative, taking longer to develop, there is less fog evident than when Metol is used. This proves the new reagent to be clean working.

Lastly—and most important at this day of high priced developing chemicals—a bath made up with Monomet will do about twice as much work before becoming exhausted, and without even discoloring, as will any other developer which we have thus far seen.

This sounds like pretty high praise for the article in question, but the above is a report of what we have actually witnessed, and is presented in all impartiality to the readers of the Camera Department as being facts.

Monomet is a British product manufactured by the White Band Manufacturing Company, Ltd., of South Croyden, England; the basic materials coming from a large English dye works in the Midlands.

The Ansco Company of Binghamton, New York, and 129-31 West Twenty-second street, New York City, is the sole agent for this new developer in the United States and Canada, and it is stated that large shipments are on the water. It appears that a somewhat limited quantity only is available just at present.

The price is in the vicinity of thirty dollars a pound, which, in view of its lasting powers, is not at all excessive.

Ansco is to be congratulated on having secured the agency of this most efficient developer, which will, no doubt, be speedily recognized by the motion picture fraternity.

LOVETT ARTICLE IN THE "NEWS" BRINGS LETTER FROM YOUNG MUSICAL DIRECTOR

WE are in receipt of a letter through the courtesy of H. Lovett, who wrote the article appearing in Motion Picture News under date of August 19. I reproduce this letter here with a view of encouraging all our readers to become better acquainted with this department and write us of their trobules more otfen.

This department can only fulfill its purpose atfer it has aroused healthy discussion of the different points at issue. We can safely assure all our readers that nothing of an offensive or personal nature will find space in these columns. Consequently no one need have any fear in asking any questions or writing us their most trivial troubles. Our readers must know that this department is not conducted with a view of criticising other's endeavors but as a central medium through which we desire to arrive at actual facts, which can ultimately be used for the betterment of picture music in general.

We receive a great deal of correspondence which might be considered of a personal nature and which we cannot use. All such correspondence is answered through the mail. All matter intended to appear in this department must be helpful, educational or for the protection of the musicians who are putting forth earnest endeavors to better picture theatre music. The time for competitive jealousy in picture music is past. What we need at the present time is competitive effort.

With the coming of the new season we certainly hope that our readers will take a still greater interest in this department and send us their views and anything they consider helpful to their fellow coworkers and picture music.

I know that the following letter is much appreciated by Mr. Lovett and that he feels repaid for his effort by such an acknowledgment. I would ask Mr. Booth that he contribute his little bit to this department occasionally and assure him that it will be greatly appreciated. The letter follows:

"H. Lovett, Richmond, Va.:

"Dear Sir—In looking through the August 19 number of Motion Picture News, I had the pleasure of reading a most interesting article written by you. And I must say that I agree with you absolutely. And I also have been the poor unfortunate one to be at the mercy of those co-called plots. More than once, too.

"I am only a young director, but have had quite a bit of experience in playing motion pictures, and it would also be untruthful of me to say that I ever had any success with these so-called picture plots.

"I must say that I am one who certainly appreciated your article and feel that I have been benefited by reading it, and hope that I may have the pleasure and opportunity of reading another in the near future.

Frank M. Booth."

AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER COMPANY, SAN FRANCISCO, MOVES FROM KEARNEY STREET TO GOLDEN GATE AVENUE AND JONES STREET

THE American Photoplayer Company, for several years located on Kearny street, near Post, San Francisco, has moved its offices and display rooms to Golden Gate avenue and Jones street, where it has taken over the entire second floor of the Film Exchange Building. Here splendid quarters have been fitted up and efforts have been made to make the place so attractive that it will be used by exhibitors and exchangemen alike as headquarters. For the special benefit of film interests a model theatre has been installed and exchangemen will be enabled to bring exhibitors here and show their productions in especially attractive environments and with proper musical settings.

Desk room has also been set aside for the benefit of exhibitors. and here will be chairs and tables, together with reading matter, for those who wish to come and make themselves at home. The main room has been fitted up for the exhibition and demonstration of the largest instruments made by this concern at its Berkeley factory, while several smaller rooms are given over to the lower priced lines. In all, almost 17,000 feet of floor space is occupied, giving the firm unusual opportunities for display.

NEW DEPARTURE IN RECONSTRUCTION OF BAY CITY, MICH., HOUSE

A DEPARTURE from the usual method of theatre construction will be found in the remodeled Alladin theatre, Bay City, Mich., when it is completed. The house was closed on Saturday, June 22, and will stay closed until about September 1. Meanwhile the house will be completely remodeled, costing about $5,000.

The size of the theatre will be doubled, and the seating capacity increased to 1,000. Two separate balconies will be installed, and these will contain boxes for those who desire privacy. Wicker chairs will be used in the boxes. The improvements will also include new draperies, new screen, new carpet, new system of ventilation.

The most important feature will be the arrangement of the main floor. This floor is to be dropped to the sidewalk level, and then constructed in the form of an arc, with a pitch of three-quarters inch to the foot. The center of the house, for instance, will be thirty-four inches lower than at the rear.

Manager Simpson says this amphitheatre style of seating will make it easier to heat, and there will be better ventilation. It will also be better for everybody in viewing the picture.

HOMMEL, SUPPLY MAN, SENDS BIRTHDAY CAKE IN CELEBRATION OF HIS TEN YEAR MARK IN BUSINESS

THE following came in the mail, addressed to the editor of this department: "We are giving a party to-day to celebrate our tenth birthday and you are invited. Perhaps you are very busy and cannot come. But I want you to celebrate with us, and so I am sending you herewith a piece of our birthday cake, hoping you will enjoy it. We have been in business just ten years to-day. Won't you drop us a line of congratulation? There is nothing that makes our hearts as glad as hearing from our friends."

With this came a piece of the birthday cake. There is an old saying, "You can't eat your cake and have it too," therefore we did not eat ours. We appreciate the courtesy shown by Ludwig Hommel, the enterprising supply dealer of Pittsburgh, Pa., and wish him many happy returns of the day.

I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Hommel while in the city of Pittsburgh, and I must compliment him upon the up-to-date manner in which his supply department is laid out. Everything necessary for the motion picture theatre can be seen on the floor of "Hommel's."

Notes:—In music plots each reel of film is divided into 10 units of time, each unit denoted by one X representing about 1½ minutes. Consequently when a number is designated by XX it plays about 3 minutes, XXXX about 6 minutes, etc. When no X appears after musical description it means that the number is very short and does not play a minute or more. When cues to stop numbers are in quotation "——" it means that the Cue is reading matter or sub-title. All other cues are action on screen. All segues should be made quietly and clean. When quick segues or abrupt stops are necessary it will be mentioned in Cues or Notes When the time of each 1,000 ft. of film is less than 15 minutes there will appear less than 10 X's in each reel. To get the correct time of projection for each reel, multiply the number of X's appearing in each reel by 1½.

Effect Notes:—During Nos. 1 and 4 the piano should be played with marked acent when Elyane plays on the screen. It is not necessary to interrupt the number to get this effect. Play pianonissimo before and after the above.

Music Notes:—This picture illustrates the romance of a simple unromantic character. Simplicity is the strength of the picture. Simplicity should be the strength of your music. You should at no time allow your music to be overly melodramatic. Your pathos must be obtained hy sweet and melodious numbers. Your light numbers should be especially light so as to permit the obtaining of pathos with numbers which have no dramatic effect. The different numbers play quite some time. Consequently the plot allows for an excellent rendition of the numbers selected and played. No. 1 should be a light 4/4 intermezzo. Plays long. No. 2 should be a concert waltz with a melodious and romantic introduction. No. 3 should be a medium slow number with a slight romantic appeal. No. 4 should be a light gavotte movement. This number must not be similar to No. 3. Should be decidedly different. No. 5 is a melodramatic suggestion.

No. 6 must be a slow melodious number with a pathetic appeal. No. 7 a melodious slow waltz. No. 8 is similar to 6. No. 9 is similar to 6. Can be slightly less serious. No. 10 should be a light 2/4 number. No. 11 is similar to 2. No. 12 is similar to 6. No. 13 is similar to 10. No. 14 is similar to 9. No. 15 should be a slow number of romantic appeal with a slight dramatic suggestion. No. 16 is similar to 17. No. 17 is similar to 9. No. 18 should be a light melodious gallop. Played fast. No. 19 is similar to 6. The organ can be very appropriately played to this entire feature.

Operator Cue for Disolving Reels

End of Reel 1—Shine Girl seated on roof with plant after feeding cat. End of Reel 2—After boy shakes hands with judge and walks off screen. End of Reel 3—Scene after "It's all sunshine here, etc." End of Reel 4—Shine Girl leaves room after judge writes letter. End of Reel 5—Judge and Shine Girl enlarged front screen.

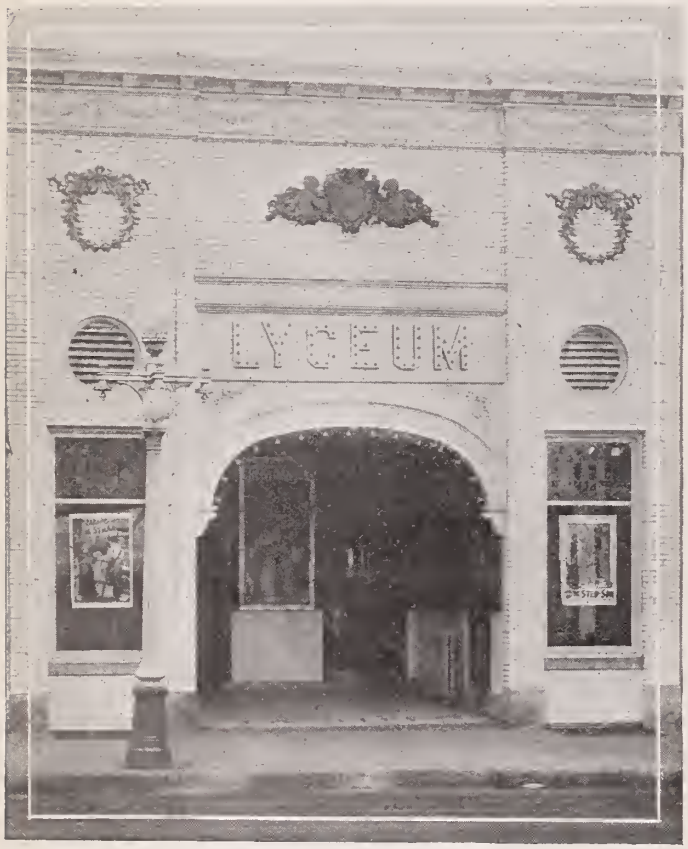
NEW LYCEUM, MOORHEAD, MINN., IS MANAGED BY LIVE-WIRE METHODS

HARRY A. LEEK, is manager and owner of the New Lyceum theatre, Moorhead, Minn., which is one of the finest picture houses in the state. Moorhead is a town of 6,000 and the New Lyceum theatre has a seating capacity of over four hundred. Mr. Leek, who is an enthusiastic exhibitor, showed how active a member of the M. P. E. A. of M. he is by trying his level best last year to secure the state convention for his town, but no definite action was taken on this, inasmuch as it is not very centrally located.



Lyceum Theatre, Moorhead, Minn.

Moorhead is on the border line of Minnesota and North Dakota, Fargo being right across the river from there. Nevertheless theatres in Fargo don't affect Mr. Leek a bit. He plays to capacity houses every night, and inasmuch as Moorhead is wide open on Sunday, whereas Fargo is closed tighter than a door-nail, the New Lyceum isn't any where near large enough to handle the crowd, which flocks over from North Dakota to the little adjoining Minnesota city.

Piano and drum constitute the musical program. The Universal program is being used exclusively; in fact Mr. Leek uses the output, changing daily, and running four reels to a change. The films are at no time older than thirty days, and mostly always a good deal less, so it can plainly be seen that Mr. Leek believes in giving his people the very best that money can secure.

A Power's 6-A is being used for projection, with a Motiograph handy for emergency purposes. The ventilation of the New Lyceum is perfect: Four exhaust and six wall fans keep the air fresh and wholesome at all times, and it is a pleasre to sit in the Lyceum theatre and watch perfect projection on a Radium Fibre screen.

The lobby of the New Lyceum is one of the finest in the Northwest. While rather small it is the sign of neatness, being furnished in tile and marble.

A large electric sign adorns the front of the building and the name of the New Lyceum can be seen way over from Fargo. Mr. Leek is an ardent reader of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and considers it the best trade paper on the market today.

FRED. S. MEYER.

GIRL USHERS MAKE THE MAJESTIC, MO. VALLEY, IOWA, ATTRACTIVE

THE Majestic theatre, owned by K. Moreland, has brought to Mo. Valley, Iowa, the motion picture in its best form and enables patrons to enjoy amusement under conditions of convenience and comfort. The dimensions of the house are 33 by 110 feet. It has a seating capacity of 367 on the main floor. Two Power's 6-A machines are in use, and the throw is 92 feet to a Minusa screen. Part of the equipment is a Wurlitzer, style K brass frames, made by Newman, for one, two and three sheets, make the lobby attractive. The lobby is 10 by 30 feet.

Lobby of the Majestic, Missouri Valley, Iowa

The Majestic shows Mutual service with Fox and other features at an admission price of five and ten cents during the day and five, ten, fifteen and twenty cents at night, with a twenty-five cent admission for special pictures. Five people constitute the staff of the theatre.

Mr. Moreland is a believer in live publicity methods and makes constant use of the newspapers and billboards in his locality. Girl ushers show the patrons to their seats.

KORNICKER, MENGER AND RING, FINDS BUSINESS EXCELLENT

ALBERT KORNICKER, special representative for Menger and Ring, 304 West Forty-second street, New York City, manufacturers of lobby display frames, has just returned from a successful business trip through the South. Mr. Kornicker states that he found the exhibitors were all enjoying good business and that they are preparing for a good fall season by renovating and installing new equipment.

Among the many theatres equiped with lobby frames by Mr. Kornicker are the Alcazar, Strand and Rialto, all in Birmingham, Ala.; also the new Rialto, which is under way of construction in West Palm Beach, Fla. This theatre is said to be the finest in the State and will be equipped with all modern improvements, including display frames of special design.

REGENT, PHILADELPHIA, IS REMODELED AT COST OF $20,000

WHEN the Regent theatre, at Market and Seventeenth streets, Philadelphia, reopens its doors on Setpember 4 its best friends will not recognize it, so much improved will the little picture house be. Remodeled at a cost of about $20,000 means that every up-to-date contrivance making for beauty and comfort will be used in the renovation.

The Regent was the first photoplay house in the Quaker City to make use of a large organ. It installed the first Kimball in Philadelphia several years before any other theatre took up organ music. Al Boyd owned the house at that time, but sold it on the completion of the Arcadia.

The Regent has secured as its manager Lionel H. Keene, of Baltimore, Md., well known in theatrical circles through his connection with Sothern and Marlowe, S. Z. Poli and others. Since last season Mr. Keene has been connected with the Stanley Company, having managed their Alhambra theatre for some months.

Although only twenty-five years old Mr. Keene is a live wire manager and has many novel ideas in view, which will be sprung upon Regent patrons in due time. Engraved invitations are being sent out for the opening of the Regent.

World and Metro first runs will be used at the theatre. The first week's features will comprise Robert Warwick in "Friday the Nineteenth," a World release, and Metro's "Upheaval," with Lionel Barrymore.

STANLEY REALTY COMPANY TAKES TITLE TO GROUP OF PROPERTIES FOR $1,000,000 PICTURE HOUSE

THE Stanley Realty Company, owners of the Stanley theatre, have acquired title to a large group of properties on Market and Nineteenth streets, two squares from the present Stanley theatre. Seven small stores now occupy this site, which will front in three streets, Market, Nineteenth and Ludlow, running from 1900-1914 Market street, the same on Ludlow street, and 2-22 South Nineteenth street, with a frontage of 152 and a depth of 176 feet.

The property was acquired from Frank A. Burnett through David C. Folwell for a nominal sum and a mortgage of $117,000. On this site it is proposed to erect the largest motion picture theatre in the city, with a seating capacity of 4,000. The latest improvements of construction are expected to be exemplified in the contemplated building, plans of which are being prepared by the Hoffman Company, who also designed the Globe and Stanley theatres. It is reported that the structure with the ground will represent an investment of about a $1,000,000.

It is expected that the present Stanley theatre will have to be demolished to make way for the new post office which the federal government is considering on this block, Market, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

CALIFORNIA

AFTER an existence of about four years, the Pastime theatre, one of the last of the five cent houses in the downtown district of San Francisco, has been closed. Already workmen are busily engaged in tearing down the old structure and as soon as this work is completed the new California theatre, with a seating capacity of three thousand will rise in its place. The Pastime theatre was conducted under the management of Nate Herzog in conjunction with the Silver Palace theatre in the same block, also a five cent house.

Perronet and Tremewan, who closed the Pavilion theatre at Grass Valley a short time ago, have disposed of the chairs and projection equipment to A. L. Stoutenburg, who has made needed changes and completed plans for reopening the place.

Construction work has been commenced at Stockton on a fine moving picture theatre, to be occupied when completed by the Turner and Dahnken circuit. A bonus is offered the contractor for completing the structure within six months and there is a penalty for his failure to have the work done by that time.

The California Commissioner of Corporations has revoked the permit recently granted to Solari's Circuit of Theatres, a proposed development of motion picture houses with the Strand and Empire theatres of Stockton and the Empire theatre of Napa as a nucleus. The Napa house has been sold to A. Fischer and the plans for a chain of theatres has been modified by the chief owner, David Solari.

The Hub theatre at Mill Valley has been sold by A. C. Papst, who has conducted it since the opening date last spring, to Mary E. Nichols and in the future it will be conducted under the management of George H. Cook. New service has been contracted for, Paramount pictures to be the leading attractions.

SCREENS "BUILT BY BRAINS"

Broadway theatres at Chico, have taken a long term lease on the fine theatre being erected at Redding, a few miles away. This new house will be one of the best in northern California and will have a seating capacity of almost one thousand. Mr. Wood has conducted the Broadway theatre for many years and some time ago formed a partnership with Mr. Anderson, formerly interested in the lumbering and banking business. They later took over the Majestic theatre and have made a great success with both houses.

CANADA

With advertising for Toronto's new half a milion dollar theatre, the Regent, on the boards, we are notified of another new house which will be erected in that city upon a magnificent scale. The new house it is said will cost anywhere from a hundred thousand to two hundred thousand and will be called the Rialto. F. W. Lamb, architect of the Rialto theatre in New York City, is also designing this house. The seating capacity will be one thousand and the house will have a balcony. Messrs. Applegarth, prominent exhibitors in Toronto, are credited with being the prime movers in the enterprise.

Word has been received in Toronto that Leon Slessinger, formerly a most successful manager of the Strand theatre in that city, is in charge of the Logan Square theatre, on Milwaukee avenue, Chicago. Mr. Slessinger states that his new theatre, which is owned by the Thompson Lunch Company, seats about 1,500 people and plays both vaudeville and pictures.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mrs. M. E. Stone recently assumed the management of the Elite theatre, Washington, a resident house of three hundred capacity, commodious to patrons, attractive in decorations and brilliant in its electric front. Mrs. Stone has made this a ten cent house with features. The outlook is that the new management will give to the neighborhood attractions equal to those of the downtonw houses.

INDIANA

The Jennings theatre, North Vernon, will be ready for a formal opening about the 25th of September. It is to be operated by the North Vernon Amusement Company, while E. A. Platter has been chosen to manage the house. The place has a capacity of 560 and is fitted out with all improvements in the way of safety and convenience.

IOWA

Fife and Yerkes have purchased the Star theatre at Fama. L. L. Wittbecker has opened a new theatre at Lansing.

Lawrence Edwards has taken over the Callender theatre at Callender.

Gerbracht Brothers will build a new theatre at Ames in the near future.

Jean Ingalls has purchased the Idle Hour theatre at New Hampton from Porter and Kenzen.

B. J. Friedell has purchased the picture house at Earlham from C. E. Hulbert.

MICHIGAN

Wesley Schram, owner of the Monroe, Bijou and Bernhardt theatres, Detroit, announces the appointment of Charles Davies as manager of the first two theatres, which are located within a block of each other on Monroe avenue. Mr. Davies is extremely popular in Michigan, having for a number of years been in the exchange business. He was manager of the exchange which ultimately became the Metro Film Corporation of Michigan and he disposed of his stock in the company at a handsome profit. For a while he was engaged in the real estate business.

The Majestic Gardens, at Grand Rapids, re-opened August 27 after being renovated throughout. The new manager will be David Kline, late manager of the Orpheum theatre in that city. Both theatres belong to the Gilligham and Smith enterprises.

MINNESOTA

The Cook Amusement Company is constructing a $100,000 vaudeville and motion picture theatre at Eleventh street and Tower avenue, Duluth. Plans for the house, which is strictly up to date in style, were drawn by C. W. and George Rapp, architects of Chicago. Frank N. Phelps, associated with the Cook enterprises in the past, will be manager of the new theatre on its completion.

MISSOURI

The McKinley theatre, 2214 South Jefferson avenue, St. Louis, has passed again into the hands of McCutcheon and Wittmann, well known St. Louis exhibitors, who formerly operated the house. The McKinley has been undergoing repairs and was closed for a few weeks, but re-opened under the new management on August 21. The McKinley is perhaps the only theatre in the St. Louis section of the country wtih its airdome on the roof of the theatre. A very good bill of pictures for five cents admission prevails at the house.

The California Garden, Sidney street and California avenue, St. Louis, is now under the management of Sam Koplar, who has discontinued the former policy of showing vaudeville and pictures and has instituted an all feature bill. The California is a very pretty airdome in South St. Louis.

Fred Freise is the proprietor and manager of the new Pestalozzi theatre and airdome at 2841 Pestalozzi street, St. Louis, which opened recently with an all picture bill. The Pestalozzi seats a thousand patrons and the admission fee is five cents.

NEBRASKA

John Shear has purchased the Silverlight theatre at Walthill. T. R. Gilmore has sold the Star theatre at Harvard to P. G. Heald.

J. L. Saul will shortly erect a new picture house at Crete. Paul and Gasemer have opened a new picture house at Murray.

NEW YORK

The Regent Elmira's leading motion picture theatre was taken over on a lease September 1 by Tooker, Adler and Friedburg. This deal has been under way for some time with the T. M. Harton Amusement Company, owners of the theatre.

It is expetced that Mr. Tooker will be in Elmira in the near future and will give his personal supervision to the management. Mr. Adler is the present manager of the Strand theatre in Cleveland, O., and Mr. Friedburg is also a motion picture expert. The Regent theatre has enjoyed an excellent patronage under the management ot O. B. Woodfill and even during the extreme hot weather this summer, the house has been crowded every day. Great credit is also due Professor George B. Carter, whose organ recitals have drawn large crowds.

OHIO

The Temple theatre, East Fifty-fifth street and Central avenue, Cleveland, has been reopened after being closed some time undergoing repairs. New furniture, carpets and other improvements have been put in. George Rider has taken over the management and will operate it in connection with his activities as manager of the Cedar.

David Adler, manager of the Strand theatre, Cleveland, with T. H. Tooker and Nathan Friedman, of Pittsburgh, has leased the Regent theatre, Elmira, N. Y., and will take charge September 1. The house has a seating capacity of eight hundred and fifty.

Three motion picture theatres in the vicinity of Woodland avenue S. E. and East Fifty-fifth street, Cleveland, have been acquired and will be operated by the newly organized Feer Theatre Company, according to announcement from M. B. Horowitz, who, with Louis Israel, heads the company. The theatres are the Halnorth, Globe and Fountain.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Arsenal theatre, in Butler street, Pittsburgh, one of the Clark and Rowland theatres, is being remodeled and repaired. A new marble front is being installed, new side lights are also being put in and a new floor covering. The theatre will be repainted and decorated both inside and out. All of the work is being done without interfering with shows. W. J. Bernardi is the manager of the theatre, and it is under his direction that the work is being done. There will be a numebr of other improvements made.

VIRGINIA

Plans have been filed with the Building Department in Richmond and application for a permit made to remodel the brick store at 114 East Broad street, converting it into a motion picture theatre. The estimated cost is $4,000.

Hopewell has again called upon the Washington exchanges for another theatre, the house this time being the Marcele, under the management of Mr. Xippis of the Tri-City Amusement Company. The Marcele is the first brick amusement structure of its kind in Hopewell, built at a cost of $25,000, with a capacity of 450, highly ornamental and with every comfort for its patrons. Mr. Xippis means to bring to the mushrom-growth town the best the motion picture industry can produce, and already the people have shown excellent support of his desires. The admission price is ten cents.

HERE IT IS!

This illustrates our wonderful new electric program bulletin for lobby, stage, or outside of theatre. Light and durable. Lettering changed in a jiffy. Current cost few cents a day. A real business producer day and night. This five line sign, with 450 letters and characters, ready to run, $75.00. Extra lines only $12.50 per section. This absolutely unique device is making a hit with exhibitors from coast to coast.

You ought not to let a day pass without finding out all about this revolutionary idea in electric signs. Write us now, and we'll send you our illustrated booklet that describes this and other signs for picture theatres.

Exhibitors!

Special juvenile performances at the regular motion picture theatres received more attention at the recent Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in New York City than any other one topic.

The club women are right up on their toes and they are going to be mighty active from now on!

You are going to hear from them. They are coming to you to ask you to work with them in providing what they want, and we have tried to show them the reasonable way to approach you.

To do this, the Motion Picture News prepared a pamphlet called the Juvenile Motion Picture News for distribution at the Convention. Thousands of copies are already in the hands of the club women. There are a few left. Every wide-awake exhibitor should have a copy. So long as they last you may have one.

The pamphlet tells of the co-operation necessary between the local exhibitor and the women's club, and just remember that there are 9,000 of these clubs including 2,500,000 women in their membership.

The main feature, however, is the list of films adapted to juvenile programs, with the name of the producer and of the exchange.

Better write to-day for a copy, if you want to be sure of getting one.

Mr. Harry Grossman,
729 Seventh Av.,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Grossman:-

I am this day in receipt of your letter relative to my drawing cartoons about to be produced under the name of the "Katzenjammer Kids."

In this connection I wish to state that the only cartoons that I am interested in are those being produced by your company under the name of "Hans & Fritz."

As you know, I am the originator of the Katzenjammer Kids. But everything emanating from my pen in this line bears the title of "Hans & Fritz."

Trusting this answers your requirements, I am,

Yours very truly,

The One Complete and Consistent Service

For two years you have had the two greatest five-reel features produced each week, the productions of Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas. On them you have built a solid foundation of success, because week in and week out you have had the best pictures in your town, the best people to see them, and as a result the best theatre in which to show them.

For eighteen months you have had Paramount Travel Pictures, first South America and Australia, and now the most popular ever offered, Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures.

For nearly a year you have had Paramount-Bray Cartoons, the surest every-week laugh producers your money can buy.

For over six months you have had Paramount Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen that has pulled your audience out of their chairs to take part in the entertainment.

Now you are to have Paramount Comedies

After two years of hard hunting, we have found comedies worthy of the Paramount Trademark. You can see the Black Diamond Comedy "Nearly a Deserter" at your exchange. Released October 2d.

TRIANGLE PLAYS

1,000 REASONS FOR BOOKING TRIANGLE PLAYS Could be Given

1000 reasons for booking Triangle Plays could easily be given but one or two are enough.

Most important is the fact that you know Triangle Plays are the kind of pictures that will increase your box office returns—the kind that will bring patrons back to your house the second time. This is because but one question is asked of all Triangle Plays. Is it a good entertainment? If it is you get it—and your patrons like it. If it isn't you never get it.

Triangle Plays are popular because they tell interesting stories about the kind of folks your patrons know—the Joneses and the Smiths next door—not the kind you don't know.

If you are not running these pictures better investigate the matter now.

The Welding of Two Gigantic Business-Building Forces.

THE name, "VITAGRAPH" has been all you have had to know about a film for the past twenty years.

The name, "GREATER VITAGRAPH" is a title which tempts the imagination.

The name, V-L-S-E stands for all that is Fair, Square and Upbuilding in moving picture business practices — for SERVICE — HELPFULNESS — COMMERCIAL EQUITY.

On September First Vitagraph and V=L=S=E Became One

Vitagraph brings to the absorption, unequalled resources in capital, capacity and experience. It offers the exhibitors of America the superlative productions of a twenty-five million dollar corporation.

To this allegiance, V-L-S-E brings a selling organization of twenty-three exchanges and a large sales staff, every one of whom has been carefully schooled for one purpose — THE FULLEST AND MOST CONSCIENTIOUS SERVICE TO THE EXHIBITOR.

To it also, the V-L-S-E brings sales policies which, by reason of their equity, have won for this company probably the greatest volume of good will ever achieved by any organization of any kind in a similar period of time.

The union of these two great forces into one compact, smooth-running WHOLE throws open the door of OPPORTUNITY to the exhibitors of America as it has never been opened before.

To

The Exhibitors of the United States and Canada

TWENTY years ago, the moving picture was born.

Twenty years ago the Vitagragh Company was organized, and for Twenty years the Vitagraph has blazed the way—

The pioneer for everything new in this great industry.

The same men who have stood at the Vitagraph helm during the past years—

The same bright minds that have worked to make Vitagraph the "GOLD STANDARD" in filmdom,

Are still at their posts.

BUT—

Eternal progress is eternal change.

Time and tide wait for no man, and

The passing of the years, sees the passing of old methods.

The wasteful system of many organizations under many heads endeavoring to produce a uniform program of uniform merit has passed.

Concentration and efficiency are the order of the day.

Vitagraph is concentrating that the Exhibitor may get the highest efficiency.

Vitagraph has arranged for a capital unheard of in motion picture finance.

Vitagraph has acquired the V-L-S-E and several important producing organizations, all of which will be concentrated under one management, so that

The highest efficiency may be applied to the production of the highest type of picture and Distributed in the most efficient way,

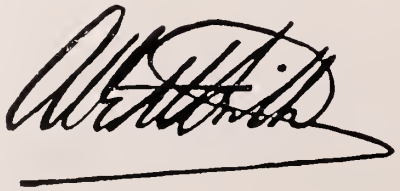
Therefore—

Exhibitor and Producer

Will profit by the concentrated effort of

THE GREATER VITAGRAPH.



Walter W. Irwin

General Manager of V-L-S-E Inc.

To

The Exhibitors of the United States and Canada

TIME was in the motion picture industry, when the relations of the producers and the distributors on the one part, and the exhibitors on the other, were based on commercial enmity; when the producers and distributors did not know, and did not seem to want to know, the exhibitors, and vice versa.

Fortunately, a decided change has occurred. Now it is, that most everyone engaged in the three principal branches, seems to realize the moral as well as the financial value of commercial justice; that so intertwined are our interests, that a wrong perpetrated either from within or without, upon any one branch of the industry, equally affects us all; that we must know and understand each other, and our respective trials and difficulties; and that only actual co-operation, not pretense, can produce mutual respect, and promote the welfare of all alike.

It is self-evident that the exhibitors of the United States and Canada have recognized, since the inception of the V-L-S-E, its genuine policy of co-operation and commercial justice, and have returned it in full measure to the advantage both of themselves and of ourselves.

The announcement that the V-L-S-E becomes a department of the Vitagraph Company of America, means a decided increase in our ability to co-operate; for the handling of the product of but one great company, permits of concentration upon important service details. And it means that the desires, ambitions and tribulations of the exhibitors, will come direct to the producer, so that exhibitor and producer may work in the sincerest harmony. In other words from script to screen the manufacturer and the exhibitor will work together.

No change in the offices of the V-L-S-E, nor in their personnel will occur. The same permanent organization, with increased capacity, will co-operate with you.

We pledge to you that the door of this organization, and thus the Vitagraph door, will at all times be, as it has been in the past, open to the exhibitor, ahead of anyone else.

Barney Bernard

Creator of "Abe Potash" in "Potash and Perlmutter" Montague Glass play, makes his screen debut in "Phantom Fortunes"

A five-reel comedy-drama
by Samuel Tauber
Produced by Paul Scardon

IS there romance in business? Look about you and see the fortunes that have been made in war speculation, miracles of sudden wealth that rival even the tales of the Arabian nights.

These are the visions of fortune that come to the simple, big-hearted clothing manufacturer that Barney Bernard plays in "Phantom Fortunes". Comedy, yes, but heartbreak too, when the swindle is revealed and his every penny is gone. Heartbreak, not for himself, but for his friends who lose with him.

But when the phantom fortunes go, real fortune comes to him, and there's joy and laughter and happiness in the end. It's a good, wholesome picture, this; a bit of life that has never been filmed before, and that never could have been filmed without Barney Bernard's inimitable humor, sympathy and deep understanding of his people.

The master drama of a super-criminal

"Through the Wall"

The great mystery story by Cleveland Moffett

Featuring Nell Shipman, William Duncan and George Holt

Produced by Rollin S. Sturgeon

HERE is a super-criminal, a fiend incarnate, a lord of the underworld, yet holding a high and respected place in society.

His mansion is a veritable chamber of horrors, an inquisition dungeon, into which he lures those who cross him in his career of crime. He comes and goes like a shadow, is here to-day and there to-morrow, ever a mystery, a wraith to his pursuers. They track him repeatedly, only to find themselves completely in his power.

The filming of this drama is a masterpiece of motion-picture production, so ingenious, so amazing is its purely mechanical side. And as a drama of mystery and daring imagination, it sounds a new note for screen possibilities.

No other crime drama of the films, no crook play of the stage may justly be compared with this six-reel Blue Ribbon Feature that heralds the day of Greater Vitagraph productions.

Not so you could notice it!

W. Shakespeare remarked something about those who would frisk his roll would steal trash—

But those who would swipe his good name would lug away all his property!

Really, there's everything in a name, a good name!

Take the name of Selig, for instance. That name is synonymous with honesty and dependability.

The Selig name is worthy because for years it has stood for art.

The name Selig on films is valuable.

The public appreciates that time, thought and expense are put into Selig plays.

Selig on posters means the same as the sterling mark on silver.

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION. 68 EXCHANGES

VOL. I. SEPTEMBER 16, 1916 No. I.

This Season Holds Big Opportunities For the Exhibitor

THE opening of the fall season of 1916 finds the exhibitor facing a most prosperous season. Wages are higher than ever before. Every factory and manufacturing plant is running at full capacity. The crops are bounteous and the products of the farm are selling at higher prices than ever before. Banks are fairly bulging with deposits. The great American republic is feeling "flush" and is seeking entertainment. Every exhibitor is bound to prosper accordingly.

Realizing the opportunity afforded, the Mutual Film corporation has prepared to assist exhibitors in every way. Never before were such tremendous feature productions available. A host of famous stars have for months been making Mutual Star Productions—big-feature pictures of exceptional quality. Now these subjects are ready for release. They may be seen now at any of the 68 Mutual exchanges. There are Mary Miles Minter productions, a series of five and six-reel features by famous authors, all starring the charming little actress, Mary Miles Minter; Richard Bennett productions, starring the famous star of the speaking stage, who made his film debut in the Mutual feature "Damaged Goods;" Kolb & Dill productions, featuring the inimitable pair of German comedians who have proved a riot wherever they have appeared; Florence Turner productions which bring back to the screen the famous star who was long known as America's foremost screen favorite—besides a score of other good things.

New Chicago Exchange.

The Mutual exchange in Chicago is now nicely settled in its new home, on the eighteenth floor of the Consumers building, on the corner of State and Quincy streets, and Manager B. F. Judell and his big corps of assistants are better equipped than ever to take care of patrons. A whole floor is occupied by the exchange and its various departments, but the boys have been so busy that they haven't even had time to look across Lake Michigan and see the white-caps roll in against the breakwater, though a lot of the exhibitors found it an inspiring sight during the last hot spell.

One of the forthcoming William Russell Mutual Star Productions, "The Torch Bearer," is a thrilling story of newspaper life, and is full of punch and snap from start to finish.

"The Count" Is The Newest Chaplin

Proclaimed by everyone who has seen it "the best one yet!" Charlie Chaplin's newest feature offering, "The Count," is setting the whole country laughing. It is brimming full and running over with typical Chaplin antics, and just to make certain that he has overlooked no laugh-getters, the inimitable Charlie adds a few brand-new capers for good measure.

From the moment when Charlie first appears with his tape measure, in a tailoring establishment, until he vanishes from sight down the street after a day in high society, there is no let-up—one laugh piles upon another, until your sides fairly ache. In this two-reel offering Charlie resorts to his old-time makeup, with the familiar baggy trousers, the funny cutaway coat, his dinky derby, diminutive mustache, slender cane and Chaplin shoes. Supporting Chaplin in "The Count" are Edna Purviance, Eric Campbell, Leo White and Charlotte Mineau.

Exhibitors will be instantly able to take advantage of Chaplin's box-office value, for hundreds of prints are available at the Mutual film exchanges and immediate bookings can be secured.

Larry Trimble is the director of "Grim Justice," the Florence Turner Mutual Star Production released this week.

Mary Miles Minter American's New Star In Six Big Features

MARY MILES MINTER, the little lady who won fame in "The Littlest Rebel" on the speaking stage and endeared herself to hundreds of thousands all over the country, has just made her debut in Mutual releases. Six Mutual Star Productions in which Mary Miles Minter is the bright particular star, are about completed at the American studios in Santa Barbara, California, and more will ultimately follow.

James Kirkwood, the man who rose to fame as Mary Pickford's director, and who stands for the very best in picture production, was signed by President S. S. Hutchinson of the American Film company, and is producing the Minter Star Productions. The titles of the first six Minter productions are "Youth's Endearing Charm," "Dulcie's Adventure," "Faith," "Dream or Two Ago," "Lisette" and "Innocence."

"Youth's Endearing Charm."

The Minter Star Production just released is "Youth's Endearing Charm," and is an ideal vehicle for the wonderful personality of this most youthful of screen favorites. The story is from the pen of Maibelle Heikes Justice, and gives Miss Minter a chance to appear as her own girlish self, sweet, unspoiled and pretty. Six reels are taken for the telling of how "Orphan Mary," a desolate little girl, after a long battle with starvation in the slums of a great city, goes to an orphanage and at last wins the attention of a wealthy and kindly woman, who adopts her as her own. "Zippy," the little tramp dog, who shares honors with the star, wins his way straight into hearts. The beautiful exteriors taken in the Santa Ynez valley startle by their uniqueness.

Box Office Value.

In presenting to their patrons Mary Miles Minter in "Youth's Endearing Charm," exhibitors will be offering an attraction that will not only appeal to their daily clientele of "fans," but will also probably be able to win to their theaters hundreds of people who perhaps rarely visit motion-picture houses, but who will be attracted by the name of the little star they saw a few years ago on the speaking stage.

"His Brother's Keeper" is the title selected for the second Richard Bennett Mutual Star Production, the first of which, "The Sable Blessing," has just been released.

Mutual Film Corp'n. Aug. 22, 1916.

Gentlemen:—Having shown your serial, "The Secret of the Submarine," for the first fourteen weeks, we feel that an expression of complete satisfaction would not be amiss. In the heart of Chicago and showing mainly to a transient trade, we found that having occasion to switch the date on account of other bookings, and show on Tuesday instead of Monday, we were besieged with inquiries (a conservative estimate six hundred people) as to why we had to change the date, and all seemed anxious about it and were pleased to know it would be shown as usual. In the face of the hottest summer Chicago has ever known, the picture has done remarkably well.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Edward J. Barrett, Mgr.

WILLIAM FOX COMBINES!

A combination has been effected between Fox Film Corporation and EXHIBITORS who are using Fox Feature Service in the United States—a combination that insures to you, MR. EXHIBITOR, protection against the future.

The BIG stars of any film producer are MADE BIG BY THE EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES. Without the co-operation and aid of EXHIBITORS, no film star can attain enduring fame.

It is only just and fair to you, MR. EXHIBITOR, that you reap the financial harvest from that which you have created.

It is eminently unfair to you to take from your Feature Service any BIG STARS whom you have played through their days of mediocrity, while they were climbing the ladder of fame.

You, MR. EXHIBITOR, have helped make many such BIG stars in your feature service. Among them are the BIG stars of Fox Film Corporation.

William Fox stars are still in your service. They have not been withdrawn and offered you as specials at a price far in excess of your service price.

This combination in which you, MR. EXHIBITOR, are a partner, insures the repayment to you of the money you have expended in advertising and popularizing those William Fox stars, who today are your best box office attractions.

Such is the combination that has been effected by

and

Here is the testimony of one exhibitor who is.

Tremont Theatre

New York, August 29th, 1916.

Mr. Joe S. Engel,
International Film Service, Inc.
729 Seventh Avenue,
Manhattan, New York City.

My dear Engel:-

Here's a "bumper" to BEATRICE FAIRFAX, another to the Fairfax series and let's have one more to the International Film Service.

The reason for this jubilee is that I played BEATRICE FAIRFAX in the above theatre last night to standing room only. When you take into consideration the restrictions placed on theatres owing to the epidemic, it is a remarkable tribute to the above series. In fact, it is the best attraction I have had in a year according to my box office receipts, and, what is still more pleasant to relate, the patrons were all pleased and are anxious to see the second episode.

Personally, I liked the picture because there is nothing forced or spectacular about it. It gives one the impression of looking at a little piece of real life taken almost haphazard from the busy teaming daily routine of a big city newspaper. I sincerely believe you have a winner and one that the exhibitors will surely be benefited by.

With best wishes for your success, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Edward T. Trigg

THE HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL is backed by the greatest news gathering organization in the world. Its pictures are gathered and edited by trained newspaper men.

THE HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL is advertised to the public in all the Hearst publications.

THE HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL boasts the only two news photographers with the European armies—Ariel Varges with the British at Salonika, and Nelson Edwards with the German army on the western front.

THE HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL has established its reputation by regularly showing the world's big news events in pictures as well as an exclusive high grade fashion section.

Wonderful Scenic Pictures New Feature of Split Reel

Curtis Pictures Called "Greatest Marvel of Motion Picture Photography."

Mr. Exhibitor, we know you want to show the people who come to your theatre the best there is.

You want to show them new ideas in pictures—pictures that are out of the ordinary—pictures that are above the accepted standards.

LET US SHOW YOU HOW YOU CAN DO IT.

Mr. Edward S. Curtis is admittedly the greatest of all photographers of nature and out-door life. He is more than a photographer—he is a great artist. His still pictures for years have been eagerly sought by wealthy collectors and art connoisseurs. It is not unusual for a portfolio of his photographs of Indian groups and Rocky Mountain scenery to bring FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS AT AN ART SALE.

Mr. Curtis is now devoting his great artistic ability with the camera to the production of motion pictures of nature's wonders.

W. STEPHEN BUSH, OF THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, RECENTLY DESCRIBED MR. CURTIS'S SCENERY PICTURES AS "THE GREATEST MARVEL OF MOTION PICTURE PHOTOGRAPHY."

These beautiful film interpretations of America's natural scenery are to be released by the INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE, INC., as a part of its weekly split reel release.

In this release you have an opportunity to show the people who come to your theatre pictures of unequalled standard and artistic quality.

Combined with the Curtis pictures in this release will be 500 feet of animated cartoons by the world's most famous comic artists.

The artists whose animated cartoons appear in this split reel are known to millions of newspaper readers throughout the United States.

THEY MAKE MILLIONS LAUGH EVERY MORNING AND EVERY AFTERNOON. Those same happy readers are anxious to see on the screen the animated cartoons of their favorites among the comic artists.

In the split reel releases are the Celebrated Cartoons of T. E. Powers

"Jerry on the Job" by Hoban
"Krazy Kat" by Herriman
"Happy Hooligan" and "Maud the Mule" by Opper

The split reel release has already become a popular institution with the exhibitors and with the public. The new feature—the Curtis Scenic pictures—will be added to this reel for a first release on September 25th.

Don't miss this splendid single reel feature.

Of course you remember the great advertising and publicity campaign for "THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA."

It is still fresh in the public mind. A great proportion of the people who read the novelization of "THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA" and were impressed by the advertising campaign, have not yet seen the pictures.

They want to see them.

Many exhibitors are now booking "THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA." These exhibitors realize that this is the time to reap the benefits of the full force of that great advertising campaign.

"THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA" has made a great deal of money for a host of exhibitors. It can be relied upon to make big money for other exhibitors who have not already booked it.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

"MY," said the fly on the dome of St. Peter's,
"What an enormous place this world is."

Little things seem big to small people—that's why so many concerns never grow—they're too busy congratulating themselves on an initial success to look farther and find how much more there is to learn.

If I had been content with existing standards in the moving picture industry, you would not have had an opportunity to break away from the system which has consumed your profits and restricted your possibilities.

I've progressed with progress. Come along with me and get your share of the tremendous earnings which will start to roll in with "The Common Law," the first of the new Clara Kimball Young productions directed by Albert Capellani.

It is the medium through which he reaches the exhibitor-middleman and the ultimate consumer-fan.

CHRISTIE

IT is always gratifying to know that one's efforts are appreciated. I realized that Christie Comedies and the people in them were popular, but never before have I heard of such an enthusiastic response as met my announcement, of last week, that Christie Comedies would be released on the open market.

OUR mail has been the heaviest we have ever had and numbers of exhibitors and exchangemen throughout the United States and Canada, realizing the importance of being first, have wired for territory or bookings. The reception accorded my announcement has thoroughly convinced me as to the desirability of this form of distribution for my comedies.

THIS appreciation will surely spur myself and my associates on to even greater efforts to amuse your audiences.

YOU can depend upon it that we will not only keep Christie Comedies up to the well established Christie standard, but we will make the past standard the low water mark in Christie productions.

DON'T think because you haven't received an answer to your wire or letter that we don't appreciate it. We do and you will receive a personal answer in a few days but—frankly—we are swamped by the response to our announcement and will have to add to our clerical force before we can catch up.

REMEMBER we promise you a consistent quality of laugh getting comedies —better than those we have ever made.

Loose Ends in the Motion Picture Business

AGAIN we hear talk of chaotic conditions within the industry.

But, again, the talk arrives nowhere in particular; and, as usual, the term "chaotic" is largely and loosely applied.

THERE is no chaos in this industry and never was. A number of individuals here and there probably find it very baffling, so much so that they ascribe the failure of their own unbusinesslike efforts to "chaotic conditions"; but the industry as a whole is prosperous; not so prosperous as we have told the public, but far more so than our own pessimists believe.

* * *

A PROMINENT producer spoke last week of the "loose ends" of the business. "Loose ends"—and not "chaotic"—correctly describes present conditions.

We have, in other words, a very great, unusual and spirited industry, the onward rush of which is irresistible—and, as a whole, irresistibly successful. But there are many loose ends and they rattle loudly as the big machine goes onward.

THESE loose ends are pretty evenly distributed along the way of the picture, from its production to its exhibition. They are simply economic faults, internal business weaknesses, which older industries could not suffer without serious collapse.

When a program, or a picture, or a theatre fails, the reason offered is "chaotic conditions." The business, we hear, is in a bad, a very bad, way.

On the other hand, everyone knows that there are many successful theatres—right under the nose of the failures; and there are successful programs; and right alongside of distribution that doesn't pay, we hear of a single picture successfully sold its entire territory.

JUST when the gloom is thicker—in Times square only—the demand for good pictures is seemingly strongest. Exhibitors want them; and state rights buyers, with cash in their pockets, are in New York, looking high and low for a negotiable product.

The great fundamental fault with this business is, and always has been, that we leave everything to the pictures themselves. "Just Pictures" would be a very apt slogan for a large part of the effort made in all branches of this industry.

WE produce pictures and expect them to distribute themselves; we distribute pictures and expect them to exhibit themselves. All effort, all business, genius and energy, all the ingenuity in creation and all the selling effort that attend the launching and landing of other merchandizable products—all this is left to the magic of the picture. Pictures, evidently, have their own momentum: they make, sell and project themselves—to automatically filled theatres.

This blind faith in the magic momentum of the picture savors more of the guileless optimism of the novice, who believes that he can make pictures and sell them to theatres like so many books to so many book stores; but, as a matter of fact, it is shared in some degree or other by too many experienced makers, distributors and exhibitors of pictures.

"JUST Pictures" will not do today. This sounds bromidic, but apparently the warning is still applicable. The public will not have them.

They no more want film with something in motion upon it than they want white paper with something in type upon it. With most of the public the novelty of the motion picture is just as negative an attraction as was the novelty of type in a bygone century. They want pictures to show them something just as they want type to tell them something.

GOOD pictures can only come from good studios and good studios mean well-rounded institutions, thoroughly experienced and highly organized in all the essentials and intricacies of the picture making art.

Such an organization is an essential. Neither an author alone nor the cast, nor the editor alone, can produce good pictures. It takes an organization—and a mighty good one, just as it takes a mighty good organization to turn over any other specialized product like, for instance, a metropolitan daily.

ANY one man, any new organization, any weak organization, ought to hestitate just as much about making pictures as they would about turning out the New York Times or the Saturday Evening Post. Just the same measure of ability, just the same true and tried organization, is required.

* * *

LOOSE end number two is the distribution of pictures. The number of our exchanges, the necessity of separate sets of distribution offices for each program, is a matter of wonderment to the outside business man looking in. To him it looks like running as many railroads to Chicago. He believes that one or two centralized clearing houses could successfully route pictures and save many millions of middleman waste for the producer and the exhibitor.

* * *

LOOSE end number three is the policy of short run pictures.

It takes from five to ten millions of dollars a year in production cost to supply one picture theatre with daily change features. A two-day run alone would halve this tremendous outlay—for which some one must pay. At the present high speed of exhibition, a producer is compelled to make each picture chase the other to obscurity. More millions in waste!

AND just as pictures fall short of their possible circulation at home, they fall shorter still of the world's markets. We make the most pictures and the best pictures, but most other countries see them little, if at all.

In the motion picture we have a product for which probably the most level world-wide demand rests, and yet it is the most slothful in export movement in a country notoriously negligent of its export trade opportunities.

LOOSE end number five is lack of selling effort.

As outlined on this page last week, a good picture may be shown to a few hundred thousand people or to a few million, dependent altogether upon the way it is advertised. The producer's and each exhibitor's profits on it vary accordingly.

In this important effort close co-operation between producer and exhibitor is absolutely necessary.

The producer must tell the exhibitor exactly what the nature of the picture is, where its appeal lies, and suggest and furnish advertising helps.

The exhibitor must do as every successful retailer of other products does, use every avenue his ingenuity and his local facilities can furnish to acquaint all the neighborhood with interesting facts about the picture.

THESE are but the main loose ends; there are many others. They will be tied up in time—they are bound to be—with great profit to those who do the tying.

There is no chaos in the business today, except in the eyes of those who are leaning upon the picture.

WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON.

A Feather in the Association's Cap

THERE is occasion for considerable pride in the behavior of the new National Association of the Motion Picture Industry during the railroad strike crisis, which happily has passed.

The meeting of Thursday, August 31, found the members of the new body confronted with a problem threatening in the extreme and demanding immediate action.

The prospect was that every railroad of major importance in the United States would be tied up at seven o'clock the following Monday morning.

For the exhibitor and exchange man that seemed to mean paralysis no less complete than the railroads would suffer. In a business like ours, where time is everything, where a timetable is king, the situation could not have been much more alarming.

AS a preliminary step the express companies were called into consultation, and the extent of their facilities ascertained. A committee was appointed to learn how far the distribution of releases could be continued by using motor trucks and water routes. Every phase of the matter was attacked and handled in a businesslike manner.

The probability is that, had the wheels of every train failed to turn last Monday, the manufacturers and their exchange associates, who were kept apprised of all developments in New York, would have given as good an account of themselves as the members of any other industry.

THE association's behavior and spirit was, we repeat, a matter for congratulation. Often a serious emergency is the very thing a new organization needs to knit it together and give it cohesion. This emergency should increase the confidence of the entire industry in the association.

Censorship—Like Charity—Should Begin "At Home," and Stay There

THE exhibitors of the country have at least four full months in which to demonstrate to the legislatures of the various states that they can handle the censorship question without any outside interference or assistance.

How it can be done was related in the editorial and news columns of last week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

EVERY successful exhibitor is well acquainted with the ideals and standards of the community in which his theatre is located—whether that community be a small town or a district of a city.

He knows—otherwise he could not be successful—what his patrons want and what they do not.

By acting on that knowledge to the utmost of his ability, and dealing with the unclean picture as he would with any other picture he knew his customers would not tolerate, he can accomplish what the best and most efficient of censor boards could do, without the aid of law, without fee, with no cost to himself but the trouble of learning enough about a picture in advance to determine whether he shall book it or no.

WE believe that the vast majority of motion picture theatres have enough of what is called "family" patronage to make it unprofitable, in the long run, to book suggestive pictures. It rests with the exhibitor, more than any other person, to make it unprofitable for the manufacturer of suggestive pictures to continue turning them out.

Meeting in Topeka Makes Film History for Kansas

Widespread Interest Is Shown in Picture Industry by the Public—Largest Crowd That Ever Turned Out for an Amusement Parade in the City Lines the Streets to See Screen Stars—Municipal and State Officials Speak Against Censorship at Convention

Special to Motion Picture News.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 2.

MOVING picture men demonstrated in Topeka that the industry is first in the hearts of the people, and that there should be no censorship. Censorship in Kansas will be killed, too, if the exhibitors make good on the plans laid by the joint meeting of the Amusement Association of Kansas and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of that State. There isn't any chance to lose if the plans are followed.

The amazing feature of the meeting—the exhibitors themselves were surprised—was the widespread interest among the people of Topeka. The largest crowd that ever turned out for an amusement parade—larger than the circus crowd of a few weeks previous—thronged the streets to see the parade Wednesday afternoon. The parade was very high in quality but pitifully short. Richard Travis, Essanay; Gene Gauntier, Katherine Bush, and Leota Lorraine, Universal; Marie Davis, Vitagraph; and Ethel Quinn, Pageant, rode in automobiles with managers and young women from the Kansas City exchanges.

The appearance of the stars aroused intense excitement. Men and women, young and old, rushed out of buildings, and the crowd surged over the curbing, even against the motor cars, and cheered. There were boys and girls in the parade impersonating leading stars; motor cars advertising various producers; a gigantic "Triangle" borne by young girls; and a hundred film men four abreast. The procession, led by a band, marched up Kansas avenue and to the Orpheum theatre, where prizes were given the impersonators.

There were various joint sessions of the two associations, and separate sessions of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League. Chris Glamann, of Wellington, president of the latter, presided at all except the last session of the Amusement Association, which was conducted by E. R. Pearson, chairman of the Executive Committee. The sessions were held in the State house where the censorship law was enacted.

Mayor Shows Up Absurdity of Censorship

Several city and State officials spoke, revealing the surprising fact that they didn't care for pictures, didn't know much about them, and couldn't understand why there should be a censorship law except for revenue.

Mayor J. E. House, of Topeka, really struck the keynote in his welcoming address, demonstrating vividly how futile and silly the State inspection is in Kansas. He said he had seen two moving picture shows—one in 1898 and one in October, 1913. "But my sympathy is always with the goat, and you have been made the goat in this instance," he said. "I have been writing dramatic criticisms for a great many years, and am sincerely opposed to stage license. If I had a boy who could be injured by what he saw at a moving picture show, I'd shoot him. There's no censorship of the stage, or of the newspapers, or dry goods stores—yet I blush with embarrassment whenever I look into a window on Kansas avenue.

"The moving idea in censorship was neither moral nor uplifting. The Legislature had to find money; and instead of going out with a blackjack or jimmy, it had the happy thought of taking it from you moving picture men, and it did. I am not prepared to say that censorship has not become both moral and uplifting. The fact that the State, officially expressing its ideals in censorship, regards ankles as an iniquity, is probably the reason the women of our city go around with no more than half of their visible charms exposed. There are no cigarettes on Kansas films—therefore, no cigarettes are smoked in Kansas. The taboo of drinking in the pictures undoubtedly accounts for the fact that there is no booze in the homes of the people of Kansas."

J. T. Botkin, Secretary of State, a member of the Appeal Board, said he could remember two actors, John Bunny and Charlie Chaplin.

"I know nothing of pictures," he said, "and would not see one a year unless compelled to by my wife or the statutes of Kansas. I can only try to be fair. I have seen many that were not fit to be shown and, perhaps, have passed some that were injurious. I believe this body can do a good deal toward improving the standard of pictures."

Herrington "Takes Up" Botkin

F. J. Herrington, national organizer of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, following Mr. Botkin, "took him up," declaring that no man has intelligence enough to say what should be shown to five or six million people. He commented on the honor conferred by the visit and to talk by the member of the State Board, which five years ago would have been impossible.

"If you realized the power of pictures," he said, addressing the exhibitors, "you would quickly aid in eliminating the evil pictures. That's what you are organized for, to make the pictures better. Do the cleaning yourself."

P. J. McBride, Labor Commissioner of Kansas, whose department inspects theatres as to compliance with fire prevention and other rules, invited the exhibitors to co-operate in the preparation of amendments to existing laws.

Richard Travers lamented the difficulty of getting men to lobby and work even in a good cause; he declared that once the industry was organized, the right thing it stands for would sweep the country; that the life of the industry from now on would be "organization."

Gene Gauntier was introduced and spoke a few words.

Wednesday evening a ball was held at Garfield Park, a long ride by street car, or auto across the river from Topeka. The park had the largest crowd in its long history. The dancing pavilion was packed to capacity early and around the pavilion, standing, looking, were thousands, who for two hours watched for a glimpse of the stars, and got somehow an apparently keen delight in participating even so remotely in the honoring of the distinguished visitors. There were more than 200 automobiles parked near enough to the pavilion for the occupants to see the dancing.

And some of the Topeka people said that maybe 75 or 100 would go to the ball! Admission to the pavilion was one dollar a couple; receipts were $240. The stars led a grand march, and cabaret was interspersed among the dance numbers, both of which were enjoyed by the throng outside the open pavilion.

Thursday the two associations made their definite plans as to the censorship. The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League assigned exhibitors in each district to ascertain the attitude of legislators and candidates for election. Reports will be made promptly to the secretary, E. W. Green, of Herrington, and careful watch will be kept that the canvass is thoroughly made. The League will openly support the candidates that are not inclined to continue the present censorship law.

After the election, the League will use all the local influences possible to secure the help of the various State Senators and Representatives for the repeal of the law. Each exhibitor is to canvass his own patrons and the people of his district, and secure expressions of their opinion as to State censorship. Petitions for repeal, or similar documents, bearing names of sympathizers, will be prepared; and the people in each district will be urged to make personal appeal to their legislators.

Next Meeting of the League Set for January

The next meeting of the League, falling normally in October, will be postponed to January, immediately preceding the meeting of the Legislature. Then stock will be taken of the situation, and the Legislative Committee will enter upon its final course—camping next to the Legislature at Topeka until the law is repealed.

The Legislative Committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Kansas is as follows: Fred Savage, Hutchinson; Stanley Chambers, Wichita; H. K. Rogers, Marion; Lee Gunnison, Atchison; Lew Nathanson, Topeka; and Chris E. Glamann, Wellington. This committee will work with the Legislative Committee of the Amusement Association of Kansas, which is as follows: E. R. Pearson, manager V-L-S-E, chairman; Charles W. Harden, manager Metro; R. C. Cropper, manager Universal, and P. H. Pierce, manager of the Wurlitzer branch.

Parts of the battle will be easy. For instance, many legislators who have already been seen, say they didn't know what they were voting for when they supported the censor law. Some who knew what they were doing, now regret it. Some say the law was unjust, because the tax was excessive.

The last session of the Amusement Association of Kanas is illuminating. Mrs. Lillian Mitchner, president of the State W. C. T. U., had come, as she said, seeking light.

"At present I favor censorship as now conducted," she said. "Something is necessary as many are showing bad pictures. But I don't want to fight the moving picture men. Moving pictures are the greatest educational agency we have to-day. I would be glad to be convinced of any other way of elevating the standard of pictures, but I don't see any way now except censorship."

Mrs. Mitchner declared that the industry was being imposed upon, in that too large fees were charged for censorship.

F. J. Herrington answered Mrs. Mitchner. He said that the agency that had in past ages raised the standard of literature, art, and music would raise it for pictures.

Resolutions by Amusement Association of Kansas

Resolved, That we thank the following speakers:

Mayor House, of Topeka, Kan.; Secretary of State, J. T. Botkin; F. J. Herrington, National Organizer, M. P. E. L.; Commissioner of Labor, McBride; Dick Travers, Essanay; Gene Gauntier.

Resolved, That this convention assembled, especially thank Mayor House for his open and frank expression against censorship in its entirety.

Resolved also, That we thank F. J. Herrington and the National M. P. E. L. for his visit and inestimable help at this convention.

Be it further Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that we are entirely and unalterably opposed to every form of legalized censorship of moving pictures, either at the hands of State or Federal officials as un-American, and an infringement of the rights of free speech and free press vested in the American people since 1776.

To that end we condemn the censor law of Kansas as vicious, confiscatory, the latter in that it costs less than one-fourth of the present fees exacted at this time, and that the members of he A. A. of K. stand pledged as a body and as individuals for a repeal of that law, to which end we pledge the use of our screens to further the political aspirations of those nominees and candidates for State and Federal offices whose study of the question and whose Americanism pledges their conscience and judgment in their official actions in favor of the repeal of the present Kansas censorship law at the next term of the Legislature.

Be it further Resolved, That each motion picture exhibitor call on his district nominee to the Legislature and give him any information he may desire on the subject, enabling him to come to an intelligent understanding of the questions at issue, and while it is not necessary that said nominee publish his views in the matter, there should be no misunderstanding between him and the exhibitor as to his action on these questions in the Legislature in case of his election.

It shall also be the exhibitors' agreeable duty to report in detail concerning such interviews to the secretary of the A. A. of K. so the executive committee and the legislative committees can govern their actions accordingly.

Exhibitors who signify their willingness to use campaign material, slides will be furnished gratis.

Furthermore, with the thousands of movie fans that regularly attend shows in Kansas, the exhibitor should exhort his patrons to help him and themselves, securing what they want by so expressing themselves to their Representatives, local authorities, and to the officials having influence with the making of laws.

Be it Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that since there are seemingly many towns whose people desire open moving picture theatres on Sundays in such cities and towns, we we are glad, indeed, to comply with the wishes of the majority, and believe this is a question of local issue, and should not be interfered with by State laws.

"THE YELLOW MENACE" RELEASED LABOR DAY BY UNITY SALES

"THE Yellow Menace," the sixteen-episode serial starring Edwin Stevens, will be released to exhibitors by the Unity Sales Corporation on Labor Day.

The story deals with the fanatical ambition of a mysterious Mongolian, Ali Singh, whose one idea is the establishment of the yellow races as rulers of the Western world. Aided by a band of loyal followers, Ali Singh attempts to regulate American affairs through threats and to prevent any concerted action on the part of any agencies which would hamper the activities of the yellow races in this country.

Mr. Louis Tracy, the distinguished English author, in speaking of "The Yellow Menace," said: "In writing 'The Yellow Menace' I must confess that I was mainly actuated by a desire to warn the United States of that deadly peril. America has up to the present time been a sleeping giant, but now she must arouse herself and be prepared against any invasion or foreign interference that might come. Certainly, danger from the yellow races is no less than that which threatens from European powers. The picture drives home powerfully the lessons that I have striven to convey in writing the story."

V-L-S-E Is Absorbed by the Vitagraph Company

President Smith and General Manager Irwin Confirm the Purchase of the Big Releasing Organization by the Picture Making Corporation—While the Consolidation Is Now Actually in Effect, Technically It Does Not Become Operative Until the 16th

A. E. SMITH, president of the Vitagraph Company, and Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, this week confirmed the purchase by the former company of the interests of the Lubin, Selig, and Essanay companies in the V-L-S-E organization.

In addition to outlining the plans of operation of the V-L-S-E as a part of the Greater Vitagraph, Mr. Smith's statement contains the intimation of even larger things to come.

The absorption of the V-L-S-E by the Vitagraph interests, while actually in effect at the present time, so far as any additional releases of the Lubin, Selig, and Essanay companies are concerned, technically does not become operative until September 16.

The Lubin pictures, which have been released through the V-L-S-E, will remain on its program, although no new or additional Lubin features will be offered. Bookings on the Essanay and Selig pictures will continue up to September 16.

It is stated authoritatively, that the amalgamation of the V-L-S-E and the Vitagraph Company will in no way affect the personnel of the distributing organization. The executive staff will remain the same, and the branch offices in the twenty-three cities with their complement of Big Four representatives will continue intact.

For the present, and up to at least the first of October, there will be released one feature per week. After that it is probable there will be offered two features per week, and, in addition thereto, sufficient shorter product to enable an exhibitor to obtain an entire day's service.

It is stated, however, that this will be determined entirely on the basis of merit. In other words, if it is found possible to release two pictures a week, measuring up to the superior standard which has been set by the Vitagraph, then the service will be eight productions a month. If, however, it is found that the high degree of merit determined upon might be in any way impaired, the service will be limited to four productions a month.

National Advertising Campaign Planned

Another announcement of importance is that there will be instituted a widespread national advertising campaign to augment the value of the Vitagraph trade-mark, and to create for Vitagraph pictures the maximum consumer demand. Discussing the Vitagraph's purchase of the interests of the other three companies, which have made up the Big Four, Mr. Smith said: "Vitagraph has acquired the V-L-S-E and several important producing organizations, to be operated absolutely under its control, because it is convinced that the best interests of exhibitors and of itself, can be served only by having all of its activities, selling as well as producing, concentrated under one management.

"The moving picture industry has grown too big, and the standard of the screen has advanced too far, for a producer to work in combination with other independent producers in the distribution of his product.

"Such a co-operative arrangement handicaps him, not only in the standardization of his product, and in his advertising and selling service to his patrons, but also interposes a barrier between the most direct and sensitive responses to the exhibitors' needs.

"When it was determined, some time ago, to increase the Vitagraph capitalization to $25,000,000, in order that we might insure the highest degree of merit for every one of our productions, we automatically determined at the same time to have our own distributing department, in order that we might keep in the closest and most constant touch with the pulse of the public and the demand of exhibitors, and that we might be free to shape our course to the best advantage of all concerned.

"V-L-S-E was the natural selection for such a distribution organization. In the seventeen months of its existence, it made unparalleled progress in service to exhibitors, and in the confidence and good will which it had gained from the trade as a whole.

"In transferring it as a department of Greater Vitagraph, we, at the same time enlarge the scope of the V-L-S-E-'s possibilities for service, and make it possible for that organization to do many things which it has long sought to do, but which were manifestly impractical when it was acting as the selling agent of four independent concerns.

"We have pledged to the representatives of the V-L-S-E, who now become Vitagraph representatives, that they will have the strongest offerings to present to exhibitors that have ever been placed in the hands of any film salesman—that they will have pictures that are virtually self-selling, and that, therefore, they will be able to give the maximum of time to aiding their clients in making the most of these splendid productions.

"There are to be no bad pictures on our program. Beginning with the current releases, all of our output will measure infinitely higher than any service which has ever been presented.

"We shall also be in a position to see to it, and exhibitors may be assured that we will see to it, that all advertising and selling helps, and other mediums by which we may render the greatest possible service to the exhibitor, will be provided; that releases will be made on schedule time; and that all shipments will be sufficiently in advance—in short, that no step will be overlooked that will make for the maximum efficiency and the utmost commercial harmony.

"We realize that the most important partner in the moving picture business, is the exhibitor, and that success is primarily dependent upon how closely allied he is with the manufacturer.

Close Contact Sought with Exhibitors

"It is this close and constant contact which has been sought in the absorption of the V-L-S-E by the Vitagraph Company—a contact that will make more intimate our knowledge of the needs of the exhibitor in order that we, as a producer, may co-operate to an even greater degree. We believe that it will mark a new era in the motion picture industry, and that it will promote a degree of prosperity for exhibitors and for ourselves, such as has never before been attained."

General Manager Walter W. Irwin, of the V-L-S-E, in discussing the amalgamation, said:

"Greater Vitagraph means Greater V-L-S-E. The V-L-S-E remains intact—the same offices, the same personnel. It is geared to do big things—spurred to greater efforts by the knowledge it has back of it, and is a part of one of the world's most substantial and pre-eminent business institutions.

"Furthermore, it will now be possibe for us to focus and concentrate the energies which were formerly divided in advancing the interests of four companies, upon promoting the maximum results for the patrons of one organization—an organization controlling its entire service from script to screen.

"In other words, the only result to the V-L-S-E of this change, will be that by virtually becoming a department of the Vitagraph Company, we multiply our possibilities of service, because we will be in constant touch with the producer, so that we will be able to make suggestions, and to eliminate any and all difficulties which are in any way a handicap to our patrons.

"To the broadening of the principles of commercial equity which the V-L-S-E has always espousesd, and the multiplication of our service to the exhibitor, there will be added one of the most widespread and efficient national advertising campaigns ever instituted by any company in any field.

"We enter upon this amalgamation, therefore, not only with unbounding confidence and enthusiasm for our own selves, but for what we shall be able to do for the many exhibitors with whom we have come into such friendly touch, and for the large number of others, whom we hope it is to be our privilege to serve."

PARALYSIS HITS TOLEDO EXHIBITORS

Special to Motion Picture News.

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 2.

This city has at present about eighty cases of infantile paralysis, with sixteen deaths reported. The result has been that all children under sixteen years of age have been barred from theatres and public gatherings. It is proving a serious blow to the moving picture houses, especially in the outskirts, which cater to family patronage.

"THE WHEEL OF JUSTICE" WILL TURN FOR METRO ON SEPTEMBER 18

"The Wheel of Justice," a five-part Metro play, in which Emily Stevens, stage and screen star, has the stellar role, will be released on the Metro program September 18. Miss Stevens is surrounded by a cast headed by Frank Mills, who has been starred on both the screen and in stage productions.

The story of "The Wheel of Justice," written especially for Miss Stevens by Katherine Kavanaugh, deals with convictions obtained in capital offenses, based solely upon circumstantial evidence. It is a picture of the abuse of overambitious officials, who are ruthless and unfair in their prosecution to obtain public favor and office.

The supporting cast includes Raymond McKee, Edwin Holt, Harry Davenport, Jerome N. Wilson, Charles Eldridge and Roma Raymond. Miss Raymond has the part of an adventuress. It is her first appearance on the screen for two years in her well-known vampire roles, as she has been devoting her time and talents to writing scenarios.

George D. Baker, who recently made his first production for Metro, "The Pretenders," with Emmy Wehlen in the starring role, directed "The Wheel of Justice." Charles Hunt is his assistant.

MACK, HEAVYWEIGHT COMEDIAN WITH "V," ON VIEW SEPTEMBER 5

Hughie Mack, Vitagraph's heavyweight comedian, can be seen on Friday, the 15th of September on the General Film program in "Loot and Love," a farce directed by Lawrence Semon from the script by Lawrence Semon and Graham Baker. Hughie receives support from Patsey de Forest, the little girl in stripes; William Shea, Edward Dunn, and Frank Brule.

"Busting In and Out of Society," is a comedy along new lines produced by Vitagraph's Bayshore studio.

William Lytell, Jr., plays the lead in the Broadway Star Feature, "The Thorn and the Rose," which is released Saturday, September 16. The story is by Ralph W. Ince and Dwight Cleveland. Mr. Ince also directed the production. Shirley Moore plays opposite Mr. Lytell, Jr., who as Everett Elliott, a successful artist falls in love with and marries a beautiful country girl.

MARK A. LASKY IN NEW YORK FOR STATE RIGHTS OFFERINGS

Mark A. Lasky, head of the Lasky Amusement Enterprises, Inc., of San Francisco, and Mark M. Leichter, the general manager of the concern, have been in New York City for some time, looking over the state rights field and conducting negotiations.

The Lasky Amusement Enterprises has just been organized, and Mr. Lasky predicted, just before he left for the west coast on Tuesday, September 5, that the concern would be in full blast as a distributing organization of the San Francisco territory by October 1. The offices are located in the Humboldt Bank Building.

Mr. Lasky is an uncle of Jesse L. Lasky, head of the Lasky Feature Play Company.

Essanay Withdraws from V-L-S-E, Spoor Announces

Pictures of the Producing Company Will Shortly Be Released Through Another Outlet, Named in the Near Future—No Abatement in Film Making by His Studios

ESSANAY'S announcement that it has withdrawn from the V-L-S-E, Inc., the withdrawal to take effect Sept. 16, has just been made by George K. Spoor, president of the Essanay Company.

Mr. Spoor gives "business reasons" as the cause for the withdrawal. He states that a new organization for releasing Essanay features will be announced in the near future. Mr. Spoor's official statement in regard to the withdrawal is as follows:

"On and after Sept. 16, 1916, Essanay features will be withdrawn from the V-L-S-E, Inc., branch offices and thereafter will be released through another agency which will be announced shortly."

This statement confirms the reports which have been printed recently in regard to the separation from the V-L-S-E and the realignment of companies under new releasing organizations.

The trade is eagerly looking forward to the announcement of Mr. Spoor on the new releasing agency. Several rumors have been spread broadcast but none has been confirmed by Mr. Spoor.

When seen in his Chicago offices by a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS Mr. Spoor stated that an announcement of the new plans would be made just as soon as they had been perfected in detail. He outlined some of the plans for Essanay's coming work.

"There will be no abatement in the work of Essanay," he said. "In fact it will be conducted on a larger scale than ever before. And we aim to put out greater features.

"Essanay already has contracted for the rights on a number of large features and is planning to start work on them shortly. Two features are already under way and three others are completed for release through the new organization.

"'The Sting of Victory,' featuring Henry B. Walthall, supported by Antoinette Walker, which just recently was released through V-L-S-E, will after Sept. 16, go out through the new releasing company.

"'The Return of Eve,' which features Edna Mayo, supported by Eugene O'Brien, and 'The Prince of Graustark,' featuring Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton, the novel by George Barr McCutcheon and a sequel to Essanay's feature 'Graustark,' have been completed and an announcement of their release will be made as soon as the new organization is perfected. These plays are both in five reels.

"Two other features are under way. They are 'The Chaperon,' taken from the stage success of Marion Fairfax and featuring Edna Mayo and Eugene O'Brien and 'The Breakers,' by Arthur Stringer, one of the best of the Saturday Evening Post stories. It will feature Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig. These also will appear in five acts.

"Other features will be announced later. Several of these, already purchased, will feature Henry B. Walthall. Essanay has several features especially adapted to his genius and which, it is confidently expected, will be revelations in screen work."

Essanay's new studio, said to be the largest indoor, artificially lighted studio in the world, in conjunction with its other two studios, will enable it to carry on its plans for increased work with ease.

Features previously released through V-L-S-E, after the sixteenth of September, will be released through the new organization. These include Charlie Chaplin's greatest feature, the burlesque on "Carmen," "The Sting of Victory," "According to the Code," "That Sort," "Sherlock Holmes," "The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row," "The Havoc," "The Discard," "Vultures of Society," "The Misleading Lady," "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," "A Daughter of the City," "The Alster Case," "The Raven," "The Crimson Wing," "The Man Trail," "The Blindness of Virtue," "In the Palace of the King," and "The White Sister."

Colonel Selig Verifies Departure from V-L-S-E; Hints That Selig and Essanay Will Continue Together

WILLIAM N. SELIG, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, has verified the news that has been in circulation for the past week or so to the effect that the Selig Company has withdrawn from the V-L-S-E, Inc. Mr. Selig has issued the following statement:

"The Selig Polyscope Company has withdrawn from the V-L-S-E and will release Selig Red Seal Plays, of five reels or more in length through other channels which will be announced in the near future. It can be stated that a number of very attractive and flattering propositions made the Selig Company are being carefully considered and in due time a decision will be arrived at which may not only be surprising but will also be interesting to all those interested in the motion picture art. The Selig Company leaves the V-L-S-E with good feeling and we can only state that the decision to withdraw from that organization was not one hastily resolved.

"The Selig Company has in preparation, and also ready for release a number of unusually excellent pictures. Among the five-reelers can be named 'The Country That God Forgot.' This production features Tom Santschi in a most worthy character part and he is well supported by such artists as George W. Fawcett, Mary Charleson, Victoria Forde and others. Marshall Neilan wrote and directed the drama which is cast in the atmosphere of the Western desert. There is a hand-to-hand fight in 'The Country that God Forgot,' which, to my mind, is very unusual. This battle carries thrills and suspense and yet the audience does not see a blow passed."

The motion picture trade will be greatly interested in the future plans of the Selig Company. It is claimed that both the Selig and Essanay Companies will become members of another distributing company. Although this news is not verified yet it comes from authoritative sources.

Philadelphia Exchangemen Have No Idle Moments

Activity All Along the Line Makes Them Wear a Happy Smile and They Plan for One of the Biggest Seasons in the Industry—Masterpiece Film Attractions Is About to Open Branches in Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati

Special to Motion Picture News.

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.

JAMES M. ASHCROFT, formerly with Henry W. Savage, is now assistant to Leon D. Nettor, manager of the Masterpiece Film Attractions. The demand for "The Spoilers" is increasing and the September bookings are opening briskly.

The Masterpiece Company is about to open branch offices in Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati. The managers of these places have not yet been decided upon. Sol Lesser, who runs back and forth from coast to coast as easily as New Yorkers go to the Bronx, paid a short visit to the Philadelphia office on his last flying trip East. Mr. Lesser is already back in California. Messrs. Lesser and Netter have recently acquired the rights to "Purity," with Audrey Munson, in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia. This picture will be releasced in those territories the first part of September.

Oscar Bower, manager of the Famous Players' Exchange reports business having kept up well during all this troublous summer of heat and sickness. Indications point to a banner year for Paramount in this section.

On being asked to name any specially popular recent picture, Mr. Bower replied, "The whole Paramount program is now keeping up so well I can't discriminate. All releases have been going strong."

The exchange has leased the whole first floor of the new film building now under way on Vine near Twelfth Street. This move will provide commodious and handsome quarters for the exchange.

Bower Got Tip from Item in "News"

An interesting point in this connection is the fact that Mr. Bower first learned of the contemplated building (one block from his present quarters) through an exclusive item in Motion Picture News; whereupon he at once investigated and closed the deal for the first floor as stated.

District Superintendent Arthur Lucas has appointed Herbert W. Given as manager of the Triangle exchange here, to succeed James H. Butner, transferred to Washington. Mr. Given, who is not yet thirty, becomes therefore one of the youngest exchange managers. He is, however an experienced film man, having been traveling representative and at one time, acting manager of the Famous Players Exchange before coming to Triangle.

Several tested efficiency systems are being inaugurated by the new manager, which it is expected will facilitate the prompt handling of Triangles.

Mr. Given finds Triangle very popular in his territory. Every exhibitor handling the program expresses himself as pleased, consequently a large increase over last year is confidently expected.

According to exhibitors in Cape May, Ocean City, Sea Isle City and Seaside Park —nearby seaside resorts—Triangle Pictures proved more popular in these points than any others this summer.

Harry Schwalbe, manager of the Electric Theatre Supply Company, has acquired from the Unity Sales Corporation the Serial Film Company's "Yellow Menace" with Edwin Stevens.

The Electric exchange will handle the sixteen-part serial in Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia.

Forty bookings have already been secured on "Menace" and before its release date September 4, one hundred are expected. This picture will have its first showing in Philadelphia at the Ruby, Market and Marshall streets, one of the Stanley houses.

P. F. Glenn, who is managing the serial for Mr. Schwalbe, has just recovered from a tonsil and adenoid operation, which he says is more trying than any film he ever handled. Mr. Glenn has had much experience in serials, having made a specialty of this branch. He was with the General Film Company and later with Mutual. For the latter he managed "The $1,000,000 Mystery," their first serial.

Grelle Goes to St. Louis

Harry F. Grelle, manager of the Supreme Film Corporation, has gone to St. Louis and Kansas City, in which cities he will open branch offices for the distribution of the releases controlled by Supreme in the Western states.

"Where Are My Children?" at its premier performance in the Grand Central theatre of St. Louis played to a record breaking crowd in spite of exceptionally hot weather.

Mr. Grelle has booked this picture for the Willis-Wood theatre in Kansas City. The date has not yet been decided upon.

Simon Libros, manager of the National Poster Exchange, reports business in his line (which is the renting of posters and other advertising matter) as having held its own all summer, while the outlook for the fall season is quite encouraging. Mr. Libros is assisted by his brother Oscar, who handled the selling end of the exchange.

"Yellow Menace" Breaking All Records for Bookings

Andrew J. Cobe, in Trip Through Southeast and Southwest, Reports Unprecedented Business for Unity Sales' Serial from the Exchanges

HAVING completed a tour of the exchanges in the Southeast and the Southwest, who are handling "The Yellow Menace" serial in their respective territories, Andrew J. Cobe, of the Unity Sales Corporation, is now visiting the Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions in Chicago, who are distributing "The Yellow Menace" in that territory, and the United Film Service, who are distributing "The Yellow Menace" in the fourteen Western States with executive offices and headquarters in Chicago.

"The contract announced last week," writes Mr. Cobe, "whereby the United Film Service has booked the entire Pantages Circuit with twenty-six cities in the West to show 'The Yellow Menace' is but another proof of our claim that this serial is breaking all records for bookings.

"Our Chicago office reports that all through that territory the exhibitors are tremendously impressed with the drawing power of this serial and the exchange is more than pleased with the large number of contracts which they have already made. I will be in Chicago on Monday, when 'The Yellow Menace' is presented to the public for the first time in many prominent Chicago theatres. From Chicago I will proceed to Milwaukee, Minneapolis, then through Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh to New York. This tour of our exchanges is being made to keep ourselves posted on the kind of serials and features which the exhibitors in these territories are most interested in.

"We propose to give them the very best features that can be procured and to satisfy the wants of their public as expressed through the box office. We know positively that no exchange which has booked 'The Yellow Menace' will lose a cent on their contracts, and we have established for ourselves a standing with these exchanges that will enable us to offer them bigger and better features than ever."

The Unity Sales Corporation has completed arrangements for Margaret Gale, who plays the role of the persecuted heroine in "The Yellow Menace," to make a tour of the Unity Exchanges and appear on the stage of the largest theatres in the cities where "The Yellow Menace" is being exhibited. The tour will require several weeks and Miss Gale's first appearance was in the historic Boston theatre, Monday night, September 4.

On account of the threatened railroad strike, it was at first feared that Miss Gale might not be willing to undertake so doubtful a journey.

MONTGOMERY TO DIRECT "SPIRIT OF '76"

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.

Frank Montgomery has been engaged by a film company being organized in Los Angeles by M. Goldstein, to direct the production of a multiple reel feature to be titled "The Spirit of '76." The company expects to build a studio in Hollywood, where its producing activities will be carried on. Montgomery has had a wide experience as director, having made subjects for Kalem, Universal and Horsley.

"LESS THAN DUST" IS FIRST MARY PICKFORD SUBJECT "BY HERSELF"

The announcement is made by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, which will present all the new productions to be made by Mary Pickford with her own company as an independent star, that Miss Pickford has selected the title of her first master picture. It is "Less than the Dust," written by Hector Turnbull, who credits his inspiration for the plot to the poem of the same name by Laurence Hope.

Mary Pickford in "Less Than the Dust"

It is also announced that the picture will be ready for distribution by Artcraft early in October. Miss Pickford is giving "Less than the Dust" an artistic and costly production and has assembled a notable supporting company. John Emerson is in charge of the production, which when completed will furnish a complete entertainment.

Miss Picford promises a new characterization as a little English girl whom misfortune places in an East Indian setting. Her director has taken opportunity for the display of picturesque settings and has endeavored to inject and retain all the atmosphere and mysticism of the Far East.

VAN TREES INVENTS NEW TYPE CAMERA STAND

Cameraman James Van Trees, who is responsible for the photography in many of the recent Morosco-Pallas releases, has invented a new type of camera stand, which, it is claimed, will make picture taking easy even under the most difficult circumstances.

Profiting from his experiences and troubles on his last trip to the San Bernardino Mountains, at which time he was forced to "shoot" many scenes for "The Stronger Love" under extreme difficulties Mr. Van Trees has made a stand that will hold his camera steady in the most risky positions. Although the inventor will not allow anyone to see his new device at this time, it is understood that the stand is a one legged affair and has a balancing arrangement on the order of the gyroscope.

Increased Cost of Production Hits Cleveland Exhibitors

Within Next Three Weeks Three East End First Run Houses Will Raise Their Admission Prices—Theatres Affected Are the Alhambra, Knickerbocker and Metropolitan

Special to Motion Picture News.

Cleveland, Sept. 2.

INCREASED cost of motion pictures has hit Cleveland with a jolt, and within the next week the three East End first-run theatres will raise their admission prices.

The theatres affected are the Alhambra, Knickerbocker and Metropolitan. Up to the present their prices have always ranged between ten and twenty cents. Starting Friday, September 1, the Knickerbocker will charge from fifteen to twenty-five cents. The Metropolitan will follow suit on September 3, and the Alhambra as soon as repairs now being made are completed. This probably will be early next week.

A combination of causes has brought about the admission price increase which first-run exhibitors have known for months was inevitable. Downtown first-run houses, the Strand, Orpheum and Standard, have charged the fifteen to twenty-five cent scale evenings, Saturdays and Sundays for some months.

All summer, however, the East End houses have maintained the ten and twenty cent rate, despite the falling off in attendance due to extremely hot weather and the gradually increasing cost of first-run features.

Managers are now calling attention to the fact that in the face of these profit-killing conditions, they have in no way lowered the standard of their houses. In each of the three theatres affected by the coming increases, orchestras have been maintained at full strength and all forms of house service have been kept up to the winter season point.

"Foremost among the causes for the high cost of pictures," said one exhibitor, "is the boosted cost of production, and in this to a very large extent figures the absurd salaries now paid the stars. As an evidence of this, one Cleveland theatre manager in New York last week, was told that the pictures to be released by a newly formed producing company may be had by any first-run theatre at the rate of $2.000 a week and then only if the theatre signs a contract to run the picture two weeks, making a total of $4,000.

"Another series of star pictures will cost exhibitors $1,000 a week on the two-week run basis. No announcement has yet been made as to the cost of two or three of the forthcoming star pictures, but it is taken for granted that they will be equally prohibitive."

Instead of the cost to exhibitors being lowered, there is said to be every evidence that it will go still higher. Even during the quiet of the summer months the cost has been going up gradually, and with the opening of the fall season, Cleveland exhibitors look for still further jumps.

On top of this, the musicians' union has made demands for wage increases to begin September 1. These must be met by the exhibitors, and the only solution is the admission price increase.

State Campaigns on "The Fall of a Nation" Are Booming

Hatch, Backer, Roberts and Sheppard Keeping Busy in Territory Not Sold to the Vitagraph—V-L-S-E Offices Report Great Demand for Bookings

THE National Drama Corporation announces that the campaigns of its state rights contractors are in no way affected by the sale of the rights for the rest of the country to the Greater Vitagraph.

While the V-L-S-E offices are making big preparations for the release date of September 18, state right buyers are likewise working overtime in the sections of the map marked off for them. These are Ohio, sold to J. Frank Hatch; New Jersey, which F. E. Backer of the Nation Film Corporation, 729 Seventh avenue, controls; West Virginia, the demesne of R. R. Roberts, with executive offices at 126 West Forty-sixth street, and Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma, which belong to W. K. Sheppard, who is located at 410 Southwestern Life Building, Dallas.

Following the recent run of "The Fall of a Nation" at the Euclid Avenue Opera House, Cleveland, Mr. Hatch is putting the Dixon Herbert spectacle into Akron, East Liverpool and Marion for Labor Day week engagements.

He has reserved time at the Valentine theatre, Toledo, and the Hartman theatre, Columbus, for extended engageemnts, and will open a notable run in Cincinnati with the advent of the cooler weather.

As illustrating the demand for Dixon plays in Ohio, this live contractor states that he received 400 immediate acceptances of bookings in response to a thousand circular letters. The Ohio offices of "The Fall of a Nation" are 216 Columbia Building, Cleveland.

Another live wire is F. E. Backer who with a corps of salesmen is attending to the needs of New Jersey. R. R. Roberts has arranged to play all the leading theatres of West Virginia, beginning with a week's engagement at the Court theatre, Wheeling, September 4. And as for the enterprising Sheppard of Dallas, there are roseate reports from all the Texas cities from the North Texas metropolis down to San Antonio wherein a half dozen prints are now working.

WHITAKER TO HANDLE PICKFORD PICTURES IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

Another Washington, D. C., exchange has given a man to the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. This is V. P. Whitaker, formerly roadman for the Paramount exchange, and now manager of the Washington offices of the Artcraft. Suitable quarters have been secured at 1320 F street and these are being put in commodious departments for the exchange.

The fact that the Mary Pickford pictures will be distributed from there has at once established a line of theatres for this output. Mr. Whitaker speaks very enthusiastically of the fall and winter outlook of the Artcraft productions.

A Vital Theme is Necessary for a Classic Picture

With an Idea Far-reaching in Its Influence on Humanity Used for Purposes of Visualization by Aid of the Screen, a Director May Expect to Produce a Living, Breathing Spectacle Capable of Moving the Hearts of Millions, Declares Griffith

"A MOTION picture director is nothing more or less than a day laborer." That sounds like a rather startling statement coming from D. W. Griffith, but that is literally Mr. Griffith's conception of his work. Continuing, he said:

"Motion picture directing is nothing more or less than day labor, the ability to work in the hot sun for period of ten and twelve hours at a stretch, frequently with the thermometer registering one hundred and twenty degrees. If that is not day labor I do not know what constitutes labor. That is all directing amounts to. But the successful director in addition to his ability to work in the hot sun during the day must be ready to come home and labor half the night planning out his work for the future. That is a basic rule, however, and applies to every other form of labor just as much as to picture making. The successful man is the one who can labor hard at his work during the hours of daylight and then has the force and the power to come home at night and still go on."

Mr. Griffith then went on, and not satisfied with one startling statement made another, this time to the effect that the director, the man who has done most for the advancement and development of the motion picture has been the poorest paid. "That is," he said, "the poorest paid in proportion to the amount of work done and the amount of money that has been made as a result of the birth and development of the picture. I do not know of any millionaries among the directors, even those with the greatest reputations, yet the number of millionaires among those who have benefited as a result of the directors work are legion.

"In this respect, though 'The Birth of a Nation' made thousands upon thousands of dollars, yet little of that enormous income came to me. Mr. Dixon, the author of the book, made more money out of 'The Birth of a Nation,' than I did, yet if you have read the book you know that practically only one scene from it was used, that of the marching of the clan. Do not think that I am trying to disparage Mr. Dixon's work, or the amount of money which he received for it. It was the idea underlying the book that made it valuable.

"It was a big idea, and as such was worth every cent that he was able to get out of it; any good idea is worth every cent that its originator can get out of it. The only point that I am trying to make is that the director, the man who takes the idea and increases its earning capacity until it runs up into the hundreds of thousands, seldom benefits from a monetary standpoint in proportion to that which he has created and made.

The Idea Compelled Expression

"Many of my friends told me when I started work on this new picture, 'Intolerance,' that I was making a mistake, that I should go to work and produce another spectacle such as the first one, only using a different period, a different set of circumstances. This was also my own judgment, but the idea for this picture was in me, and I had to give it expression.

"I have tried to show by means of this picture that intolerance is one of the weak spots of civilization. I have taken this theme and shown it throughout the development and growth of civilization, using the four great periods in the world's history, the Babylonian civilization, the period of the Nazarene in Palestine, the period of the Medici in France, and then our modern life. There is not what you might call a connected story running through the whole spectacle; it is what might be expressed as a theme story, the development of the theme making the story.

"I have endeavored to make the incidents which I have shown on the screen of such a nature that the audience on viewing the picture conceives and elaborates the story in its own mind. In other words, the greatest value of the picture will be in its suggestive value to the audience, in the manner in which it will force it to create and work out the idea that I am trying to get over. I have made little or no attempt to tell a story, but I have made an attempt to suggest a story, and, to my mind, it is a mighty big story. Whether or not it will succeed in its object remains to be seen."

Mr. Griffith then went on to sketch briefly his conception of the future of the picture, stating that it would be largely instructive. "That reminds me," he said, "of a recent conversation I had with Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, in which he said that irrespective of all that he had read of history, of all that his professors had been able to tell him, he received a clearer conception of the actual manners and customs of the people in the short time in which he viewed this picture than all the reading and studying that he had done throughout his life.

"He illustrated this by calling my attention to a catapult saying that he always had a hazy idea of what a catapult was, but that it was not until he saw one in actual operation, as shown on the screen that it became crystallized in his mind.

"And so it is with every phase of the historical picture; it presents manners, customs, and costumes so vividly before the eye that they cannot help but be comprehended. The historical picture must be like the historical novel. It will do more good and be a greater agent of instruction if it is put together with the sugar coating of romance. It is absolutely necessary that the romance carry the facts and not the facts the romance.

"I hope that this new picture will be the means of pointing the way to an enlargement of the scope and field of the motion picture, that it will effectively show that the picture is not limited in its development to the narrow confines of the legitimate stage. Its development during the past has been confined almost entirely to these lines, but the motion picture is bigger than the stage, and I believe that the time has arrived, for it to throw off the narrow limitations that have hedged it about during its life so far. Whether my picture will do all of the things which I hope that it will do remains to be seen. We cannot tell until the public have had an opportunity to sit in judgment, but whether it does or not I know that my effort has been sincere. This much I do know, I have done something that is radically different from what has been done before in motion pictures; whether it has been done successfully remains to be seen. It is all in the hands of the public."

Censors Will Probably Reconsider "Victory," Lasky

Picture Failed to Please at First Showing to Pennsylvania Board, But on Representations of Friend and MacAlarney, They May Reverse Decision

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2.

DESPITE Jesse L. Lasky's hearty indorsement of the photoplay, "The Victory of Conscience," with Lou-Tellegen as the star, recently produced at the Lasky studios and released on the Paramount program last week, the Pennsylvania Board of Motion Picture Censors entered officially their disapproval of certain sections of the picture.

Arthur S. Friend, general counsel, and Robert MacAlarney, photodramatist, both of the Lasky Company, have been in Philadelphia trying to reconcile the Pennsylvania board to "The Victory of Conscience." Mr. Lasky personally went on record, and is more than pleased with it, and Paramount exhibitors all over the country have awaited the release.

When the picture was shown to the Pennsylvania Board it didn't entirely please. The dramatic values were appreciated, but some of the scenes, showing Cleo Ridgely as a dancer in a Parisian restaurant, were ordered eliminated. Later in the picture Lou Tellegen as a dispenser of the gospel and a worker for the good of the masses also makes his appearance in the dance hall. The fact that the priest, prior to taking the vows, had been the cause of the girl's downfall, aids considerably in heightening the interest of the situation.

So much of the photoplay was ordered eliminated that the Lasky office asked the censors for a reshowing. Subsequently the picture was analyzed, and it is probable that it can be arranged for the censors in a manner that will bear their indorsement.

FIRST NUMBER OF RIO GRANDE RATTLER, REGIMENTAL WEEKLY, RECEIVED

Howard Irving Young, the Metro scenario writer who is at the Mexican border with the Seventh Regiment, N. Y. N. G., has been made associate editor of the Rio Grande Rattler, an eight-page weekly newspaper which is being published by the New York division. Corporal Conrad Crawford, Company B, Seventh Regiment, formerly of the New York Sun, and a brother of Merritt Crawford of Metro, is also an associate editor.

Several copies of the Rattler have been received in New York, and it looks like a regular newspaper. In addition to many columns of live and pertinent news stories the Rattler boasts of several interesting departments. Mr. Young conducts a column of paragraphs, short poems, etc., under the title of "The Incinerator." Mr. Crawford has the lead news story in Vol. 1, No. 1. The Rattler has a cartoonist and everything.

One of the striking features of the newspaper is its advertising. There are many columns of it, including one prominent advertisement for ice and an entire page given over to a well-known mineral water. The nearest motion picture theatre, the Electric theatre at Mission, Texas, some twenty miles or so away, carries a reader in the Rattler. Manager Humason, according to the reader, is featuring a Charlie Chaplin for the coming week and announces a Metro picture for the week following.

MUTUAL'S AFFILIATED CONCERNS MOVE TO CHICAGO

In conformity with the general migration of the Mutual forces to Chicago, the following corporations handling features in conjunction with the Mutual program have moved their offices from the West Twenty-third Street address to the Consumers' Building, 222 State Street, Chicago: The North American Film Corporation, distributors of "The Diamond from the Sky"; the States Film Corporation, distributors of "The Girl and the Game"; The Secret of the Submarine department, distributors of the serial of the same name, and The Lone Star Corporation, distributors of the "Charlie Chaplin Specials." All communications should be addressed to the new Chicago executive offices mentioned above.

Cleveland League Committee Meet for Wage Demands

Body Serves Its Demands for Arbitration with the Federation of Labor Over the Question of Increased Pay to Operators—Ernest Schwartz Is Chairman

Special to Motion Picture News.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors' League held a short meeting on Tuesday, at which Ernest Schwartz, chairman of the committee of eight appointed to deal with the operators' union in regard to their increased wage scale demand, made his report. The committee has served its demand for arbitration upon the Federation of Labor. This will prevent any immediate hostile action on the part of the operators, as neither a strike nor a boycott order can eminate from the labor union while they are in the state of arbitration.

The committee consisting of Ernest Schwartz, chairman, S. Aubrey, John Sliney, Henry Lustig, W. J. Slimm, S. F. Deutch, Sam Bullock, William Miller and Benjamin Sawyer, President of the League, met with the operators' committee at 3:30 on Tuesday, at the Federation of Labor rooms, 310 Prospect avenue, where the views of both sections were laid before Mr. Owen, secretary of the Federation of Labor. Failing to come to an agreement, the matter was turned over to the Grievance committee of the Federation, with which the League committee will meet Friday at 2:00 o'clock with the hopes of making a final settlement without resorting to arbitration.

Successful Film Abroad to Follow "Fantomas," Gaumont

"The Vampires, the Arch Criminals of Paris," Released in Nine Complete Episodes of Three Reels Each Here, Made Hit in Principal French Cities

EVEN before the orders had begun to reach Mutual branches for "Fantomas," the Gaumont series in five episodes of three reels each, the Gaumont Company had planned to follow these screen stories with a second series equally as effective under the general title of "The Vampires, the Arch Criminals of Paris." This second series will be in nine complete episodes of three reels each. They will be released weekly; and as the last "Fantomas" picture will reach the screen October 5, it is likely that the first "The Vampires" episode will be released soon afterward.

"The Vampires" has been exhibited abroad with marked success. When released by Gaumont abroad it broke all records at the Gaumont Palace, Paris, the largest cinema theatre in the world, and duplicated its success in Marseilles, Lyons, Bordeaux, Toulouse, Tours, Nantes, Angers, Rouen, Orleans and other important cities in France.

"The Vampires" was released in England by the Gaumont Film Hire Service as "The Crime Investigator." It is a series of detective stories which follow the fortunes of a reporter of a Paris newspaper in his efforts to unravel the mysteries surrounding the criminal exploits of The Vampires, a notorious gang of criminals.

"The Dark Silence" Is a Clara Kimball Young Picture

Subject, World, Directed by Albert Capellani, Is a Parisian Drama Containing Scenes of Peace and War and Its Heroine, an Artist, Becomes a Nurse for Wounded Soldiers

A NEW Clara Kimball Young play, "The Dark Silence," will be issued shortly by the World Film Corporation.

This will signalize the reappearance of Miss Young in the motion picture theatres after an absence of four months' duration, her last previous photoplay having been issued by the World at the beginning of May.

"The Dark Silence" is to be a regular World pictures program releases. It is a Parisian drama, containing scenes of peace and war, and its heroine, an exceedingly successful young artist in the French capital, also becomes a nurse of the wounded soldiers.

The love story of which the setting is thus indicated illustrates the rivalry between a young physician and a nobly born Englishman for the heart and hand of the beautiful artist-nurse. It is through the girl's broken hearted disappointment at the supposed desertion of the man she really loves that she throws herself into the work of caring for the wounded and battle-torn soldiers.

This picture was produced under the direction of Albert Capellani.

Strike Scare Emphasizes Picture Preparedness

Prospect of Nation Wide Railroad Tie-up Causes Manufacturers and Exchangemen to Bestir Themselves and Extensive Plans Are Laid for Moving Releases in Spite of Train Paralysis—New National Association Distinguishes Itself by Prompt Action of Committees in Devising Ways and Means Out of the Difficulty

THE recent scare relative to the possibility of a nation wide railroad strike served as an exceptional opportunity for bringing to the front the efficacy and efficiency of the newly organized National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

A meeting of the association was called on Thursday morning, August 31, to consider the manner in which the situation should be handled in case the strike went into effect. The meeting was enthusiastic in the extreme and served to indicate the great interest that is being manifested in the new association.

It also served the purpose of officially opening the new offices of the association on the eighth floor of the Times Building.

In the absence of William J. Brady, the president, Don J. Bell presided, and after listening to a short address by the traffic manager of the American Express Company, a committee of ten was appointed to consider ways and means of devising a nation wide distribution of films by means of motor truck and boat, and that in case the strike was of such a nature that the railroads would find it impossible to operate trains.

Committees Appointed to Act

This committee met immediately after the regular meeting adjourned and appointed the following sub-committees: a committee to call on the traffic managers of all the express companies and ascertain what facilities for the handling of film they would be able to offer in case of a strike; a committee to investigate the delivery of films by water; and a committee to inquire into the number of motor trucks it would be necessary to secure an option on and the amount of money necessary for such options.

Telegrams were sent out to the thirty distributing centers of the country advising exchange managers what had been done by the association and advising that they pursue the same methods. The question of limiting all production while the strike was in force was also considered, and the committee decided to ascertain the opinions of the various heads of the producing companies on this subject.

Those present at the meting were E. H. Goldstein, M. H. Hoffman, S. B. Kramer of Universal; H. M. Davis, Jack Kraemer of Unicorn; P. A. Parsons of Pathe, W. E. Atkinson of Metro, W. E. Raynor of Kleine, H. H. Buxbaum of General Film, Hiram Abrams, Kenneth Hodkinson of Paramount, E. E. Shauer of Famous Players, Harry A. Samwick of Ivan, Messrs. Cohen and Saunders of Metro, Messrs. Hatrick and Berger of International and Don J. Bell, P. A. Powers, F. H. Elliot and William M. Seabury.

Fox and Kalem Were Prepared

The committee of ten consisted of Messrs. Abrams, Hoffman, Parsons, Saunders, Buxbaum, Partridge, Graham, Shaeffer, Weiss, and Justice.

In case of a nation wide railroad strike the Kalem Company had made arrangements to ship all of its negative stock from its studios at Los Angeles and Jacksonville to New York by water. The negatives from the west coast were to be shipped via the Panama Canal and those from Florida by means of the Clyde Line steamers. Arrangements were also worked out for the shipping of positive films to a majority of the General Film exchange centers by water and by trolley.

The Fox Company state that it had completed arrangements for a nation wide aeroplane service. When the talk of a strike first started William Fox arranged with one of the largest aeroplane manufacturers in the United States for a service of fleet aeroplanes. Routes were mapped out so that the fliers of the air would be able to work in conjunction with trolley cars and automobiles. The first delivery in case of a strike was to be to the Cleveland office and plans were made covering the whole eastern section of the United States.

Paramount Planned Motor Service

Hiram Abrams, president of Paramount, had completed arrangements for the delivery of films to all of the Paramount exchanges by means of automobile in case of a railroad strike. He had entered into communication with motor truck manufacturers for the use of a large number of trucks in case things came to a crisis, and had telegraphed all of the Paramount exchange managers to make the same arrangements.

Holmes Ready to Spring New Ones for Paramount

In His Fall and Winter Releases the Traveloguer Will Take Screen Patrons Through England, the Alps, Scotland, Ireland, Greece and Egypt

BURTON HOLMES, traveler and lecturer on travelogues, who has just returned from a ten weeks' tour of the far north, has made some interesting plans for the Paramount Travel Pictures for the fall and winter season, which are released weekly through the Paramount Pictures Corporation in single-reel releases of "easy-chair-journeys-around-the-world."

Beginning with September, Mr. Holmes will take his fellow-journeyers to England, after having spent the hottest days of the summer in the Alps climbing snow-capped peaks and the like, and while on the English tour will visit the "Sunny South of England," from where the trip leads by auto through a more northern section, getting "Glimpses of English Town and Country," from where the travelers go to Glasgow and Edinburgh, and follow that with a visit to "Bonnie Scotland," only to leave that land to visit the homes of the Scotch-Irish and the land of the emerald. "In Old Ireland" Mr. Holmes has obtained some pictures which will soon be shown for the first time in this country.

Having then completed the tour of the British Isles a hurried jump will be made to "A Grecian Journey," and after a stay in that vicinity for some time the travelers will be given a rare opportunity of witnessing "The Olympian Games in Athens" and a "Marathon Day in Greece," both of which are full of action and interest.

"Modern Egypt" is then visited, and "The Real Streets of Cairo" form another interesting trip from where the journey takes the travelers "Round About the Pyramids," on which trip the following release is made up of a unique set of travel pictures under the title of "An Egyptian Round-Up." There are few more interesting places to visit in this vicinity of the world than "Up the River Nile," from where a "trip-for-a-tip" is taken to "Luxor and Karnak," which is no other than traveling in ancient Egypt, ending the journey "On the Nubian Nile."

These journeys as Mr. Holmes has routed them for each week will carry him up to the end of December. He has a Christmas and New Year's surprise for exhibitors, he advises Paramount, in the form of a three-reel feature, which will be the only authentic pictures of a certain class of people and their homes, their habits, and modes of living, their customs and costumes, that have ever been presented in the United States.

ADVANCE PRINT OF "THE INTRIGUE" ARRIVES IN NEW YORK FROM PALLAS STUDIO

Closely following Lenore Ulrich's return to New York from the Pallas Pictures studios, Los Angeles, an advance print of her new photoplay, "The Intrigue," arrived at the New York offices of the company last week. Immediately upon its arrival the film was viewed by several New York film men, who enthused over it.

In speaking of the new Ulrich subject, Carl H. Pierce, head of the Pallas offices, New York, said: "'The Intrigue' is, indeed, a masterpiece from every standpoint and all who have seen it agree that it is a Paramount offering in every sense of the word. I thought, as I looked at this photoplay, of the many remarks that have been made by our studio authorities concerning the production that would combine all the necessary artistic punch without lapsing into the cheap melodrama. 'The Intrigue' is a fine example of just such a production."

As the beautiful Countess Sonia Varnli, a secret service spy, Lenore Ulrich appears in the stellar role. Supporting her are Cecil Van Auker, Howard Davies, Herbert Standing, Florence Vidor and Paul Weigel. The production will be released on the Paramount Program, October 2.

PHOTODRAMATIC INSTRUCTION WILL PROBABLY BE PART OF COLLEGE COURSE IN BIG UNIVERSITIES

Announcement that the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company was to produce with Fannie Ward as the star, the Columbia University Prize Photoplay, "Witchcraft," by R. Ralston Reed, has created an interest in photoplay writing among the dramatic classes of other universities in the country. The success of the Columbia competition, which was conceived by Samuel Goldfish, will prompt the Lasky Company to extend its facilities of production to the winning photoplay written by students of other colleges.

In the past the study of stage and dramatic art has been given considerable time and attention in the curriculums of various universities.

In encouraging the work of writing at Columbia University the Lasky Company was among the first to appreciate and acknowledge the great necessity of better material for the motion picture screen. It was evident months ago that the time was not far distant when the motion picture, if it were to develop and grow in the future as it has in the past, would have to create its own literature.

Columbia University was the first of the big colleges to establish a class of photodramatics. It is likely that this autumn similar classes will be started by Yale, Harvard University, University of Chicago, and other large educational institutions.

TERRY RAMSAYE AND MUTUAL PUBLICITY FLITS WEST

The following official notice has been received from Terry Ramsaye, director of publicity for the Mutual Film Corporation:

"With a view to facilitating service and meeting increasing demands from publications in all parts of the United States and Canada the Publicity Department of the Mutual Film Corporation is removing to Chicago.

"The new office of the Publicity Department will be opened Tuesday, September 5, on the eleventh floor of the Consumers Building at 220 South State street, Chicago, Ill.

"Kindly make note of the change of address for all mail intended to reach us subsequent to August 30."

Pathe Serials for 1917 Are Based on Three Widely Read Novels

The First Is Scenarioized from "The Journal of a Neglected Wife" and Its Sequel, "The Woman Alone"—The Second Is Founded on "The Double Cross"

WITH Pathe's serial program for 1916 completed, J. A. Berst, vice-president and General manager, announces that production of the first two serials for 1917 is already under way.

The first of the 1917 serial productions will be based on "The Journal of a Neglected Wife" and its sequel, "The Woman Alone," by Mabel Herbert Urner, whose stories have been read by millions in the Hearst publications, and more recently in a large list of metropolitan newspapers served by the McClure Syndicate.

"The Journal of a Neglected Wife" and "The Woman Alone" tell the story of "the eternal triangle"—the loving wife, the neglectful husband, and "the other woman." So as to be certain that her characters will be faithfully portrayed on the screen, Mabel Herbert Urner is adapting the stories for film reproduction.

The serial will feature Ruth Roland, the popular star of Pathe's successful "Who Pays?" series and "The Red Circle" serial, as well as a number of Gold Rooster productions. The serial is being produced by Balboa, with the assistance of W. A. S. Douglas, who has been assigned by Mr. Berst as Pathe's representative at the California studio.

The Astra Film Corporation, which under the direction of Louis J. Gasnier, president, produced "The Shielding Shadow" and some of the most successful of the Gold Rooster productions, has been selected to produce the second of the 1917 series. The story is founded on Gilson Willetts's famous novel, "The Double Cross." Leon Bary was chosen for the lead because of his acting in "The Shielding Shadow," which will be released on October 1. Mollie King will be co-star, with Mr. Bary in "The Double Cross." Her performance in "Kick In," her first release under the Pathe banner, was the reason for this choice. The production of "The Double Cross" started last week under the direction of Donald Mackenzie, of the Astra forces.

Pearl White is starred in the last Pathe serial of 1916, scheduled for release in November. Another member of the all-star cast will be Theodore Friebus, who has a reputation for stock work in Boston and New York City. This will be Miss White's fourth serial.

Friebus will play "the heavy" in this serial. He has a record that no other actor in stock has duplicated. For the past nine years he has been alternating between Boston and New York City. He played for ninety weeks without a break in the Academy of Music in New York.

This serial will have a military setting. It is from the pen of Guy W. McConnell. As part of the national advertising campaign this story will be published in the National Sunday Magazine simulaneously with the release of the picture. The National Sunday Magazine has a circulation of 500,000. It is distributed twice a month with eleven great newspapers, including the Chicago Tribune, the Philadelphia North-American, and the Boston Globe.

"Breakers" Is Second Feature Lately Put in Work by Essanay

The Subject Is Based on a Story by Arthur Stringer and Recently Appeared Serially in the Saturday Evening Post—Washburn and Nell Craig Are Featured in the Picture

WORK now is underway for another feature at the Essanay studios, the rights for which play were recently purchased by George K. Spoor, president of the company. The play is "The Breakers," by Arthur Stringer, which recently was published as a continued story in the Saturday Evening Post.

This is the second five-act feature just started by Essanay, and the two are being put on simultaneously. The other play is "The Chaperon," taken from the stage success by Marion Fairfax. It features Edna Mayo, supported by Eugene O'Brien, and is being directed by Arthur Berthelet.

"The Breakers" will feature Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig. It is being directed by Fred E. Wright, who has just finished the five-act play, "The Prince of Graustark," a sequel to "Graustark," also an Essanay feature. Both plays were written by George Barr McCutcheon. "The Prince of Graustark" features Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton.

All of these new plays will be released through Essanay's new releasing organization, which will be announced in the near future.

Mr. Washburn's role is that of an inventor who is down and out, and who ekes out a meager living by selling novelties from door to door. He meets a counterfeiter on his rounds, who makes a dupe out of him by getting him to take care of a grip filled with spurious bills.

The counterfeiter is arrested a few days later, and the canvasser opens the grip. He finds it filled with money. He is afraid to take it to the police for fear that they will suspect him, so keeps it.

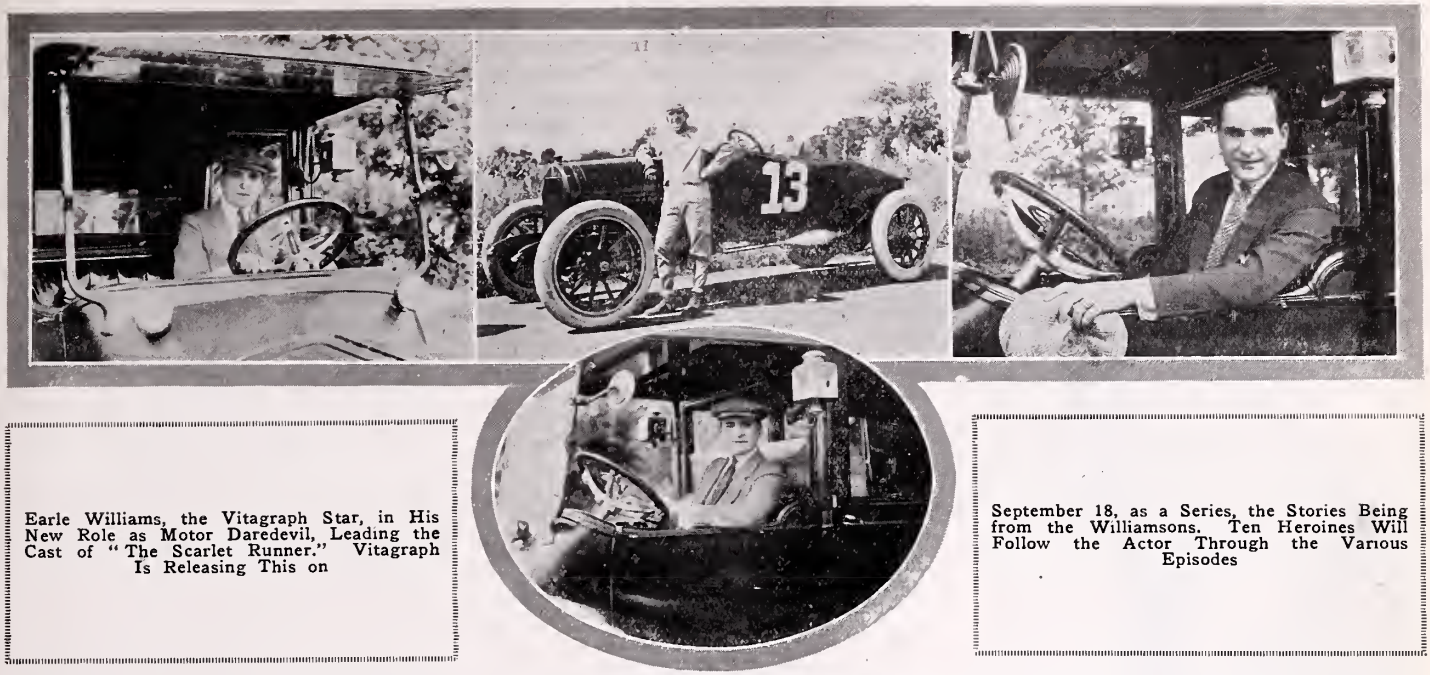
A girl detective is sent out to find the money. She takes a room next to the poor inventor, and pretends to be in dire distress. The inventor comes to her rescue, and when he has not the money to aid her he goes out and spends a counterfeit bill.

She learns of his good heart and quits her job. She then helps him to pay back the money and get rid of the counterfeit. The girl has awakened hope in the man, who had not a friend in the world. She stirs him on to visit some prospects he had been neglecting in his despair, and he finally sells one of his inventions for a large sum. He is put on his feet ,and starts all over again, with the aid of the girl, with a new grip on life.

Nell Craig is well chosen as the girl.

BERGER WILL DIRECT STRAIGHT DRAMA AGAIN

Rea Berger, after directing two Kolb and Dill comedies, is back in the harness directing straight drama. He is just beginning production on a big story dealing with a Chicago underworld theme.



Earle Williams, the Vitagraph Star, in His New Role as Motor Daredevil, Leading the Cast of "The Scarlet Runner." Vitagraph Is Releasing This on September 18, as a Series, the Stories Being from the Williamsons. Ten Heroines Will Follow the Actor Through the Various Episodes

TRIANGLE PATRIOTIC FILM BRINGS OUT FASHIONABLE AUDIENCES FOR CHARITY

The Triangle film "Our American Boys in the European War," during the past week, was shown to hundreds of the rookies at Plattsburg, N. Y., under the auspices of the Ninth Regiment, and continuing on its career as one of the big features of summer resort life, Mrs. Goodrich of York Harbor opened her beautiful home, The Orchard, for two showings Friday the 25th. On the 29th the fashionable colonies of Greenwich, Stamford and Noroton combined for a great benefit for the Field Service. A large and fashionable audience gathered at the Stamford Theatre, where, in addition to a special musical program, Douglas Fairbanks in "His Picture in the Papers" added to the festivities.

On the 29th Gloucester society gathered to applaud the film and swell the Ambulance fund. Next week Bar Harbor will have the picture.

UNIVERSAL IN BOSTON PREPARES FOR REMOVAL TO NEW QUARTERS

The Boston Universal Exchange moves to its new quarters in four weeks, and preparations are being made at the office for the shift. "Shoes," played at the Park theatre last week under the title, "Where Is My Daugher?" and is playing the Franklin Park theatre this week. "Liberty," the twentieth-episode serial, with Marie Walcamp, is booking well.

Baron Hirsh is preparing for the release of the new Helen Holmes film, "Lass of Lumberland," to come the last of September. Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, was a visitor in Boston last week. William Graves, of Lewiston, and N. Merrill, of Portland, were visitors of Mr. Hirsh last week.

When Ralph Pinkham took Mr. Patten's place as assistant manager under Joseph Roth, at the Mutual, Boston, Buck Stein filled the place left vacant by Mr. Pinkham.

Son of Hall Caine Is Engaged by Arrow for a Year in Films

Actor Who Played Role of John Storm 800 Times in England, Will Appear in Screen Versions of His Father's Books for Shallenberger

DERWENT HALL CAINE, only son of Hall Caine, the famous Manx author whose books have sold into the millions of copies, has been brought to the United States by the Arrow Film Corporation to play in a number of its forthcoming feature productions. Included in these may be some of the best known books and plays of Hall Caine, the exclusive motion picture rights to which have just been secured by W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Company.

Derwent Hall Caine was born at Greeba

Derwent Hall Caine

Castle, Isle of Man, where the family has resided for centuries. Although inheriting and developing unusual literary ability, Derwent Hall Caine early in his career showed that he preferred the stage to the pen as a medium of expression. His debut was made at Drury Lane, London, just ten years ago, when he appeared in "The Bondman." His power as an actor increased and he branched out, too, as a manager-producer, concerning himself mostly with plays written by his father.

He played the character of John Storm in "The Christian" more than eight hundred times in London and the English provinces, and followed this as Pete, the title-role of his father's play based on his own book, "The Manxman." Derwent Hall Caine appeared for four successive seasons in London. Then on his own account he leased the Aldwych, a big West End theatre in London. There he produced "The Bishop's Son," playing the role of Dan Mylrea in his father's own dramatic version of "The Deemster." There followed a starring tour in "Drake," written by Louis N. Parker especially for him.

When the American film version of "The Christian" was taken to England it did not meet with the approval of Hall Caine, and an English screen version of "The Christian" was made with Derwent Hall Caine playing the role of John Storm, which he had played so often on the stage. An instance of the popularity of this Derwent Hall Caine film may be cited in the fact that to date its gross receipts in England alone have exceeded $100,000.

The winter before the great war broke out Derwent Caine took a vacation at St. Moritz. While in the Swiss carnival town he engaged in snow sports, in which he is an adept and at which he has won many trophies. In the final event he had the misfortune to break both arms and legs. He was taken to the Isle of Man, apparently a cripple forever, if he recovered at all. But his sturdy strength began to evince itself, and just before the outbreak of the war he was able again to get around.

When England entered into the war the Isle of Man, which is not much larger than the island of Manhattan, on its own account declared war on Germany, and Derwent Hall Caine equipped a small ship, organized its crew, and offered the services of ship and crew to the British navy for duty as a scout ship. The government accepted the ship and its crew—all but Derwent Hall Caine, whose injuries rendered him, in the opinion of the service, unfit for rigorous duty.

SIDNEY DREW ALMOST FORGOT HIS BIRTHDAY

Sidney Drew, the Metro comedian, celebrated his fifty-second birthday on August 28. The story goes that Mr. Drew forgot all about the occasion until Mrs. Drew placed a calendar in a set on which they were about to work in the Rolfe-Metro studio.

Sidney Drew

Subsequently a holiday was called for all members of the Drew comedy company. A dinner was arranged at the Hotel Plaza, at which Mr. and Mrs. Drew entertained S. Rankin Drew, Hartley McVey, Rose McVey, and Catherine Breen. The dinner was followed by a box party at the Empire theatre, where "Sybil," a musical comedy, reopened that night.

SHOWING OF "CRISIS" IN PITTSBURGH ELICITS NEWSPAPER PRAISE

The Pittsburgh Dispatch of Monday, Aug. 28, devotes a large amount of space to a private showing of "The Crisis." In part the newspaper says:

"A private showing of 'The Crisis' produced by the Selig Polyscope Company was given at the Pitt theatre yesterday afternoon, a large part of the audience being from the ranks of moving picture, theatrical and newspaper circles. The picture is a masterpiece in the way of screen art, having the elements that make for a big, interesting and cohesive story; plenty of action; fine acting and fine photography. The story of Churchill's novel has been scenarioized so capably that the excellence of the original has been retained. The acting is superb. The battle scenes are spectacular and finely executed. A horse and rider tumbling down hill is one of the most spectacular features ever caught by the camera. It elicted continued applause at yesterday's showing."

William N. Selig was in Pittsburgh and saw the picture. He was enthusiastic about "The Crisis."

Lasky Obtains Rights to Famous Hopkinson Smith Novel

"The Tides of Barnegat," Whose Locale Is the New Jersey Coast, Is Picked as Vehicle for Blanche Sweet—Marie Doro Begins Work in "The Lash"

THE Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company announces that it has obtained the photoplay rights to the late F. Hopkinson Smith's famous novel of the Jersey coast, "The Tides of Barnegat." It will be placed in production soon with Blanche Sweet as the star. Miss Sweet will take the part of the older of two sisters who is called upon to risk her young life to save the other.

F. Hopkinson Smith was one of the best known American novelists, a reputation gained largely through the great popularity of "The Tides of Barnegat." He was the first to see the great romantic and dramatic possibilities in the lives of the simple folk who lived on the coasts and bays of seabound New Jersey. Generation after generation these people have moved in the same rut until their whole life is surrounded and nurtured with the tradition peculiar to the people of their kind.

In obtaining the rights to "The Tides of Barnegat" the Lasky Company has a novel which has been eagerly sought by photoplay producers since its publication several years ago.

It is one of the probabilities made possible by the consolidation of the Famous Players-Lasky studios that this production, the scenes of which are laid on the Eastern coast, can be made on the locale the author intended. Although the Lasky pictures are usually made in California, the coordination of the studios would make such an interesting event possible.

Under the direction of James Young, Marie Doro, Lasky star, who recently appeared in Paramount theatres in the production "Common Ground," has begun an elaborate picturization of "The Lash" by Paul West.

This will be Miss Doro's third Lasky picture, its predecessors being "The Heart of Nora Flynn" and "Common Ground." For the Famous Players Film Company she appeared in "The Morals of Marcus," "The White Pearl" and "Diplomacy," and for the Triangle she appeared in the production, "The Wood Nymph."

Although Mr. Young has been with the Lasky Company more than six months, his working activities have been confined to Mae Murray, for whom he directed the Lasky-Belasco photoplay, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" and to Blanche Sweet's productions for the Lasky Compaany.

Miss Doro will have a supporting cast including Elliott Dexter, Raymond Hatton, James Neill, James Delmar, Jane Wolff, Veda McEvers and Josephine Rice.

William Farnum Will Be Directed by Raoul Walsh for Fox

Director Now Preparing Story for Actor to Begin Work in After Vacation—Break-away Chair Gives George Walsh a Punch in the Eye for Atmosphere

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.

ANNOUNCEMENT comes from the William Fox studios that in future productions, William Farnum will be under the direction of Raoul Walsh, who is now preparing a story, the filming of which will be taken up as soon as Mr. Farnum returns from his vacation. Since coming to the coast Mr. Farnum has been under the direction of Oscar C. Apfel, and a stock company of four other players have appeared in each subject with him. These are now to be cast with other directors, and each picture Mr. Apfel produces will have a new cast.

Fully half of the three hundred foot stage at the Fox Hollywood studio was in use last week for a setting representing the interior of a large art gallery. The paintings used in this are said to represent an outlay of $125,000, and were secured from some of the homes of the wealthy of Southern California. The collection included several genuine Corot paintings. The locale of this story, in work by Frank Lloyd, is New York and the far northwest, and gives a leading role to Gladys Brockwell, who is supported by William Clifford, George Webb, Jim Farley, little Frankie Lee and Carl Von Schiller.

A break-away chair needed for a rough and tumble fight scene in the photoplay being made by Otis Turner at the Fox studio, was made too well, and as the result, George Walsh last week received a bad cut on the forehead when a sharp point of the chair gouged into the flesh near his left eye. The accident did not interfere with the production, as such a wound was needed for atmosphere, although wholly unintentional. Juanita Hansen appears in this in the role of a waitress, the chief support of Walsh.

The Fox Comedy Company under the direction of Walter Reed is making a subject of the melodramatic type featuring Anna Luther; and Director Charles Parrott and his principal comedian, Hank Mann who is supported by Carmen Phillips, are having summer sport in the juggling of refrigerators, cakes of ice, and similar exercise for another comedy.

JAPANESE GIRL ENGAGED FOR ONE EPISODE OF "BEATRICE FAIRFAX," INTERNATIONAL

Miss Yumiko Nagahara, a diminutive Japanese lady, has been engaged by the International Film Service, Inc., to play the part of Mimosa San in the episode of "Beatrice Fairfax" of that title.

Yumiko, translated into English means Grace. She was born in Tokio less than eighteen years ago. At the age of nine she was brought to this country by her parents and spent several years in Seattle and Los Angeles. She has marked musical talent and appeared in concerts as a piano and cornet soloist in Los Angeles and San Francisco. She also appeared throughout the country in classical and ballroom dances.

Her first appearance in pictures was in "Madame Butterfly." Her work attracted the attention of the International Film Service, Inc., and she was especially engaged to appear with Harry Fox and Grace Darling in the "Mimosa San" episode of "Beatrice Fairfax."

KANSAS CITY PLANS CONVENTION FOR OCTOBER

It is the intention of the members of the Kansas City Screen Club to have a big exposition in which, it is planned, the entire moving picture industry shall participate, in Convention Hall some time in October. The expectations are that a number of stars from different companies will be induced to attend this function.

"The Witching Hour" Is Obtained from Thomas by Frohman

Famous Playwright Gives the Company Screen Rights to Stage Attraction Remembered for Its Three-Year Run in New York—Original Cast for Film Production

AFTER two years of refusing offers for his dramatic masterpiece, "The Witching Hour," Augustus Thomas, noted playwright and directing general of the Charles Frohman interests, has turned over to the Frohman Amusement Corporation the film rights to this powerful play and that vehicle will be the next production of the Frohman Company.

"The Witching Hour," which enjoyed a three-year run at the Liberty Theatre several years ago, is the most important dramatic document Augustus Thomas is responsible for. From the very inception of the multiple-reel feature producers have been offering Mr. Thomas immense sums for the screen rights to this play, but Mr. Thomas resisted every offer. He was firm in his belief that "The Witching Hour" could be revived and that it would run again on Broadway. Recently, however, William L. Sherrill, head of the Frohman Corporation, induced Mr. Thomas to enter into serious consideration regarding the screening of the piece, with the result that contracts were closed last week which permits the Frohman Company to produce the picture.

Efforts are going forward now, through George Irving of the Frohman Company, to secure as many of the original cast as he possibly can to portray their original roles.

John Mason, who starred in the piece during its long run, is engaged to open soon in "Common Clay," in which he starred last season. If arrangements can be made so that Mr. Mason can divide his time between the theatre and the studio, and if his metropolitan engagement is such that it will allow him time enough to complete the picture, Mr. Sherrill will endeavor to prevail upon him to play his original role. In the event that conditions are such as to preclude his doing so, C. Aubrey Smith will undoubtedly be seen as the gambler.

The role of Jack, which stood out so forcibly in the stage piece, will be handled in the screen version by Jack Sherrill; and Edith Taliaferro, who recently completed "The Conquest of Canaan" for the Frohman organization, will in all likelihood be seen in the ingenue part.

Work will begin immediately on the production. Anthony Kelly is completing the scenario, which, according to him, will be full of meaty material for the construction of a six or seven part play.

"The Witching Hour" will be followed by another dramatic tale, equally as important, but from the pen of another famous author.

McGowan to Impress Indians into Service for Signal Film

Many Redmen on the Hoopa Reservation, in Northern California, Will "Give Color" to "The Lass of the Lumberlands"—Three Millionaires as Extras

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.

THE first episode of the coming Signal-Mutual serial featuring Helen Holmes, titled "The Lass of the Lumberlands," will have as a special feature a number of scenes made at the Hoopa Indian Reservation in Northern California, and many of the fourteen hundred Indians at this reservation will take part. This is the first time a motion picture camera has entered the Indian reservation, and it was only after considerable negotiations on the part of Director J. P. McGowan that permission was granted. This will give to the serial a distinction heretofore unexpected.

The Signal Company are meeting with every success possible on their trip in the northern lumber region, and from reports from Arcata, Cal., where they are now located, there is every reason to believe the players have won for themselves a warm place in the hearts of the citizens.

Director J. P. McGowan has learned that funds were needed for some charitable organization, and that a home talent performance was to be given. He suggested to members of the company that they aid in this entertainment, and following it was brought out that the Signal players would produce "Bought and Paid For," the Eugene Walters stage success. Two members of the company had with them copies of the play in their wardrobe trunks, as the result of having appeared in road productions of the drama. Mr. McGowan had also played in it. The cast will include practically every member of the Signal Stock Company, and as soon as the announcement was made that such a performance was to be given, reservations were made, and the entire seating capacity of the local theatre sold out.

While making a scene for the second episode of "The Lass of the Lumberlands," Director J. P. McGowan had the distinction of telling three men who control more than twelve million dollars just what to do in scenes. They are N. H. Falk and A. Heunman, of Arcata, and J. R. Broughton, of Modesto. These three men are pioneer California lumbermen, and control great tracts of timber still untouched by the woodman's axe. All three vowed they would have the checks they received as extra players framed for future reference, so that they might remember their first day's work in pictures.

SELIG HAS NOT SOLD "CRISIS" RIGHTS FOR UNITED STATES AND CANADA

Among the visionary stories that have gained wide circulation among motion picture people recently is one that "William N. Selig has sold the entire rights for 'The Crisis' in the United States and Canada to Mr. So-and-So." This story blossomed out in type recently for a column or so with "interviews" from all those interested.

William N. Selig stated this week: "It would, perhaps, be wisdom for those papers publishing such stories to first verify them. There is absolutely no truth in the statement that I have disposed of all the rights of 'The Crisis' in the United States or Canada. Authoritative announcement anent release and other plans for 'The Crisis' will be made at the proper time."

HUTCHINSON MOTORS TO NEW YORK

Samuel S. Hutchinson and his son, Hobart, are motoring to New York, where they will remain several weeks.

Winston, the younger son, is taking up a course of study at Cambridge, preparatory to entering Harvard this fall.

Mrs. Hutchinson is at Edgewater Beach, where they have occupied a suite since the opening of the new North Shore hostelry.

Chain of Artcraft Exchanges Is Now Virtually Completed

Green and Lichtman, the Live Wires on the Job, Lose no Time in Getting Everything Ready for Releases of Pictures Featuring Mary Pickford

ORGANIZATION of a chain of Artcraft exchanges for the distribution of the productions of the Mary Pickford Film Corporation has been virtually completed by Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft Pictures Corporation, and his general manager, Al. Lichtman. Many of the branch managers are already in their territory and within a week all of the fifteen exchanges provided for in the original plan will be in operation. Mr. Lichtman has recently returned from a swing around the circuit and announces that for purposes of handling the first Mary Pickford production under the Artcraft standard, the following cities will be the centers of distribution:

New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver, San Francisco and Seattle. Negotiations for the handling of Pickford pictures in Canada are approaching a satisfactory conclusion and announcement of the result is expected in the near future.

All of New York state and northern New Jersey will be covered from the main offices of Artcraft at 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, where extensive space has been set aside for the manager, Arthur G. Whyte, and his assistant, Charles S. Goetz. Mr. Goetz was formerly with World Film and more recently with Bluebird.

From the Boston office Samuel Bernfield, formerly in charge of Pathe distribution in that territory, will strive to carry out Miss Pickford's desire that her pictures be shown in every theatre in New England.

B. C. Cunningham, for four years manager for the Mutual in Washington, has been obtained for the Philadelphia exchange of Artcraft. His compact territory includes eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey.

In Washington V. P. Whitaker of the Paramount forces will be the middleman for exhibitors in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and a strip of North Carolina along the northern border.

The rest of North Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi, and all the territory south of these states and east of the Mississippi River are grouped in the Atlanta exchange. This group takes in New Orleans and that part of Louisiana east of the river. C. W. Brandon has been appointed manager. His selection is due to his success as southern manager for V-L-S-E.

Samuel Plame gets the important Pittsburgh exchange, where he formerly pushed Paramount. All of Pennsylvania west of Harrisburg, practically all of West Virginia and that part of Ohio adjacent to Pittsburgh are in Mr. Plame's charge.

Cincinnati is to be the headquarters for southern Ohio, Kentucky and Southeastern Indiana, with Harry M. Berman as manager. Mr. Berman has been the Universal representative here and has been the Metro manager in Kansas City.

Northern Ohio, northern Indiana and the entire state of Michigan will be served by Frank Rutledge in Detroit, where he is well known as manager for George Kleine's enterprises.

Chicago and Minneapolis have been combined under the general supervision of Max Goldstine, who will install staffs selected from the best film men available in that territory. Max Goldstine is to have charge of distribution in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and the adjoining section of Iowa.

The rest of Iowa, all of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and northern Oklahoma are in the Kansas City district. P. C. Wreath, manager of the Kansas City Feature Film Company, has been placed in command here.

From Dallas John J. Rotchford will direct the destinies of Pickford pictures in Texas, Arkansas, southern Oklahoma and Louisiana west of the Mississippi. Mr. Rotchford has served Pathe and Kleine in the section to which he has been assigned by Artcraft.

Arthur S. Kane has left New York to organize three exchanges in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states. He will select managers for branches in Denver, Seattle and San Francisco and will remain in the far west to supervise their operation. Mr. Kane's long career in the motion picture industry includes positions as general manager in New York for Pathe and as assistant general manager for the General Film Company.

With this organization Mr. Greene feels that he has made a good start toward the successful distribution of the new Mary Pickford productions. The first picture in the forthcoming series is scheduled for showing in October, which permits none too much time for handling the mass of applications for early bookings.

"YELLOW MENACE" IS SHOWN TO NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY EXHIBITORS

J. H. Lynch, manager of the Unity Film Service, distributors of "The Yellow Menace" in New York and Northern New Jersey, was host Thursday to one hundred exhibitors who gathered in the Unity Sales Corporation's projection rooms to witness the screening of the entire sixteen episodes of the serial.

All the available space was required to take care of the guests and many were forced to stand up. The first episode was thrown on the screen at nine o'clock in the morning and the last about four in the afternoon, making it decidedly "Yellow Menace" day for those present. The exhibitors remained for the finish and seemed to enjoy the serial as much as any devoted fan might have done.

There will be additional screenings for exhibitors every Tuesday and Friday for the next few weeks and a cordial invitation is extended to all who may wish to come.

The first release of the serial is set for Labor Day and simultaneously with the showing of the picture the story will run in the New York Evening World and other prominent morning and evening papers in this country.

FIFTY EXHIBITORS IN OMAHA SEE "STAIN"

Omaha, Neb., was the scene of a trade showing of the "Crimson Stain Mystery" that broke some records for attendance. Over fifty exhibitors attended the showing, which, according to C. E. Smith, Des Moines manager of the Metro, was exceptionally good. This serial is being handled out of the Iowa capital and this showing in Omaha was for the benefit of Nebraska exhibitors.

Already ten houses in Omaha have contracted for this serial. Mr. Smith and Jolly Jones, who is handling this picture, predict big business for it.

Autumn Likely to Bring More Kalem Producing Companies

Executives, It Is Learned, Are Looking Over the Field Preparatory to Engaging a Number of Additional Directors and Players

THE first reports of fall expansion and increased activity in the picture ranks arrived when the news leaked out last week that Kalem was planning to add several producing companies to its forces. While no definite announcement could be secured as to the type of pictures planned, it was learned that Kalem's executives are quietly looking over the field in preparation for the engaging of a number of additional directors and other members of the new companies.

These plans follow extensive alterations and enlarging at the various Kalem studios in Jacksonville, Los Angeles and New Jersey. The Glendale, California, studio has been enlarged so that it now houses both the "Girl from Frisco" company and the "Hazards of Helen" forces. This latter organization also does a considerable part of its work at the Kalem studio-station on the Salt Lake Railway.

At Hollywood, California, the "Ham" company is now in sole possession, though this studio has also been enlarged to almost double its capacity. The Ivy Close company is at work in Jacksonville, where the George Larkin company begins operations this week on the new "Grant, Police Reporter," series.

During the summer months Kalem has been releasing five reels a week through the General Film program, made up of the two-reel "Girl from Frisco," a one-reel "Ham" comedy, one-reel Ivy Close comedy and the one-reel "Hazard."

MUTUAL ORDERS MORE GAUMONT PRINTS

An evidence of the growing popularity of Gaumont motion pictures is found in the order of the Mutual Film Corporation for additional prints of the Gaumont single reels and the "Fantomas" series, the first episode of which was released September 7.

The single reels are the scenic series, "See America First," with which is a Kartoon Komic by Harry Palmer, "Reel Life," the Mutual Magazine in Film, and the Mutual Weekly.

INCE COMPANY LOSES NEGATIVE

An automobile accident befalling an Ince company while en route home from location in Bear Valley, a distance of 125 miles, caused the exposure of a great quantity of undeveloped negative film, and thus necessitated the company's return to the mountain resort. The film destroyed had a total footage of three thousand feet. When the company returns to the studio a handsome set representing the interior of an Adirondack mountain lodge will be ready for use in the story being produced from the scenario by Mr. Sullivan. This interior in the point of height will eclipse any previous ones of this plant. William Desmond and Margaret Thompson appear in the featured parts with Robert McKim, J. Barney Sherry, Joseph H. Dowling and J. Frank Burke as principal supports.

"Scarlet Runner," a Vitagraph, Is Set for Release on 18th

Each Episode in the Series Is Complete—Director Earle Contributes the First and Fifth Parts and the Other Ten Come from the Hand of Wally Van

SEVERAL months ago when it was first announced that Vitagraph would do a serial picture with Earle Williams in the lead, Albert E. Smith, president of the company, stated that in his opinion, exhibitors would appreciate "The Scarlet Runner," because unlike most serial pictures, each episode told its own story and the exhibitor's patrons missing one or two installments would not lose interest in the series as a whole.

In many respects, "The Scarlet Runner," which has been aptly termed "Vitagraph's Mile-A-Minute Motor Series," is one of the most exceptional pictures ever released by the organization that has produced "The Goddess," "God's Country and the Woman," "A Million Bid," "The Christian," and "The Battle Cry of Peace."

When it was first decided that Earle Williams should appear in a weekly release, the executives of the Vitagraph Company read a great many books before deciding upon "The Scarlet Runner," written by C. N. and A. M. Williamson.

William P. S. Earle, who has recently won his spurs as a Vitagraph director, has contributed to "The Scarlet Runner" series the first and fifth episodes, "The Car and His Majesty," and "The Jacobean House." All of the other ten episodes are directed by Wally Van, whose work is evident in the range of beautiful locations secured that carry out the English atmosphere of the story.

Another difference between "The Scarlet Runner" and most other serials is that the star, Earle Williams, remains impervious to the charms of women until the final two chapters of this series of motor mysteries. The love interest throughout the twelve stories is worked out by ten beautiful women, who have their own affairs of the heart around which the stories centre.

Earle Williams as Christopher Race, owner of the speedy Scarlet Runner, succeeds in portraying the part of Cupid's helper to the satisfaction of everybody.

As the series approaches its close, the genial Mr. Race meets the one girl in a million, portrayed by Edith Storey, and the series literally winds up with a bang when Dorothy Herbert (Edith Storey) deliberately wrecks the car she is driving in order that Christopher Race (Earle Williams) may win.

The first release of "The Scarlet Runner" will be made on September 18. It is entitled "The Car and His Majesty."

Achievements of Political Characters in Pictographs

Arrangements Completed by Paramount for Stories of Accomplishments in Office of Men Like Secretary Franklin K. Lane, of the Department of Interior, and Other Officials

ARRANGEMENTS have just been completed by Paramount Pictures Corporation with the members of the cabinet of President Wilson and other prominent personages in diplomatic circles, for the production of a series of feature screen-magazine stories, entitled "What I Am Trying to Do." They will be released as the leading articles in the Paramount Pictographs.

Pictures have already been made of the stories regarding the accomplishments in office of Secretary Franklin K. Lane, of the Department of the Interior, Secretary Baker, of the Department of War, Secretary Josephus Daniels, of the Department of the Navy, and Admiral Benson, Chief of Naval Operations. Each of the pictures shows in detail the many interesting things these men at the head of the government have done and are doing. Each article is signed personally by the official, which makes the pictures absolutely official and is the authoritative statement in pictures of the men themselves to the public as to what he is doing.

This is the first time in the history of the motion picture industry that this universal language has been used by the highest officials of the Government.

JOHN INCE TO TAKE CHARGE OF PREMIER

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.

John Ince, according to rumors, is to arrive in Los Angeles shortly to take in charge the direction of the Premier Film Company, formerly known as the Nevada. This company has secured rights for filming "The Planters," and is said to have engaged Tyrone Power for twelve weeks to appear in this picture, which is to be made at Guatemala. According to an announcement of C. J. Ward, who is in Los Angeles serving as business manager, the company will depart for South America on September 11.

IOWA STATE FAIR AT DES MOINES IS A GOLDEN HARVEST FOR EXHIBITORS IN THAT CITY

Special to Motion Picture News.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 2.

The week of August 26 was one of golden harvest for Des Moines exhibitors. The annual Iowa state fair was held here that week and the city was packed with visitors. It is estimated that over one hundred thousand persons from the surrounding counties came here to witness the exhibition. And the moving picture shows got their share of the rush. Each night found all downtown houses packed to capacity, many of them turning people away.

At the fair one of the greatest attractions was the motion pictures of the Iowa state militia taken by the state historical department of the mobilization at Camp Dodge, Iowa, in June and July. The picture was in five reels and showed the life of the soldiers from beginning to end. About a dozen managers of picture houses over the state were in and booked the film for their houses.

Glimpses of Two of the Forthcoming Episodes of "The Crimson Stain Mystery," Consolidated's Serial

National Board of Review Passes "Daughter of the Gods"

Committee Viewing the Kellermann Spectacle Sends Fox Congratulatory Letter on His Conforming to the Requirements of the Body

WILLIAM FOX'S film spectacle, "A Daughter of the Gods," starring Annette Kellermann, has been approved in its entirety, without change or suggested alteration of any sort, by the National Board of Review.

Topping off an unqualified approval of the picture, the National Board of Review has put this approval in writing in the form of a congratulatory letter to William Fox.

The letter, which contains a resolution passed by the Board and was transmitted by W. D. McGuire, Jr., executive secretary, is as follows:

"We hand you herewith the report of The National Board in connection with your picture 'A Daughter of the Gods.' In transmitting this report to your company, I beg to inform you as secretary of the National Board that the following motion was passed at the meeting which was attended by some eighteen members. Voted:

That the Fox Film Corporation as producer of this picture be congratulated for having so studiously conformed to the requirements and standards of the National Board of Review in the production of the film, "A Daughter of the Gods."

The above action indicates the National Board's appreciation of the care exercised by your company in assembling the picture and also the discretion your company employed in controlling the director of the production so that he should not be allowed at any time to introduce an element in the film which might react unfavorably when "A Daughter of the Gods" is shown to popular audiences.

The committee felt that the work of Annette Kellermann was highly commendable, particularly the wonderful scenes in which she appeared in the surf.

The members of the National Board of Review and a few invited guests sat with Mr. Fox and the members of his personal organization on Wednesday morning, August 29, at the Academy of Music, Fourteenth Street and Irving Place, New York City, where the private presentation was made.

An orchestra of forty odd pieces played the musical score written for "A Daughter of the Gods," by Robert Hood Bowers, author of many famous Broadway musical comedy successes and the running time of the performance inclusive of the intermission was two hours and forty minutes.

A dozen or more owners of theatres in the larger cities of America were present at the performance as the guests of Mr. Fox.

Coincident with this approval by the National Board, it may be said that William Fox is now virtually ready to make announcement of the opening date for "A Daughter of the Gods," the name of the New York theatre in which it will play and other details of interest throughout the industry and to the American public.

"Power of Evil," by Bronson-Howard, Is Next Moss Film

Picture Is Planned for Release on State Rights Basis, and Tells the Story of a Young Man Who Inherits Hereditary Alcoholism

THE next dramatic production to be released by B. S. Moss on the state rights plan is called "The Power of Evil." George Bronson Howard, the author, has taken for his theme the far-reaching effect of the drink habit, its hereditary influence, and the meshes in which it may entoil its victims.

Mr. Howard explained in a recent interview that it was through the sad plight of a young man of good family who had inherited his father's sins and to whom his attention was called by an interested friend that the idea of the picture was conceived. "My every instinct was aroused against this terrible thing," said Mr. Howard. "This poor boy had fought his desire for drink until circumstances and destiny combined and bested him to his own undoing. This is but a single case. The records show that hereditary alcoholism is much more common than most people think."

"The Power of Evil" will be the first release of the B. S. Moss Picture Corporation under its new state rights plan. Other features that will follow in the near future are "In the Hands of the Law," a picture setting forth the danger of circumstantial evidence; "Boots and Saddles," by Eugene Walter, a timely story of the Mexican border; "The Woman Redeemed," which furnishes a powerful vehicle for the art of Marie Empress; and "One Hour," a sequel to Elinor Glynn's "Three Weeks," and "One Day."

SUIT BROUGHT TO RECOVER CENSOR FEES

S. M. Brewster, attorney-general, has brought suit in the Supreme Court of Kansas at Topeka to give the State of Kansas possession of $9,200,000. The suit is directed against W. D. Ross, moving picture censor. The State collects two dollars for each reel of film that it censors. Many picture concerns have protested these fees, for which reason they have not been paid into the state treasury.

The managers almost to a unit are with the attorney general in his fight to determine the status of the censorship muddle. The managers have engaged attorneys to look after their interests.

"INTOLERANCE" IS GRIFFITH'S BIGGEST PICTURE

D. W. Griffith's latest spectacle, "Intolerance," will be shown for the first time in New York at the Liberty theatre Tuesday night, September 5. This work is the largest production that he has ever made and is the only picture that he has worked on since "The Birth of a Nation." The theme of the picture is of the twentieth century and realistically presents some stirring phases of modern life. Paralleled with it are three additional stories which trace back through the earlier periods of the civilization of the world, showing medieval France under the domination of Catherine de Medici, Jerusalem at the birth of the Christian era and Babylon at the time when Belshazzar's forces were overpowered by Persians under Cyrus.

Over a year of research was required to provide authentic data for these scenes. The costumes of the various periods are said to have been produced with absolute accuracy.

In producing these effects Mr. Griffith has employed the forces at his command after the style of his creative art. Enormous backgrounds embellish his narrative in a way that could not be portrayed in any other form of art possible of condensation into the time covered by an evening's entertainment in the theatre.

An orchestra from the Metropolitan Opera House will accompany the production with a score specially composed for this work, and over one hundred people will be employed behind the scenes to lend realism to the story's progress without intruding into the picture.

ARROW WANTS SCRIPT FOR FEATURE STORIES

W. B. Shallenberger, president of Arrow Film Corporation, Times Building, New York City, announces that the Arrow company is in the market for script of feature stories of at least five-reel length, also for exceptionally strong two-reel episode serial stories. Costume plays or stories of foreign setting are not desired at this time, as Arrow is already well supplied with big picture material of this nature.

What Arrow wants is modern American stories dealing with domestic, economic, sociological and similar problems of everyday life, but plays based merely on sex-exploitation are not desired. "The Woman's Law," the five-reel feature in which Arrow starred Florence Reed, represents the sort of plot that Arrow will buy. Complete synopses, rather than scenarios, should be submitted.

WORK IS WELL UNDER WAY ON FILM BUILDING IN VINE STREET, PHILADELPHIA

Work is well under way on the new film building which will soon raise its walls on Vine street, Philadelphia.

While several buildings have been previously renovated or erected for the use of some particular exchange, this is the first structure in Philadelphia planned to accommodate three or more large exchanges in first-class fashion.

C. S. Jarvis, owner of 1217 Vine street, owns the new building, which will occupy the site 1219 to 1223 Vine street. The architects, Andrew Saner and Company of 908 Chestnut street, have harmonized the new building with 1217 Vine street, thus adding to the symmetry of the whole.

Eventually it is hoped to extend the plan so that another building will rise on the other side of 1217 devoted to film purposes. The whole structure bears the name of Jarvis Building. The film building is a three-story affair, 58 by 140 feet, with a twenty-foot ceiling on the first floor. It will be all of brick, with stone facings for the first floor and terra cotta trimmings above. The first floor, which has already been rented by the Famous Players Exchange, shows plastered walls and ornamental metal ceilings.

The building is of slow burning construction, with the sprinkling system throughout, which adds to its safety. The semi-indirect lighting has been chosen and ample fireproof vaults for the storage of films will be installed. The George Hogg Construction Company is the builder. Mr. Jarvis estimates the cost around $60,000. It is expected to have the building ready for occupancy about February 1.

LIKE DICKENS' FAT BOY, "BABE" HARDY FINDS A PLACE AS A COMEDY SCREAM

Louis Burstein saw a fat boy who had been featured by Pathe in the Wallingford series, and so much of his comedy bore the mark of originality that Burstein formed plans in which "Fatty" would fit.

That was how Oliver Nerville Hardy, better known as "Babe," came to be one of the star comedians in Vim comedies. Babe was born in Atlanta, Ga., in 1893. He comes by his 350 pounds and six feet one inch honestly for both his parents were exceptionally large people.

Babe is a graduate of the University of Georgia, where he obtained honors in baseball, football, and other athletic contests. His athletic training stands him in good stead for without that training he would find it impossible to perform the arduous falls and stunts that he has made a routine part of his work.

His first moving picture engagement was with Lubin and then with Pathe in the Wallingford series and in Starlight comedies.

"CIVILIZATION" PREMIER IN MINNEAPOLIS GOES OFF WITH A BANG

Thomas H. Ince has received a telegram from H. Rathner, manager of the Supreme Feature Film Company of Minneapolis, telling of the success of "Civilization" at its premier in that city. The telegram in part follows: "'Civilization' had its premier presentation here last night, with the greatest ovation known in Minneapolis. The theatre was filled and hundreds turned away. Success repeated this afternoon. Sold out for to-night. The newspapers pronounce spectacle the greatest ever produced. They proclaim Ince a supreme master of production. Thanks for your kind telegram and best wishes."

FINED FOR SUNDAY OPENING

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 2.

D. C. Feegles was tried in the County Court by a jury at Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 24, on charge of keeping his moving picture show open on Sunday, and was fined twenty dollars. About seventy other cases are now pending in the County Court at Fort Worth against managers of moving picture theatres for violations of the State Sunday law. The cases are to be tried, one by one, until all have been tried.

PREPAREDNESS IS SLOGAN FOR RELEASE OF "GRIP OF EVIL"

Although in some localities "The Grip of Evil" has only just been released, word comes from the home office of Pathé that the entire series is completed and ready for release. Exhibitors may be sure that with this preparedness in respect to "The Grip of Evil" there is no fear of holdups.

As yet Pathé has not decided upon the definite length of "The Shielding Shadow," its latest serial. It was intended to allow it to run only fifteen episodes, but if the demand is great enough it will be extended indefinitely. The original fifteen episodes of this serial are also all completed.

The Pathé officials, having witnessed the completed thirty reels of "The Shielding Shadow," have been so well impressed by the work of Leon Barry in the heavy part that they plan to star him as hero in one of the 1917 serials. Mr. Barry has appeared on the stage both in Europe and America. His most prominent engagement was as leading man with Sarah Bernhardt for several years.

The 1917 serial program is already being planned by Pathé. In all probability Pearl White will again be starred in a serial produced by Astra under the direction of Edward Jose. Guy McConnell is given as the author for this picture, and its story will be run in the National Sunday Magazine, which has a circulation of 2,100,000.

CRESCENT ORGANIZED TO MAKE ONE REEL COMEDIES

The latest addition to the field of moving picture production is the Crescent Film Company, which has been organized under the laws of Pennsylvania, with its principal office in Pittsburgh. The following officers were elected:

H. T. DeViney, president; James L. Porter, vice-president; Abe Hansell, treasurer; John I. Pratt, secretary; Cliff B. Nelson, general manager.

It is the intention of the company to manufacture one-reel comedies under the direction of Mr. Nelson, the comedian, formerly playing "big time" vaudeville and one of the younger lights in musical comedies. The comedies will be in series form, and will be called "Muggsie, the Messenger Boy." Five are already complete, and show Muggsie played by Cliff Nelson himself in various occupations.

The first release is "Muggsie at the Bat," which will be released some time next month. Following the first picture, the other releases will be weekly.

YORKE-METRO COMPLETES "MISTER 44"

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.

The Yorke-Metro Company has completed the filming of "Mister 44," featuring May Allison and Harold Lockwood, and Director Henry Otto is now busy in assembling the picture, which will be forwarded to New York within a few days.

General Manager F. J. Balshofer of the Metro has selected the Marie Van Vorst novel laid in Virginia, "Big Tremaine," for this company's next production. The story is now in its sixth edition, and the film version has good dramatic situations.

"Common Law" Flares Out on Huge Electric Sign

"Hide Not Your Light Under a Bushel, But Put it in a Candlestick That All Men May See It," Is Plan Working Well with Pictures Featuring Miss Young

The Selznick-Young Sign as it Appears to Broadwayites After Dark

BY way of impressing upon all New York the importance of Miss Young's coming appearance in his seven-reel production of Robert W. Chamber's famous novel, "The Common Law," Lewis J. Selznick recently had installed on the corner of Broadway and Forty-sixth street one of the biggest electric signs in the heart of the theatrical district.

This illumination is in two parts, one slanting so as to catch the eye of those coming downtown, the other placed so as to be conspicuous for many blocks down the street.

After the first picture is released the letters will be changed to advertise the second production, and so on throughout the year.

The cost of maintaining this advertisement is great, but Mr. Selznick believes it will be worth it, not only in New York but because of the reflex advertising it gives the production throughout the country.

Four styles of twenty-four sheet stands are being distributed throughout the country for the first Clara Kimball Young picture. Mr. Selznick has contracted for $100,000 worth of billboards for the first year, and to make this billboard campaign of still wider scope is supplying all contract exhibitors with as many stands of paper, free of charge as they can use.

Another Broadway location has been secured for a big electric sign now being constructed which will advertise the Herbert Brenon productions, beginning with Nazimova in "War Brides."

International Gathers Literary Laborers at Luncheon

Harry Fox, Comedian and Leading Man in "Beatrice Fairfax" Serial, Sings for the Diners, Fred Beecroft Didn't Tell a Story and Fox and Burger Get Off Snappy Dialogue

HARRY FOX, comedian and leading man in the International Film Service's serial "Beatrice Fairfax" has got the right idea. Believing that there were a whole lot of fine fellows working on the trade and daily papers that devote space to motion pictures who were well worth getting acquainted with, Mr. Fox gave a luncheon on the last day of August to which he invited the aforementioned laborers. It was held in a private dining room of the second floor of the Hotel Wallick, Broadway and 43rd street, New York, where about twenty guests partook of Mr. Fox's bounty.

At the end of the meal Mr. Fox expressed himself as sufficiently well acquainted with the lunchers to sing a few songs. There were no speeches except extemporaneous ones. Mr. Fox and J. K. Burger kept up something that sounded like a snappy dialogue throughout the meal which ought to be copyrighted and played over big time. One remarkable thing about the affair was that Fred Beecroft didn't tell a story.

Those present were Harry Fox, Earl Gulick, W. W. Johnston, Basil Dickey, Theodore Wharton, E. B. Hatrick, Wid Gunning, James Beecroft, Wen Milligan, Charles Condon, Jim Milligan, A. L. Hasse, Fred Beecroft, J. E. MacBride, J. K. Burger, Peter Milne, A. H. Shirk, T. E. Oliphant, Manny Chappelle, J. I. Greene, Mr. Kracht and T. C. Deitrich.

REED, COLUMBIA PRIZE WINNER, GOES TO WEST COAST AS GUEST OF LASKY COMPANY

Dr. R. Ralston Reed, winner of the Columbia University Prize Play Contest held last winter under the auspices of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, left last week for the Lasky studios at Hollywood, California, to be present during the making of his prize photoplay, "Witchcraft," in which Fannie Ward will appear.

Throughout the United States the Columbia University-Lasky Photoplay Contest has attracted wide attention by reason of the fact that it was one of the first serious efforts on the part of a big motion picture company to stimulate the work of college students in writing for the screen.

When the photoplay class at Columbia University was established the Lasky Company through Samuel Goldfish, offered to produce the best play written during the school year and as a prize to send as its guest the winner to California.

William C. De Mille, an alumnus of Columbia University, who since the organization of the Lasky Company has been active as photodramatist and director, chose as the best manuscript one by Dr. R. Ralston Reed, of Morristown, N. J.

"Witchcraft," in addition to Miss Ward will include Jack Dean, Paul Weigel, and Lillian Leighton.

"The Crimson Stain Mystery" Is Ready for the Public

The Consolidated Film Corporation's Sixteen Episode Subject, with Maurice Costello and Ethel Grandin, Is Handled by the Metro Exchanges, All Set to Push to Serial

THE Consolidated Film Corporation's first production, "The Crimson Stain Mystery," the sixteenth-episode photoplay, with Maurice Costello and Ethel Grandin in the leading roles, will be released through Metro Exchanges on September 4.

This latest of serials, according to announcement from Consolidated, is a story of a great discovery gone wrong.

Dr. Montrose, a famous scientist, discovers a biological element which he believes will develop a race of super people. Instead, the discovery reacts, making of them cruel and blood-thirsty criminals. This band of arch-criminals is led by a most cunning leader, and they cover up their track so well that the only clue to their identity is the ante-mortem statement of one of the victims that the leader has a crimson stain in his eyes.

The sixteen episodes contain the adventures of Harold Stanley, son of the owner of the New York Examiner—played by Maurice Costello—and Florence Montrose, daughter of the scientist who discovered this evil element, with whom Stanley is in love—the role played by Ethel Grandin—in pursuit of the solution to the mystery.

T. Hayes Hunter, a former pupil of David Belasco, under whom he derived much of his artistic training, is directing this serial. The photographic and technical details are under the personal supervision of Ludwig G. B. Erb.

Supporting Maurice Costello and Ethel Grandin is a cast of players peculiarly suited to the requirements of the characters. They are Olga Olonova, who plays the role of Vanya Tosca, the vampire; Thomas J. McGrane, who interprets the role of Dr. Montrose, the scientist; William H. Cavanaugh, Eugene Strong, N. J. Thompson, and John Milton.

Backing up "The Crimson Stain Mystery" is a large advertising campaign. Representative newspapers all over the country will begin the publication of the serial story done by Albert Payson Terhune, simultaneously with the release of the picture. In addition the Consolidated Film Corporation will give away thirteen six-cylinder 1917 model Overland Touring Cars for the best ideas for a five-reel photoplay based on the characters, mysteries, and situations in "The Crimson Stain Mystery." The contest closes September 1, 1917.

O. E. Goebel is president, and Ludwig G. B. Erb is treasurer, of the Consolidated Film Corporation.

William Fox Is the "Man Who Forgets to Sleep"

Film Magnate Earns This Title from Habit of Working Eighteen Hours a Day—He Has Projection Machine in His House to Edit Celluloid After It Is Passed on by Others

PERSONALLY editing each one of his pictures, after the company editor and director have turned over the film to him, has made William Fox, head of the Fox Film Corporation so busy that he has had a private projecting room erected at the back of his summer home, Woodmere, L. I. Here if there were any passers-by around one, two or three in the morning, Mr. Fox would be seen seated with his wife and two daughters running and re-running his latest feature through the projection machine.

For Mr. Fox believes when he says "William Fox Presents" that he himself must do the actual presenting, hence his careful examination of each picture before it goes out to the various exchanges. This little midnight job added to his other duties brings Mr. Fox's working day up to sixteen, seventeen or eighteen hours—it makes little difference which.

In addition to personally editing all his pictures, Mr. Fox is final judge on all scenarios submitted. After the scenario department and director has passed upon each script, Mr. Fox goes over it to be sure that it meets his requirements. He also attends to the casting in important cases while in his spare moments he devotes himself to handling the general end of his motion picture and vaudeville interests.

Mr. Fox's press agent has dubbed him "The Man Who Forgets to Sleep," which is another way of saying that being president of your own company is not what everyone else thinks it is.

"HYPOCRITES," BOOKED AT THE STRAND, SCORES ANOTHER HIT

After having been booked repeatedly in and around New York City following its opening on Broadway about two years ago, "Hypocrites," the Bosworth, Inc., film allegory is again proving its merit as an attraction at the Strand theatre.

By special request on the part of its patrons, "Hypocrites" was booked at the Strand for the current week, and, despite the hot weather, it has been playing to unusually good business. The booking of "Hypocrites" marks the second time in the history of the Strand that it has ever played anything but a new production.

UNITED FILM IS ADDED TO LIST OF LOS ANGELES EXCHANGES

Los Angeles has another film exchange located at 521 West Eighth street, just off of film row, known as the United Film Service. Harry G. Ballance, former Los Angeles exchangeman, who for the past two years has been at Denver, will be the manager of this new exchange, which will look after the booking of "The Yellow Menace," the sixteen episode serial. This serial has been booked for the Pantages theatres along the Pacific Coast. The local exchange will furnish service only to Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Four Noted Stage and Screen Stars in "Shielding Shadow"

Barry, with Bernhardt; Kellerd, a Gold Roosterite; Grace Darmond, Who Jumped from Little Eva-ding in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and Madeline Traverse Are Principals

FOUR well-known stage and screen stars are announced as the principals in Pathé's new serial, "The Shielding Shadow." They are Leon Barry, celebrated as Sarah Bernhardt's leading man; Ralph Kellerd, who besides his stage career has been seen in several of the Pathé Gold Rooster features; Grace Darmond, who made her stage debut as Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and has steadily advanced since that time, and Madeline Traverse, who leaped to stardom overnight as the heroine in the film production of Elinor Glynn's "Three Weeks."

Leon Barry is well known for his finished character work. He made his debut on the stage as a child in Sarah Bernhardt's company and later became her leading man for four seasons. He has also been leading man with Madame Réjane and with Janehaddin. He entered motion pictures three years ago and at the outbreak of the war left the screen to join the colors. Rheumatism forced him to leave the trenches, however, and he came to this country, where he was immediately engaged to play the part of Sebastien Navarro in the new Pathé serial.

Grace Darmond, the heroine in "The Shielding Shadow," is still in her teens, and though young and charming, is forced to flee death through the whole fifteen episodes. She makes a parachute descent from a balloon that is a mass of flames, jumps from a wagon at the extreme edge of a 150-foot cliff, plunges from a boat into the water as the boat is blown up, is knocked unconscious by a falling beam in an earthquake, is floated down a sluice swarming with rats into the river, and has other miraculous escapes too numerous to mention.

Robert Kellerd's reputation as an actor is so well known that it hardly needs chronicling. He was first a law student, then an actor, then a matinee idol, then head of his own stock company and at last a motion picture star. His stage career has been varied and interesting and includes appearance with such well-known stage people as David Warfield, Charlotte Walker, Virginia Harned and other stars of the firmament of the theatre. His work in "The Shielding Shadow" is said to be particularly fine.

Madeline Traverse is known as the Maxine Elliot of the screen. She has been featured in many productions and has had important parts in many stage successes as "The Chorus Lady," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Joseph and His Brethren," and "The Woman's Law." Her first big motion picture work was in "Three Weeks," and later she was featured with Robert Warwick in "The Fruits of Desire" and "The Money Master."

Two well-known members of the supporting cast of "The Shielding Shadow" include Lionel Braun, who played the slave in Granville Barker's production of "Androcles and the Lion," and Frankie Mann, well-known for her work on the screen. The serial has been produced under the direction of Donald MacKenzie to whom, too much credit cannot be given.

Fine Arts Gets Money and Social Lights in a Picture

Douglas Fairbanks Spends Several Days at Watch Hill, R. I., and Everybody, More or Less, from ex-Secretary of the Navy Newberry to Cottagers Act as Extras

Douglas Fairbanks and Some "Society Girls" in a Scene with a New England Background

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS has just returned from Watch Hill, R. I., where he spent several days making exteriors for a forthcoming Fine Arts release under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham. Several members of the Fine Arts stock accompanied Mr. Fairbanks and his director including Jewel Carmen, who will take the leading feminine role. The title for the subject has not yet been chosen.

Watch Hill is one of the most fashionable and exclusive summer resorts in New England and it was a new experience for the visitors there to see motion pictures in the making. The hotel and cottage guests proved so enthusiastic that many were allowed to take part in some of the bigger scenes filmed there. Truman Newberry, former United States Secretary of the Navy, was only one of those who took a small part in the picture. Mr. Newberry, it is said, was so attracted by the camera that he wanted to have the company postpone the taking of some of its big scenes until the next week end when he could be on hand. Showmen have heard much of so-called million dollar beauty choruses and the like, but it is doubtful whether a more moneyed collection of people were ever employed as extras for a picture.

The subject is another "stunt" affair, in which sort of comedy it has been proven that Mr. Fairbanks excels. Some of the most comical acrobatics are to be incorporated in the five reels as well as some of the most daring.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

"The 'News' wishes to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything in fact done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to send for publication the successful ideas that he has worked out, also to come to us for suggestions or information. Address the Editor."

The Manager Is the Backbone of the Motion Picture Theatre

AFTER all, it is the manager who is the backbone of the motion picture theatre. He can enhance a poor picture by an attractive presentation and he can kill an excellent picture by inattention to the projection. He can fill his house by novelties in the showing of his program and he can deplete his patronage by permitting discourtesies. He must have his eye and finger on everything pertaining to his theatre and must be thoroughly acquainted with the industry itself. In the parlance of the day, he must be "on the job" himself if he would succeed. Such a man is George C. Schulz, manager of Penn Gardens, Washington, D. C., since its establishment two years ago. In the very construction of the theatre and adjoining park Mr. Schulz had a voice and he made the decorations and lighting effects offer an individuality all their own. It is the park that is figuring very conspicuously in picture amusements just at present. With a capacity of 2,000, it draws its patronage from all parts of the city, even into the suburbs. Its plan is unique in that the screen is situated across what would be a corner and the seats radiate semi-circularly from it.

This is a built structure, presenting at all times an attractive, substantial appearance. It is surrounded by eighty large lights, which give the garden a brightness sufficient for reading during the intermission. At the base of the screen and on either side are flower boxes in which are concealed colored lights among the green.

The American theatre, a six hundred capacity house in the north section of the city, reports doing bigger business during the hot weather than some weeks of the winter season. This may be due to the recent installation as house manager of Joel G. Bodine, formerly of the Empire theatre in the northeast. "There is no accounting for the receipts of a theatre," remarked Mr. Bodine.

"It is not always a costly show, not always the weather, not always the stars of the screen, not always big advertising; but I believe it is more often the theatre itself. Of course you must have all the elements just mentioned in a happy proportion, but it is the way you present your production, the confidence your patrons have in your house and its management, and the leisure of the people that count greatly in the attendance of the resident house.

"I have found the parks no competition this summer, despite the hot weather. The American is so situated with window ventilation that it is especially cool, while exhaust fans add to the purity of the air. Its high ceiling, subdued lighting, board frontage, and quiet decoration have made the American a standard in its neighborhood." This is one of the Atkinson chain of theatres that dot the residential section.

PATRONS HELP SELECT PROGRAMS

James J. Barrett, proprietor and manager of the Knickerbocker Theatre, 3145 Park Avenue, St. Louis, has a clever scheme which he uses to determine the kind of pictures liked best, and the players most in favor with his patrons. He distributes an attractive program with the bill for an entire week, and attached to the program is a coupon which must be signed by the patron, stating the pictures he likes best, and the names of his favorite players.

This plan has worked so well that the Knickerbocker audiences always seem pleased in thinking that they can help select the program, and that they can be sure of seeing their favorite players in the kind of plays they like best.

At the Nebraska airdome, Park and Nebraska avenues, St. Louis, a large part of the audience is composed of men employed on trains, and in order to allow them to attend the show and yet not be late to work, the managers of the Nebraska, Messrs. Lorimer and Deubach, have made arrangements to flash the calls for the men from the railroad office on the screen.

As many as five and six calls an evening have been thrown on the Nebraska screen to trainmen who have irregular hours. The names of the men wanted, and the hour for which they must report for work is given. The service is rather odd for an amusement house, but it has proved very popular with the trainmen and their friends.

POST CARDS AID IN ATTENDANCE

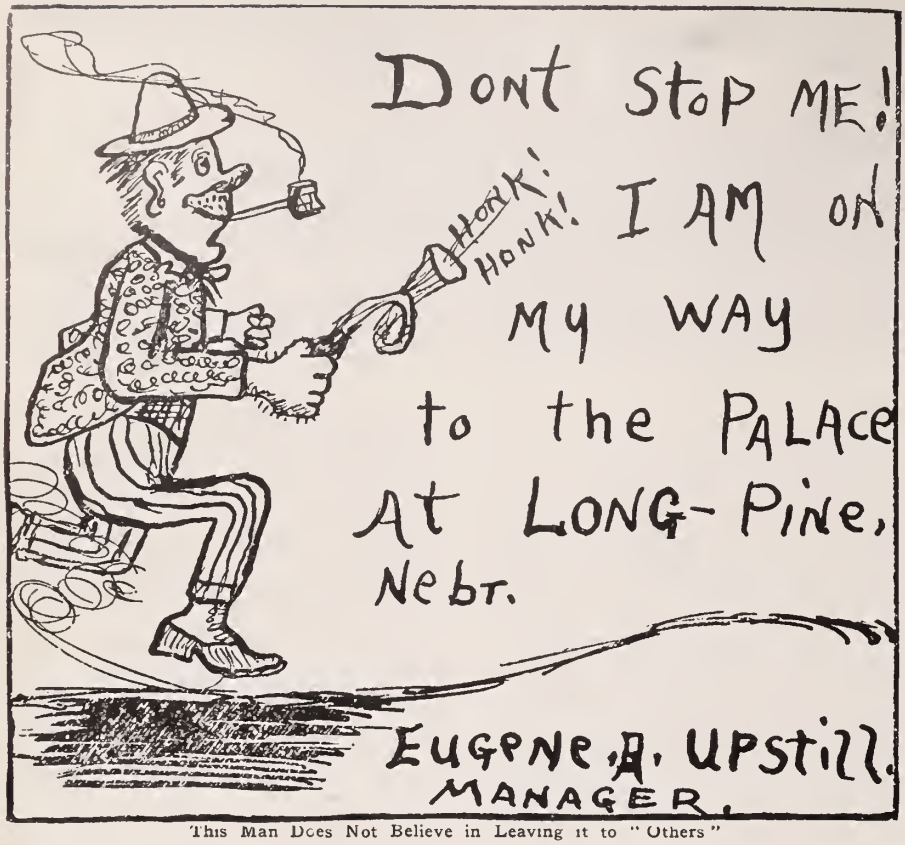
Manager J. E. Bryant calls the Plaza, Waterloo, Iowa, "Iowa's Finest Motion Picture Theatre." He sends out postal cards all over the country, proudly claiming this distinction. The Plaza is surrounded by beautiful park space, is on the prettiest street and in the best neighborhood of Waterloo. It accommodates 1,000 people with the best of projection and ventilation.

Mr. Bryant is building the new Plaza at Sioux City, Iowa, which, with its white, ornamental front and interior beauties and comfort, will even far outdo the Plaza at Waterloo.

EXHIBITOR-CARTOONIST DRAWS CARICATURE TO DRAW CROWDS

Gene A. Upstill, manager of the Palace, at Long Pine, Neb., is also a cartoonist, besides being one of the most successful exhibitors in the state. His house, brand new, is built on bungalow style and is pronounced one of the most comfortable in Nebraska.

How Manager Bryant Keeps His Theatre Before His Waterloo, Iowa, Public



This Man Does Not Believe in Leaving it to "Others"

Upstill, on the back of his letters, has printed an animated looking individual who is hurrying on his way to the Palace. About the theatre, on the screen, on the bill boards and in the town paper appear frequent drawings by the exhibitor-artist.

The Palace has seats for eight hundred, a new Fort Wayne motor generator, two Power's machines and a spot light—all installed under the supervision of Manager F. A. Van Husan of the Western Supply Company at Omaha, and a personal friend of Mr. Upstill.

On the outside it has a comfortable bungalow appearance, and on the inside it is delightfully comfortable in all kinds of weather.

THEATRE SHOWS LIVE TOPICAL WITHOUT INCREASE OF PRICE

For the week of July 25, the Willis Wood, Kansas City, Mo., showed to the public that it is always up-to-date by giving the pictures of the Motor Derby held on Kansas City's new motor speedway July 22. The striking features of the race, including De Palma's finish, O'Donnell's wrecked car, and a picture of the large crowd which attended were shown. The regular feature was shown and there was no increase in the price of admission.

OHIO THEATRE IS ADVOCATE OF JUVENILE PROGRAMS

The Clifford theatre, Urbana, Ohio, has just completed arrangements for juvenile programs. The pictures will be started early in October. Mary Bertha Thompson, of Springfield, Ohio, will be in charge of the juvenile programs, which will be run at Saturday matinees. Miss Thompson plans to run fairy stories, some of the scenarios being original with her, plays of a clean character in which children enact the roles, well selected comedy reels, and travel views. The Lyric theatre, in that city, tried the programs with success.

MAKING THE THEATRE SEEM COOL IN HOT WEATHER

Harry Heyman, traveling for the World out of Omaha during July and August, met sweltering exhibitors everywhere. "Look cool," he warned them. "Seem to be cool, even though you are dying with the heat."

And he got a number of exhibitors to have their ushers distribute ice water, fans, and to establish drinking fountains in the lobby of their theatres. At one place, where the exhibitor will build this Winter, Heyman and the exhibitor arranged a big pan to hold cakes of ice, across which electric fans wafted the hot breezes.

WEEK DAY MATINEES BRING OUT WOMEN AND CHILDREN

The Majestic theatre, Detroit's popular playhouse, is working out a clever scheme to increase the matinee attendance on weekdays. Heretofore the starting hour of the weekday matinees has been 2.30, but the new policy calls for 2.15 as the starting time in order to allow the additional showing of a Keystone comedy.

This is something that is given only at the weekday matinees. Women and children are "wise" to the new policy and are flocking more than ever to the weekday matinees.

Ladies' Slippers Help to Boom "My Lady's Slipper"

A Smart Idea Utilized by the Pastime Theatre, Toledo, Ohio

In conjunction with the showing of "My Lady's Slipper," at the Pastime theatre, Toledo, Ohio, the manager of that house added to the advertising possibilities of the names of Anita Stewart and Earle Williams, by getting out an interest-creating advertising stunts, as illustrated.

Cardboard cutouts in the shape of a modern dancing slipper were distributed all over the neighborhood. The shoe store also distributed these cutouts to their patrons and filled their window with them.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

"THE TEST," STAGE SUCCESS FOR WOODS, IS PICKED BY ASTRA FOR THE SCREEN

"The Test," a play by Jules Eckert Goodman, as produced by A. H. Woods enjoyed marked success for two whole seasons from coast to coast. Blanche Walsh starred in it and through it added materially to a popularity already noteworthy.

Jane Grey in Pathe's "The Test"

George Fitzmaurice of the Astra, who produced for Pathe such sterling successes as "Via Wireless," "At Bay," and "New York," was entrusted with the direction of the motion picture adaptation.

Jane Grey is the star. She will be best remembered, perhaps, as the Molly Hughes of "Kick In," the A. H. Woods play.

The supporting cast includes Lumsden Hare, the English actor; Claude Fleming, Carl Harbaugh, and Inez Buck.

"CIVILIZATION" MUSIC PLAYED AT SPECIAL CONCERT IN WANAMAKER STORE

Through an arrangement entered into between John Wanamaker and Thos. H. Ince, producer of "Civilization," a concert of the special "Civilization" musical score, composed by Victor L. Schertzinger, was given at the Wanamaker store on Broadway, New York, last Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

The capacity of the Wanamaker auditorium is tested with 2,000 people, hence it was necessary to give the concert in the rotunda, where the thousands could see and hear from the balconies.

Program from General for Week of 11-16th Stands Out Prominently for the Company by Its List of Stars, Numbering Twenty-six

IN General Film Service the week September 11-16, inclusive, stands out prominently in the year's work. Twenty-six of the film world's distinguished performers are presented in this program.

"The Pony Express Rider," a Selig two-part drama featuring Tom Mix, the cowboy actor, and Victoria Forde, will be the first picture screened. "Busting In and Out of Society," a Vitagraph comedy, will be shown next, followed by the Selig-Tribune, succeeded by a Biograph one-part drama, "For the Son of the House," featuring Mae Marsh.

The following day an Essanay production, a drama in two parts, "The Greater Obligation," gets the spot light as the first picture to be shown with Edward Arnold and Betty Brown featured. This will be succeeded by a Kalem one-reel comedy, "Patented by Ham," in which the film favorites, Ham and Budd and Ethel Teare, are chief fun-makers. "A Blot in the 'Scutcheon," a Biograph three-part drama reissue in which Dorothy Bernard and Edwin August are featured, will close the program for the day.

The fable of "The Slim Girl Who Tried to Keep a Date That Was Never Made," by George Ade, filmed by Essanay, leads the list Wednesday, September 13. Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby, Vim's recently acquired notables, will be seen next in "A Strenuous Visit," a comedy of one reel. Then will come the sixth episode of "The Girl from Frisco," in which Marin Sais and True Boardman are featured, entitled "The Treasure of Cibola."

The following day Selig-Tribune and "Stranded," from the Vim studios, will make up the program.

"The Mysterious Double," a Kalem comedy in one reel, with Ivy Close in the titular role, will start the next day's program, and this will be followed by a Vitagraph, "Loot and Love," in one reel, with Hughie Mack much in evidence from start to finish. The day will be brought to a close with a Vim comedy of the Pokes and Jabbs series, "Payment in Full."

On Saturday, September 16, Lillian Drew and Sydney Ainsworth will have an opportunity to display their talent in a strong three-act Essanay drama, "The Woman Always Pays." "The Thorn and the Rose," a Vitagraph three-reel drama, with William Lytell, Jr., as star, will be another feature on that day, and "The Hoodoo of Division B," an episode of "The Hazards of Helen," by Kalem, presenting Helen Gibson, will follow. "In Jungle Wilds," a one-reel Selig drama presenting Dick La Reno and Miss McDonald, will close the week's offerings.

"The Big Sister" Is a Famous Players with Mae Murray for Release on September 7, and Was Directed by John B. O'Brien

"THE BIG SISTER," the first picture in which Mae Murray has starred at the Famous Players studio since her transfer to New York after the formation of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has been completed and is scheduled for release on the Paramount program September 7. It was produced under the direction of John B. O'Brien.

The story of "The Big Sister" has a wide range of setting, opening in the slums of New York and carrying Betty, the girl impersonated by Miss Murray, to the palatial country estate of a millionaire. Betty's father is a worthless drunkard, whose inability to support the girl is the indirect cause of her falling into the clutches of "Nifty" Mendez, an underworld power, who sees in her an easy victim of his desires. Mendez becomes so threatening that Betty decides to run away from the city, taking her little brother, Jimmy, with her. But Jimmy is knocked down by an automobile when they get outside of the city and is taken to the home of Rodney Channing, the owner of the car.

Here it is discovered that Jimmy's leg is broken and Channing decides that the boy must remain under his roof until he has thoroughly recovered. There is nothing for Betty to do but to agree to Channing's proposition, and she soon becomes fascinated by this big-hearted chap. There is a romance soon under way, but it has many stumbling blocks, not the least of which is Channing's own aunt, who has other matrimonial plans for him.

Just as this difficulty is overcome Mendez, who has been searching for Betty, reappears on the scene and the girl is plunged into despair by his threats to expose her to Channing if she does not submit to blackmail. Once more Betty takes to flight, but this time the parting nearly breaks the girl's heart. There is still another man, a crook, who plays an important part in the story, though the rewards of his devotion to Betty are scarcely what he would have chosen for himself.

"Diane of the Follies," Starring Lillian Gish, and "Manhattan Madness," the Latest of the Douglas Fairbanks Fine Arts-Triangle Comedy Dramas, Are Here Illustrated

LILLIAN GISH IN "DIANE OF THE FOLLIES," FINE ARTS, PLAYS ROLE OF STAGE FAVORITE

In the coming Triangle-Fine Arts production, "Diane of the Follies," Lillian Gish, who has the stellar role, will be furnished with an opportunity to wear more beautiful gowns that has ever fallen to her lot before in a motion picture play.

She plays the role of a stage favorite, who is taken from her environment by marriage and set down in surroundings notable for their wealth and smug respectability. Despite all the evidences of wealth that meet her eye on every hand she soon tires of the restricted life and longs for the gayety of former days. She is given great dramatic opportunity, when after finally deserting her home, her child dies.

In the telling of the story, the scenes that portray the stage life for which the lady of the play longed so devotedly, the services of an entire musical comedy company were required.

"Diane of the Follies" proved to be one of the most difficult pictures ever made at the Fine Arts studio, not so much because of the intricate nature of the work required of the actors, but because of the necessity for the utmost fidelity in detail.

SELIG ANNOUNCES SEVERAL DRAMAS FOR OCTOBER RELEASE

William N. Selig announces several dramas to be released in regular service of General Film Company. "In the House of the Chief" is a three-part Diamond Special, featuring Eugenie Besserer, who is supported by a cast of players that includes Vivian Reed, Charles West, Sidney Smith, and Al W. Folson. The drama was produced by T. N. Heffron from the story by I. K. Friedman. "In the House of the Chief" is a drama of the underworld, and will be released Monday, October 2. "The Canbyhill Outlaws" is a Tom Mix drama of Western life, released Sat., Oct. 7.

"The Temptation of Adam" is a three-reel drama, featuring Kathlyn Williams and an all-star cast. This drama was produced by Al Green. "A Mistake in Rustlers" is a Western dramatic production, with Tom Mix performing many of his most hazardous exploits.

Richard Bennett Will Appear on the Screen for Mutual in "The Sable Blessing," September 11

AS the hero of "The Sable Blessing," five-act Mutual Star Production, one of the two feature offerings for release the week of September 11. Richard Bennett makes his first appearance in a photoplay feature since his success scored in "Damaged Goods," a film version of the Brieux sociological play released as a Mutual special feature a year ago.

"The Sable Blessing" is a comedy drama from the pen of Aaron Hoffman, many of whose contributions to literature have found their way to the screen. It was adapted for the screen by Anthony Coldeway and produced under the personal direction of Director Sargent, who staged "The Secret of the Submarine."

"The Sable Blessing" is released Monday, September 11.

Rhea Mitchell appears in Mr. Bennett's chief support in the role of the little slavey at the boarding house where he seeks lodgings after his loss of fortune. Others in the company are George Periolat, the character man of American-Mutual releases, Adrienne Morrison (Mrs. Richard Bennett), Alfred Hollingsworth, Ashton Dearholt and several others.

"Grim Justice," a drama in five acts, and fourth of the Mutual Star Productions featuring Florence Turner, is the second of the feature offerings of the same week. This feature is adapted for the screen from the famous novel of the same name by Rita, one of England's foremost novelists.

"Grim Justice," for release Thursday, September 14, may truly be deemed an outdoor picture, all but a few of the scenes having been enacted in the open, in unusually beautiful locations in the hills of Wales. The theme tells of the love existing between Crystal (Florence Turner) and Gideon (Henry Edwards) and their faithfulness to the memory of each other through years of tragic separation.

It was produced by the Turner Films, Ltd., of London, under the personal direction of Larry Trimble.

"The Man in Black," second of the series of five-reel "Fantomas," is the Mutual's three-part offering of the week of September 11.

Of Mutual's three two-act features of the week, the first of them, "The Heart of a Doll," a Thanhouser production starring the famous Fairbanks Twins, Madeline and Marion, will be released Friday, September 15.

The Centaur two part feature of the week, with William Clifford and Margaret Gibson as the co-stars, will be released Saturday, September 16, under the title of "Tangled Hearts." Written by Elsie M. Callaghan and staged by Alvin Neitz, "Tangled Hearts" features these co-stars in interesting characterizations Nan Christy and Alva D. Blake, appear in their support.

Third of the two-act features is a Vogue comedy, "Doctoring a Leak," featuring Rube Miller. This feature will be released on Sunday, September 17.

Comedy offerings will include two releases under the Cub brand, the first of which, "Harmony and Discord," featuring Billy Armstrong, will be released September 11, and the second, "Jerry and the Blackhands," starring George Ovey, will go out on Friday, September 15.

The three Mutual single-reel features, Mutual Weekly, No. 89, "See America First," No. 52, picturing a trip along the famous Columbia Highway in Oregon, and "Reel Life" will go to the public on their usual days, of the first two named on Wednesday, September 13, and the last on Sunday, September 17.

MYSTERY STORY BY WINCHESTER SOON RELEASED BY UNIVERSAL

A two-reel mystery drama now entitled "The House Across the Way" will shortly be released on the Universal program. The story was written by Tarleton Winchester of the Pathé publicity department, scenarioized by E. J. Clawson and produced by Walter Morton. In the cast appear Thomas Jefferson, Irene Hunt, Peggy Custer, Marc Fenton and Jay Belasco. Mr. Winchester has had several scenarios and stories accepted by other producing companies.

Four Scenes from Universal's New Production, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," to Be Shown on Broadway in October

MISS HULETTE TO APPEAR IN "PRUDENCE, THE PIRATE," THANHOUSER

Gladys Hulette, the Thanhouser star, is soon to appear in "Prudence, the Pirate," a feature that will be released through the Pathe exchanges. The story is by Agnes C. Johnston, author of "The Shine Girl," in which Miss Hulette is making such a success. William Parke, who directed "The Shine Girl," is Prudence's director.

The story tells of a girl who has piratical ambitions and who is assisted in them by a party of tramps that she enlists. "Prudence" seizes a sailing vessel and attacks a house boat, bringing about dramatic situations and sparkling comedy. A fire on the ship furnishes one of the exciting scenes.

Much of the action takes place on a "windjammer" that cruised Long Island Sound with the company while the picture was being made. Miss Hulette is supported by Flora Finch, Riley Chamberlin, Barnett Parker, A. J. Andrews, Eric Hudson, James Sullivan and Billy Brown.

"Panthus," said to be the ugliest pup in the world, has an important part in the production.

"THE STORM" FOR TRANQUIL ART OF BLANCHE SWEET

BLANCHE SWEET will be seen in September in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Storm," a Paramount drama written especially for her by Leighton Osmun and produced by Frank Reicher.

Miss Sweet has been seen in many roles, but in "The Storm" she appears as a half wild, fun-loving daughter of a retired professor who is so submerged in his studies that he permits his daughter to run at will in the Maine resort where they live.

The majority of the scenes in this drama were taken in the mountains near an unfrequented lake. The company was forced to go several hundred miles by train, nearly fifty miles by automobile, and through part of the country had to construct their own road. Here they camped for several weeks.

Miss Sweet is surrounded by a cast including Theodore Roberts and Thomas Meighan.

THE features to be released by Paramount on its program during the week of September 18 are surrounded by three single-reel features issued by the Paramount Corporation.

The two leading features of the Paramount releases are "The Storm," a dramatic story from Lasky, in which Blanche Sweet plays the leading role, and the Famous Players production of "Ashes of Embers," in which Pauline Frederick appears in an entirely new and novel characterization.

The single reels include the thirty-second edition of the Paramount Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen; the Burton Holmes Travel Pictures, in which series of "easy chair journeys" all around the world Mr. Holmes takes his fellow-travelers this week from Glasgow to Edinburgh, and the Paramount-Bray cartoon, "Farmer Alfalfa's Wolfhound," drawn by the well-known cartoonist, Paul Terry.

The Paramount Pictographs for this week will contain four special features, the first of which will be "The Greatest American Exercise," in which there is shown in a most graphic manner the manufacture of chewing gum.

"The Light That Never Fails" is another feature, picturing the story of a lighthouse on a barren coast, and the manner in which warnings to sailors at sea are given both by day and night.

The other feature pictures the training by military standards of 1,200 boys who have gathered together at Fort Terry, Plum Island, N. Y., and show the self-control, obedience, self-reliance and other necessary qualities taught them.

Two Smalley Productions from Bluebird in Three Weeks, "Saving the Family Name," September 11, and "Wanted —a Home," October 2

CONVINCED that the Smalleys will score a success with their production of "Saving the Family Name," on September 11, the Bluebird people have decided to present, only three weeks later, another Smalley feature with the same leading lady, Mary MacLaren, playing the principal role.

"Wanted—A Home," will be the Bluebird release for October 2, and in this feature Miss MacLaren will play a role altogether different from any she has hitherto essayed. The heroine of "Shoes" is, this time, an orphan who is buffeted by the world in her ceaseless endeavors to make an honest living and provide herself with a home. Lois Weber originated the scenario and directed the production.

On October 9 "The Chalice of Sorrow," produced by Rex Ingram with Cleo Madison in the leading role, will introduce deep tragedy to the Bluebird series. Miss Madison will then make her first appearance in this program and will bring with her Wedgewood Nowell and Charles Cummings, also new to Bluebirds.

Further releases for October have not been definitely scheduled, but there is an abundance of material ready for release from which selection may be made. J. Warren Kerrigan and Louise Lovely, in "The Social Buccaneer"; Ruth Stonehouse and Franklyn Farnum, in "Spring Song"; "The Eagle's Wings," produced by Robert Leonard, with Herbert Rawlinson and Grace Carlyle leading; "We Are French," produced by Rupert Julian, with Ella Hall, and other features are ready.

TRADE PRESS GUESTS OF PATHE

The members of the trade press were guests of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., at an informal luncheon at the Astor Hotel, New York, on Monday, last week. The affair was to celebrate the showing of the first four episodes of the new Astra-Pathe serial, "The Shielding Shadow," which the members of Pathe believe surpasses anything in the serial line they have heretofore placed on the market. P. A. Parsons, Pathe director of publicity, was host at the luncheon.

Twenty-six Reels a Week, Including a Red Feather, Serial Episode and the Animated Weekly, from Universal, Beginning with Week of 18th

STARTING with the week of September 18 the Universal program will be made up of nineteen regular program reels, including the weekly. There will be a Red Feather and a serial in addition. In other words, the program will be twenty-six reels per week, including a Red Feather, a serial episode and the Animated Weekly.

In addition to the twenty-six reels the Universal will use reissues of five reels—one comedy and four dramas—which will be considered in addition to the program and which can be ordered by the exchanges needing more than twenty-six reels per week.

Four features will be included on the program of September 11. The Red Feather release is entitled "The Whirlpool of Destiny," a five-reel spectacle drama in which Flora Parker De Haven will be featured. This Red Feather was produced under the direction of Otis Turner. Jack Mulhall and Bertram Grassby appear in support of Miss De Haven.

The second feature of the week will be Carter De Haven in "Hired and Fired," a two reel comedy episode of the "Timothy Dobbs—That's Me" series. "Hired and Fired" was written by Bess Meredyth and produced by Wallace Beery. Robert Milash, Vola Smith, and Mina Cunard will appear in support of Mr. De Haven.

"The Caravan," a two-reel Egyptian drama with a wealth of the color of the period, will be released in the same week, with Claire MacDowell and Lena Baskette featured. The play was written and produced by Raymond Wells and Jay Belasco. C. G. Brides and Malcolm Blevins will appear in support of the principals.

The feature of the week will be the fifth two-reel episode of "Liberty," in which Marie Walcamp, Eddie Polo, and Jack Holt will be featured. Written and produced by Jacques Jaccard, "Liberty" features Bertram Grassby, G. Raymond Nye, Maure Emory, Neal Hart, and L. M. Wells. Episode four of "Liberty" will be entitled "Dead or Alive."

On September 11 Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, and Priscilla Dean will be featured in "Nobody Guilty," a Nestor comedy, written by Ben Cohn and Harry Lyons and produced by L. W. Chaudet. Wilkes Gamble also takes an important role in the picture.

The following day Alice Howell is starred in "Tillie's Terrible Tumble," a three-reel L-Ko comedy. On the same day, September 12, Matt Moore and Jane Gail are featured in "Jane's Choice," a Victor comedy produced by Matt Moore. Frank Norcross appears in support of the principals.

Douglas Gerrard and Francelia Billington are featured on September 13 in the Laemmle drama, "The Price of Victory," which was scenarioized by Fred Myton from the story by Laura Oakley and produced in Douglas Gerrard. Alfred Allen appears in support of the principals. On the same day Mary Fuller will be seen in the Gold Seal two-reel society drama "Love's Masquerade," which was scenarioized by Catherine Carr from the story by Campbell Hall and produced by Lucius Henderson. Harry Benham, Johnny Walker, and Margaret McRae appear in support of Miss Fuller. Universal Animated Weekly, No. 37, will also be released on this day's program.

On September 14 Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby play the principal roles in "Baby's Toofs," a Victor two-reel comedy of babyland and domestic life which was written and produced by Harry Myers. James Rosen plays the part of Little Precious, the baby. "For Her Mother's Sake," a Big U drama, featuring G. Raymond Nye and Vola Smith, will also be released on this date. Written by Frank M. Wiltermood and produced by Clifford Elfelt, the play also includes in the cast Marc Robbins and Edwin Brown. Another Dr. Dorsey educational Powers release, "Hunting Whales in Japan," will be released on this date.

The feature of September 15 will be Violet Mersereau in "The Angel of the Attic," a two-reel Imp heart interest drama written by Catherine Carr and directed by Francis J. Grandon. Harry Benham appears in the same play, playing the leading male role. On the same day Molly Malone and Jack Nelson play the principal parts in "The Timber Wolf," a Big U drama scenarioized by Calder Johnstone from the story by Arthur Statter and produced by George Cochrane. Vestor Pegg, Rex De Rosselli, and Ann Dodge also play prominent roles in the picture. Just to add the comedy touch to the day's program, Harry Depp and Yvette Mitchell co-star in the Nestor rib tickler "Speeding," which was scenarioized and produced by P. C. Hartigan from the story by R. A. Dillon. O. C. Jackson and Ernie Shields also furnish their share of the funmaking.

On September 16 the Joker comedy "In Onion There Is Strength," featuring William Francy and Gale Henry, will be released. This laughmaker was produced by Allen Curtis from the scenario by William Warren Schoene and featured, besides the principals, Lillian Peacock, Charles Conklin and Milburn Moranti. There will be no release under the Laemmle brand on this date, and the usual Bison has been replaced by the Universal special two-reel feature "The Caravan."

September 17 will see the release of the Rex drama "The Small Magnetic Hand," in which Hal Cooley shares honors with Gertrude Selby. Charles E. Bartlett produced the picture from the story by Sylvia Gibson Gowland, which was scenarioized by Bess Meredyth. Cleo Loring and Ed Clark appear in support of the principals. On the same day Roy Clark is featured in the Big U comedy "Brick Top," which was produced by John McDermott from the scenario written by himself. A. W. Witting, Mrs. A. E. Witting, Lou Short, and "Happy" Rosselli appear in support of Mr. Clark. There will be no release under the L-Ko brand on this date.

"THE DAWN MAKER" IS NEXT HART PICTURE FOR KAY-BEE

William S. Hart's next screen appearance will be in "The Dawn Maker," a Triangle-Kay Bee feature, in which he appears as a half breed Indian. That he has made a careful study of the characteristics of the Indian is made clearly evident in the development of the story.

In filming the picture a trip to the land of snow and ice was necessary, and the resulting effects on the screen are among the finest examples of what the motion picture can do. The snow effects are particularly admirable. An excellent supporting company headed by William Desmond and Blanche White give the popular Triangle star support in the development of the story.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

IN "Life's Shadows," the new Metro-Columbia photoplay starring William Nigh and Irene Howley, Miss Howley is seen in the character of a simple village girl, a sort of "sunbonnet baby," with apologies to Bertha Corbett, the artist.

Like Nance O'Neil, the star she supported in a tour of the world, Ricca Allen is now engaged in playing for motion pictures under the Metro banner. Miss O'Neil is preparing the picturization of Margaret Deland's powerful novel, "The Iron Woman," at the Popular Plays and Players studio, and Miss Allen is working in Metro-Rolma comedies with Ralph Herz.

Exterior scenes for "The Chaperon," the next five-act Essanay feature, with Edna Mayo and Eugene O'Brien, will be taken at Washington Island, off the shore of the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Lewis S. Stone, stage star, who recently completed "According to the Code," in five acts, for Essanay, is about to appear on Broadway in a new production entitled, "The Double Cure."

When Frederick Warde, the eminent Shakespearean actor, finishes his lecture tour through New England early in September, he will return to the Thanhouser studios to start work on "The Vicar of Wakefield."

As soon as the Thanhouser production of "Prudence, the Pirate," is finished, Gladys Hulette will begin work, under the direction of Oscar Lund, on a comedy drama by Agnes C. Johnston.

McIntyre Studio Manager for World

Robert B. McIntyre has been installed as studio manager by the World Film Corporation, with headquarters at the Peerless studio in Fort Lee. Mr. McIntyre, who intends hereafter to devote himself to motion pictures exclusively, has enjoyed a long experience at the business end of theatrical amusements. For several years he was business manager and treasurer of the historic Walnut Street theatre, Philadelphia. From that post he joined the active forces of William A. Brady, first as touring manager of "Baby Mine," and then as treasurer of Mr. Brady's playhouse.

Edwin Thanhouser announces that Wayne Arey has been promoted to stardom and that he will hereafter be co-starred with Doris Grey, the Boston girl who was selected as the most beautiful girl at the Boston exhibitors' ball. "Her Beloved Enemy," now being directed by Ernest Warde, will be the first production in which Miss Grey and Mr. Arey will be co-starred.

Margaret Gale (Unity)

Della Connor, who has the ingenue role in "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer," is getting the reputation of a little ray of sunshine in and about the George Kleine studios. She is doing it all by the infectious good humor of her bright smile and silvery laugh. She has permanently chased the grouch from the studio and alleges that as long as she is there that it will stay chased.

The members of the Screen Club and all motion picture players will be the guests of the management of Luna Park, Coney Island, on Wednesday, September 6. Complimentary tickets to all of the attractions have been distributed to the club members and there will be a modern dance contest in the spacious ballroom. Those who have not received tickets may obtain them from the publicity department of the company with which they are affiliated. If the weather is bad the date will be postponed to the following night.

Tefft Johnson started work at the Fox studio on Labor Day filming the initial screen production in which Joan Sawyer will be featured. At the same time Bertram Bracken commenced screening a script written by himself. Four other directors and companies were at work at the same time, so that the day was a real labor day for the Fox people.

Harry Fox, star of the new photoplay series, "Beatrice Fairfax," who, under the tutelage of Frank H. Burnside has become an aviator at Ithaca, will attend the luncheon of the New York Flying Yacht Club at Pabst, Harlem, on Thursday. All the famous aviators of the country will be present and among the speakers will be Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary.

Elizabeth Burbridge Is With Powell

Elizabeth Burbridge, known to film fans through her work in Essanay and Ince productions, has been engaged by Frank Powell and will appear in support of Creighton Hale, Linda A. Griffith and Sheldon Lewis in the first feature of the Frank Powell Productions, Inc.

Ernest Warde, who is directing "Her Beloved Enemy," a Thanhouser feature that is to be released through the Pathe exchanges, is taking a number of scenes on the estate of C. K. G. Billings on the Hudson. Doris Grey is to be featured in this production and Wayne Arey will be co-starred with her.

Nazimova in "War Brides," Made by Herbert Brenon for Selznick Pictures

Vincent Serrano is at work at the Thanhouser studios on "A Modern Monte Cristo," a feature written by Lloyd Lonergan. Eugene Moore is directing Mr. Serrano.

"The Frohman Amusement Corporation" recently offered David Warfield one hundred thousand dollars to play in "The Music Master." Phillip Klein, son of Charles Klein, the author, was also communicated with. As yet nothing tangible has resulted. Flushing, L. I., may be the permanent home of the Frohman studios. The Flushing Board of Trade is making every effort to keep them there. It remains to be seen whether the peculiar suburban fire laws are to interfere.

Renewed activity at the Eagle City, Fla., studios of the Eagle Film Manufacturing and Producing Company has followed the arrangement whereby the Unity Sales Corporation has contracted for the distribution of the Eagle films, and work of making the "Grogan's Alley" series will shortly be undertaken.

Hardly had Maurice and Florence Walton begun work with Ashley Miller on "The Quest of Life," the first of the Famous Players pictures in which they will appear, when the studio was thronged with well-known dancers, some coming to see how their friends appeared in picture work and others to work in the cabaret scenes. There are toe dancers, Grecian dancers, and other assortments of barefoot performers, tangoists, and every known description of the drawing-room pedal artistes assembled in large numbers, all eager to show their grace before the camera.

Mrs. Vernon Castle, the dancer who is being screened in the serial, "Patria," for the International Film Service, Inc., has designed the "Castle Preparedness Suit," in which she appears in several of the episodes.

The "Castle Preparedness Suit"

The "Castle Preparedness Suit" is of tan cheviot. The skirt is perfectly plain and reaches the top of the boots, permitting free and graceful strides. The coat is of military cut and buttoned tight about the throat. There is a wide belt of tan leather and a strap of tan leather from the bust to the waist takes the place of buttons.

There is a jaunty military cap of the same material as the suit, while the boots are dark tan, with light tan cheviot tops.

Grace Darling, Star of the International's "Beatrice Fairfax" Serial, Is Here Shown in Two Interesting Attitudes, with Irene Castle, Star of "Patria," and Her Police Dog on the Right

An interesting, though brief, chapter in the lives of Maurice and Florence Walton, the dancers, who are now making their motion picture debut in the Famous Players-Paramount picture, "The Quest of Life," was just revealed when they returned from a short trip to Columbus, Ohio. Having made arrangements with the Famous Players to go to Columbus to dance at the opening celebration of a new hotel in that city, the partners found that one of the events on the program was a visit to the local penitentiary.

A Visit to the Local Penitentiary

Together with the other members of the party, they decided to avail themselves of the opportunity offered. The party happened to arrive at the prison during the convicts' dinner hour and in honor of the occasion the warden had ordered the prison orchestra to play during the time that the visitors were in the building.

As the party entered the dining hall the orchestra struck up a fox trot, and Maurice, seeing a small stage at the end of the room, impulsively seized Miss Walton, placed her parasol and hand-bag on a bench, and whirled her about on the small platform, to the delighted amazement of the six hundred convicts and of the rest of the party. When the dance was completed there was a roar that shook the stone walls of the whole prison. Every convict in the room—but one—sat pounding with might and main.

PART OF "WAR BRIDES" RUN OFF AT PRIVATE SHOWING

Herbert Brenon has completed a sufficient number of consecutive scenes of "War Brides" to give a definite idea of the nature and power of the picture, and this week he invited Lewis J. Selznick, who controls the release, and Mitchell Mark, president of the Mark Strand Theatre Company, to the projection room at the studio on Hudson Heights for a private view. Mr. Mark, as a disinterested spectator, was particularly impressed and said:

"This is a superb production of a wonderful picture. I was thrilled as I have seldom been thrilled by a photoplay."

Mr. Selznick was equally enthusiastic. "There never was any question in my mind as to what Mr. Brenon would accomplish with this play and this star," he said, "and what I have seen more than confirms my expectations."

Notwithstanding all the difficulties and innumerable details which confront a producer in launching a new corporation and organizing everything from properties to scenario, Mr. Brenon has been able to maintain the swift schedule which he set for himself, and has assured Mr. Selznick that "War Brides" will be ready in plenty of time for the October release.

"DOT" KELLY, VITAGRAPH, MARRIES REAL ESTATE MAN

Dorothy Kelly, the Vitagraph star, was married quietly to Harvey Hevenor, real estate man, on Monday evening, August 28, at nine o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the home of the Rev. Albert King Morris of Jersey City.

The couple's meeting was romantic. Mr. Hevenor admired the star's work on the screen and three years ago wrote for her photograph. Miss Kelly answered his letter personally and the correspondence developed into an acquaintance a few months later. They have been engaged since last May.

She is twenty-two years of age and her husband is forty. At present they are living at the Montague Hotel, Brooklyn. Miss Kelly has not permitted her marriage to interfere with her screen career and is to be found daily at Huntington, Long Island, working on scenes for "The Secret Kingdom," a forthcoming Vitagraph serial release.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, September 2.

A FINE ARTS-Triangle Komedy now being made, deals with the wet and dry question, and has been given the temporary title of "The Deadly Glass of Beer." It has to do with the adventures of a young chap who falls heir to a fortune with the proviso in the will that he not drink beer until he is twenty-one. Teddy Sampson has been specially engaged to play in this picture, which is being made by Director Tod Browning. Tully Marshall, Jack Brammel and Elmo Lincoln are prominent in the cast.

Paul Powell has completed the direction of "The Rummy," which offers Wilfred Lucas as star. It is a decided newspaper story, and Powell and Lucas, both being former newspaper men, have seen to it that realism heretofore not seen in stories of this type, will cause this to set a new precedent for newspaper films. Pauline Stark plays opposite Lucas, William C. Brown is the political boss, and other players in this are Ross Fisher, A. D. Sears and Clyde Hopkins. Many scenes were made in the offices of the Los Angeles Examiner, claimed to be the finest newspaper plant in the country.

Director Powell will next take up the filming of a scientific detective story written by William E. Wing. This is now in rehearsal with Wilfred Lucas playing the star part, and Constance Talmadge, who has not been seen in Triangle films for several months, because she was working under the direction of D. W. Griffith in "Intolerance," will play opposite Lucas. Others in the cast are Winifred Westover, James O'Shea, G. M. Blue, F. A. Turner and others.

A thrilling scene made last week for "The Defenders," a story of early California life, shows Bessie Love holding an earthen jar of water, which she has just filled at a spring, while a Mexican bandit shoots breaking the water jar. The film will show that the shot was fired at a distance of eighty feet, and a pistol was used.

"Parisian Milliner" Is "Mlle. O'Brien"

The Fine Arts-Triangle Komedy, originally known as "The Parisian Milliner," which features Fay Tincher in the star part, has been completed by Director Dillon and titled "Mlle. O'Brien."

This company is now making a two-reel Komedy, which gives Miss Tincher the part of a country maid who has ambitions to become a city vampire. Others appearing in the subject are Director Dillon, Kate Toncray and Max Davison.

George Seigman is directing the filming of a Fine Arts drama, written by Tod Browning. The action takes place in the present day, and many of the scenes are laid in and about a race track. For these a series of special races were staged. The picture, as yet unnamed, will serve as a debut vehicle for Raymond Jerome Binder, late fashion plate model, who has been engaged as leading man. The supporting cast will include Carl Stockdale, Adele Clifton, Loyola O'Connor, and Tom Wilson.

The last scenes of "The Old Folks at Home," adapted from the Rupert Hughes story in which Sir Herbert Tree appears, were made several days ago, and Tree and his daughter have departed for the east where he will fulfill an engagement on the legitimate stage. Director Chet Withey will shortly have this subject completed. Prior to the English actor's departure, Director Withey gave a farewell dinner in his honor.

In this Fine Arts-Triangle picture, Lucile Younge for the first time in her theatrical or screen career, appears in the cast under her genuine name, Lucia Medina. Miss Younge is of Spanish and French descent, and was a successful dramatic actress in Paris, before playing in the United States. Her part in "The Old Folks At Home," is that of a vampire, and one of the most prominent in the cast. Other supporting players of Sir Herbert Tree are Josephine Crowell, Mildred Harris, Elmer Clifton, W. E. Lawrence, and Spottiswoode Aitken.

President Carl Laemmle and General Manager H. O. Davis were principals in the receiving line at Universal City last week, and personally took charge of the entertainment of a number of important visitors.

On Sunday, Republican candidate Governor Charles E. Hughes and Mrs. Hughes spent several hours with the heads of U City viewing the largest film producing plant in the world. Hughes was in Los Angeles on a tour of California, and arriving here was greeted by Madge Kirby, Universal star, who presented the candidate and Mrs. Hughes with a beautiful boquet of purple asters.

On another day the "sweetest man in the world" was host of the Universal officers. He is Frederick Charles Havermeyer, the sugar trust head, who with Mrs. Havermeyer is motoring over the state.

Flaming Romance of a "Candle"

While making scenes Saturday for the Joker Comedy, "Beans and Bullets," an extra employed by Director William Beaudine, shot a ball of fire from a Roman candle into the dry grass of the foothill at the end of Laemmle Boulevard. It was not watched, and in a few minutes the entire hill consisting of about fifty acres was a mass of flames. Players volunteered as fire-fighters, and it required about an hour to get it under control.

While Universal Company under the direction of Jack Conway was en route home from Eureka, California, where exterior scenes for "The Measure of a Man" were made in the lumber district, the boat on which they were traveling, the City of Topeka, was rammed by a lumber schooner. Both boats were able to keep afloat, however, and the players landed safely at San Francisco.

The most recent arrival at Universal City from the east is Leah Baird, who came to Los Angeles this week. She was at once cast for a part in a production being made under the direction of Fred C. Kelsey.

It has been decided to add a prologue to "Idle Wives," recently produced by Lois Weber from the James Oppenheim story, and for this a cast including Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber as principals, little Frankie Lee, Charles Pearle, Mrs. A. E. Witting, and Dallas Marks, has been selected. Upon the completion of this, Ben Wilson will again resume the work of directing.

Rawlinson Laid Up

Herbert Rawlinson will be unable to play in films for the next five or six weeks owing to injuries sustained this week while working before the camera. In a thrilling fight scene he sustained a fall in which ligaments of his leg were torn loose, and the muscles badly bruised.

The Universal feature "The Isle of Life," an adaptation from the Stephen Whitman novel, will contain a number of scenes photographed in the first theatre built in California. Director Burton George and company of players were at Monterey, California, and secured these shots. The building was erected in 1847, and the first stage production was "The Lion Son of '76." Seats for the opening performance sold as high as twenty dollars.

Charles Swickard, late director of K.-B. subjects and features, has been engaged by General Manager H. O. Davis as director, and shortly will take up his first subject, one of five reels in which Hobart Henley will play the leading part.

Three new comedies are in production at the Universal. One is "The Blundering Bandit," being made by Director William Beaudine with members of the regular Joker cast. It is of the nature of a western badman type, in which the leading character is successful in beating up the chief of the bandits and all his henchmen, and permits them to keep his wife whom they have taken with the intention of holding for a ransom, while he escapes with the woman who formerly idolized the chief.

Suppose It Hadn't Been a Quick Explanation?

Walter H. Newman, a late addition to the Universal scenario staff, has written "His Own Nemesis," which is being made by the Nestor players under the direction of Louis Chaudet. Lee Moran takes the part of an eccentric musician, jealous of his wife, Eddie Lyons the artist, who employs the wife as model; and Priscilla Dean, the wife who leaves her husband to return to her first love, she meaning "art." The husband misunderstands the note, thinking it was a man, and is aided in his man-hunt by the artist. Weeks later, after many attempts to find the wife, he locates her with the artist in a cafe, and is only prevented from shooting up the place by a quick explanation.

The third comedy is "Lord Helpus Investigates," the name character being taken by Ernie Shields, who has been featured in a number of one-reel comedies. P. C. Hartigan is directing this fun film.

"The Double Tip" is the one-reel drama being filmed by Director William Garwood, with a cast which includes Lois Wilson, George Chesebro, Betty Schade and Ed. Brady. The plot pertains to the jealously of a husband, who misunderstands his wife when she attempts to aid a girl friend to win the consent of her father to marry the man she loves. This causes a separation, and the husband leaves his home. That night a burglar enters the house, and the husband being uneasy returns to find his wife in the arms of another.

The burglar proves to be her brother.

Mina Cunard plays an important part in the one-reel subject "Prize Roses." The entire cast includes Wadsworth Harris, Mrs. Witting, Helen Wright, and Eugene Walsh. The production is in charge of Maxwell Ryder.

Another story with an important child part being made at U City, is that titled "Betty and the Lonely Man," under the direction of F. A. Kelsey. A chain of circumstances aids in bringing together a bachelor and a maid who had been separated following a lover's quarrel, the child accomplishing this by carrying away a photograph of the girl, and being lost. She was taken to a receiving hospital, where the picture served to aid the officers in finding her parents. The cast for this is made up of Nora Dempsy, Dana Ong, Peggy Coudray, and Cathrine Folts.

Director Kelsey has just finished the making of "The Bracelet," which also has a child part, taken by Virgie Folts.

The title of this one-reel is "Love Is Blind," and is being made by Director Donald Macdonald, with a cast which includes Lee Hill, Maude George, Clyde Bensen, and Gertrude Astor.

She Was Curious About City Life, the Inquisitive Minx

Two one-reel stories featuring Edith Roberts have been made. One is titled "Lost in Babylon," in which a country girl goes to the city to see the night life. The other has been named "The Whelp," which refers to a heartless father who forces his daughter to pick pockets that he may live without labor. Millard K. Wilson is director of both these subjects, and Malcolm Blevins has the role of heavy in each. Both stories were written by Harvey Gates.

A sea coast story named "The Beach Combers," was made along the coast last week by Director George Cochrane from a one-reel scenario by W. M. Parker. The story pertains to a child of an old sea captain disappearing when she was six years of age, and being taken in charge by a band of beach combers, where she becomes their slave. Years later, she is induced by the chief to flirt with a young millionaire who is cruising in the vicinity with his yacht, and the chief plans that she shall cause his boat to be wrecked by having him call for her at a dangerous point. She puts out the signal at night, but later changes her mind as she does not wish to see the youth killed or his boat wrecked, in order to give the beach combers the yacht for slavage. She is fortunate in signaling to the boat owner and preventing injury, and he in return brings her to her parents. The players are Molly Malone, Jack Nellson, Burton Law, George Burril and Anna Dodge.

Officers of the production department of U City are unanimous in the opinion that A. W. Rice has made new records for production. The decision of the production managers is from several different angles. Rice with a company of players recently went to Bear Valley, where they remained thirty days, and during that time filmed ten reels of pictures. It required a few days' work at the studio to make interior scenes for a few. The record is for the greatest footage of high-classed quality one, two and three-reel subjects made at the lowest cost.

The last of these pictures to be finished was "The Wanderer," which is of two reels, written as well as produced by Rice. The cast includes George Pearce and Jane Bernoudy as the principals, with James Farley, Louis Mann, Lloyd F. Whitlock and Alma Garner.

Following the making of "The Wanderer," Rice produced "The Ex-Convict," the story of a crook who fought across the pitfalls and beat his way back after serving a term. This is of three reels, and has a cast headed by George Pearce with Gretchen Lederer, Charles Mailes, Jessie Arnold, and Walter Belasco.

Director Raymond Wells has completed the filming of the five-reel Bluebird feature "Kinkaid Gambler," which gives the star part to Ruth Stonehouse, who appears in the role of a woman detective. Early in the story she secures incriminating evidence which sends a second-story man to the penitentiary. In later years she is assigned to the duty of finding a man who has robbed another. Supporting Miss Stonehouse are R. S. Cavin as the gambler, Raymond Whitaker, Harry Griffith, Cleone Loerino, and Noble Johnson, a negro actor. This story is by Director Wells, and scenario was prepared by Fred Myton.

"The Regeneration of John Gray" is a story dealing with a dipsomaniac, who is used as a tool by a jealous woman, his aunt, who sought revenge by bringing about Gray's marriage to the daughter of a man who had spurned her love. Following the marriage she brings upon her nephew his desire for alcoholic liquors, but his bride, learning of his attempts to live a better life, aids him to be a man. This production is directed by Harry Millarde from scenario by E. M. Ingleton which consists of three reels. Franklyn Farnum is the dipsomaniac, Vola Smith the girl, Clarrisa Selwyn the avenging woman, and William Canfield the girl's father.

Richard Bennett, Mutual Star, and His Two Daughters

From Asylum to Parsonage—Not from a Parsonage to an Asylum

Director William Worthington has just completed the filming of a comedy drama entitled "Madison Square 4400," which features Herbert Rawlinson and Agnes Vernon. The former appears as a novelist, who while walking through a park late at night in search of inspiration, prevents a girl from being insulted, and accompanies her to her home. On the way he discovers she is the idol of his dreams, and from the street number, later learns the place to which he took her was an insane asylum. Friends help him break into the institution as a maniac that he may see the girl, but while he is there they are sent to jail for breaking speed laws. The girl finally aids him to escape, and the first place they go is to a parsonage.

Director Worthington will next produce a five-reel subject titled "The Man in Grey," which offers Thomas Jefferson as a star, supported by a very exceptional cast of players. This story by Douglas Bronson and Eugene B. Lewis, gives Jefferson the role of a mail carrier. The supporting cast includes Franklyn Farnum, little Zoe Du Rae, Daisy Robinson, Countess Du Cello, Frederick Montague, Edward Power and Douglas Leighton, late character actor of the Thanhouser stock, who this week arrived at U City.

Before taking up the filming of this, Mr. Worthington made a number of scenes to complete the Bluebird preparedness story, "The Eagle's Wings," which was made by Robert Leonard prior to the time he left the Universal.

Myrtle Gonzales in "The End of the Trails"

The Lynn Reynolds Company is still in the timber region near Fresno, making exteriors for the five reeler "The End of the Trails," which features Myrtle Gonzalez as the daughter of a lumber trust magnate, who masquerades as a stenographer, learns that her father is being double-crossed by his representative, and that timber owners have a just cause to cry that they are being imposed upon by the monopoly. A youth just from college, son of one of the timber owners, defends the interests of his father and neighbors, and incidentally is one of the principals of a romance in which the monopoly president's daughter is the central figure. Supporting Miss Gonzalez are Val Paul as the lover, George Hernandez her father, Fred Montague the heavy, and Fred Church in the role of his aide.

Director Henry McRae's melodrama of the week is "False Suspicions," which will consist of three reels. Many of the scenes are laid along the American-Mexican border, and the usual number of thrills including hold-ups, kidnapping, charges by the troops are introduced. The players are L. C. Shumway, Edith Johnson, Marc Fenton, Ed. Hearne, Edwin N. Wallock, and Charles Dorien.

Episode number seven is holding the attention of the "Liberty" serial company, and offers additional Mexican frontier warfare that has given spice to all the preceding numbers. Several clever situations are introduced in this, which will add much to the interest of the continued screen novelty.

"Italian Love," recently finished by Director Douglas Gerrard, who plays a leading part is the story of an Italian peasant

First Three Episodes.

Written and Produced by Jacques Jaccard.

Reviewed by Frederick W. Rath.

THE first three episodes of this serial were given an initial pre-release presentation at the Broadway Theatre. The writer was fortunate in securing a seat directly in front of three ladies who, it soon appeared—one will overhear conversations in spite of one's self—were ardent "fans," and in no way connected with the motion-picture industry. They were representative of the class of photoplaygoers who follow serials. And it is safe to assert that their unbiased, critical comments are typical of that class.

The way it struck the three ladies was like this: They watched the picture eagerly, and when the thrills came they "Ohed" and "Ahed" and in other ways gave vent to their emotions; they sympathized with the heroine and applauded the hero and were displeased at the villain. All of which struck the writer as being the highest praise that could possibly be given any picture. For in order to so affect photoplaygoers a picture must have all the elements that go into the making of a successful film—an appealing story, well constructed and perfectly presented as regards direction, acting, technical work, photography, tinting, composition, and all the other things.

This film, judging from the first three episodes, has been perfectly handled. The story, laid in Mexico and on the border, though slight in basic theme, carries a great appeal. It shows the atrocities perpetrated on the Americans by the Mexicans, affords numerous opportunities for battle scenes and daring horsemanship—some of the horsemen take big chances and certainly earn their serial salaries—and provides many thrills and big moments. And each episode ends in such a way and at such a place in the story that the spectator must surely experience that I'll-have-to-see-the-next-episode determination. Which, in serials, shows proper handling.

The acting maintains a high standard of excellence. The players are well chosen for their respective parts. Marie Walcamp, as the heroine, to whom life is just one hardship after another, registers horror and helplessness with great effectiveness, and, in addition—according to the critical ladies who have, unknowingly, furnished the greater part of this review—she rides a horse "wonderfully well," and looks "too cute for anything."

Film News From Foreign Parts

Australia Moves to Stamp Out Low Admission Prices

Special to Motion Picture News.

Sydney, N. S. W., August 2.

THE film business in this country has been rather dull for the past three weeks, which may be accounted for by the fact that there are very few big contracts left to be made as regards feature productions from the United States, as Triangle, Metro, Fox, World Pictures have all been signed up since the beginning of the present year. "The Birth of a Nation," "Ne'er-Do-Well" and "The Battle Cry of Peace" have come and gone, and, for the present at least, the feature picture field is limited.

Wirth's Limited, who have become widely known throughout the world by their wonderful circus performances and who have recently built and opened an enormous Hippodrome in the heart of Sydney, have decided to transfer their artists to another State and screen pictures regularly at the new Hippodrome. This theatre will be officially opened on Saturday next, and a program of pictures presented direct from Australasian Films, Limited. The seating capacity of the new house is the greatest of any theatre in Australia, having accommodation for over 2,500 persons.

Fraser Films, Limited, announce that their coming attractions will include the folowing Bluebird features: "Hop, the Devil's Brew," "Autumn," "Tangled Hearts," "The Grip of Jealousy" and "The Yaqui," and also "Jeanne Dore," Red Feather, with Sarah Bernhardt.

Recently appearing at the Adelphi theatre, Sydney, with the Marlowe-Wilkie Shakespearean Company was Walter Hunt, an artist who has had considerable picture experience in England, playing leads with Florence Turner for the Turner Films, and also supporting the late John Bunny when that comedian was taking films for the Vitagraph Company in England.

Harry Julius, as well as cartooning for the weekly Australian Gazette, has made animated cartoons for electioneering purposes, and it so happened that the Labor party which he worked for — Queensland State—were successful in their campaign. The same artist sketched for referendum in this State for the Liberal party recently.

A recent article in the Sydney Sun regarding censorship is worth quoting for the benefit of the censorship advocates. It follows: "Advocates of censorship have missed one point. Nobody is ever likely to be led into a life of sin by seeing it as the screen pictures it. Were sin one-tenth part the gloomy and objectionable business it is shown to be by the movies which specialize in depicting problem plays, it would have died out years ago. Some people say that there are many attractive features about sin, but to judge by the movies you'd never think so. The sinners appear to be the saddest lot of people you ever saw. Gloom seems to have settled on their souls, and you wonder why on earth they don't decide to be virtuous like yourself and have a good laugh at friend Charlie. The ultra-wowser is a gay roystering blade beside the movie problem play sinners."

Waddington's Limited should be entirely satisfied with the result of their extensive advertising the Mutual Masterpicture, "The Miracle of Life," which has been re-titled (for advertising purposes only) "The Divinity af Motherhood." The picture was screened at two leading city theatres and has the fact of it being a really good picture to back up the Waddington publicity department's campaign.

Theatre Royal Is a Picture House Again

On Saturday, July 22, the J. C. Williamson management once more converted the Theatre Royal into a movie house. This was for the special production of two of Paramount's widely advertised pictures, "Madam Butterfly," with Mary Pickford, and "The Cheat," with Fannie Ward. For the Pickford picture a special orchestra was engaged and the musical score of the opera was rendered under the direction of Gustave Slappoffski. Madame Slappoffski was also engaged to sing "A Fine Day." These special attractions combined to make the performances worthy ones, and crowded houses resulted. This is the first time that a Paramount picture has been screened at the Royal.

A. G. Hellmrich, general manager of the Co-Operative Film Exchange of this city, sailed by the Union steamer recently. Mr. Hellmrich departed with the object of securing the "world's best in motion pictures." The gazette cameraman of the "Co-Op" secured some films of his chief's departure, and did not forget to include in his group the members of the "Tivoli Follies" (including Vera Pearce), who were sailing for New Zealand.

"Australia Prepared," the Australasian Films version, was booked for two consecutive days at J. & N. Tait's Palace (Legit) theatre. The pictures proved a decided slump, and perhaps it was well for the management that they had not booked it for a longer run. It is said that the other version by Higgins Brothers, which was screened for one week at the Town Hall, proved somewhat of a "white elephant" also, notwithstanding the fact that it was the finer picture of the two.

Beginning August 1, no motion picture theatre in Australia, it is stated, will charge 3d. admission. This is the first move put into operation by the newly organized Picture Showmen's Association. The main object is to allow the smallest and the largest picture theatre to be on an equal basis. The film exchanges are to co-operate with the exhibitor by not supplying pictures to showmen who attempt to screen films at 3d. admission. It is a movement that may help, but I hear on good authority that several exchanges are already considering the movement in making an increase in hiring to the exhibitor. If this occurs the new movement will accomplish—nothing.

The Paramount Exchange will not allow their pictures—beginning August 1—to be screened at a lower price of admission than 6d.

I was very much disappointed in the Bluebird picture, "Undine." I agree that in certain respects it was wonderfully produced and also artistically photographed, but I am of the opinion that the Thanhouser production which I witnessed quite four years ago was much superior as regards maintaining the interest. Ida Schmall, although perhaps a mighty good swimmer, is not quite suited to the role which she plays. Nevertheless, "Undine" has had the effect of doing good business for the local theatres where shown.

"Battle Cry of Peace" Brings Out Crowds

"The Battle Cry of Peace" was screened at the Crystal Palace for a short season instead of the Town Hall, as the latter hall was taken up for military purposes. Not since the advent of the "Birth of a Nation" have I seen the crowds flock to see a war picture like they did to see this one. The local press were given a trade screening a week beforehand, and their comments on this picture were more than favorable. Although the ending was somewhat abrupt, I consider that the Vitagraph Company has scored a distinct triumph in their filming of this fine preparedness subject. Preparedness is a word that had evidently been the watchword of the Australian military and naval authorities several years ago, for this country then began the construction of battleships and submarines, in addition to inaugurating the universal training system. These movements have resulted in Australia being in a position to dispatch something over three hundred thousand men fully equipped with local material, and a fleet, small but capable, to the help of the motherland in a very short space of time.

If the various rumors that are at present being circulated throughout the film circles in this city are correct, then Australia will have one of the most gigantic organizations in motion pictures that has ever been attempted. One side of the rumor was that the firms comprising Australasian Films, Limited; J. C. Williamson-Waddington Pictures, Ltd.; Ben J. Fuller's Vaudeville, Ltd., and the Australian Feature Film Company, had begun negotiations which would be their ultimate amalgamation. These firms would then erect a modern up-to-date studio plant and produce motion picture features on a huge scale. If this event occurs, the strength of the four firms mentioned above would, financially, be anything from ten to fifteen millions of pounds. It will be easily seen that this amount of capital would allow of the making of the best pictures possible. The second rumor connects the names of the Fox Film Corporation, Australian Films, Ltd., Fraser Films, Co-Operative Exchange, and Wiliamson-Waddington Pictures, Ltd. Whichever way it goes, it will be a decided step toward the placing of this country in the front rank of film producers.

A disastrous fire occurred in New Plymouth, Auckland, New Zealand, recently, and among the buildings destroyed was the fine Theatre Royal. The damage of the fire has been estimated at £25,000.

"Cabiria" is doing wonderful business at a return showing at King's theatre, Wellington, N. Z. The same film spectacle was recently given a third run at a Sydney house.

After the conclusion of "The Battle Cry of Peace" season at the Spencer theatre, Perth, West Australia, Australasian Films, Limited, will present the first of the Triangle plays, "Peggy," with Billie Burke. This is the most successful Triangle feature to date, and has enjoyed wonderful successes wherever screened.

"The Ne'er-Do-Well," at Melbourne, Victoria; "Carmen," at Perth, W. A., and "The Rosary," at Adelaide, S. A., are all reported as "worth-while" subjects. The latter picture has encountered opposition in the form of a stage production, "The Story of the Rosary," which is being put on by J. C. Williamson, Ltd.

Different Methods to Popularize Pictures

Without depending on the reports published by the N. S. W. Government as regards the amount of money expended annually in advertising in this country, I recently took the trouble to do a little figuring on my own account, and the results of my calculations came as much of a surprise to me as they would to any person living here and interested in the motion pcture business. First, it would perhaps be just as well to explain that in Australia the methods adopted by the various film exchanges to popularize their releases are widely different to their American fellows. Here at present there is not one trade journal in which it is possible to advertise and thus reach the exhibitor. This has the effect of forcing the exchanges to advertise in the daily and weekly newspapers. The two papers which carry the greater part of this advertising are the Sydney Sun (Sunday edition) and the Sunday Times.

In making out a short calculation of the advertising contained in these papers, I discovered that Australasian Films, Limited, have in each Sunday's issue of both of the above publications 110 inches of advertising at the rate of 8 shillings per inch, which amounts to nearly £50 per week for each paper, with a total for one year of approximately £3,000. Wiliamson-Waddington's Limited, who average 80 inches per week in each paper, have a yearly bill of nearly two thousand pounds, while miscellaneous firms would amount to £2,000 per year. The grand total of these three calculations is £7,000 for each individual paper, Sunday editions only.

When it is taken into consideration that every exchange here advertises consistently every week and in some cases every day the whole year through, it is easily seen that there are tremendous opportunities for a live-wire trade paper. I could quote at least twenty other newspapers in this city who invariably have a page, sometimes two, of picture advertisements in every issue published. Exclusive of these newspapers there are a deal of the exchanges who advertise extensively by means of hoardings. At a later date I hope to be in a position to give details of the amount expended in the other branches of the industry, such as imports and exports.

Harrington's Limited, a large firm of photographers and motion picture outfitters, are at present offering a number of Urban motion picture cameras for sale. The same firm have the sole agency for the Power's 6-B projection machines in this country.

Burt Ives, official cinematographer for the commonwealth military department, has departed for France, where he will film the doings of the Australasian imperial forces, who are at present "somewhere" in that country. Ives is perhaps one of the smartest men at present engaged in the cinematograph business in this country, having several fine photographic effects to his credit, besides inventing numerous "helps" in connection with the filming of his subjects.

Motion pictures have proved themselves detectives more than once, and recently they were of great assistance to the postal department in Adelaide, South Australia, in tracing a letter thief in the employ of that department. In the chief mail room there is an observation gallery from which observers watch the mail sorters without their presence being known. A man was under suspicion for stealing from the letters passing through his hands, and the postal authorities engaged a local cameraman to take pictures of him. The film when developed and screened for evidence showed the thief feeling certain letters, nipping the ends out of others and examining the contents. When confronted with his theft and searched the man produced a good number of bank notes, postal orders and other valuable paper monies. At the police court he was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment.

A claim has been filed by a certain Mr. Jeffries of Minneapolis, U. S. A., through a local firm of solicitors, Minter Simpson, Ltd., against the Greater J. D. Williams Amusements, Ltd., for £14,773 for services that the claimant alleges to have been rendered to the Australian firm.

The first Chaplin-Mutual comedy, "The Floorwalker," changed to the title of "The Shopwalker," was screened last week at both the Crystal Palace and the Lyceum theatre, Sydney. The little man with the "funny walk" continues to pack 'em in as of old, and the number of persons who were unable to gain admission were many.

"Her Great Price," Metro, is scoring one of the greatest successes of any Metro film yet screened here. Other successful American productions include "Market of Vain Desire," "Reggie Mixes In," "The Good Bad-Man," "Acquitted" (Triangle), "A Man of Sorrow," "Blue Blood and Red" (Fox), "Miracle of Life" (Mutual), "Zaza," "Helen of the North" (Paramount) and "Emmy of Stork's Nest" (Metro).

A two-reel local subject entitled "The Burrinjuck Dam" was screened recently at a city theatre and deserves more than passing note, inasmuch as the above named dam is without exception the largest in the world, and the water which will eventually be stored there will be used to irrigate the lands for hundreds of miles around the site. The views, which were taken by Australasian Films, give a fine variety of scenery and leave one the impression that he (or she) has lived on the Burrinjuck a lifetime, so natural is the photography, the work of Lacey Percival.

EXCELSIOR, TRADE JOURNAL, IS BROUGHT OUT IN ROME

The first number of Excelsior has just been published in Rome, Italy, under the auspices of the Italian journal, "Il Tirso Al Cinematografo." The new publication is of the nature of a review, and is intended to be international in character. It is published in French, with a column of notes in English, and is intended for people interested in motion pictures in all parts of the world. The annual foreign subscription is announced as 10 francs, or about $2.50.

WASHBURN AND MISS CLAYTON CAST FOR SAME PICTURE BY ESSANAY

Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton have been with Essanay for five and four years, respectively, yet not until "The Prince of Graustark" is released will they have appeared in a feature picture together. During the past few months they were cast for the first time together in several three-act dramas.

They made such ideal opposites that they were immediately cast for the film version of George Barr McCutcheon's sequel to "Graustark." The play will shortly be offered in five acts by Essanay.

EDITION OF "CRISIS" FOR APPEARANCE OF THE PHOTODRAMA

Grosset and Dunlap, book publishers, are preparing a photoplay edition of "The Crisis." The book, which is to sell at popular price, will be illustrated with scenes from the Selig play. The publishers are also preparing to issue a line of striking publicity matter, including beautiful one-sheet posters in color, which will also carry scenes from the film drama. It is expected that "The Crisis" will be released to the public soon.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Kansas City Screen Club Makes Preparations for Its First Meeting; Spends $3,000 in Furnishings for Its Quarters

THE Kansas City Screen Club is making rapid preparations for the first meeting. The quarters over the Columbia theatre, have been fitted up with furnishings amounting to over three thousand dollars. The work is being rushed for the grand opening September 1. Charles Harden, chairman of the house committee, and Frank Newman, owner of the Royal and Regent theatres and president of the club, have charge of all the arrangements. The entertainment will open at eight o'clock and close at twelve o'clock, and dancing, billiards, vaudeville features and orchestra music will be some of the festivities of the opening. Kansas City will be able to boast of its screen club as one of the biggest in the United States.

F. L. Kiltz, manager of the Kansas City exchange of the Mutual Film Corporation, has done what no other exhibitor of that city and what, perhaps, no other exchange manager in any other city in the West has done. The handy arrangement Mr. Kiltz has is a map of the two states of Kansas and Missouri with the towns showing Mutual programs marked. Each of these towns is designated a large colored dot, the color varying as the population. Different colored pins are stuck in the towns where programs are running. The colors, with their meaning, follow: White, Regular Service; Blue, Serials; Red, Masterpieces; Black, Chaplins; and Green, Wichita Service. The fullest of information is shown on the map, even the express service is designated by the size of the spots. "The map," says Mr. Kiltz, "is the handiest thing about the office."

The publicity men for the V-L-S-E, Universal, aand Pathe exchanges, in clipping the newspapers prior to the convention at Topeka found that at least 3,000 lines had been devoted to the interests of the moving picture industry, some of the papers even giving half pages to the events of the convention. Many other papers of Kansas also printed articles. In this way publicity was given over all the state on the censorship question and its evils. A benefit to the industry must surely result, is the opinion of one of the publicity men.

The Pathe Exchange of Kansas City, Mo., feels that it has made a scoop by booking "The Shielding Shadow" at the Twelfth Street theatre for one week. With four other serials competing for the honor the carrying away of the prize has put the whole office force in a jubilant manner. The Willis Wood is the only other theatre in that city which has taken on a serial for one week or more, and that was "Gloria's Romance."

A. C. Melvin, manager of the Kansas City Kleine exchange, has gone to a general meeting of the exchange managers in Chicago. The convention will be held September 3, 4, and 5.

In co-ordination with their policy of open booking, the Kansas City exchange of the V-L-S-E has opened a projection room. The exhibitor coming to the office often is doubtful as to which pictures he shall run. The exhibition room helps him out of this difficulty. There are some exhibitors who go to the city who see every picture they accept.

The service of the V-L-S-E has been greatly increased as the result of this new installation.

Joe Levy, manager of the Kansas City exchange of the United Film Company, has been notified by his brother, M. Levy, president of the company, that the latter will soon be in Kansas City. The president, accompanied by D. Chatkin, is making a tour of the West, visiting the exchanges.

Following are some of the visitors to the Kansas City exchanges: George Merriam, Kingman, Kansas; J. A. Quincy, Elite theatre, Greenleaf, Kansas; G. A. Kuhn, Electric, Ellis, Kansas; Sherman Wiggins, Bowersock theatre, Lawrence, Kansas; W. H. Frame, Woodward, Oklahoma; Albert Caulkins, Elite theatre, Carthage, Missouri; Dan Myers, Muskogee, Oklahoma; Mr. Wilkeson, Crystal theatre, Hoisington, Kansas; and Merit Besson, Dodge City, Kansas.

Fleckles and Gurney Visit Laemmle Exchange in Des Moines and Report Business in That Territory in Fine Condition

TWO recent visitors to the office of the Laemmle Film Service, of Des Moines, were Maurice Fleckles, district manager of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and E. O. Gurney, auditor of exchanges for the same company. Mr. Fleckles is making a tour of the exchanges in that section of the country, going there from Minneapolis. Mr. Gurney has completed a ten-day stay there, going to Des Moines from Omaha. He has been installing a new auditing and bookkeeping system. From Des Moines he will go to Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

Both men report past conditions good and prospects great. Mr. Gurney expressed the opinion that the exchanges in the Central West were not carrying enough reels. "As it is now, most exchanges keep a certain number of reels busy all the time, and are content to let their activities stop there. The exhibitor has to wait for a good picture, in many cases, a long time when he should be getting it early."

One gratifying condition, according to Mr. Gurney, was the tendency of many exhibitors to return to regular service. Although he found many houses running feature pictures, regular service is coming back, he said.

The Des Moines Screen Club has died a painless death, according to C. E. Smith, president of that organization. Since the recent joint convention with the Omaha body, practically nothing has been done and no meetings have been held. Whether the convention was the result of this lack of activity or not Mr. Smith did not say. "The Des Moines Screen Club is dead!" said Mr. Smith. "There is a slim chance that we will hold a picnic sooner or later, but a lot more pep will have to be shown. There are but about thirteen film men in the city, and they do not seem to have much interest."

Jerome Abrams, special Bluebird representative out of New York, was a recent visitor to the Des Moines office of the Bluebird Photoplays. Mr. Abrams stayed but two days, leaving for Oklahoma City, where he was married. He will return shortly to Des Moines and begin a campaign to boost Bluebird pictures in this territory.

The latest addition to the Des Moines office of the Metro Film Service is Jolly Jones. Mr. Jones, an experienced member of the film industry, was recently of the Bluebird staff at Oklahoma City. He has also been connected with exchanges in the South. Mr. Jones will handle "The Crimson Stain Mystery" serial in Iowa for the Metro.

AIKEN HOLDS CONFERENCE WITH GENERAL REPRESENTATIVES

F. C. Aiken, who is assistant to President Kleine, of the General Film Company, has been holding a conference with his Pacific Coast representatives, at the offices of the company in San Francisco. Frank L. Hudson attended from Seattle, Wash.; L. A. Todd was there from Portland, and W. H. Cree has gone up from Los Angeles.

BARACH IN CHARGE OF WORLD FILM IN DALLAS

Nat Barach is the new manager of World Film at Dallas, Texas.

Oliver P. Hall, formerly of Atlanta, is the new manager for Fox at Dallas, Texas, succeeding W. M. Byrd, resigned.

Philadelphia Exchanges Find Business in Pennsylvania Territory Taking an Upward Trend; $25,000 Advance Bookings for "Shielding Shadow"

HUNTER BENNET, sales manager of the Mutual Film Corporation, after a trip through the west, visiting all the branch offices, stopped off for a few days in Philadelphia to see Exchange Manager Pope. He found business holding its own in spite of adverse conditions in that section.

B. R. Thomas, Philadelphia salesman for Mutual, has been transferred to the Washington office. George J. Beihoff, who has been representing Pathé in Pennsylvania territory, says he found "The Shielding Shadow," the latest Pathé serial, the biggest hit yet, every exhibitor seeing it being pleased. The best proof of which is the fact that $25,000 worth of bookings have already been taken on the fifteen episode picture and the release date is still a month off.

J. A. Koerpel, manager of the World Film Exchange, cannot help gloating over the fact that the Pennsylvania Board of Censors returned the "Velvet Paw," Gail Kane and House Peter's latest World picture, without cutting a single inch. Moreover, the aforesaid board said the picture was one of the finest that had come before them in months.

Another gloat; the regenerated Regent will open its doors on Labor Day with the World's release of "Friday the Thirteenth."

And a third; in Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, both Pennsylvania towns of about 65,000 to 70,000 inhabitants, the World has the distinction (unique in such small places) of first, second, third and fourth runs in as many different theatres.

The Regent in Wilkes-Barre and Savoy in Scranton, both Camerford theatres, now use World first run releases for one and two days.

Leon D. Netter, manager of Masterpiece Film Attractions, has already had many inquiries about "Purity," which he is handling in the states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky. He expects to release this picture shortly in that territory.

In addition to "The Little Girl Next Door" for Pennsylvania, the rights to "Diana's Inspiration," a Unity Sales Corporation film, have been secured for Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey by the Masterpeice people. Mr. Netter has just returned from a business trip to New York, making final arrangements for his new releases.

He proposes to send out two road companies with "The Spoilers," the demand not being supplied by the one already started.

Anent "The Spoilers," the Globe theatre at Sixtieth and Market streets played the picture on August 21 and 22, the two hottest days of the season, to record breaking crowds, the line of eager "fans" extending way down the street.

Hazel Good, manager of the Supreme Feature Film's office in Pittsburgh, is in charge of the Philadelphia exchange in the absence of Manager Harry E. Grelle.

George J. Beihoff has resigned from Pathé to become Eastern representative of the Supreme Feature Film Corporation, with offices at Philadelphia. Mr. Beihoff will manage the territory from Pittsburgh to New York, inclusive.

Mr. Grelle will make his headquarters in some of the western cities, managing that part of the Supreme's territory.

The Philadelphia Exchange will move from its present quarters, 1325 Vine street, as soon as larger offices can be obtained.

With the acquisition of the Lyric theatre at Cape May, the Paramount pictures are shown fourteen times weekly in three theatres of the seashore town. Fred and Charles Arnold own the Lyric. The other two theatres are the Casino, M. Suelke, owner, and the Strand, owned by C. Cox. Wildwood, N. J., another resort near Cape May, beats this record by using eighteen Paramounts each week. All of which is balm of Gilead to Oscar Bower, manager of Famous Players Exchange, which handles Paramount in that section.

Publicity Manager Oscar A. Morgan is nothing if not frank. After the censors had cut the most important part of the plot from "The Evil Thereof," a Famous release, he advised exhibitors in his weekly sheet, Paramount Pointers, that a good repeat would do more for them on "The Evil Thereof's" date than the mutilated film. Every exchange reports concessions made to any exhibitors needing help on account of paralysis conditions. This has enabled all but the smallest theatres to so far weather the storm.

THE INDEPENDENT OPENS IN MILWAUKEE

The Independent Film Corporation has recently opened offices at 502 Merrill Building, Milwaukee, Wis., with John C. Moore in charge. L. H. Olson is the traveling representative from that office. John DeLorenza is in charge of the bookings. A. R. Nelson has been here for some time getting things under way, and business is reported as being exceptionally good.

Al DeSummers and Joseph Mergner, who were formerly connected with the Mutual Film Company, Mr. Mergner having for some time been the Milwaukee branch manager, and Mr. DeSummers having recently handled "The Girl and the Game" out of Detroit, have gone into the feature business there. They have opened an office at 701 Merrill Building.

H. L. Conway has succeeded W. C. Brimmer as manager of the General Film Exchange office in Milwaukee. Mr. Conway was formerly road man for the General in Wisconsin, and is well known both among local, as well as State, exhibitors.

CALVERT MAKES MANY FRIENDS IN OMAHA TERRITORY

The popularity of "Curley" Calvert, Universal roadman, recently given the managership of the Bluebird office in Omaha, is coming into evidence more every day. Calvert, whose ready smile and happy attitude wins him friends on an instant's notice, is receiving letters every day from exhibitors who desire to congratulate him. "I'm going to keep 'em in my album," says Curley. "Say, but the bunch of exhibitors in the Omaha district are fine scouts!"

Ebenstein Is Appointed General Manager of the Moss Motion Picture Corporation; "There'll Be no Moss Growing Under Moss Film," He Opines

H. R. EBENSTEIN, until recently manager of the film exchange of the B. S. Moss Motion Picture Corporation, has been appointed general manager of that organization and has assumed full charge of all of its activities.

Extensive publicity programs are being arranged and according to Mr. Ebenstein "There'll be no Moss growing under Moss film."

Three and a half years ago Mr. Ebenstein was an efficiency and organization expert and was engaged on some special work on collections for the National Cash Register Company, when a friend explained what was then the sad plight of the picture business in regard to collections.

He investigated and sold his services to the World Film Corporation and installed for them what was probably an efficient collection system.

Later, Mr. Ebenstein organized the film exchange for the B. S. Moss Motion Picture Corporation.

Under the new Moss states right plan, which aims to give its subscribers a feature a month of exceptional merit, there will be a comprehensive sales plan that takes service to exhibitor and exchange alike as its chief object. An extensive advertising campaign has been planned for all the trade papers.

Already the number of interested inquiries has reached such proportions that Mr. Ebenstein is contemplating an extensive trip, covering a large portion of the United States, with the idea of assigning franchises where conditions indicate that the greatest good can be derived for all parties concerned.

CHANGES IN MANAGEMENT LOS ANGELES OFFICE

Irving M. Lesser has been placed in charge of the Los Angeles office of The All Star Features Distributors, the concern handing the business of Sol Lesser, one of the largest independent buyers of pictures in the industry.

Mr. Lesser is a stockholder in the company, and in taking over the management of the Los Angeles office, which is located at 514 West Eighth Street, announces that he will use every effort to properly take care of every requirement of the exhibitor. The change goes into effect at once.

LICHTMAN PLANS PICKFORD OFFICE IN INDIANAPOLIS

Al Lichtman, representing the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, was in Indianapolis recently to open a branch office for Pickford pictures in Indianapolis. Cincinnati will be the main office for the territory in which Indianapolis is included.

New Laws and Court Decisions

This department is designed to keep the industry informed of all news concerning new or projected laws, Federal, State, County or Municipal, that may affect the business, and all events involving any branch of the trade with the authorities in all sections of the country

Board of Trade in Frisco Swings Axe at Censorship

QUIETLY and patiently, but with more determination and power than anyone at first imagined, the Film Exchange Board of Trade of San Francisco and the San Francisco exhibitors have swung the political axe at censorship in San Francisco. A few gasps will be heard from those who have been fighting for censorship at the final meeting to be held on the 31st of August by the License Committee of the Supervisors, but there is no likelihood that the members of the committee will change their minds, nor deviate from their conviction that the motion picture theatres have the right to the same freedom that the other theatres enjoy.

The procedure of the committee will be to pass up to the supervisors as a whole the question of the repeal of the present censorship ordinance, and the enactment of a new ordinance which will be exactly the same as the present ordinance which relates to the "other" theatres. It is safe to say now, after the exhaustive threshing out of the question which has been in progress for such a long time, that censorship will be entirely and absolutely killed and the new ordinance passed in its place. The ordinance which will be repealed is Ordinance No. 761 (New Series).

Section 1 requires a permit from the board of police commissioners.

Section 2 prohibits showing lewd scenes, nude figures, "any murder, suicide, robbery, holdup, stabbing, assaulting, clubbing or beating of any human being."

Section 3 provides for a hearing prior to the revocation of a permit.

Section 4 provides for a board of censorship of five members, who are directed to prosecute "by proper legal proceedings all persons, firms, associations or corporations who violate any of the provisions of this ordinance."

Section 5 provides punishment for violation of the ordinance by fine and imprisonment.

This ordinance is to be repealed in its entirety and the proposed new ordinance which will take its place reads as follows:

"Be it ordained by the people of the City and County of San Francisco as follows: Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to hold, conduct or carry on, or to cause or to permit to be held, conducted or carried on, any motion picture exhibition which is offensive to decency or is adapted to excite vicious or lewd thoughts or acts, or which is lewd or obscene or vulgar, or which is of an obscene, indecent or immoral nature or so suggestive as to be offensive to the moral sense.

"Section 2. Any person, firm, association or corporation violating any provision or provisions of this ordinance shall be declared guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500, or by imprisonment in the county jail for the period of not less than thirty days or more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

This is exactly the wording used in the ordinance which regulates theatrical exhibitions, performances and public entertainments. No censors are required, and anyone who is witness to a violation of the ordinance can file a complaint and prosecute the offenders in such cases as these.

By this achievement the San Francisco exchanges and exhibitors will go on record as being finally and conclusively opposed to censorship in any way, shape or manner. They have fought it to a standstill, and all the newspapers have backed them up with important and determined editorials. Even the present ordinance has been shelved under popular disapproval. Two members of the board of censors have resigned, and although one was appointed by the mayor, he has not appointed his successor. Two more of the members remaining have ceased to act. One member only, Corporal Berschon, continues to act, but he is of a broad calibre and his censorship is most liberal.

Pennsylvania Health Commissioner Extends Plague Order Excluding Children from Theatres to September 29

ALTHOUGH, of course, it is just a temporary arrangement, the order of Pennsylvania State Health Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon, barring all children under sixteen from attendance at any of the 5,000 or 6,000 motion picture theatres in the State, to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis, is having a serious effect upon motion picture business throughout Pennsylvania. The Commissioner has announced that he has extended the ban from September 18, the original date, until September 29. The ruling applies also to private, public and Sunday schools.

While the motion picture theatre owners have shown a disposition to co-operate readily with the health authorities in checking the disease, a number of theatres have been compelled temporarily to close up shop altogether, finding that they would lose money without the patronage of the children during the period the ban is to last. One of the biggest houses of the State to close because of the Dixon order is the Rex, of Reading. Frank Gould, the manager, said it is impossible for him to do business so long as children are barred, and that the ruling not only keeps children away from his house, but their parents as well. The Rex had been playing to crowded houses all summer, but will remain "dark" until the quarantine order for children is lifted. It is, of course, possible that the ban will be extended beyond September 29 unless the plague is abated by that date.

One of the few cases in which a motion picture theatre owner is alleged to have tried to evade the order of Dr. Dixon, is reported from Danville. The health officers there had a warrant issued for a theatre man because it is charged that while he closed the front door of his house to children he permitted a few to slip in by a side entrance.

This is one of the exceptionally few cases in which a theatre man is alleged to have failed to respect the Health Department's order, whereas Dr. Nixon himself says that a great deal of abuse has been heaped upon his department by ministers of the gospel.

"TWILIGHT SLEEP" REJECTED BY NASHVILLE CENSUS BOARD

"Twilight Sleep" was rejected by the Nashville, Tenn., Board of Sensors on August 13, after a private showing of the picture. No objections were raised by the board to the moral features of the play, but they disapproved it on the grounds that the subject was not what they deemed proper to be shown the people of Nashville on account of its subject. The film was brought to Nashville by Prof. Arthur H. Rollnick, who owns the picture and leased the strand theatre to show the picture, beginning Monday, August 14. The picture passed the National Board of Review, and has been shown in Pennsylvania and Ohio, the two States in which censorship is rigid and most unyielding.

BRACEY AND MARIAN SWAYNE SIGN WITH ARROW

Sidney Bracy, who will be remembered for his magnificent work in "The Million Dollar Mystery" and other Thanhouser serials and feature pictures, has been signed by W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, for work in a number of new features which will be produced under the direction of Howell Hansel at the Arrow studio in Yonkers, N. Y.

Marian Swayne, well known to the American stage for her performance as Effie in "The Blindness of Virtue," as Cicely in the Wilde play, "The Importance of Being Ernest," and as the Squaw in "The Squaw Man," has become a member of the Arrow forces.

Miss Swayne was associated with the screen for some time, having played a year with Blache and a year with Gaumont.

She appeared in her first motion picture role under Howell Hansel's direction. On her return to the screen, after several years of stage successes, Miss Swayne again finds herself under his direction, this time with Arrow.

STOUT WELCOMED HOME TO KEYSTONE

George W. Stout, business manager of the Triangle-Keystone studios, has returned to the coast from an extended stay in New York.

Mr. Stout expresses himself as glad to be back where it is cool in the summer, warm in the winter and just right most of the time.

His friends at the Keystone welcomed him home with a dinner at Levy's a few evenings after his arrival and Charles Murray presided as toastmaster for the occasion.

One Reel Series from Kalem Features Daredevil Larkin

Robert Welles Ritchie Is Engaged to Write the Script, Based on His Newspaper Experience —"Grant, Police Reporter," Is Title of the Screen Stories

KALEM announces that the elaborate plans to feature George Larkin, whose acquisition by that company was mentioned in last week's NEWS have been perfected and that the screen daredevil will be presented in a new series to be called "Grant, Police Reporter." The productions will be in one reel, written around the career of the average big daily police reporter and containing spectacular thrills that will put Larkin's dare-devil qualities to a severe test. Each one-reel picture will tell a complete story, under an individual title. As with Kalem's "Hazards of Helen" the new series will be a weekly release.

Robert Welles Ritchie, magazine contributor and novelist, author of the "Girl From Frisco" series, has been engaged to write the stories for "Grant, Police Reporter." For the plots Mr. Ritchie will draw on his own romantic career as a newspaper man, which includes service in the four corners of the globe for the New York Sun, The New York World, The San Francisco Call and The London Telegraph.

Most of the stories will be based on real occurrences in New York newspaper annals, and in many cases Mr. Ritchie will lay bare the inside facts which the newspapers were not allowed to publish on easily recognized big news stories. In some instances, police reporters on different New York papers will be able to see their own exciting adventures on well-remembered stories portrayed in detail.

Kalem officials declare that this is the first time that an author of Mr. Ritchie's prominence has been engaged to write original screen stories for one-reel dramatic productions. "We are aiming to hit a bull's-eye again in carrying out our slogan of 'Short Length Features,'" declared Mr. Wright, of the Kalem Company to a NEWS representative. "We started by assuring ourselves the best stories we could find—and to get them we will have to pay three times as much as any film manufacturer in the world has ever laid out for one-reel stories, and more than four times the standard price.

"We went a step further by getting George Larkin for the leading role. Larkin is both widely popular and a strong actor—and his 'feature' qualities are shown by the fact that in the past six weeks he has been seen on Broadway in four multiple reel productions. When the complete cast is ready to be announced exhibitors will see that we haven't overlooked a link in making 'Grant, Police Reporter' a real 'Short Length Feature.'

"While each complete one-reel story of the new series will be packed with action and contain sensational thrills, we have kept the idea of quality uppermost and have demanded logical, convincing plots. You will see real newspaper life—for Mr. Ritchie knows the field of which he is writing. There will be none of the typical clap-trap screen newspaper stuff—a reporter lugging a big note-book which he displays on all occasions, or rushing to 'stop the presses' to get his 'scoop' in. Grant is going to be a red-blooded, real-life reporter, and you may take my word for it that Larkin has his work cut out for him. The early stories certainly call on him for some audaciously daring feats.

Robert Welles Ritchie has become an enthusiastic screen fan following his experience with "The Girl From Frisco," Kalem's current two-reel series featuring Marin Sais and True Boardman. The author confesses to an eagerness to see each succeeding episode of the screen productions. "I am delighted," he says, "with the elaborate manner in which Kalem has staged the stories. I must admit surprise at the lengths to which the director has gone in his demand for absolute realism. It is this that had much to do with my decision to write the 'Grant' stories, for I know that by following the Kalem policy we will give the public at last a real glimpse of actual newspaper life. It is a field fertile in opportunities for absorbing adventure stories."

According to present plans the first release of the "Grant, Police Reporter" series will be made about the middle of September. George Larkin, the star, started last week for Jacksonville where the thrillers will be staged.

Director Stuart Paton's Company from "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea"

HELEN GIBSON TO DEFEND TITLE AT WESTERN RODEO

Helen Gibson, the heroine of Kalem's "Hazards of Helen" series, has taken a week's vacation from the studio to compete in the current Western rodeo being held at Bakersfield, California. Miss Gibson will defend her title of Pacific Coast womans' champion in a number of events.

BLUEBIRD

A STIRRING MILITARY DRAMA
"BEHIND THE LINES"
With HARRY CAREY, EDITH JOHNSON and MARC FENTON
DIRECTED BY HENRY McRAE

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, (INC)

Increasing popularity of BLUEBIRD Photoplays is proving the widespread appreciation of the now famous policy "The Play's the Thing."

This appreciation, coming first from the public, is now attested by that sincerest form of flattery—imitation—on the part of other producers.

The BLUEBIRD policy has proven, in something more than thirty releases, that not only better acting, but better all 'round entertainment is assured the moving picture patron, when star productions supersede star players.

The now famous BLUEBIRD policy of "The Play's the Thing" has been explained to the general public through the medium of attractive half-page advertisements in the Saturday Evening Post. Reaching over ten million readers every week with the story of BLUEBIRDS, Exhibitors everywhere are reaping the benefit with every BLUEBIRD Photoplay shown at their theatres.

You can share in the same popularity to the profit of your house.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By LONGACRE

Just to make old Dr. Terence Ramsaye, who dropped the "Eugene" from his name before he left Chicago, sorry that he was going back there, the Associated Advertising Men gave him a feed at the Hotel Claridge last Tuesday.

The luncheon was followed by a grill, in which the chief performers with the gridiron were Hopp Hadley, Harry Reichenbach and Carl H. Pierce.

According to Hopp, who led for the prosecution, Terry had played one night stands on practically every newspaper between Chicago and Denver. Harry Reichenbach attempted to prove that Terry could have made his fortune as a handwriting expert, but unfortunately caused too much laughter to carry his point.

Harry Ennis maintained a dignified silence throughout the luncheon.

Those present were Jacques Kopfstein, V. M. Shapiro, Arthur James, Henry James, William Barry, Lyman O. Fiske, George Blaisdell, Harry Ennis, W. P. Milligan, James Milligan, Harry King Tootle, William Wright, E. Lanning Masters, Julian M. Solomon, Jr., Paul Gulick, Oscar Haase, Pete Schmidt, Charles Condon, Sam Spedon, Harry Reichenbach, Nat G. Rothstein, Hopp Hadley, Otto Henry Harras, R. M. Vandivert, John C. Flinn, B. P. Schulberg, Mr. Cornier, Gerald Duffy, Lesley Mason, Carl H. Pierce, Wallace Thompson, Mr. Burr, Wid Gunning, E. Richard Scheyer, P. A. Parsons.

What with Terry Ramsaye and Al Williams preparing to leave for Chicago, and others switching about on their jobs, and all the boys anxious to give them a little luncheon, or show their appreciation in various ways, considerable food has been consumed during the past week.

Terry, by the way, probably will get something more to eat when he gets to Chicago. It may be remembered that he hails from that place and has only been visiting in New York, so to speak; he knows Chicago like the rest of us know the pawnshops of New York, and there probably will be a few bands and a wedge of waiters and bartenders waiting to meet him at the train.

Our loss is Chicago's gain, as the preacher so aptly remarks.

Blanche Lasky is spending the week motoring. By way of a little after-dinner exercise she is drivng her Stutz roadster from New York to Lake Champlain. We hope she has a fine trip, notwithstanding the fact that she once told us the Lincoln Highway was a good road to Philadelphia. We don't like to hold grudges.

The Pennsylvania censors are just recovering from an orgy over "The Victory of Conscience," the newest Lasky-Lou Tellegen picture, released by Paramount. Apparently they have been fasting for several weeks, for they plunged into the crimson feast like cavemen at the slaughtering of a mastodon, and they came up from the trough grunting their satisfaction, their jowls dripping with the life-blood of a production which has attracted wide attention among the critics. As we go to press the Saturnalia is still on, with the Breitinger followers thirsting for something more to wallow in. Doubtless the result will be the sort of picture the people of Pennsylvania want, since they sanction and support their Board of Censors.

Anna Little and Alan Forrest were married at Santa Barbara on August 19. Rhea Mitchell and Rena Rogers (Mrs. Frank Borzage) attended Miss Little, and Richard Willis of Los Angeles gave the bride away. Frank Borzage was best man. The marriage is the outcome of a romance lasting over two years. A supper was given at the Arlington after the wedding and later in the evening the couple received at their pretty new home. This was largely attended, for the two most interested are as popular as any artists on the screen. The wedding will come as a big surprise to most people, for it was all quietly arranged. Both are at the American studios.

The last regular meeting of the "Poets' Corner" at the Lasky studio, Hollywood, was frought with interest and quivering with excitement. The main topic of the debate, "Are Long Eyelashes Necessary to Be a Successful Ingenue?" occupied most of the evening and was won by the affirmatives.

At the conclusion of the debate Percy Hilburn, better known as the Selma Avenue Milton, recited the following original verse:

"Twinkle, twinkle little static,
How I wonder what you are,
As in manner so erratic
All of our best work you scar."

And in the Chautauqua salute which followed four handkerchiefs were torn beyond repair. Hilburn graciously acknowledged the plaudits.

William Elmer, the Bard of Sunset Boulevard, has promised an original poem for the next meeting.

A denial comes from the office of Selwyn and company to the effect that Jane Cowl has not been engaged for a leading part by the recently organized Success Film Company.

A short time ago there was a story printed to the effect that Miss Cowl had deserted the legitimate for the pictures to appear under the banner of the new concern. It appears, however, that she was merely approached by an agent to discover whether or not she would consider an offer. The agent was advised that she was not available for pictures at the present time.

Notwithstanding Harvey F. Thew's aversion to noon day luncheons he was persuaded to accept an invitation to one at the Hermitage on Wednesday last.

It was given in his honor by a few of his fellow speed kings (Smith and Underwood models) who wished him nothing worse than a case of indigestion.

Beside the members of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS staff, Hector Turnbull and John C. Flinn were dared to be present, and refused to take the dare. Merritt Crawford of the Metro Pictures Corporation as well as Tom Geraghty, Duane J. Kertyn, and Lloyd Llewellyn added their bulk to the occasion. The Editor of the Bayside Bugle was discerned behind a knife and fork during the course of the festivities.

When it was all over, Harvey promised never to do it again and was let off with a nominal fine.

On Wednesday night, Sept. 6, motion picture players and members of the Screen Club will be the guests of Luna Park. The management of the Coney Island amusement park has extended a cordial invitation to the artists to visit the resort on a merrymaking tour. Complimentary tickets for admission to the park and several of its attractions, including Bostock's wild animal arena, are now being distributed.

There will be staged a free modern dance contest in Luna's beautiful, spacious ballroom, the contestants restricted to motion picture artists only, and the winners of which will be awarded prizes.

Those who haven't already been supplied with tickets may secure them through their representatives, the Screen Club, or the publicity department of the company with which they are engaged. In case of inclement weather the date will be postponed to Thursday night, Sept. 7.

NO PUBLICITY FOR "NAUGHTY PICTURES" IN KANSAS DAILY

The Kansas City Star, published at Kansas City, Mo., announces that it will not permit publication of advertisements in its columns of picture films that base their appeal on a salacious presentation of sex problems.

A Trio of Scenes from "Fantomas," Which Will Begin Issuing from Gaumont Through the Mutual Exchanges September 7

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Mark A. Lasky and Mark M. Leichter, president and general manager respectively, of the Lasky Amusement Enterprises, Inc., of San Francisco, have been in town and left for the coast early last week.

C. Aubrey Smith, who has just completed his work in "Jaffery" for the International Film Service, Inc., has gone to London to spend a few weeks with W. J. Locke, the author novelist.

Helen Starr, scenario editor for Universal in New York, is vacationing at Spring Lake, for the last few weeks.

M. G. Kronacker, solicitor for Pathe Exchange, New York office, has returned from a six weeks' vacation trip through New Jersey resorts, and is back in harness.

"CIVILIZATION" MOVES TO PARK THEATRE

"Civilization" moves from the Criterion theatre to the Park theatre at Columbus Circle, Sunday, September 10.

This is necessitated by a prior contract entered into before Klaw and Erlanger realized that "Civilization" would be as strong an attraction in its sixteenth week as it was in its first.

Workmen began extensive alterations at the Park on Tuesday morning, September 5, for the reception of the spectacle. The same equipment now being used at the Criterion theatre will be transferred to the Park and installed by B. F. Porter, who perfected the projection at the Criterion theatre for Mr. Ince.

DEMAND FOR WORLD'S SERIES SCORE BOARDS

The past week has been a busy one for the World's Series Score Board Company, 105 West Fortieth Street, New York. Among some of the recent orders received are from the Strand theatre in Newark; Grand theatre in Trenton; also the Grand in Hartford, Conn. The Miles circuit has contracted to lease these boards for its houses in Detroit and Cleveland. Each of these theatres have a seating capacity of over 2,500.

ZAMAH OSWALD IS A TALENTED WOMAN WITH LIST OF PICTURE ACHIEVEMENTS TO HER CREDIT

Among the few women who have made signal achievements in the motion picture industry is Zamah Oswald, who is now offering for marketing her latest picture, "The Invisible Enemy," a feature dealing with the infantile paralysis epidemic. Miss Oswald was born in Los Angeles, Cal., and was the youngest in a family of thirteen.

She forsook the easy going life offered by the social position of her family and turned to the motion picture as a medium for the expression of her ideas and talents. Miss Oswald, it is said, has written and played the leads in a number of successful picture productions, but she regards 'The Invisible Enemy" as the most unusual of all her efforts.

Zamah Oswald

In producing the picture Miss Oswald received co-operation from the Health Department of the City of New York, securing entry into hospitals where no motion picture producer had been before.

NO VIOLATION OF ANTI-TRUST LAWS, SAYS CITY COUNCIL

Special to Motion Picture News.

McAlester, Okla., Sept. 2.

"We find that a picture show is not a service or commodity which the public must use. This is from an opinion by the Oklahoma Corporation Commission, rendered at Oklahoma City Aug. 26, disclaiming jurisdiction over alleged violation of State anti-trust laws by film companies. The complaint was made by B. H. Powell, as president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, and others against the Mutual Film Corporation, General Film Company and Universal Film and Supply Company. It is alleged that the defendants had entered into restraint of trade to control prices and exhibitions of films in moving picture shows in Oklahoma. The hearing developed that there was a uniformity of prices and rules as to leasing films.

The commission has now decided that that body has no jurisdiction over the subject matter under the law, for the reason that its jurisdiction is confined to cases wherein the commodity is one which the public must use.

The commission holds that the public may be able to worry along without film shows.

DICKSON IS HANDLING AMERICAN STANDARD RELEASES

Starting September 11, the Dickson Film Service Company, 3217 Locust Street, St. Louis, will handle the releases of the American Standard Motion Picture Corporation in its territory.

Arthur D. Gans will handle the American Standard pictures in Baltimore, Washington, and Philadelphia. The Baltimore office, known as the American standard Film Service, is located at 151 North Gay Street. The Washington branch, called the Independent Film Company, is at 626 F Street, N. W. The Philadelphia office will be opened in a few weeks, and the officers expect to do a large volume of business from the start.

The Union Film and Supply Company, 124 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, is doing an enormous booking business with the "Tom and Jerry" comedy series, an American Standard product.

HAMILTON RETURNS FROM MONTANA

Los Angeles, Sept. 2.

G. P. Hamilton, who with members of the Century Film Company, has been here making interior scenes for a seven-reel picture, has returned to Roundup, Mont., and from there will go to New York to look after the sale of the picture by State rights.

Typical Scenes from "The Caravan," a Drama of Ancient Egypt, to Be Released by Universal During the Week of Septemer 11

girl coming to America, and here becoming the victim of a man who noticed her beauty while aboard ship. Her sweetheart waiting for her in America, misses her at the station, and after weeks of search finds her, learns of her moral ruin, and seeks revenge by killing the man who betrayed her. Later the girl tells the true story of her experience, and thus her lover is exonorated.

No Longer His Pa's Prodigal

Director Gerrard is now working on "Billy's Birthday," a one-reel picture in which he played the character part, an old man who disinherits his son when disappointed at his marriage. The father notices it is the son's birthday anniversary by the calendar, and reveries cause him to hunt for the youth, and a happy reunion of the family follows. Willard Wayne and Francelia Billington are the other principals.

The accepted title for the Ince-Triangle comedy drama of college life, featuring Bessie Barriscale and Charles Ray is "Plain Jane." This subject was completed last week, and will be released at an early date. It contains the story of a slavey girl in a college town, who won a husband and happiness, because of her beauty and good behavior, following her innocent flirtations with college dudes, her winning an international beauty prize, and finally winging Dan Cupid. Ray appears in the role of a serious minded student, who decides to give up his books when he becomes acquainted with Jane. The supporting cast includes Mabel Johnson, William Burgermaster, Fannie Midgley and others. The production was made under the direction of Charles Miller, and a bit of comedy injected in the filming will not appear upon the screen.

Director Raymond B. West will within the next few days stage a sensational railroad collision in which two passenger trains made up of modern Pullman coaches, will crash together near Los Angeles. This scene is for the tri-star Ince production which has Donothy Dalton, Howard Hickman and Enid Markey as its principals. The making of these scenes is being very carefully planned so that no one will be injured, and yet so that the most realistic effects will be effectively secured.

Two new productions were commenced last week at the Ince Culver City plant. C. Gardiner Sullivan is the author of one, a light comedy drama which will star Bessie Barriscale, and be made under the direction of Charles Miller. Charles K. French, Jack Gilbert, Roy Laidlaw, and George Elwell have been selected as the supporting cast. The other new production is from a story by John Lynch, late addition to the Ince forces, and Director Walter Edwards will be in charge of the filming. It will have Frank Keenan as the star, and Margery Wilson and Jerome Storm as the principals.

The Edwards Company went north to work along the Sacramento River in California, where they will remain for more than a week. An old stern wheeler boat of the type used on the Mississippi River sixty years ago, has been leased and will be used for this picture.

The Ince Company composed of William Desmond, Margaret Thompson, Robert McKim, J. Barney Sherry, J. Frank Burke and others, are home from a trip to Bear Valley, where they spent a week filming scenes under the direction of Charles Giblyn.

The western newspaper office setting needed for the current William S. Hart subject, was completed at the Culver City studios, and Mr. Hart and company which included Alma Reuben, Nina Byron and Walter Perry as principals, deserted Inceville rancho long enough during the week to work on this setting. Equipped with the early day Washington hand press and type-racks in use a half century back, this setting attracted unusual attention. The setting will be the home of "The Glory Hole Nugget," supposed to have been printed in 1870. The newspapers used in the scenes were made up and printed by Fred Peck, veteran insert writer at the studio who had spent more than forty years as a newspaper man.

Star of "Eye of the Night" Sees an Ince Contract

Margery Wilson, ingenue of the Ince organization, was last week given a long term contract to appear exclusively in Ince made productions. This comes as recognition on the part of Mr. Ince of the splendid work accomplished by this actress. She appeared first with William S. Hart in "The Primal Lure," supported William H. Thompson in "The Eye of the Night," and since has played at the Culver City studios in a number of pictures which will shortly be released.

Monte M. Katterjohn, Ince staff author, is in receipt of a letter from a Brown University student, praising the historical accuracy of the William S. Hart picture, "The Captive God," written by Katterjohn. The student states he has made an exhaustive study of the Aztec race, and the play showed them in a very accurate manner.

The Rolin Film Company continue to make improvements at its new plant, and shortly will have it in tip top condition. Last week, Manager Dwight Whiting annouced the addition of M. S. Alexander as a new member of the technical staff, serving as scenic artist. Lottie Case, a new member of the stock company, played her first roles last week, and in a number of scenes wore a valuable gown with Ermine trimming, said by the P. A. to be valued at twelve thousand dollars.

Ill fortune continues to follow the Rolin players, several being dangerously ill with ptomaine poisoning, and George Whiting wrecked his Bugatti, six thousand dollar automobile when he had a collision with a flivver.

Their "Prop" an Energetic Storm at Sea

Lasky producing companies are finding new locations in the vicinity of Balboa beach. Last week the Marie Doro Company, under the direction of James Young, spent several days there, waiting most of the time for a storm which was one of the props required for this production.

Director Edward LeSaint with the Lou-Tellegen Company was also there, and had they not used a block and tackle, it is probable Tellegen would still be fishing off a pier. It was there he caught a large Yellowtail, and this being the second fish he had landed in his life, he insisted upon remaining.

A thoroughbred wolf needed in a scene with Fannie Ward, where the animal is supposed to become frightened, showed its lack of temperament while the camera was in operation, for it refused to register the fright or even be driven from the setting. Director Reicher finally accomplished the desired results by jerking the wolf from the scene by a long cord tied to its tail.

E. M. Irwin, Paramount exhibitor at Denver, Colorado, and H. C. Renike theatre owner at St. Joseph, Mo., were guests at the Lasky studio this week.

For exteriors of the western mining

Lasky picture, which gives Tom Meighn his first star part, a company under the direction of William C. deMille, has gone to Bear Valley. They will remain in the mountain section for more than a week. The principal supports are Anita King, Horace Carpenter, Harry Carey and Edith Chapman. The title of this picture will be announced by the New York office.

George Melford will next direct Blanche Sweet in a present day story, laid in California, i. e., the picture is supposed to have a California locale or atmosphere. Tom Forman will have the male lead, and leading parts are taken by Walter Long and Mrs. Lewis McCord. No name for this picture has been given out at the studio.

Fred Mace in his make up of fire chief, was called into the Superior Court of Los Angeles as a witness, and created much comment. Assistant Business Manager Harry Kerr, accompanied the comedian, and explained to the court that it was costing the Keystone Company one thousand dollars a day to have him absent from the Keystone plant, and arrangements were made whereby he could be called half an hour before he was to appear on the witness stand.

A Keyston Company required one more scene to finish a picture, and the dirccor with his players went to the Southern Pacific station, Los Angeles, to get the needed scene, but none of the organization realized that Governor Charles Hughes was to arrive there about the same time. A camera was set up near the station, prior to the arrival of the players, and was focused to get a view of the crowd greeting the Presidential candidate as a background for the action of the Keystonites. It so happened that one Joseph Callahan was made up with a black beard of the style worn by the Republican candidate. When he arrived on the scene, all the people thought Hughes had come to Los Angeles by auto, and turned to the Keystone players and began greeting them with all kinds of cheers, crying "our next president," "hurrah for America's greatest citizen," etc. Later Callahan expressed his sentiments by stating that Mr. Sennett certainly went the limit in getting extras for the scene, and then he learned that the director had merely taken advantage of the extra large gathering of enthusiastic Republicans.

The city council of Santa Monica, California, has made a new ordinance regulating bathing suits, and as a result the Keystone girls will appear in Puritanic beach costumes in the Ambrose picture now being made with Mack Swain as star. The director did not know of the new ordinance until after many exterior scenes had been taken at Santa Monica in which the girls did not appear. When they came into the scenes taken later, however, the director was notified of the new ordinance, and the abbreviated type of bathing suits had to be discarded, and one with long skirts—that is, just to the knees—were substituted.

Cat Trained to "Cry for Help"

A scene which has required rehearsals daily for two months was made for the Keystone comedy "A Lover's Mite" this week. The principal player was a cat which had been trained to stand in a window sill, and look about for help during a fire scene, and then the heroine Julia Faye rushes in and rescues it. Other Keystone comedians supporting the cat in this picture are Fred Mace and Harry Gribbon, who take the roles of fire chief and police chief respectively.

An L-Ko Company including Lucille Hutton, Dick Smith, Will Bavin, J. Russell Powell and others, under the general supervision of Jack Blystone, kept a portion of Hollywood excited last week when they staged a number of thrills for a runaway freight story as yet unnamed. The runaway freight car dashes down the street of the quiet suburb into a house being moved down the street, which was moved at the cost of five hundred dollars, and ultimately dashes off the palisades at Santa Monica making a drop of one hundred and fifty feet.

The L-Ko Company has just shipped "Tilly's Terrible Tumble," a crook story with W. Howard and Phil Dunham, and "A Surgeon's Revenge," with Dan Russell, Kathrine Griffith and William Irving. Another picture recently completed was "Cold Hearts and Hot Flames," which has Billie Richie and Vim Moore as principals. Each subject, according to General Manager Abe Stern, contains sufficient thrills for a multiple reel feature put over in the L-Ko comedy way.

The Francis Ford-Grace Cunard Stern Company have completed the first episode of "My Lady Raffles" serial, and indications at the studio lead to the conclusion that this will be the most elaborate serial in which these well-known players have taken part. A number of big interior and exterior scenes with a Paris atmosphere have been built for use in the serial, and a cast which includes Eddie Boland, Dan Duffy, Pete Gerald, Jean Hathaway, Bert Roach, Harry Lorraine, Edgar Sherrod, Mario Binchi, a French dancer, Jerry Ash, Genevive Abbott, Marcia Avery, and others appear.

Russell E. Smith, scenario writer who has been connected with a number of well-known coast and New York companies serving in that capacity, has been engaged by the L-Ko Company and is now writing comedy scenarios.

The Henry Kernan Vogue Company has passed slapstick into the discards for their present subject at least. This is being made under the working title of "An American Princess." The story deals with an Indian princess, whom a bankrupt English lord marries for her wealth, and many of the scenes gain their comedy from the antics of her relatives who visit her at her royal palace in England. Gypsy Abbott is the Indian princess, Paddy McQuire the lord, and Arthur Moon the Indian heavy, who attempts to recover his sweetheart. The subject is being photographed by John Ingler.

Trained Fish Is Vogue Life-Saver

The Miller-McCray Vogue Company is making what is termed a crook story in which a discordant accordion played continuously by a tenement dweller in the vicinity of the crooks' hang-out, drives the law-breakers to attempt to kill the supposed musician. Their efforts in this are thwarted in every instance including the last, in which they throw the woman and her accordion, while wrapped in a burlap bag into the ocean. A trained fish unties the bag and the air inside the accordion serves as the life saver for the woman. Rube Miller, Ben Turpin, and Lillian Hamilton have the principal parts. The latter takes the role of a vampire.

"Easy Street" will be the title of the Chaplin-Mutual subject which will follow "The Count" in release. It is now being made at the studio, and for it two large settings have been built.

Three Scenes from Kalem's "The Gun Runners," the Latest of the "Girl from Frisco" Series, Featuring Marin Sais and True Boardman

ALMOST LOST LIFE IN THRILLER FOR "U" PICTURE

While staging a thriller for Universal's forthcoming spectacular picture produced by Stuart Paton, in which some startling under-sea views are promised, L. L. Irvin, who ascended in a balloon to execute a stunt, almost lost his life. Irvin ascended near Monrovia, outside of Los Angeles, Cal., and his plan was to cut away the basket of the craft, and then bring the balloon to earth, clinging to the ropes.

But when the basket was cut, the loss of its weight caused the gas bag to start traveling skywards at a terriffic pace. Irvin at last managed to catch the cord that opened the gas valve, and, although atmost asphyxiated by the fumes, brought himself safely to within a short distance of the earth. Then he jumped, and the balloon rose again and disappeared.

On-the-Minute Delivery Is Brady Plan for World Film

Policy of Forehandedness Puts to Rout Old Mr. Behind-hand, and Keeps Exhibitors Happy in the Assurance of Getting Releases and Paper on Time

"AN era of extraordinary prosperity has set in for the World Film Corporation," said Director General William A. Brady to the NEWS, "and I ascribe this gratifying condition of affairs to several distinctly separate causes, the first of which is forehandedness.

"From the beginning of my association with this corporation I have worked incessantly to establish efficiency in all departments—and forehandedness is one of the big angles of efficiency. There was a time when the World was behindhand all around. That is, its deliveries were often made at the last moment, not alone as to releases, but advertising material also. Often the picture was barely nosed out by the press sheet, and both came into town at the last minute, all out of breath.

"This statement does not imply criticism of those who were in charge. They simply conducted their business in accordance with a plan, or lack of plan, that was quite general, and due, in a large measure, to the youth of the motion picture business and its natural lack of systematic development.

"Long experience as a theatrical manager handling large numbers of traveling attractions had taught me that the railroads which captured the biggest as well as the choicest patronage were those that rarely failed to land their passengers on time. Almost any of the carriers can command luxurious equipment, but when it comes to maintaining a schedule, that is what gets the public's confidence.

"To be on time to the dot was one of the principal points I went after in the early stages, and when this was accomplished—and safe-guarded by the completion of an unheard of number of pictures in advance, all ready for release—we were able to doubly assure the exhibitor of on-the-minute delivery. I figure that this alone has made a marked difference in our financial support.

"Another point to which I may refer with pardonable satisfaction is the improved quality of World output. Our directors have been making noteworthy progress in this work, and we hear from it every day, from many sections of the country. It was only last week that one of the very big New York exhibitors came in here to see a picture upon which he had received a pointer from some quarter or other—a man whose name is familiar to all who are abreast of the times in the motion picture industry.

"During the progress of the picture this famous exhibitor broke in several times with highly enthusiastic interjections, and at the end, he exclaimed: 'If Brady goes on making such pictures at the rate he is going, the markets of the world will be seeking him—not he seeking them'—and we had to show him three or four more of our completed plays.

"Then again, we are giving practical demonstrations to exhibitors of our desire to meet them half way. Not long ago in an interior city something happened to one of our films when it was not quite completely run off, and the local manager wrote us about his disappointed audience. We wired him to select any one of our releases, free of cost, and exhibit it as a substitute—and anyone who should try to show this exhibitor that the World Film was not his friend would be hauling a steer uphill by the tail

"Some of these matters may seem of trifling importance in themselves, as indeed, perhaps, they are. But taken together with others which might possibly be passed up by a casual observer as of no greater individual importance, it appears to me that the vastly increased World Film momentum has something extremely tangible behind it."

Exchange Managers in New York Form a Social Club

Assistant Managers Are Also Eligible in the Organization, Which Held Its First Meeting at the Astor—Beck of Mutual Is Chairman and Raynor of Kleine Is Secretary

ON Friday, August 18, managers of the various film exchanges in New York City and vicinity, held a meeting at the Astor Hotel, when a social club was organized. It will be known as the Film Club of New York City. Meetings are to be held twice a month, the object is purely a social one.

On Thursday, August 31, a second meeting was held in the form of a luncheon at Hotel Astor, and afterwards a business meeting.

Every exchange manager, and assistant manager; or any higher official is eligible; and those who have not already joined can do so at the next meeting, which will be held at the Astor Hotel, on Tuesday evening, September 5, at 8 P. M.

A. T. Beck, of the Mutual Film Corporation, was elected chairman and presiding officer, and W. E. Raynor, of George Kleine, secretary and treasurer.

The members are: A. T. Beck, Mutual; W. E. Raynor, George Kleine; E. M. Saunders, Metro; W. L. Sherry, Paramount; S. Eckman, Triangle; S. P. Kramer, Bluebird; P. J. Schaefer, World; H. Boxbaum, General; E. H. Goldstein, Universal; M. F. Tobias, Mutual; Joseph Engle, International; Jules Bernstein, Monmouth; M. Hoffman, Universal; H. Gainsborough, Universal Exchange; S. Zieler, Universal Exchange; S. Abiles, Pathe; Mr. Hamil, Pathe; Joseph Partridge, V-L-S-E; Jack Levy, Fox Film; Phil Meyer, B. S. Moss; H. R. Ebenstein, B. S. Moss; Wm. S. Seymour, manager of the Jersey Paramount exchange.

V-L-S-E Plans Big Campaign for "Fall of a Nation"

All Press Matter Necessary for Successful Exploitation of the Dixon Spectacle Is Contained in Advance Sheet, Needing Only the Scissors to Get Items in Local Papers

THE V-L-S-E publicity department, under the direction of E. Lanning Masters, is making elaborate arrangements for properly disseminating information relative to the big Thomas Dixon spectacle of preparedness, "The Fall of a Nation," to which it recently acquired the distributing rights.

The first press sheet which is being sent out contains a wealth of information for exhibitors and their patrons, put together in such a fashion that only a pair of scissors is necessary to see that it gets into the local newspaper offices. Every form of information that could possibly be needed is included in this advance press sheet.

A separate sheet contains the opinions of the dramatic critics of the New York newspapers, and there is still another separate sheet giving ideas for a herald to be distributed in the theatres. The newspaper sheet contains interviews with well-known people, an advance description of the spectacle as a whole, an interesting account of how the battle scenes were made, taken from the diary of Lorraine Huling, the heroine of the picture; the answer of Mr. Dixon to the criticisms of the German propagandists, special accounts and descriptions of the symphonic music composed by Victor Herbert especially for this attraction, besides a vast quantity of short notices containing biographical sketches of the principal players and other facts of interest.

UNICORN'S ADDRESS IS 126-130 WEST FORTY-SIXTH STREET

The Unicorn Film Service Corporation is issuing a house organ, called the Unicorn Banner, containing the stories of the films released. H. J. Streyckmans is the editor.

Universal Undersea Picture Nearly Completed

Director Paton Puts Finishing Touches to Submarine Scenic, Begun Two Years Ago in the Bahamas, and Supervised by the Williamson Brothers—Three Hundred Feet of Negative Taken—Battles Under Water Promised as Part of Its Novelty

CONSIDERABLE importance is attached to the submarine picture on which the Universal Company has been two years at work and which is now receiving finishing touches at the hand of Director Stuart Paton, out in Universal City. The picture will undoubtedly create exceptional comment because of the fact that it presents a connected story enacted for the most part on the bed of the ocean.

It was during the close of the year 1914 that a company of players headed by Director Paton and comprised of Jane Gail, Edna Pendleton, Matt Moore, Howard Crampton, William Welsh, Curtis Benton and others left New York for the Bahamas, where the under water scenes were staged, if that term can be employed in the present instance.

To supervise the filming of the submarine scenes the Universal Company engaged the services of George and Ernest Williamson who had at that time completed an under-sea scenic, for which they used an airtight chamber let down to the ocean's bed by means of a man-sized tube made of malleable iron. The tube was connected with the bottom of a specially constructed boat while at the other end the chamber with one side made of clear glass was appended. In this chamber the camera man operated his machine while the boat moved about close to the shore. The results were shown in the famous "Williamson Submarine Pictures."

Williamsons' Perfect Invention

The Williamson brothers perfected this invention to a considerable extent and operated it for Mr. Paton's company. The players, clothed in diving dress, enact the greater part of the scenes for the picture on the water's bed, immediately in front of the chamber. For their work in supervising this part of the production the Universal paid to the Williamsons one hundred thousand dollars.

The scenario prepared by Mr. Paton called for the introduction of a number of deep sea divers, and skilled men had to be employed for these roles. Through the influence of the Williamsons Mr. Paton secured the services of the Stillson divers, then at work for the United States Government raising the submarine F-4. A special concession was granted the Universal Company and the entire company of divers under the direction of George D. Stillson were loaned to the picture company by the government.

All in readiness the Paton company arrived in Nassau, the Bahamas, on December 14, 1914. The director and his assistants immediately ran into fierce opposition in the way of the natives who looked with great disfavor on all the unusual apparatus brought down by the company. It was only after several days of patient arguing with the Bahamians that Director Paton secured their coöperation in producing the picture.

Naturally the most difficult undertaking in the production of the picture was the manipulation of the tube and the director's chamber below. It took several days to get this apparatus in working order and even then the work went slowly and was exceedingly tedious to all concerned.

After spending six months in Nassau, the Paton company returned to New York and worked at the Universal studio in Fort Lee. From here they went to Universal City, Cal., where the remainder of the scenes have only just been completed. Over 300,000 feet of negatives have been taken up to the present time. The assembling is now under way, but Director Paton expects to be about a month at the cutting and editing of the negative.

Novel "Shots" Promised in the Picture

Universal promises some excellent "shots" in the big production. Divers are shown at work on the bed of the ocean, carrying out bodies of soldiers fallen in the under-sea battle. In the battle scenes rifles are used and the smoke can be seen curling through the water. On the other hand some of the most beautiful coral formations have been caught by the camera lens. Certainly the backgrounds are to be extraordinarily far removed from the conventional motion picture setting.

The sensational effects which Director Paton introduced promise to equal if not eclipse the most wonderful thrillers ever staged in a picture. He destroyed two yachts, four balloons which made night ascensions from Nassau, and sent a submarine to the bottom of the sea where he photographed it as it lay on a coral bed.

The picture is booked for a Broadway theatre in New York and probably will be run first sometime in the month of October. The name of the production and the plot are being kept a secret, for Director Paton wishes the entire piece to be a big surprise.

SAM D. DRANE, WHO PLAYED LINCOLN IN "THE CRISIS" FOR SELIG, DIES IN NEW YORK CITY

Special to Motion Picture News.

Chicago, Sept. 2.

WILLIAM N. SELIG received with sadness the news sent to him recently from New York City, which stated that Sam D. Drane had died of pneumonia at the German Hospital in New York on August 15. Mr. Drane was born forty-seven years ago in Dranesville, Va. His remarkable likeness to Abraham Lincoln caused him to be chosen for the role of The Great Emancipator in the Selig production of Winston Churchill's novel, "The Crisis."

"It is no secret now," said Mr. Selig, "to state that 'The Crisis' was not put in production for some time because we could find no actor who could undertake the role of Abraham Lincoln. The character of Lincoln predominates in Churchill's wonderful novel and rather than have the character of Lincoln burlesqued, to be untrue to life, I concluded not to put the drama into production.

Sam D. Drane as Abraham Lincoln in "The Crisis" (Selig)

"Then one day Sam D. Drane was brought to my attention. I had carefully studied the capabilities of dozens of men willing to portray the historical character and had rejected them one by one. I confess that the Drane proposition did not appeal. However, I decided to meet Drane and wired him to come to Chicago. He came and his tests at the studio were marvelous. No other word will describe his make-up. I consider Drane's characterization of Abraham Lincoln to be wonderful in every detail. He looks like Lincoln, acts like Lincoln and gives atmosphere to the story instead of detracting from the play, as is so frequently the case in like instances.

"I think reviewers and the picture play public will unanimously agree with me in my tribute to Sam D. Drane when they see his Lincoln on the screen. It is with regret that I learn of his passing. He had never seen the production of 'The Crisis' to the worth of which production he contributed so talentedly."

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"EACH PEARL A TEAR"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY THEODORE OSBORN ELTONHEAD

IT is largely owing to the concentrated feminine magnetism of Fannie Ward that "Each Pearl a Tear" proves to be as interesting and entertaining a picture as it is. This diminutive, pretty little star is the life of the whole production and though she is not given the dramatic opportunity which she had in "The Cheat," she does get over her magnetic personality to such an extent that the effect on the whole is exceedingly pleasing.

There are parts of the picture that could be greatly improved from a directorial standpoint. The big stock market fight lacked realism and was far from convincing. Pawn brokers as a rule do not advance large enough sums on jewelry placed with them by unknown young girls to make the least particle of difference in a financial battle of the magnitude of the one suggested by the trend of the story. Nearly every scene of this business part of the picture left a more or less theatric impression and for this reason the story lost much of its force.

The Deciding Moment

The story was staged in an effective manner as to settings with the photography and lighting up to the well known Lasky standard. Many of the settings were examples of great beauty and the director deserves praise for the manner in which he has assembled them. Had he been as careful with his other settings and the action which took place in them he would have had a much stronger effective and convincing picture. These slight technical defects, however, are more than compensated for in the feminine charm and delight of pretty little Fannie Ward.

Charles Clary was another member of the cast who pleased throughout by his sterling portrayal of the part of a Wall Street millionaire. His work was finished and polished in every detail. There was never a gesture or expression that proclaimed him other than a good actor. Jack Dean in the leading juvenile role left much to be desired in his manner of handling this part. At no time did it call for any great amount of acting yet at no time did he rise above the ordinary. Paul Weigle in the minor part of Roger Winston, the confidential clerk, did a good bit of expressive character work. The supporting cast was effective in the other minor parts.

There is one feature of the production for which George Melford, the director, deserves an especial bit of commendation. He has staged a society function as though it were really a society function. This part of the picture is thoroughly convincing and realistic. Furthermore it is so out of the ordinary that it is worthy of special comment.

The picture was adapted from L. Lloyd Sheldon's story by Beatrice C. DeMille and Leighton Osmun. It tells of Diane, the beautiful daughter of Roger Winston, confidential clerk of Lorrillard, a millionaire stock broker and society man. Fresh from boarding school she attracts Lorillard with her clean, fresh, young beauty and he determines to win her. By means of a pearl necklace of great value which he persuades her to wear, and which he later states was never returned by her father, he gets her in his power. Diane agrees to work for him as secretary until the necklace is paid for.

In the meantime she falls in love with John Clark, a young man in Lorillard's employ. When the latter discovers the state of affairs he discharges Clark, who determines to win enough money on the stock market to pay off Diane's indebtedness. Lorillard, learning the stocks he is interested in, determines to break him and in doing so runs up against a crowd of westerners who are trying to bull the same stock. The market is going in favor of Lorillard when Diane discovers the missing pearls. Taking them to a pawnbroker she receives enough money to enable her to turn the market in favor of her lover and ruin Lorillard.

"PLAIN JANE"

(Kay-Bee-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"PLAIN JANE" was selected to run at the Rialto by Mr. Rothapfel presumably because of its stars, Bessie Barriscale and Charles Ray. The story offered in the picture is rather trite and bears too much similarity to the monotony suggested in the title to entertain over its full length. Its bright spots outside of the acting of the leads, who are restricted by their limited opportunities, lie in the subtitles. They are totally unlike the usual run of Ince captions and were written in a most humorous vein.

The story is of the comedy-drama type and is set in a co-educational college town. Mr. Ray appears as a "stude," not one of the burlesque sort but a member of the hard-working poorer class of students. In his boarding house there is Plain Jane, a slavey, this role of course being carried by Miss Barriscale. The young man can't see much to the young lady until she is frilled up a bit by a kindly old photographer who adopts her after her picture has brought home first prize in the college beauty contest. Then he is captivated and Plain Jane, no longer so plain after all, accepts him.

This is not a very meaty plot as told above and although it is embellished by several humorous and near-pathetic situations, it hardly presents adequate material for a five reel picture. However, an afternoon audience at the Rialto seemed thoroughly amused by it and only once or twice grew fidgety and looked at its watches. A comedy-drama without sufficient drama in it to sustain the interest may pass as the proper description of the picture.

"THE VELVET PAW"

(Paragon-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE picture world has seen much of the honest Congressman who goes to Washington full of ideals and the ambition to carry them through, of the young man who encounters the graft ring and the beautiful lobbyist, and almost—almost succumbs to their crooked ways, but takes a brace just in time to win the day and put a great reform bill through with a thrilling speech. Such a figure offers a great opportunity for the plot builder because his main character must of a necessity be continually battling against grafting politicians—and this offers him a sound basis for a strong picture. And so Paul West when he chose this theme for "The Velvet Paw" was not taking a chance as to his story's success or failure with the public—its success was assured at the start—and doubly assured when he sold his script to Maurice Tourneur of Paragon.

Mr. Tourneur has made no ordinary picture of "The Velvet Paw." After all, even though it is conventional, its production elevates it considerably from the rank and file. Washington is the chief locale, and to Washington did Mr. Tourneur go to take his exteriors. We have various views of the capitol buildings, once even the President himself, to add realism to the picture. For the interiors, which supposedly take place in the House, Mr. Tourneur has builded for himself exact replicas of the actual House. They are so good and the people in them so well handled that the ruse will get over with ease. Mr. Tourneur's direction in respect to his several scenes of the intensely dramatic variety is equally good. A common scene in his hands becomes unusually forceful.

On the Capitol Steps

The story tells of Mary Dexter, who after the first reel, is the Velvet Paw of the Congressmen representing the trusts. Her husband, an inventor, was driven to suicide because of his failure. Mary is convinced that she is fighting on the right side when she gets in league with the grafters (this being the only inconsistent point in the picture). She ruins the career of one would-be honest Congressman, and then is told to go after Moorehead, a man from Indiana, who has created a stir because of his honesty. The wind-up can easily be imagined. The girl realizes that Moorehead is right—he wins his fight and passes a Child Labor Bill—and the ruined Congressman fails in his attempt to kill the lobbyist, who, of course, changes from lobbyist to Mrs. Moorehead.

House Peters makes a truly attractive and strong figure of Moorehead. Gail Kane is seen to good advantage as Mary Dexter, while Ned Burton is a typical (picture) grafter, and Frank Goldsmith a good acting ruined Congressman. The support is large, and there are many supernumeraries who seem unusually well drilled.

"PHANTOM FORTUNES"

(Vitagraph—V-L-S-E—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY THEODORE OSBORN ELTONHEAD

BARNEY BERNARD, the popular Jewish comedian, who made such a favorable impression in "Potash and Pearlmutter," makes his screen debut in this five part offering descriptive of Jewish life and character. It was written by Samuel Tauber and staged under the direction of Paul Scardon.

The picture is replete throughout with local color, the little touches of treatment that do so much toward making a finished product. The fact that many of them are so subtly realistic that they do not appeal to an alien race does not in any way detract from the quality of the production.

The story taken as a whole is much too slight for a picture of this length, containing neither intricacy of plot nor rapidity of action. It is, however, a little story taken from life; it truthfully portrays a set of conditions, but in setting forth those conditions it does not bring out in a manner that can be grasped the latent humanism existing in the theme. The character delineation could also have been made much stronger and had this been done the picture would have been much more pleasing and entertaining.

The work of Barney Bernard in the leading role disclosed great possibilities for future efforts in the silent drama. Coming fresh from the stage it could not be expected that he would be an adept in the effective use of gesture and expression. As soon as he does realize the great importance of these two factors in screen acting and uses them to the full degree of his potential power he will become a valuable addition to the growing ranks of the silent drama.

The picture presents great advertising value to the exhibitor, but those having an exclusive, high class, clientele should go it rather light, as advertising it too heavily might have a boomerang effect.

Samuel Tauber's story tells of a Jewish clothing manufacturer, who even though times are bad, endeavors by a plenteous use of the milk of human kindness to aid those about him, much to the distress of his wife and daughter. A deed of kindness results in his having an opportunity to figure on a large war order of clothing for the allies. Counting heavily on this he has refused a number of legitimate orders. Too late he discovers that the men he has been dealing with are a gang of crooks. His business has gone to pieces and ruin is staring him in the face but he still has faith.

Finally the young man who has been responsible for his introduction to the false buyers for the allies finds a solution that will lift him out of the difficulty and keep him from bankruptcy. Because all of the big clothing manufacturers have been fooled by the swindlers and because all of them have been refusing legitimate orders the business as a whole is at a standstill.

The Question

Therefore they just step in and taking all of the business that is offered soon arrive at a state of great prosperity. This simple little plot has been complicated to some extent by secondary and subsecondary counterplots which in the end are all effectually straightened out and the picture closes to the usual happy ending for all concerned.

The supporting cast includes Mrs. Moscowitz, James Morrison, Lester Bernard, who did a good bit of work by the way, Edward Elkas, Adele DeGarde and Mary Maurice.

"THE DAWN MAKER"

(Kay Bee-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

C. GARDNER SULLIVAN dashed this picture off for William S. Hart. We say dashed because it appears from the finished production that Mr. Sullivan was pressed for time. He can do much better. He has given Mr. Hart the role of Joe Elk, a half-breed. The workings of Joe's mind, in which are pitted one against the other the traditional temperaments of the white and the red, are dwelt upon continually with little variation. And while a character study and more specifically a William S. Hart character study adds to the force of any story, the story must of necessity have some force of its own, providing it aims to make a five-reel picture fully interesting. Force is not present in the conventional and rather drawn out story of "The Dawn Maker."

A Pair of Autumn Bluebirds—"Wanted a Home," with Mary MacLaren; in the Center a Scene from "Behind the Lines"

The production given the picture is quite ordinary as a whole, seldom approaching the usual high standard of the Ince productions. The subtitle writer of the Ince studio, who can juggle adjectives and figures of speech to a marvelous degrees, has quite surpassed himself with the picture in hand, with the result that the inserts are so startling that they sometimes detract the attention from the idea they are intended to convey. The art work forming a background to the words is fair and the photography good.

Joe Elk, a half breed, in line to assume the leadership of a tribe of Indians in the vicinity of a far north trading station, is acquainted with the factor who takes an interest in him. Joe dreams of perfecting the civilization of the Indians and receives inspiration from Alice, the daughter of the factor. Joe falls in love with her but realizes she is beyond his reach. However, he is encouraged by the girl, who is somewhat of a flirt, and later when she announces her intention of marrying Bruce Smithson, and when he is told by Bruce that he should never have allowed himself to love a white girl, he feels it deeply. His tribe moves south after having killed Alice's father because he resisted their attempt to steal his food, but Joe returns and sets out across the snow wastes with Alice and Bruce. The Indian starves that the others may go on and finish the journey, thus proving his love for the white race.

Mr. Hart plays his role well but it gives him few opportunities in which to demonstrate his power. Blanche White, William Desmond, J. Frank Burke and Joe Goodboy have the other named parts.

"THE GIRL FROM FRISCO"

(Episode Six—Kalem—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY THEODORE OSBORN ELTONHEAD

THIS episode is called "The Treasure of Cibola" and deals with an old Spanish legend concerning buried treasure. Nearly all of the first reel is taken up with the necessary incidents to establish the trend of the story while the second part deals with the actual telling.

In order to entertain her guests at a week end party, Barbara Trent, the daughter of a wealthy San Francisco millionaire, takes them to visit an old padre at the mission. There, in delving through an ancient Spanish manuscript, she learns of the lost treasure of Cibola, of how the old Spanish adventurers led by an Indian maiden discovered the hiding place of this accumulated store of wealth, but owing to mutiny in the party the leader and the Indian maiden died in each other's arms surrounded by the wealth which they had sought.

Barbara determines to go in search of this treasure. The party journeys far into the mountains until they reach the Indian settlement. By means of a map copied from the record at the mission they discover the mysterious cave and Barbara, accompanied by one of the men in the party, descends and they are successful in discovering the treasure.

Their Indian guide who feels that they are committing a sacrilege against the Great Spirit, pulls up the rope by which they descended and they are left to starve, as did the old adventurers years before them. The man proves unworthy and attempts to force his attentions on Barbara, who is rescued in the nick of time by an old Indian, who has been masquerading as a ghost. She succeeds in escaping from the cave. The man in searching through the earthenware pots of gold, explodes a bomb placed there by the Indian and the whole place is blown up. In the meantime the Indians have attacked the party and it is in danger of extermination when Barbara, donning the armour of the old Spaniard, masquerades as the ghost and disperses them. She discovers evidence that the man who had accompanied her had been trying to swindle her father, and on her return to the rest of the party is glad to return to the arms of her former lover.

The two reels contain fully enough material to make an interesting and entertaining feature picture. The fact that this amount of material has been confined within the limits of two reels serve to make the offering what might be called a concentrated feature.

The two leading roles were capably handled by Marin Sais and True Boardman, and while neither were called upon for any great amount of acting, they creditably and convincingly carried out the narrative style of the picture, so that there was never the least doubt as to the meaning they were trying to convey. Frank Jonasson and Ronald Bradbury handled supporting parts well.

The story was written by Robert Welles Ritchie and the picture was staged under the capable direction of James W. Horne. The lighting and photography were good and the locations well selected with some good scenic backgrounds. Taken as a whole, this picture is a thoroughly desirable offering and one that will fit in well in the program of almost any theatre.

"THE SHIELDING SHADOW"

(Astra and Pathe—Four Episodes)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE serial question offers no unsolved problem to Pathe. The proven money-makers they have handled in the past is enough of an attribute to their ability to pick a winner and make it go. Among other things we have noticed that every serial sponsored by Pathe Exchange that numbers in its cast a mysterious character has been a real hit. Take, for instance, "The Exploits of Elaine," with its Clutching Hand and "The Iron Claw" with its Laughing Mask. "The Shielding Shadow" has its Shielding Shadow, a mysterious instrument of good that is continually interfering in behalf of the hard-pressed heroine. That is a point which the exhibitor cannot well afford to overlook when "The Exploits of Elaine" and "The Iron Claw" are brought into consideration.

Devotees of the serial then we may stamp as enjoying the machinations of a mystic personality. We know also that they like sensations—thrilling scenes. These, too, "The Shielding Shadow" possesses in abundance. In the first episode, there is the burning of a schooner and a terrific fight between two men. The second number introduces the weird and unusual in the way of thrills. The hero escapes from a convict ship by enclosing himself in a coffin. At the bottom of the sea he releases himself. Later we see him being drawn under the surface of the water by a huge octopus; a remarkable and realistic piece of work. The third has another fire, this time in a cabaret show, and the fourth shows an earthquake destroying an entire hotel and several cabins.

Getting down to the personal plot presented, all that need be said in regard to its characters is that there is the appealing heroine, the abused hero and the gloating villain—with the Shielding Shadow ever present to combat with the latter gentleman. There is plenty of conflict between the various characters that serves to create considerable suspense, and for comedy there is an eccentric old character entitled One Lamp Louie, who serves as another checkmate to the villain as well.

George B. Seitz is the author of "The Shielding Shadow," and all that has been said in the preceding lines of the review goes to his credit. The producers are Louis Gasnier and Donald Mackenzie. In respect to the first four episodes they have done adequate and meritorious work with the exception of one point. In the fourth chapter which introduces the earthquake, one sees a whole village upheaving and quaking. This is done in miniature and, though obviously such, it has a good effect. The inconsistency comes afterward when the spectator sees a man running away from the town, running across evenly growing grass, by stable walls and across a perfectly healthy railroad trestle. The realism of the havoc worked by the earthquake has not been carried far enough.

Grace Darmond in the role of the heroine, Leontine, does pleasing work so far. An attractive personality and good looks are practical aids to her adequate sense of acting. Ralph Kellard, first as the hero Jerry and then as Ravengar, Leontine's protector, does average work. The role of the villain, Navarro, has been entrusted to the care of Leon Barry, an actor who gives promise of becoming one of the most popular heavies of the screen. The supporting cast adequately does all that is asked of it.

"Treasure Trove," the first chapter firmly plants the characters and goes a good way into the story. Stephen Walcott desires his daughter, Leontine, to marry Navarro, a wealthy planter. She favors Jerry Carson, an author, away on a cruise. He is reported lost when the ship burns. Navarro presses his suit. He employs his brother to belittle Leontine's memory of Jerry with a note forged by One Lamp Louie. Jerry arrives home just in time to engage in a fight with the brother which ends in his death. Jerry, although really innocent, is convicted of the crime.

"Into the Depths," the second episode, shows Jerry's startling escape from the convict ship and his subsequent arrival on Ravengar's ledge, where he discovers three black pellets which are said to bring to the possessor power beyond that of mortal. The closing scene shows Jerry being drawn underneath the water by the sea monster. In the meantime, Leontine, believing Jerry dead, has married Navarro, with the understanding that she is to be his wife in name only.

"The Mystic Defender" introduces Ravengar, a mysterious stranger. He meets Navarro, Leontine, and One Lamp Louie, who seem to recognize him. Muriel, a cabaret performer, is commissioned by a mysterious hand to procure a confession from One Lamp Louie concerning the forgery. She is unable to, as in the cabaret fire Louie loses his memory. Navarro threatens Leontine with violence, but is prevented by a mysterious pair of eyes that appear before him.

"The Earthquake" transfers all the principals to a small town where Louie has gone. He has been made rich through the discovery of gold on his land. The unknown eyes and hand attempt to get the confession from Louie on paper, and things are proceeding nicely when Navarro enters and interrupts the proceedings. Leontine comes into possession of the paper, but during the confusion caused by the earthquake it is stolen by a man who learns that Navarro will pay well for it.

"THE SOCIAL SECRETARY"

(Fine Arts-Triangle—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

AS we have remarked before, the Fine Arts company have a way of dressing old stories up in such a manner that the observer doesn't bother about going beneath the surface and analyzing the vitals of the plot. The upper crust of this presents such a pleasing appearance that few will worry about the fact that the basic theme is about as senile as they come. Anita Loos and John Emerson did the scenario while the latter attended to the direction as well.

Sans Ungainly Make-Up

Mayme, a stenographer, is unable to hold a position because her male employers pay more attention to her good looks than they do to her work. She finally disguises herself in a severe dress and applies for the job of social secretary in a fashionable household. It is not long before the son of the house, Jimmie, discovers how pretty she really is and after she has done much to reform him from his all night parties at the club bar, he falls in love with her.

The action begins to move quite swiftly when a count, whose true character Mayme is familiar with, begins to court Elsie, Jimmie's sister. Mayme shows him up in his true colors, but persistent, he persuades Elsie to elope with him. The secretary discovers that Elsie is in his apartments. She hastens to the place, climbs in the back window and sends Elsie home. When Jimmie and his mother arrive they find Mayme instead of Elsie. But little Elsie, unwilling to allow the result of her foolishness to stand between her brother and the secretary, confesses and so all is very well.

Norma Talmadge adds much in the way of ability and beauty to the title role. A good cast including Gladden James, Helen Weir, Kate Lester, Herbert French and Eric Von Stroheim appears in support. While generally a smooth running picture, there are a few places where careless editing has spoiled a scene. But editing can always be mended.

"THE PONY EXPRESS RIDER"

(Selig—Three Reels)
REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2nd

AUDIENCES that have seen and liked Tom Mix's one-reel Westerns ought to take kindly to this release. It is in every respect like the thousand-foot Mix pictures.

The plot, as usual, is elementary, serving merely as an excuse to bring in the riding and shooting specialties. The entire cast is wonderfully proficient in cowboy feats. Since most of the players are real plainsmen, and not actors, their performance is naïvely realistic. The comedy element is broad, but often amusing.

Mix has his usual support, consisting of Victoria Forde, Sid Jordan, Joe Ryan and Pat Chrisman. The effect of the picture could have been greatly improved by more frequent and more specific subtitles. Some of these would have made the finale less ambiguous. The photography is not consistently good. The locations were well chosen.

Blake, the pony express driver of a Western route, is discharged for incompetency, and his job given to Orbig, an ex-convict. Blake swears to "get" Orbig and Wilson, the man who caused his discharge. Later, a man accidently shoots himself, but before dying writes a note explaining the accident. Wilson enters the man's cabin a few minutes later, and is discovered there by Blake. Blake causes Wilson's arrest. The exonerating note is later found, but Blake gathers a posse before the sheriff hears of the new evidence. The posse goes to the jail and takes Wilson out to hang him. Orbig, hearing of the proposed hanging, rides to the rescue. He saves the man's life and wins his daughter.

"BEHIND THE LINES"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

A MEXICAN melodrama bearing closely on the present international situation is presented in "Behind the Lines," the first Bluebird to be made under Henry McRae's direction. Mr. McRae has been producing Westerns and railroad melodramas for the past three years and when it comes to putting on a smashing bang-up picture he has few equals. Be ready to welcome sensational scenes in "Behind the Lines." They are present in strong array. If some of the riding and dare-devil falling shown at various moments throughout the five reels doesn't send shivers coursing up and down the spectator's spine, it won't be the picture's fault—the spectator won't be human.

Nina's Sacrifice

The story has to do with a girl, who to save her sister from rebels, promises to enter an army hospital of the opposing faction and keep the rebels informed as to the enemies movements. In the hospital is a young American doctor who is experimenting on a cure for gangrene. The girl is discovered to be a spy and just as she is about to be arrested she tries an experiment on herself whereby she hopes to prove the worth of the doctor's cure. She recovers and is then ordered to be shot. The doctor attempts to interfere in her behalf, but is unable to effect her pardon. The arrival of the U. S. troops saves the day.

The outline of the plot cannot do justice to the wealth of spectacular and sensational scenes introduced. Mexican raids on border towns, hot and fierce battles, and the riding and falling mentioned above keep the interest ever on the point of violent excitement.

Edith Johnson and Harry Carey are the leads while in support appear Ruth Clifford, Miriam Shelby, Marc Fenton, Bill Human, L. C. Shumway, E. N. Wallack, L. M. Wells, Ray Hanford and others. The scenario was done by Walter Woods from a story by Mary Rider.

"THE HEAD OF WAR CREEK"

(Educational—One Reel)

AFTER seeing this picture, which had its first showing during the past week at the Rialto theatre, New York, and was presented by the Educational Films Corporation of America, 729

Seventh avenue, New York, one must feel that the old saying, "See America First" still holds good.

This scenic of 1,000 feet was taken in the mountains of northern Washington, eight thousand feet above sea level. Here Indian wars were waged in the High Valley at the head of War Creek. Forty years of snow have completely removed all signs of the conflict, and all that remains is the legend and the beautiful scenery.

Each of the surrounding mountains seemed to have an individuality of its own. Perfect camera work is shown throughout the picture, particularly in the photographing of a coming storm, which is difficult under these atmospheric conditions to avoid static in the film. To much credit cannot be given Mr. Bruce for the directing of this scenic.

"THE FEAR OF POVERTY"

(Thanhouser-Pathe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

TO the ranks of pictures which are based on the statement, "All that glitters is not gold," "The Fear of Poverty" forms a welcome addition. It was written by Agnes C. Johnston, whose previous picture "The Shine Girl," done for Thanhouser, was so meritorious. "The Fear of Poverty" presents besides proof of its inspirational theme, a well worked out drama that fulfills its mission to entertain over its entire length.

Grace has been brought up in constant dread of poverty. She is loved by a factory worker who is perfecting an invention. She marries him and shortly afterwards wealth comes to the couple.

The Sleeping Beauty

Then he dies. Grace brings up her daughter, Florence, surrounded by every luxury that money can procure. The young lady turns out to be very selfish and when she learns that a friend of hers is engaged to a certain Alfred Griffiin, she decides to break it off and have Alfred for herself. She does. She marries him in preference to Durland, an artist.

In a year Florence learns that her husband is a rounder and a spendthrift. He finally commits suicide, attempting to arrange matters so she will be convicted of murder. However, the butler sees the tragedy and exonerates the girl before the police. This episode awakens both Grace and her daughter to the fact that money and happiness are not exactly synonymous. The spectator is left to suppose that Florence and the artist are married.

Florence La Badie in the dual role of mother and daughter does exceedingly well. Robert Vaughn, George Marlo, Edwin Stanley and Ethule Cooke are others. Frederic Sullivan directed and has produced a worthy picture, save for his double exposure scenes which are rather mechanical.

"THE CHATTEL"

(Vitagraph—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

AN advance showing of "The Chattel," the first motion picture production in which E. H. Sothern appears, was given last week at Wurlitzer Hall, New York. An invited audience of which Mr. Sothern himself, Julia Marlowe and J. Stuart Blackton of Vitagraph were the most prominent, attended. The picture is of the society drama type and was written for Mr. Sothern by Paul West. Frederic Thompson attended to the direction.

The box office power of "The Chattel," in other words the name of Mr. Sothern, is without doubt the most valuable end of the picture. His name displayed outside any motion picture house, the clientele of which is at all familiar with things theatrical, will perform functions similar to those of a magnet on steel on the passers by. He can be billed as a famous Shakesperean actor, as he is in the present day, or as the justly celebrated star in the recent stage revival of "If I Were King" and its coming re-revival.

From an artistic standpoint "The Chattel" is somewhat lacking. Artistic is perhaps too broad a word. "The Chattel" is ordinary and conventional from first to last and six reels of it is too great a dose. Chiefly at fault are the author and director. Mr. West chose as principal in his theme, the money-mad man who gets everything he goes after. He literally buys his wife from her bankrupt father. Of love the money-mad fellow knows nothing. The wife, smarting under the emptiness of her life, starts to do as she pleases and at this her husband tells her that he bought her and intends to use her as he jolly well wishes. What does she do but take a flyer in the street, makes enough playing her husband's own game to pay him back her purchase price and then she hies herself off to the woods to meditate. Then, of course, love comes to the money king who goes to the woods himself, saves her from her burning bungalow and takes her again—this time because he loves her, not because he wants her.

This story properly handled would be at quite a strain to fill out the footage of "The Chattel." Even as pictured its full possibilities have not been realized. Two reels of introductory are shown which get the plot nowhere and give the spectator little cause for interest. In the body of the production, its high lights have been granted the same tone of action that runs through the incidental scenes. Lack of proper tempo is probably the best description of this flaw.

Mr. Thompson's direction leaves much to be desired. He has favored the camera with many views of Mr. Sothern's back; he has in many of the scenes sliced off the topmost tops of his players' heads; the fire scene in the latter reel is unrealistic; there is too much anti-climax; and of variety of scene and setting there is none.

Peggy Hyland gives a good performance as the money-king's wife, and Rose Tapley, as a friend of the couple, does well in several scenes. There are no other principals and it must be confessed that some of the extras appear exceedingly ill at ease.

"THE DIAMOND RUNNERS"

(Mutual Masterpicture—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY E. DRAW

FOR those who can appreciate a strong story of adventure and romance with interesting complications and exciting action, we are able to recommend this picture with confidence. J. P. McGowan, who directed this production, has successfully infused rapid action into it throughout. The locations are well chosen and the situations cleverly handled, notwithstanding the fact that some of the incidents which occur from time to time are highly improbable.

In her delineation of Helen, Helen Holmes does some entirely new work from that which we have been accustomed to seeing her in and her performance is decidedly impressive. Miss Holmes' acting is smooth and entirely natural and we hope to see her again in this type of role to which she is so well suited.

An exceptional array of talent has been brought together in the supporting cast and the director has succeeded in obtaining the best from each artist.

An exhibitor who caters to an audience with an adventurous turn of mind, and which is not too particular on the fine points of production, will thoroughly enjoy this picture. In advertising this film it will be well to mention that Helen Holmes plays an entirely new role in this picture.

Helen Holmes, leading the life of an adventuress, is associated with a band of crooks engaged in diamond smuggling, of whom Paul C. Hurst is the leader. Leo Maloney, head of the secret service, is hot on their trail.

Helen arrives in the mining district after taking her instructions from Hurst. The next day she visits the mine with young Holsted, the son of the mine owner, and whilst there she conceals a number of stones in a bouquet of roses and succeeds in getting them safely past the guard. Preparing to take passage for the United States, Helen arouses the suspicion of the secret service department, who search her apartment. Secreting the stones in a toy balloon she sends them out of the window to Hurst who intends to deliver them to her by messenger when she is on board ship.

The messenger makes a mistake and delivers the stones into the hands of the Holsteds' maid. When Helen sees Hurst she tells him that she has not received the stones but he does not believe her and takes passage on the same boat in order to watch her.

Hudson, of the secret service department, is under the impression that the Holsted maid is the guilty party. Hudson and Helen become good friends, while Hurst and she are quarreling all the time. At last Helen discovers the package and turns it over to Hudson, with whom she has fallen in love, at the same time helping him to capture Hurst.

"THE UNWELCOME MOTHER"

(Fox—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY E. DRAW

THIS story is very ably written by Mary Murillo, and although the title does not suggest it there is a decided atmosphere of the sea. James Vincent, the director, has utilized some excellent scenic locations which are delightfully refreshing and well chosen. The story has been well told and the director has succeeded in portraying it faithfully on the screen. At times there are incidents which are a trifle improbable, but the production is interesting throughout and affords unusual entertainment.

Just Out of the Chimney

Valkyrien has been well chosen to play Ellinor and her performance is very natural and will excite sympathy and pity. The character of Ann interpreted by Violet de Biccaro is highly gratifying and more will be heard of this young lady in the near future.

The Lee children are as irresistible as ever. Mr. Walter Law (of whom we saw too little) in the role of Mason was splendid; his acting was most convincing and his fight scene on the ship very realistic. Ellinor, a child of the waves, is raised by old Peter, a light house keeper. Ultimately she meets Mason, a rough sailor whom she marries with a ceremony that he originates. Immediately after he leaves her saying that he will return some day.

Meanwhile, Ellinor meets Hudson, a rich widower, who marries her. When she arrives at his house she learns that the memory of his first wife is held sacred by his children, and they will have nothing to do with her.

Ellinor decides to leave although her husband pleads with her to remain. Ann, the elder daughter, hears her father's plea, whereupon she enters the room, takes Ellinor's hand, saying "We all love you, please don't go."

"THE KID"

(Vitagraph—V-L-S-E—Six Parts)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

NO ONE is perfect—least of all can a producing company lay claim to a string of uninterruptedly perfect pictures. Slumps come to the best of them and "The Kid" is just one of those. Wilfred North is given as author and director. His opening reel contains a series of views of New York City which are interesting specially to those out of town, but hardly significant. The story has to do with newspaper life and several times is the New York Herald acclaimed an excellent newspaper, which it may be, but there is a place to tell everything.

Mr. North has taken as his central figure a girl reporter and given her an entangled murder mystery and graft case to work on in which the principal exponent in each instance is her father whom she has never known. The graft and the murder are suddenly subordinated to the reclaiming of the father in a manner that can hardly be called smooth running.

There is considerable unnecessary detail pictured, with the result that the offering soon grows tiresome. The director's idea of time and place is pretty inaccurate and his story never gains any sustaining amount of dramatic interest. In many places the film gives the appearance of having been poorly edited, while other parts run along as if they had never made the acquaintance of the editor's shears. The subtitling could be extensively improved upon by rewriting and omission.

Lillian Walker plays the title role and succeeds fairly well when her part calls for nothing strenuous in the way of histrionic endeavor. Ned Finley, Eulalie Jensen and Robert Gaillard are others.

"THE WOMAN ALWAYS PAYS"

(Essanay—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2nd

WE have seen several hundred dramas, celluloid and otherwise, in which "the woman pays," but the producers of this version managed to give the world-old theme a slightly original aspect. The plot is manipulated to yield some situations of considerable intensity. Only one misses fire. This exception is a scene in which the heroine, after a supposed fall from a seventy-foot cliff, gets to her feet and walks away.

The leads are capably handled by Lillian Drew and Sydney Ainsworth. Miss Drew, first in the role of an unsophisticated mountain girl, and later as a cynical adventuress, gives a sympathetic and effective interpretation. Sydney Ainsworth has a part well suited to his ability as a player of heavies. The photography is good; the directing and settings are fair.

Gregory, a lawyer, betrays the love of Elsie, a country girl. When a baby is born, Gregory kidnaps it and takes it to the city. Circumstances lead him to believe that Elsie is killed, while she thinks her child has died.

Years afterward Gregory is a respected lawyer, and his daughter is a social favorite. Elsie has become an adventuress. One day Gregory and Elsie meet, and the woman swears to revenge

A Scene from One of the Recent Episodes of the "Beatrice Fairfax" Serial, Released Through International herself. Finding that Gregory has a daughter, she sends one of her satellites to kidnap her. She intends to have the girl ruined, but finds that she is her own daughter. She arrives at her apartment just in time to save the girl, and then commits suicide; thus she "pays."

"THE BIG SISTER"

(Famous Players—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY THEODORE OSBORN ELTONHEAD

"THE Big Sister" presents an anomaly in photoplay production. It contains nearly all of the essentials necessary for a successful picture, yet it does not get over. It contains a good story, which has been well adapted for the screen, it has been most ably directed, time and care have been spent on the designing and construction of the settings, the photography is clear and distinct and at times beautiful. Yet the production as a whole is more or less disappointing.

This is due almost entirely to the lack of magnetism and personality displayed by Mae Murray in the leading role. With an intensely human little story, a story containing all of the necessary material for moving the heart strings, worked up in a good scenario, she failed utterly in taking advantage of it, and transferring the human interest from the author's printed word across the screen to the hearts of the audience. Though given a wealth of opportunity for the display of some real acting ability she maintained an almost set expression throughout the whole picture without seeming to realize that emotions require some expression.

It seems unfortunate that such should have been the case for every other feature of the picture was handled in such a finished and polished manner that it is deserving of the greatest success. The original story was written by William Hurlburt and adapted for the screen by Harvey F. Thew. It tells of a young girl in the lower strata of society bereft of her mother, with a drunken and criminal father, who, because of her innocense and purity and her insistence on adhering to these principles against the force of environment, receives in the end the benefits of the law of compensation and finds happiness in the sheltering arms of love and great riches. Such in brief is the theme; the intricate workings of the plot whereby this theme is expounded is not of such great interest. It is enough to know that it has been well and convincingly done, that the fair heroine rises from the slums to become mistress of a fine mansion in a perfectly natural and realistic manner. Both the author and the scenario writer deserve great commendation for the excellence of their work.

John B. O'Brien has staged the production in a manner commensurate with his ability in the past. His settings were not only elaborate, in the scenes calling for the display of great wealth, but artistic as well. In those scenes set in the slums and in the habitat of the underworld he has been realistic and convincing throughout. His locations were also well selected, many of them being examples of great natural beauty.

The supporting cast was consistently good, Matty Roubert was appealing in the juvenile role of Jimmy Norton, Harry C. Browne lent the proper touch of aristocracy and breeding to the part of Rodney Channing, the millionaire lover, and Armand Cortez gave a good characterization of the dandified gangster preying on defenceless women. Others in the cast included Ida Darling, Tammany Young, Florence Flinn, Joe Gleason and J. Albert Hall.

The photography and lighting were in harmony with the general excellence of the whole production.

"HIS BABY" AND "A SEMINARY SCANDAL"

(Christie Comedies—States Rights)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE first two comedies which Al Christie will place on the states rights market, reviewed below, bear all the ear marks of excellent and refined entertainment. Mr. Christie has endeavored to improve those comedies which have made him famous almost since the inception of the industry and judging from these two he has achieved his well nigh impossible aim.

"His Baby," directed by Horace Davey from a script by Neal Burns, offers up a reel of refined comedy with situations which as they follow one another create laughter corresponding in portion to their number. The story takes up the case of a bachelor who has a baby thrust upon him by a destitute mother, how its presence causes a break between him and his fiancee and how it finally wins him a wife. The baby brings this picture up to a point where it will just tickle any audience to pieces. The acting is ably taken care of by Neal Burns in the role of the bachelor and Dave Morris in character as the butler. Betty Compson, Ethel Lynne and Jane Waller also have important parts.

"A Seminary Scandal," which was produced by Mr. Christie himself from a scenario by Al Ray, is built along popular lines that have proven amusing at odd times in the past. When Billie is sent off to boarding school her sweetheart goes along too, and finding himself constantly prevented from a romantic meeting with Billie, he dresses as a girl and enters the school as a pupil. Thereafter the fun is fast and furious and a number of really amusing situations are made the most of by the cast. Popular

The Bachelor Starts to Get Acquainted

Litt'e Billie Rhodes has the lead in this. Harry Ham appears as the suitor; Eddie Barry is in an eccentric part as the janitor, while others are Stella Adams and Ethel Lynne.

ROBERTS AND CARTER, NASHVILLE, INSTALL A CUT OUT SLIDE DEPARTMENT

ROBERTS and Carter Theatre Supply Company of Nashville, Tenn., has installed a Cut Out Slide Department. This department does away with the old crude lettering and "scratching" method and the harmful and cheapening effect such unfinished makeshifts have upon an otherwise high quality performance.

These cut out inserts are furnished for any date or any day of the week, eight alike on a card (for example, eight "Mondays" to a card) at ten cents per card, or, you can get them a little cheaper by ordering a complete set of sixteen cards at one dollar and forty cents.

This set will comprise one card each. The department has been placed under the management of Dewey Kilby.

"FARMER ALFALFA'S WOLFHOUND"

(Bray—Paramount)

REVIEWED BY THEODORE OSBORN ELTONHEAD

THIS animated cartoon is from the pen of Paul Terry and deals in an amusing manner with the attempt of Farmer Alfalfa to protect his fine flock of ducks. The ducks are shown answering a dinner bell call and making their toilets for luncheon, but as soon as they are ready for the meal a wolf appears and seizes the pet duck of the flock.

The farmer purchases a dog supposed to be a wolfhound and sets out to hunt the wolf. At the sight of a rabbit the dog turns tail and runs. The farmer, much disappointed, tries to sell the dog, then gives it away, and finally to drown it in a salt water creek where there are a number of sharks. His surprise is great when the dog appears on the bank dragging an enormous shark after it, which it has killed in the water. The cartoon has been well drawn and contains many amusing situations well handled.

PHOTOPLAY LEAGUE SENDS OUT CIRCULAR LETTER TO STIMULATE INTEREST IN WORTH WHILE PICTURES

WITH the purpose of stimulating public interest in motion picture productions which receive the endorsement of its playgoing public, the Photoplay League has sent out from its headquarters in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York, a circular letter to motion picture producers soliciting their co-operation in a comprehensive national scheme.

On the advisory committee of the Photoplay League are names of some of the most prominent society and civic persons in New York. The list includes Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Fred Lee Ackerman, Robert Erskine Ely, Adolph Lewisohn, E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Mrs. Charles Whitman, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Lillian D. Wald, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Mrs. James Speyer, Cornelius Vanderbilt and Isaac N. Seligman, treasurer.

"The primary object of the league is that there may be an organized body of the public throughout the country to support the worth while photoplays," says the announcement. "In too many instances the producers find there is not the demand that should be expected from exhibitors and patrons.

"The league will be an answer to those who are continually deploring the tendency of the motion picture from the artistic, moral and educational point of view.

"The intention of the league is not to criticize or condemn any form of the motion picture whatever, but solely to encourage the public support of such pictures as reach the League's own particular standard, by commending to their members at least one first class picture each week, which shall be given the endorsement of the league and be put on its official list."

COLLECTIONS ON "THE IRON CLAW" EXCEED THOSE OF ALL OTHER PATHE SERIALS

THE total collections on Pathe's serial "The Iron Claw," produced by Edward Jose from the scenario by George B. Seitz, have already exceeded those on "The Exploits of Elaine," which up to this time held the Pathe serial record.

This statement is of particular interest in view of the announcement that Pathe will release the Astra Film Corporation's production of Mr. Seitz's "The Shielding Shadow" on October 1, with full confidence that it in turn will prove of even greater drawing power than "The Iron Claw."

In speaking of results achieved with the latter serial by exhibitors who have played it, C. R. Seelye, business manager of the Pathe Company, said:

"Many exhibitors are going to re-run "The Iron Claw" because they have figured that only a small percentage of the people in their territory saw it during its first engagement and that even a larger number will turn out for the second run because of the word of mouth publicity."

DR. H. C. JOHNSON GETS HOME THEATRE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE Home theatre, in the northeast section of the city, has passed into the hands of Dr. H. C. Johnson, under whose management the house will be conducted.

The Home stands as an exponent of the attractive modern residential picture house, artistic and comfortable, showing excellent photoplays. There is every reason why this theatre should appeal to the people of its neighborhood and become a community institution to be proud of.

SERIAL FILM COMPANY BUSY ON A NEW SERIAL

WILLIAM STEINER, supervising director of the Serial Film Company, announces that his organization is already busily engaged in arranging for a serial to follow "The Yellow Menace," which is being distributed by the Unity Sales Corporation.

The first release of "The Yellow Menace" is set for Labor Day, and the new serial will be completed in ample time to be ready when "The Yellow Menace" is completed.

"The character and theme of the new serial is certain to be entirely different from that of "The Yellow Menace," so as to enable the exchanges and the exhibitors to present to the public something entirely new, up-to-date and unique in serials," said Mr. Steiner. "The success of "The Yellow Menace" has proved to both the Serial Film Company and the Unity Sales Corporation that there is a field for serials among the independent exchanges and the officials of these companies believe that they can give these exchanges a succeeding serial that will be kept well up to the developments in the industry."

While not ready to announce the name of the serial or its stars, Mr. Steiner states that negotiations are practically closed with a prominent movie actress now appearing with another of the large film companies. Just as soon as negotiations are completed with the star, the name of the serial and its authors will be announced.

"IS ANY GIRL SAFE?" RELEASED TO AID IN SUPPRESSION OF SOULLESS TRAFFIC

"IS Any Girl Safe?" which opened at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, New York, Sunday night, has been put forth in an attempt to aid the authorities throughout the country who are engaged in the fight to stamp out white slavery and is the first picture of the Anti-Vice Motion Picture Company, recently formed, to carry out a nation wide propaganda against this evil.

The story is of two cadets. The first is about to ensnare a girl in the meshes of the Tenderloin when he accidentally discovers that his partner is planning to do the same thing to his own sister. Realizing the enormity of his offense when it is brought home to him, the cadet is easily regenerated by the two girls. The story is said to be a sermon of vital import to the parents of all girls.

The makers of the picture have exerted every effort to obtain realistic local color and interviewed Yushe Botwin, who is now in the Tombs under indictment for trafficking in girls. One of the most effective scenes is that showing the graveyard, the so-called Potter's Field, on a desolate part of Hart's Island, the penal colony where most of these girls are buried. The whole play is said to be a terrible indictment of the conditions made possible by the vice trust and presents an unescapable warning to the mothers and fathers of all girls.

The cast includes G. Raymond Nye, William Quinn, Jessie Arnold, Mina Cunard and Helen Wright.

BUSINESS MANAGER ALLEN, TRIANGLE, INTRODUCES TELEPHONIC ARRANGEMENT

BUSINESS manager E. H. Allen is responsible for a new and efficient innovation that was introduced last week into the making of Ince-Triangle plays. As a result of a suggestion made by Mr. Allen, each of the stages at the Culver City plant is now equipped with a telephone wire connecting with the main switchboard operator in the administration building.

By this means a performer is enabled to act more naturally when engaged in telephonic conversation for scenes before the camera. Those directors who have already had occasion to use the innovation have pronounced it to be highly successful and many of the players, too, have agreed that it successfully serves its purpose.

WILLIAM H. TOOKER JOINS IVAN PRODUCTIONS

WILLIAM H. TOOKER, the well-known delineator of character roles on the legitimate stage and on the screen, has been cast for one of the leading male roles in the second Ivan all-star cast production, which will be named "Her Surrender." William H. Tooker has successfully portrayed many different roles before the camera. Featured by William Fox in "Fool's Revenge," Mr. Tooker reaped new laurels in the field which he has chosen to make his own, since he deserted the legitimate stage, where he supported such well-known artists as Fannie Davenport, Clara Bloodgood and John Mason.

MASTBAUM BROTHERS PLAN TO ERECT PICTURE THEATRE SEATING 4,000 IN PHILADELPHIA

Special to Motion Picture News.

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.

MASTBAUM Brothers and Fleisher, the real estate brokers, have announced from their offices in the Finance Building, that they had sold 1900 to 1914 Market street, and 2 to 22 inclusive on South 19th street, to the Stanley Realty Company, owners of the Stanley and many other places of amusement in all sections of the city, and on this big site, it was announced that a new and imposing theatre will be at once erected for the exhibition of high class photoplays.

It was learned that the site was only finally secured after months of negotiations on the part of the real estate brokers because of many owners' interests involved. Long ago Mr. Stanley Mastbaum, managing director of the Stanley Company, foresaw the possibilities of this section of the city as an amusement centre and suggested the wisdom of securing a plot whereupon a new home of amusement could be erected, and the present deal is the result of his enterprising energy, its accessibility being one of the prime reasons for its selection. It is directly at a subway station and reached by surface lines and railroads from all over the city and the suburbs.

Already Mr. Mastbaum has instructed the architects to prepare plans, advertise for bids and begin on what will be one of the most commodious theatres in the city, or indeed, in the United States. It will cost approximately $600,000 exclusive of the price paid for the site, which, it is reported, amounts to upwards of $500,000—the entire proposition meaning the investment of more than $1,100,000.

"From every point of view," said Mr. Mastbaum, in speaking of his latest amusement enterprise, "the site is an ideal one and the erection of this new house will mean much to those who have property in a neighborhood that is rapidly changing from the purely residential one, which it has been for so many years. The new theatre will be the largest and most complete house of its kind in the world, and it will be devoted exclusively to the exhibition of motion pictures. Of course, the policy of the Stanley Company will be in force at the new house and only the best of first showings will be presented and this applies to the dramatic, comedy and travel pictures. I have given the contract for the plans to the Hoffman Company, and that the new house will be one of beauty there is no doubt. These architects were the designers of the Stanley Theatre, and everyone knows the delightful character of this house. In the new one, the architects have been given carte blanche as to all details.

"In the building there will be many novel features. There will be no stairs; the balcony being reached by means of inclined walks, escalators and elevators. It will be a fireproof structure, with main floor and gallery, and the seating arrangements will accommodate four thousand people. I am sure that the efforts of the Stanley Company to give their thousands and thousands of friends the best in plays, produced in the best of houses, will, in this instance, as during the past two years, continue to meet with public approbation."

"TOLL OF JUSTICE" FROM FLORIDA FEATURES ON THE FIFTEENTH

WORD comes from the studio and head office of the Florida Feature Film Company, to the effect that its next five-reel picture, "The Toll of Justice" will be ready for the trade on or about September 15.

In speaking of the new picture, Thomas J. Peters, under whose personal supervision it was produced, said: "In the making of this, our second offering to the state right buyers, we have adhered rigidly to our set policy of getting the most into a picture for the least money, and I am thoroughly convinced that as a result of our systematic method of production we have turned out another money-making product with real box office value.

"The enthusiasm which has been evidenced by the large number of independent buyers who have seen or only heard of our first production, "The Human Orchid," has further convinced me that we are making, in every sense of the word, real 'Custom Made Features'—the kind the theatre patron wants—the class that finds a ready market and the brand of pictures that will make money for both the exchangeman, who buys them and the exhibitor who books them."

PRODUCTIONS FROM ALL PROGRAMS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"Under the Gas Lights." (Biograph. Reissue. Three reels.)—This picture based on one of Augustin Daly's old melodramas, is somewhat long drawn out and well out of date considering the obviousness of its story and outcome. A discharged nurse substitutes her own child for the baby heiress. The two children grow to womanhood and the rest of the story is taken up in untangling the true relationship of the two. The love element is introduced and a considerable portion of villainy, which is rather humorous. Lionel Barrymore is excellent in the role of an old inebriate, while a large cast appears in support, including Thomas Jefferson, Isabel Rea, Mrs. Lawrence Marston, Millicent Evans, Irene Howley, William Russell and Hector Sarno.

"An Indian's Loyalty." (Biograph. Reissue.)—A Griffith number that boasts of much thrilling riding and hair raising stunts executed by the horsemen. The story is nothing more than an excuse for presenting the thrills, but it serves its purpose to a nicety. Lillian Gish, Fred Burns, Eddie Dillon and Dark Cloud, the Indian, are the principals. This makes a Western of a variety all too scarce nowadays.

"The Woman Always Pays." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., Sept. 16.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Greater Obligation." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., Sept. 12.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: Mildred Bane goes to the city from her little home-town to avoid disgrace, and leaves her child on the parsonage steps. Roger Willard, the man who ruined her, marries and leaves the same town. He and his wife decide to adopt the foundling. Years later Mildred finds the adopted boy, and learning that he is Willard's son, she plans to kill him. When she finds that it is her own son, she becomes reconciled to Willard. The cast is composed of Edward Arnold, Marian Lydston and Betty Brown.

"The Fable of the Slim Girl Who Tried to Keep a Date That Was Never Made." (Essanay. Wed., Sept. 13.)—This George Ade fable now shown for review; the story follows: Once there was a slim girl who lived in a rube town, dreaming of her ideal. She married a boob named Ernest, who had been kicked in the head by a mule and believed everything he saw in the papers. Ernest could shot-put an anvil, but every time he lifted an axe something caught him in the small of the back. One day Ernest, being too lazy to move into the shade, was sunstruck, and passed away without an effort. The widow put all her money into a marble shaft marked "At Rest." Every one thought the death would make her happy, especially when she married a man who could give her everything she wanted. Since her three maids did all the work, the slim girl was miserable, and thought of the jewel she had lost. Moral: If the woman thinks he's all right, you keep on the other side of the fence.

"Meter in the Kitchen." (Kalem. Fri., Sept. 8.)—A single-rel comedy based upon a quarter gas meter and the amusing series of complications that are caused by the lack of a quarter at the crucial moment. The picture is characterized by some good night photography and an unusual chase between an automobile and a trolley car that has several exciting and amusing moments. Ivy Close has the feature role and the comedy element is furnished by Henry Murdoch.

"The Mysterious Double." (Kalem. Fri., Sept. 15.)—The comedy situation in this single-reel offering hinges about the fact that a young woman writer assumes a double identity and depicts her difficulty in handling two suitors. Ivy Close has the feature role and handles the dual part in a creditable manner. She is supported by Arthur Albertson, C. D. Peruchi and Henry Murdoch.

"The Hoodoo of Division B." (Kalem. Sat., Sept. 16.)—In this offering in "The Hazards of Helen" railroad series Helen Gibson seems to just jump from one moving engine to another. The story deals with the insistence of a railroad superintendent on putting a hoodoo engine in service. On a steep down grade something goes wrong with the air brakes and the heavy train gets out of control. Helen seizes a light engine, pursues the runaway and succeeds in bringing it to a stop. The photography and acting were up to the usual standard in this series.

"The Teasure of Cibola." (Sixth of the "Girl from Frisco" Series. Kalem. Wed., Sept. 13.)—This number is reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Pony Express." (Selig. Three reels. Mon., Sept. 11.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"In the Jungle Wilds." (Selig. Sat., Sept. 16.)—This is a fast moving drama, supposedly taking place in the African veldt. A few more sub-titles would have made it easier to follow the action, but the story is, for the most part, elementary enough for a child to understand. The introduction of lions, tigers, camels and other beasts adds a touch of distinctiveness to an otherwise ordinary production. In the cast are Dick La Reno, Miss McDonald, George Larkin and Will Machin. Norma Bruce is engaged to James Shelly, but when her father is sent to jail she breaks the engagement. Two years later Bryce is released and takes his daughter to South Africa to begin life anew. Bryce now makes his living by smuggling diamonds. Malone, a tax collector, catches him in the act, but promises to say nothing if he can marry Norma and share the illicit profits. Bryce consents to this, but Shelly comes to marry Norma. To get rid of him, Bryce sends him into the jungle, believing that he will be killed by the wild beasts. Norma rides after her lover to warn him, and they are married at a settlement. In the meantime Bryce has been killed, and the married couple return to have Malone arrested.

C., unattended; "go-devils," new motor vehicle, used in package delivery service, San Francisco, Cal.; largest searchlight in world tested, Brooklyn, N. Y.; fly and bait casting tournament, Newark, N. J.; on the river Somme, France; Andrew Carnegie at Bar Harbor, Me.; and other events.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"The Gambler's Lost Love." (Mustang. Two reels. Fri., Sept. 1.)—This story, written by Karl Coolidge and produced under the direction of Murdock MacQuarrie, is highly interesting and replete with gripping situations and heart interest. Helen, through a petty quarrel with Tom, her sweetheart, breaks her engagement and marries Jim. Her married life has been an unhappy one, as her husband is a gambler. Later Jim becomes infatuated with a widow, whereupon Helen sues for a divorce. Some months later a baby is born and the widow dies. Meanwhile Tom is pleading with Helen to marry him, when the news of Jim's predicament reaches her. Tom pleads in vain and Helen hastens to Jim, who now being thoroughly repentant remarries her. The cast includes Jack Richardson, Lizette Thorne, William Marshall and Quenie Rosson.

"The Stolen Booking." (Vogue. Tues., Aug. 29.)—This comedy furnishes a great deal of clean fun and has many novel stunts. The action is fast and well sustained. Ben and Rube steal the suitcase of Kelsey and Ryan, two prominent actors, and finding a contract and a wallet containing two dollars they leave the place to join the troupe. On arriving in a small town they pose as Kelsey and Ryan and are informed that the troupe has been driven from the town. It is, however, suggested that Rube and Ben give a benefit performance. A series of amusing incidents follow and finally Ben and Rube are forced to leave the town and thus ends their career as famous (?) actors. The cast includes Rube Miller and Ben Turpin.

"Two of a Kind." (American. Wed., Aug. 30.)—This is an excellent story depicting a mix-up in babies and one which will delight any audience. Mr. Henpeck, the hero, is the proud possessor of a bridge-playing wife and a troublesome baby. Left at home to take care of the child, his misery is multiplied when he receives an invitation to a quiet game of poker. Desire finally overcomes discretion and he goes out, taking the infant along with him. There the baby is placed in the hands of Bilkins, the butler, who takes it to the park for an airing. Whilst strolling along Bilkins meets Tootles, a housemaid, with whom he has a flirtation. Tootles and Bilkins are so engrossed that they both forget their respective charges. As they part they accidentally exchange babies. The exchange results in mad confusion for the two families concerned, but Mrs. Henpeck at length sees the humor of the situation and much to Henpeck's delight smiles and forgives him. The cast includes Orral Humphrey, Jo Turner and Joe Massey.

"The Key." (Two reels. American. Mon., Aug. 28.)—An intensely interesting and gripping drama depicting the capture of a gang of counterfeiters by secret service officers. The action of the story is unfolded in an unusual manner, inasmuch as it is shown in retrospect years after the events occurred. Douglas Stallman, a U. S. secret service man, talks over old times with a friend whom he has not seen for years, and he tells him the story of his big case. Stallman's aid is sought by the local chief of the government secret service in an effort to discover and break up a gang of counterfeiters, and the only clue is the suspicion that a girl known as Cleo Langdon is in some way connected with them. Stallman manages to make the acquaintance of Cleo and she introduces him to the gang. He is later caught listening, and Jamison, the leader, orders Stallman to be searched and the key of Cleo's apartment is found on his person. Stallman is bound and thrown into a room, where he manages to throw a chair out of the window and attract the attention of the police. When they arrive the gang is rounded up, but Cleo is saved by Stallman, who has become interested in the girl, whom he later makes his wife. The cast includes Edward Coxen, George Field, Lizette Thorne and Frank Thompson.

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"Nobody Guilty." (Nestor. Mon., Sept. 11.)—A comedy by Ben Cohen and Harry Lyons in which the shoplifting daughter of the department store head gets a number of people into complications that are handled very humorously. Lee Moran as the detective handles a role he is familiar with in excellent style. Others are Eddie Lyons, Priscilla Dean and Fred Gamble. Louis Chaudet directed.

"Jane's Choice." (Victor. Tues., Sept. 12.)—A romantic comedy laid at the seashore that, although containing some very humorous scenes, is a little too trite to really entertain. Matt Moore and Jane Gail are the principals.

"The Small Magnetic Hand." (Big U. Sun., Sept. 17.)—A drama by Bess Meredyth dealing with certain affairs of matrimony that are slightly too intimate to call for blushless entertainment. The story deals with the marriage of an actor and a country girl, how his abuse of her caused the death of the child before its birth and how later when he repented the couple were blessed once again. Hal Cooley and Gertrude Selby, who makes here her first appearance in a dramatic part, are the leads.

"Brick Top." (Rex. Sun., Sept. 17.)—An engaging comedy-drama in which a boy, Roy Clark, is featured. He runs away from school, but, tired, takes refuge in a shanty where two bandits later adjourn to count over stolen goods.

Douglas Gerrard and Francelia Billington in "The Price of Victory" (Universal)

The boy's father, the sheriff, pursues them, and the boy assists in capturing them. He returns to school a hero. This was written and produced by John MacDermott and makes a very acceptable offering.

"Hired and Fired." (Universal Special Feature. Two reels. Week of Sept. 11.)—Dobbs still continues to throw a big bluff, pretending he is Carter De Haven. He meets two young ladies and bulldozes them into believing he is a great star. He finally secures a job, but when his picture is shown in the theatre it's all over. This is quite the best of the series, as the situations are most humorous and the whole is put together very well. Carter De Haven, Robert Milash and others appear. Bess Meredyth prepared the scenario for Wallace Beery.

"Baby's Toofs." (Victor. Two reels. Thurs., Sept. 14.)—The baby plays with beans and gets two stuck in his gums, therefore exciting mother and father to believe that they are teeth. A party is given and in the midst of it the baby's ruse is discovered. Very clever and well produced, but too long for comfort. The settings are prettily designed by Harry Myers and the leaders equally well decorated. Myers, Rosemary Theby, James Rosen and Royal Byron are the principals.

The Thanhouser Studio in Jacksonville

"For Her Mother's Sake." (Big U. Thurs., Sept. 14.)—An old poet tells his adopted daughter the story of her mother's betrayal at the hands of Mr. City Man. The sub-titles of this are in poetry and this combined with the manner in which the story is presented helps to dispel the plot's obvious conventionality. Viola Smith, the girl who listens to the story, overacts to a considerable degree, and by unvarying work in all her scenes spoils a good many of them. Others are Ed. Brown, Charles Gunn, G. Raymond Nye and Marc Robbins.

"The Timber Wolf." Big U. Fri., Sept. 15.)—This is the conventional story of the city man whose presence in the wild woods interrupts the romance of innocent lovers for a short period. There is nothing new about this, although it has been very well presented, containing a number of beautiful scenes. George Cochrane directed Mollie Malone, Jack Nelson, Vester Perry and Rex de Rosselli.

"The Caravan." (Universal Special. Sun. Sept. 17.)—Burton Wells has written and produced a very artistic story the theme of which is laid in Egypt. He has secured excellent color and locations and for a two-reel production this picture is highly commendable. Claire McDowell as Hathor and Lena Baskette as Saia both give a very pleasing performance in their respective roles.

The story concerns a party of Egyptians crossing the desert, in which love, hatred and revenge play a prominent part. This film being far removed from the usual type will appeal in no small degree to any audience and for that reason exhibitors should well consider this production. The cast includes Jay Belasco, Claire McDowell, Lena Baskette, C. G. Briden and Malcolm Blevins.

"Liberty." Fourth episode. Mon., Sept. 4.)—This fourth episode maintains the same thrilling interest as the preceding chapters. In "Dead or Alive" we find Liberty sacrificing herself to save her guardian by marrying Manuel. As the marriage is taking place, Captain Dalton receives orders to take his troops across the line. Lopez, chief of the Mexican bandits, lays a trap for the American troops. Therese, who has been jilted by Liberty's husband, Manuel, assists Liberty in escaping from her unwelcome husband.

"The Angel of the Attic." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., Sept. 15.)—This story, written by Catherine Carr and directed by Francis I. Brandon, has been exceedingly well done and it is one of those films of which we see so few. The story concerns the life of an artist who is tired of living in high society and longs for the free and natural life of his poorer brethren. He takes a room on the East Side and there meets Betty Gray, a girl of the slums, whom he eventually woos, wins and marries. The acting of both Violet Merserau and Harry Benham is delightfully refreshing and their many admirers have a treat in store when they see this production.

Light and Color—Analysis of Light with the Spectroscope—The Subject of Motion Pictures in Natural Color Is Again Claiming the Attention of the Industry—Reports of New "Color Processes" About to Be Launched —Sensation of Light Caused by Undulations of Ether

THE subject of motion pictures in natural colors—always an interesting one—is again claiming the attention of the industry. Reports of new "color processes" about to be launched are heard on all sides and considerable speculation is indulged in as to their practicability and chances of ultimate success.

To us the problem of successfully producing and exhibiting motion pictures in "natural colors" has always been one of absorbing interest, as it is, no doubt, to all readers of the Camera Department.

Color as applied to photography and cinematography is a rather involved subject requiring for its proper understanding and working an extended training in, and knowledge of, physics. This the average photographer and cameraman does not possess, and—it is amusing to state—many inventors (so-called) working on color processes are also found wanting in this respect.

As we propose to go into the subject of color photography (and cinematography) rather deeply—outlining and describing all processes of interest which have so far been brought forth—

it is deemed advisable to set forth at the beginning such elementary points relating to light, color, and the instruments by which their action is determined as will make for a clear understanding, by all readers, of that which follows.

The wave theory of light is understood by all, so that we need not go into its details here. As is generally known the sensation of light is caused by the undulations or wave motion of the ether which fills all space and by which we are surrounded. When the ether is in a state of rest we have darkness, but when the ether is in motion and its waves or vibrations enter our eye we have the sensation of light.

The Movements of the Ether

The movements of the ether may be considered just as other forms of wave motion are, and thus the path of an ether wave through one oscillation is called its amplitude and the time consumed in one oscillation is called the undulation period. We may express the number of undulations or vibrations as being so many per second, and differences in vibration frequency give rise to different color sensations in the eye. The wave-length or distance from one wave crest to the next wave crest is found to be inversely proportional to the undulation period.

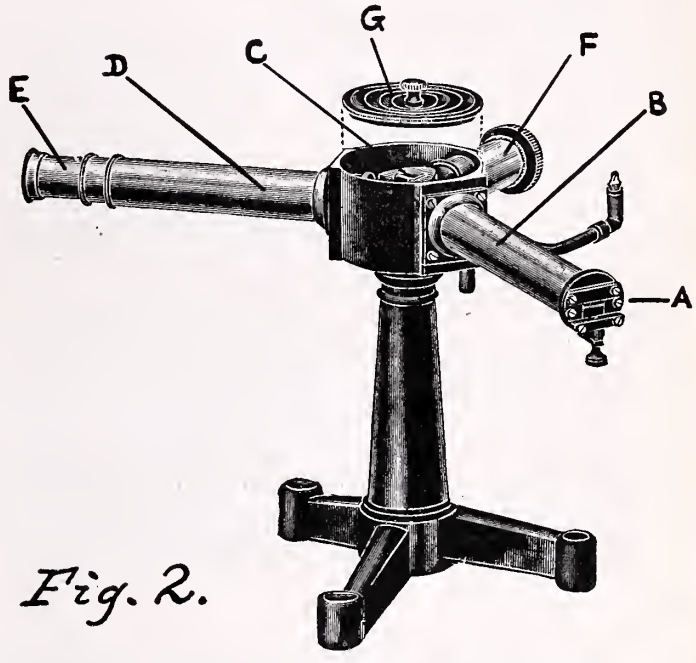

Fig. 2.

The vibrations of the ether have been measured and it is found that about 400 billion vibrations per second gives us the sensation of red. The number of vibrations increases for the various colors and at 750 billion vibrations per second we have the sensation of violet. The wave-lengths, varying inversely with the frequencies of vibration, range from about 750 millionths of a millimeter for the red to about 400 millionths of a millimeter for the violet. The millionth part of a millimeter is the unit by which the wave length of light is measured, being generally termed a tenthmeter or Angström unit.

We will now leave this dry and uninteresting (although necessary) data and consider the decomposition of white light into its component colors. As is well known this may easily

A B C of the Motion Picture Operating Room

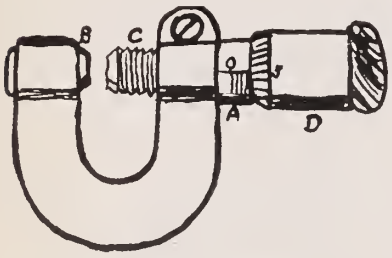
It Is Important for An Operator to Be Able to Determine the Size Wire to Use for Any Given Amperage and to Be Able to Figure Out the Resistance Offered by Various Size Wires—Tables Set Forth to Enable Him to Make the Necessary Calculations

AS I told you last week we would take up the various wire tables in this issue. There is no necessity for me to give anything further than the actual wires used in the operating room, therefore I will omit all other sizes.

Carrying Capacity in Amperes.
(Copper Wire).

B. & S. Gauge.	Amperes.
2	131
3	110
4	92
5	77
6	65
7	52
8	40

It is very important that an operator should be able to determine the size wire to use for any given amperage; also to be able to figure out the resistance offered by the various size wires, therefore by careful study of this and the following tables he will be able to determine more readily just what size wire is needed for his purpose.



Micrometer Gauge

It is not permissible to use any wire smaller than a No. 8 in any projection circuit. To enable you to understand more thoroughly, I would say that the larger the number the smaller the wire and vice versa. That is, a number eight wire is higher in number than a number two, but the number two wire is larger in diameter than the eight, and with a greater carrying capacity.

Wire is generally figured in circular mills, the circular mills are found in the following table:

CIRCULAR MILLS.

2	66373
3	52634
4	41743
5	33102
6	26251
7	20817
8	16510

To find the circular mills of a given size wire you multiply the diameter by itself, thus, a number 8 wire is 128/1000 of an inch in diameter, to find the circular mills multiply 128 by 128, which is 16.404, or nearly that which is given in the above table as the circular mills.

The most exact way to measure wire is to use what is known as micrometer gauge which measures the wire in mills, and will answer in every case, no matter what gauge may be used by the manufacturer.

The operation of measuring a wire with the micrometer gauge is as follows:

The wire to be measured is placed between a fixed support "B" and the end of a long movable screw "C," which accurately fits a threaded tube "A." A thimble "D," provided with a milled head fits over the screw "C," and is attached to the upper part. The lower circumference of "D" is divided into scale of 25 equal parts, each representing 1/1000 of an inch, or 1 mil.

The tube "A" is graduated into larger divisions which equal 1/10 of an inch, or 100 mils. Each of these larger divisions is divided into four subdivisions, each representing 1/40 or 25/1000 of an inch, or 25 mils.

Suppose, now, a wire is placed between "B" and "C," and the screw advanced until it fairly fills the space between them, and the reading shows one of the larger divisions on the scale "A," two of the smaller ones on the same scale, and five on the end of the sleeve "D." Then

One larger division of scale "A"	= 100 mils
Two smaller divisions of scale "A"	= 50 "
Five divisions on circular scale "D"	= 5 "
Diameter of wire	= 155 mils

Multiplying 155 by 155 = 23.025 circular mills, turning to our table we find that the nearest approach to this is found in a No. 6. wire, which has 26.251 circular mills, therefore the wire we are measuring is approximately a No. 6.

Table of Resistance

Now, knowing the carrying capacity and circular mills of a wire, we want to know how to find the resistance offered by the wire to an electrical current, the following table gives the resistance per thousand foot of wire in ohms.

No. 2	0.161812
3	0.204040
4	0.257291
5	0.324441
6	0.409136
7	0.515932
8	0.650526

Remember please that this is the resistance for 1,000 feet of wire. Suppose we wanted to find the resistance of our operating room circuit. By that I mean the projection circuit. If we were running a No. 6. wire from our machine to the basement where the mains were located, we would double the length of wire and multiply the length by 10½, or to use decimals, 10.5. For instance the distance from the operating room to the basement is 100 feet; doubling that we have two hundred feet times 10.5, which equals 2100; this divided by the area of a No. 6 wire, which is 26,251, gives us as the resistance of our circuit approximately .08 of an ohm.

Of course this is based on the supposition that the temperature of the wire will not go above 75 degrees Fahrenheit or 24 degrees centigrade.

There is another important factor in figuring the resistance of wires, and that is what is known as voltage "drop." Where the length of the circuit, the cross section or area, together with its resistance per mil.-foot is known we find that by multiplying the length of wire by 10.5 aand dividing that by the amperes we get the resistance in ohms. Now to find the voltage drop we multiply amperage, which we will suppose to be 50, by the distance to the basement of each wire which is 200 feet, by 10.5 as per this formula 50 by 200 by 10.5 = 10.5000. Now dividing this by the circular mills of our No. 6. wire which is 26251 we proceed as follows: and find that

$$\frac{10.5000}{26251} = 4 \text{ volts drop.}$$

I believe that I have gone far enough into this matter so that the average operator can make the calculations he will be called upon to do, and next week I will take up the various types of resistance devices, making a brief explanation of them that will answer every purpose and yet not become tiresome.

CARLTON OPERA HOUSE, BAYSHORE, LONG ISLAND, IS AN UP TO DATE PICTURE HOUSE, EVEN IF IT IS BUILT OF WOOD

THE Carlton Opera House, built sixteen years ago, is situated on Main Street at Bayshore, Long Island. Many of us have heard the town termed "the second Newport," and "there's a reason." Millionaires of Bayshore and towns within a twenty mile radius find amusement inside the four walls of the Opera House.

The building measures 86x130 feet and is of frame construction. Unusual in exterior it has the appearance of a private dwelling. Upon entering from the street a spacious lobby is seen with many posters hanging about. Mr. Brewster, the owner and manager, claims posters to be a necessary asset to the exhibitors' business. Who would not stop to look at such an interesting display as is seen in front of this theatre? The box office is located to the right in the lobby and uses the straight ticket selling method. We might mention that the cashier is O. K.

The Wooden House That Shows Live Pictures

When entering the theatre itself our ideas of the interior are abandoned and we see an attractive and comfortable photo play house. The capacity of this house is eight hundred and fifty. Many of the seats used in this theatre were bought at the auction of the old Wallack Theatre, New York. These seats are plush upholstered. The other seats were manufactured by the American Seating Company and are also very comfortable. There are seven loges on either side of the screen and boxes are included for the smoker.

A balcony seating 225 is always crowded. This theatre has natural advantages for ventilation. A river is to the rear of the building and when the nine vents on either side walls are opened a coolness rivaling the best "ventilation system" is procured. In addition to this many electric fans are hung about the walls. Steam heat is maintained in the winter. The indirect lighting system is used. Gas and electricity are included for interior illumination. This theatre contains a metal ceiling; the floor throughout is wood.

Design painted walls are part of the interior decorations. The projection booth is equipped with a Simplex machine. A motor generator includes the equipment for reel service. The pictures are thrown on a "home made" screen, the throw being seventy-five feet. Mr. Brewster believes strongly in advertising. His methods produce results. One quarter of a page in the Bayshore Journal is used by him for advertising the Carlton Opera House and its leading features. He has a mailing list of six hundred and distributes "triangle programs" among his patrons. The program of this theatre changes daily and includes two feature pictures, a unique idea for keeping patronage. Ten or twelve reels are shown at a performance and only one show a night. At matinees the prices are five, ten and fifteen cents. In the evening 15, 25 and 35 cents is charged.

The management caters to the "very best" people in and around Bayshore and many well known society folks are regular patrons. Features are shown produced by Fox, Paramount, Triangle, Pathé, World, V-L-S-E.

NEARLY ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND PEOPLE PASS THE DUFFIELD DAILY

THE location of the Duffield street theatre, just off Fulton ,in the busy shopping district of Brooklyn, N. Y., is passed by nearly one hundred thousand pedestrians and nearly three times that number on the elevated roads and surface cars in a day. These figures were definitely reached after four weeks' close counting by the manager. The style of the Duffield and the service given would ordinarily attract the pedestrians, but on account of location the management built a day and night sign next door to the theatre. It is about twenty by sixteen feet, with changeable lights, and gets the attention of the thousands of people passing by.

The theatre seats nearly six hundred. All the seats in the balcony and on the main floor have an excellent view of the screen. There are fourteen exits, so that in case of fire the theatre can be empted in six minutes. The booth is fireproof and in case of a blaze would be confined to the four walls of the projection room and put out without the audience knowing what had happened. The Duffield built up a regular clientele by giving the best pictures and making the patrons comfortable while inside for amusement.

OPERATORS' STRIKE STILL ON IN TULSA AND MUSKOGEE, OKLAHOMA

THE strike at Oklahoma City continues and has extended to Tulsa and Muskogee, Oklahoma. The stage crews and operators demands have not as yet been met. Several disturbances have occurred at Oklahoma City and several arrests made. The White Rats are lending aid to the strikers.

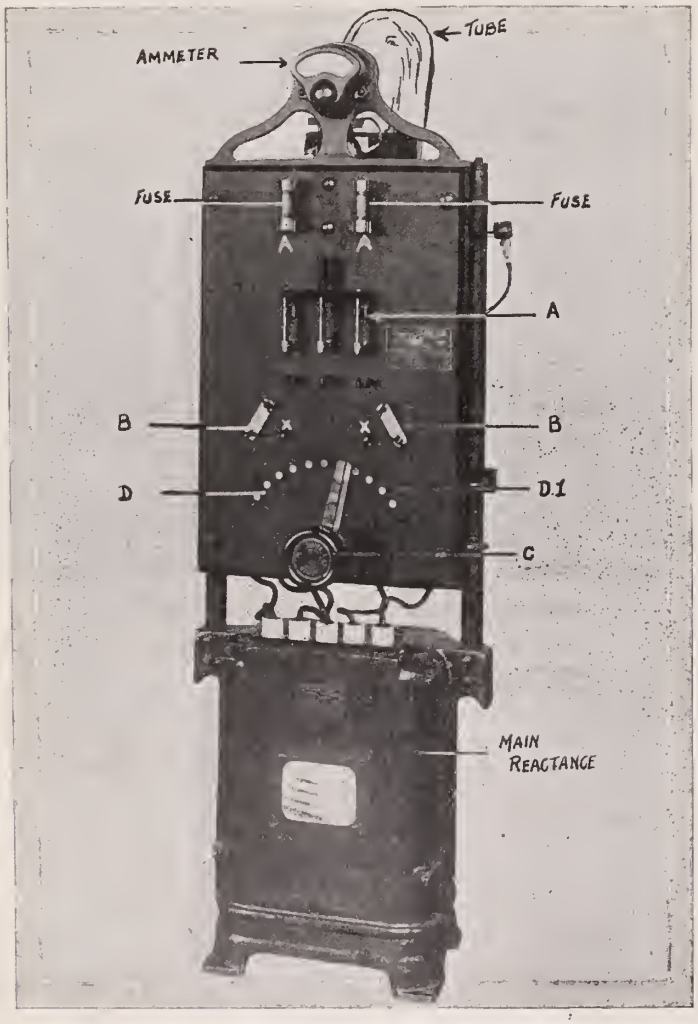
A New Arc Controller is Placed on the Market

The Auto-Arc Is a Simply Constructed Device for Automatically Maintaining a Steady Light at the Arc, and Is the Invention of Two Chicago Operators—The Apparatus Commands the Attention of an Exhibitor Who Is Looking for an Arc Controller at the Minimum of Expense

WHILE in Chicago I witnessed a demonstration of the Auto-Arc, a simply constructed device for automatically maintaining a steady light at the arc. The Auto-Arc is the invention of two Chicago operators who have advanced with the times and their progressiveness has placed them in the ranks of those who "do things."



The Auto-Arc Controller

To describe the apparatus: Figure 1 is termed the controller. It is composed of two coils of magnet wire wound on an iron core, (shown at E in Figure 2) one coil consisting of many turns of fine wire which is termed the pressure or potential winding; the other consists of a few turns of heavy wire and is called the current or series coil.

These coils are connected differentially, that is, the magnetism set up by one coil opposes the magnetism or flux of the other.

On each end of this device there is mounted an armature or vibrator. One of these armatures acts as a circuit breaker or safety, which prevents the Auto-Arc from operating until after the lamp is fed by hand and the arc struck in the usual manner, thereby making use of auxiliary switches, clutches, gears, etc., unnecessary.

The other armature is balanced between one end of the magnetic core and the coil tension spring, the action of which is as follows: The line switch (switch on picture machine) is closed, the arc struck by hand in the usual manner, when the carbons have burned away to a point where a perfect crater is formed with the proper length of arc; the tension of the spring A at this point overcomes the attraction exerted on the other end of the armature, thereby releasing the armature from the core, which makes a contact through platinum points, partly shown at B, which momentarily connects the lamp feeding mechanism, which in turn feeds the carbons together slightly.

Effect of the Contact

This contact also momentarily short circuits the potential winding of the controller, thereby releasing the differential of the two coils which increases the magnetism of the core, thereby overcoming the air gap between the core and the armature, and returning the armature to its normal position which is in magnetic contact with the core.

The armature is now held to the core by the increased current (in the series coil) which is caused by the feeding together of the carbons. This action is repeated indefinitely, so long as there is sufficient length of carbon in the lamp.

Figure 2 shows the method of wiring. "1" is the small potential wires; "2" pressure line through circuit breaker and armature. (Note: The line from the feeding mechanism or solenoid must be connected to the same side of fuse block as are the small potential wires.

The action of the lamp feeding mechanism is very simple and positive. Briefly described it consists principally of a free ratchet A Figure 3, mounted upon the lamp feeding rod. This ratchet is rotated one tooth at a time by the action of a solenoid C connected to a lever upon which is mounted a "Dog" "B," which is normally out of mesh with the ratchet but which is momentarily brought into mesh by the downward pull of the solenoid, thereby causing the carbons to feed slightly and maintain a perfect arc at all times.

The Auto-Arc can be attached to any hand-fed lamp in a very few minutes and will prove to be one of the greatest helps to the operator who is using direct current as it will operate under any and all conditions; at least that is the claim of the inventors, and I believe their claim well founded.

Two of the most prominent features of the Auto-Arc are the free ratchet, which leaves the lamp free at all times and allows the operator to make any adjustment he desires by hand without any interference whatever; the other is the instantaneous adjustment for any current between 25 and 60 amperes, by merely loosening set screw at "C," and moving plunger "D" in or out to decrease or increase the current as determined by the desired length of arc.

The apparatus is so small that it may easily be placed under the projection machine where it will be out of the way and yet readily accessible. It is guaranteed to give complete satisfaction and is left to the exhibitors to say whether he is getting satisfaction or not. All working parts are guaranteed for a period of one year and any part found defective will be replaced if returned to the company, charges prepaid.

This device should be carefully examined by the exhibitor who is looking for an arc controller at a minimum of expense. It is as nearly "foolproof" as the ingenuity of the inventor could make it and the simplicity of its construction should meet with the approval of the operator who does not want added burdens thrust upon him, for it does not call for any attention after once being installed.

PROPER WAY TO MOUNT MENISCUS BI-CONVEX

Walnut Ridge, Ark.: I have a Simplex projector and am not satisfied with the light I get on my screen. I throw a picture about 13 by 17 at 65 feet. Have Gundlach lens which focuses perfectly, in fact the only fault I find is that I do not seem to have light enough on the screen. Am using a B. & H. Compensarc which delivers up to 60 amperes, and my carbons are National 5/8 in. cored. I wish you would give me the correct instruction as to the size condensers I should use for this distance and the proper way to mount the meniscus bi-convex condensers.

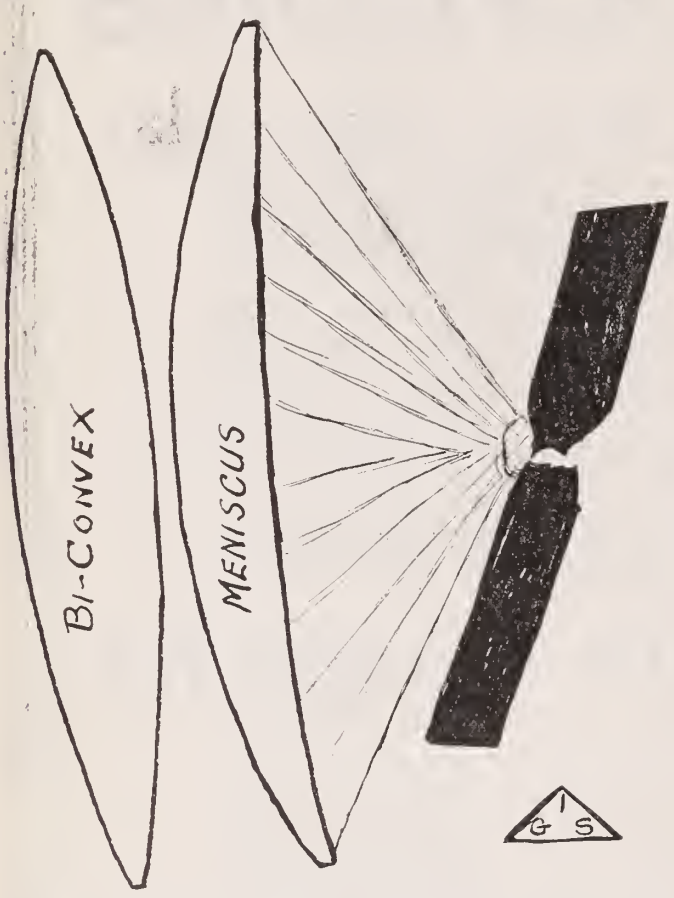
Also tell me how to arrive at the distance the lamp should be from condensers. From the above you will learn that I am new at the game, as the machine was already installed when I took charge, and I would like the information very much.



Proper Way to Mount Meniscus-Bi-Convex

Ans.—First, the projector has nothing to do with your light. You say you are projecting a picture 13 by 17 feet, then you are probably using a short focus lens of about three inches. With a lens of this focal length it is customary to use a 6½ and a 7½ condenser, with the 7½ nearest the arc. There is no set rule as to the distance the lamp should be from the condensers but it is advisable to have the arc at least three inches from the condensers as this helps to prevent breakage, but the distance will have to be determined by the spot. The spot should never be larger than the aperture, though some operators carry a spot the size of a "dinner plate" with the result that the light is very poor for the reason that the beam is not condensed to take out the bluish cast.

With your B. & H. Compensarc, delivering 60 amperes, you should use ¾ in. soft cored carbons top and bottom. After you have struck your arc, open the film gate, being sure that there is no film in the machine, and with your arc about three inches from the condensers project the light upon the screen, should your spot be too large draw your lamp farther back until it just covers the aperture, then if your field is not clear white, draw the entire lamphouse backward until all traces of blueness have disappeared.

See that your condensers are placed in the mount so that they almost touch each other. The accompanying illustration will give you the proper method of mounting the Meniscus Bi-Convex.

The rear lens, or that one which is nearest the light has a slightly concave surface thus collecting all the light rays, and doing away with a great deal of light loss that is found in the ordinary plane system of condensers.

TWO OR THREE WING SHUTTER FOR OUTSIDE SHOW?

J. G. Hinsey, Green Cove Springs, Fla.: We are using one machine for two shows, one inside and one outside, and want to know how to obtain the best results. Our machine is on a turn table, and during fair weather we show outside in the park where our throw is 140 feet, projecting a picture 10 by 12 feet, using a 7½ in. lens, and get a very good picture, but in bad weather when running inside, we have a 70 foot throw for the same size picture using a 5½ in. lens and get a poor focus.

Our current here is 110 volts A. C. and we use 40 to 50 amperes at the arc. Use Bio carbons, 5/8 in. soft cored top and bottom. Our rheostats get red hot when we run for an hour or two. Would you suggest a two or three wing shutter for the outside show?

Ans.—It seems to me that you are using an extra long focal length lens for your outside show. It would take a ten or ten and a half inch focal length lens to project that size picture at that distance, with two condensers of either 7½ and 8½ or two 8½, with their faces as close together as possible without touching, then too, your lamp house would have to be moved as far back as possible and I am doubtful then whether you would get the results you are seeking. Why not try a 7½ inch lens on the outside show, giving a larger picture even though it forces you to increase your apperage.

The inside show is as far as I can see, all right, but I am surprised to learn that you are still using "rheostats" when there are so many devices on the market for changing alternating current into direct, and the saving you would affect would soon pay for the cost of one of these devices. But as you are using rheostats see that they are of sufficient capacity for your purpose; they are evidently very much overloaded, otherwise they would not become red hot to any noticeable extent. Your carbons should be ¾ instead of 5/8. I would suggest that you use a two wing shutter on alternating current, for it not only gives greater illumination but reduces the flicker to a great degree. In answer to your last would say that any of the supply dealers whose advertisements you see in the "News" can fill your wants, I think, satisfactorily.

OPERATOR, AN EXPERT MECHANIC, MAKES A LOOPSETTER FOR MACHINE HE INTENDS TO SELL

R. W. Horner, Alpaugh, Cal.: I am a regular reader of the "News" and like it very much, and am especially interested in your department, which I find very helpful.

There are several questions which I would be very glad to have answered. 1. What is the number of the patent on the Powers loop setter? 2. Are there any loop setters on the market for use on the Edison machine? 3. Would a good, inexpensive loop setter for Edison machines pay if put on the market?

My reason for asking these questions is not to inquire as to the advisability of patenting an idea, but to find out whether I could lawfully sell a machine equipped with a loop setter not of the Powers construction. I run a show here twice a week, using an Edison exhibition model machine, and had much trouble in keeping a lower loop, and as I am a mechanic by trade I went to work during my spare time and constructed a loop setter which gives complete satisfaction.

I expect to sell my machine in the near future, and purchase a Powers 6-B, but want to find out first if I would be infringing on the Powers patent by selling the loop setter. A more experienced operator examined my loop setter and thought it very good, and advised me to put it on the market, saying that to the best of his knowledge there was no such apparatus on the market, and that the demand should be fairly good.

ANS.—I believe it is true that the Nicholas Power Company holds the basic patent for loop setters, as applied to the motion picture machine, and while I do not think they would prevent you from selling your machine with loop setter attached, I would not care to advise you to have such a device patented, for every day the various manufacturers are having submitted to them in one form or another some device that is claimed to be an added improvement to their machine. If you care to do so you might send me a model of your loop setter and I will submit it to the manufacturers and get their opinion as to its merits and let you know.

It has been the custom of operators who had something good, and yet not good enough for any manufacturer to adopt, to pass it along to other operators for their consideration. If you decide not to go to the expense of having this patented why not do likewise and give other operators the benefit of your experiment?

I would be only too pleased to publish an illustrated article on it in the department, if you send me drawings.

For your kind words as regards the "NEWS" and the department, thanks. I want you to feel that you are always welcome here, and any good ideas that you might have will receive every consideration in the department; so don't hesitate but come again.

CARBONS, TOP AND BOTTOM, GET RED-HOT NEAR CARBON ARM

Steubenville, Ohio: Why is it that my carbons, both top and bottom, get red hot near the carbon arm? They get red hot and break quite frequently.

ANS.—Well, brother, why not take a file and clean out the inside of the carbon arms? This is probably the seat of your trouble, and if operators would only clean their lamps oftener they would not be bothered by these annoyances. Their light would be much improved also. In cleaning the arms be sure that you get off all the scale or roughness, leaving the inside of the arm smooth and bright, thus getting a perfect electrical contact with your carbons.

CRABB, PIONEER EXHIBITOR AND INVENTOR OF FILM EQUIPMENT, IS MANAGER OF THE STRAND, BUFFALO

EARL L. CRABB of Indianapolis, Ind., has succeeded Harold E. Edel as manager of the Strand Theatre, Buffalo, who has assumed the active management of the million dollar Strand Theatre on Broadway, New York.

Mr. Crabb is one of the veterans in the motion picture business. In 1899 he entered the talking machine business and at the age of sixteen was manager of the Indiana Graphophone Company. After three years he entered the amusement business as manager of The Exhibit, the second penny arcade opened by Mark and Wagner in Indianapolis.

In 1906 Mr. Crabb left Indianapolis and opened a picture show in Fort Wayne, Ind. Here he declares he almost went broke in an attempt to introduce the silent drama and educate the public to the fact that motion pictures were "the thing." After many discouraging efforts, he determined to borrow money and open another picture show one block away on the same street. This accomplished, he says the folks immediately became interested, because he was running in competition with himself and started to patronize both places in goodly numbers.

In May, 1909, he sold out his interests in Fort Wayne, to accept a position with Carl Laemmle in the Laemmle Film Service of Chicago. Mr. Crabb has had actual experience in every branch of the business. He is originator of the idea of using a transformer on alternating current for motion picture projection. For his original experiments, the Fort Wayne Compensator was placed on the market.

Mr. Crabb has taken out several patents on motion picture apparatus. He patented an automatic film printer in November, 1915, which was purchased outright by Bell and Howell Company of Chicago. His latest invention was patented on June 13, 1916, in the form of an automatic film fire extinguisher, which he says will shortly be placed on the market.

Mr. Crabb was manager of the Casino Theatre at 58 West Madison street, Chicago, before assuming management of the Strand Theatre in Buffalo. He is well versed in the efficient manner of theatre operation and is an ideal man to carry on the "live wire" administration, which Mr. Edel inaugurated at the Strand.

POWER'S 6-A INSTALLED AT FORT LEE BY PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT

A Powers' 6-A has just been installed by the Picture Theatre Equipment Company in the plant of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, at Fort Lee, N. J., to be used in their laboratories there.

The machine is equipped with special lenses of very short focal length, and with the specially designed rheostat of the grid type capable of any adjustment from 15 to 45 amperes, motor drive; it is an all around thoroughly complete equipment.

DALLAS THEATRES GRANT OPERATORS FIVE DOLLAR INCREASE

A NEW wage scale has been negotiated between the motion picture machine operators and the Dallas (Texas) exhibitors calling for an increase of five dollars per week per man, the contract to run for one year. The houses party to the agreement and employing union men are: Majestic, Old Mill, Jefferson, Gaiety, Feature, Queen, Washington, Hippodrome, Rex, Crystal, Garrick, Newport, Copleys, Princess, Empress, Strand, Dixie, Favorite, Roseland, Best, Colonial and Cliff Queen.

UNION ANNOUNCEMENTS

On Saturday, August 28, H. P. Hill, manufacturer of the Hill Generator, gave an interesting talk to the members of Local No. 384 on transformers, rectifiers and motor generator sets.

This talk is the forerunner to a campaign of education which the local intends to pursue during the fall and winter months, and it is hoped that much good will be accomplished. The members are enthusiastic and with such able speakers as Mr. Hill, who by the way is an honorary member of Local No. 384, there is no doubt but that this local through its membership will reach a high standard of efficiency. Many interesting lectures are promised for these classes, and if the members are as attentive as they were on Saturday night, we can expect big things from them.

This department wishes the "boys" all success in their undertaking, and is ever ready to help them in any way it is in our power to do.

WESTERN SUPPLY COMPANY MAKES RAPID GROWTH UNDER VAN HUSAN MANAGEMENT

FOR a remarkable instance of growth and prosperity the prize must be handed to the Western Supply Company, a brand new Omaha, Neb., business house that has sprung up under the executive of F. A. Van Husan, president and former manager of the Universal exchange in Omaha.

Last week Mr. Van Husan placed the largest order for Powers and Simplex machines that ever came in any one order from Nebraska or Iowa. Within the last two weeks he has added a machine shop, where James P. Baer, expert mechanic, is foreman in the work of rebuilding and repairing moving picture machines.

And the Western Supply Company is an organization only a few months old! Mr. Van Husan is an ardent advocate of the Accessory News department in Motion Picture News.

Color Photography

be done by passing a narrow parallel ray of light R through a prism P as at (a) Fig. 1. The ray of light is refracted by the prism, and, as lights of different wave-length possess different angles of refraction the decomposed (or split up) ray of light is dispersed and forms a spectrum S. This spectrum shows the colors red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet merging imperceptibly one into the other. We may ignore the color indigo as it is practically identical with the color blue in its appearance to the eye. We can recompose our spectrum into white light again by allowing the rays from the first prism to fall on a second prism of the same angle but placed in an inverted position. If any one of the colored rays in the spectrum is passed through a prism it is seen, however, that it can undergo no further change. Light of one color only is therefore known as homegeneous or monochromatic light.

The spectrum produced by a prism shows certain abnormalities due to the previously mentioned fact that light of various wave lengths (or colors) varies in its refrangibility. The distribution of the various colors in the prismatic spectrum is shown by the diagram (b) Fig. 1. Thus it is seen that the red rays, which are least refracted, occupy a very narrow space at the left, the amount of refraction increasing through the orange, yellow, green and blue to the violet which is dispersed or spread out over a large portion of the spectrum, in comparison with which the distribution of the other colors appears rather crowded.

The Spectroscope

This ability of a prism to decompose light has been taken into account in designing the Spectroscope, which is perhaps the most useful of all scientific instruments. Its uses are legion but in the field of photography alone it is employed in numerous and highly important investigations, and a knowledge of the applications and handling of the Spectroscope is as essential to intelligent photographic work as is the lens on a camera.

A prism spectroscope of customary and well known type is shown in Fig. 2, in which A is the slit, through which a ray of light is admitted to the collimator tube B. C is a prism upon which the incident light from the collimator falls and is dispersed into spectrum which passes through the telescope D and may be observed at the eye-piece E. F is a device for reflecting a wave-length scale (which we need not consider here) into the telescope, while G is a cover which is placed over the prism chamber to shut out extraneous light.

The Position of Minimum Deviation

The exact action of the spectroscope will be better understood by a study of the diagram A in Fig. 3. Here we have a light source L from which a beam of light enters the narrow slit of the spectroscope at A and passes up the collimator tube B, falling upon the collimating lens C. The lens C collineates the light ray, or, in other words, it renders it parallel. The parallel light ray from the lens C now falls upon the prism D and is, of course, dispersed into a spectrum which falls upon the object-glass E of the telescope F. Traversing the telescope tube F the spectrum comes to a focus within the ocular (or eyepiece) G and is seen by the eye of the observer H. It should be noted here that the collimator lens C and the object-glass (of the telescope) E should be achromatic lenses e.g., corrected for more than one color. The eyepiece shown is a negative or Huyghenian eyepiece, although a Ramsden or other type of ocular may be used instead.

The length of a prismatic spectrum varies according to the angle at which the incident light strikes the prism. When the prism is placed at the angle of minimum deviation the spectrum is at its shortest length, and this is the position in which the prism should be when the Spectroscope is in use. A prism at minimum deviation is shown at B Fig. 3. There it will be seen that the emergent rays make the same angle with the prism as the incident rays. When adjusting the prism of a Spectroscope for minimum deviation the adjustment is generally made for the green or yellow region of the spectrum.

When a spectrum of the sun is viewed through the spectroscope, with the slit closed to a narrow opening, a number of dark lines will be noticed crossing the spectrum at intervals. These fixed lines, always in the same relative positions throughout the spectrum, were first discovered by Wollaston in 1802, but were later rediscovered and mapped out by the famous optician Frauenhofer, and are named after him—the Frauenhofer lines. The most prominent of these lines are marked with certain letters by which they are known to scientists and experimenters. The position of some of the most prominent lines with their corresponding letters are shown by the diagram (b) Fig. 1. Some of these lines are also known by the names of the various elements (metals or gases) with the position of whose emission spectra they are found to coincide.

The best known of these lines, without doubt, is the Sodium or D line in the yellow region of the spectrum. We mention this in order to lead up to another point in connection with the spectroscope. This Sodium or D line when examined in a suitable spectroscope is found to be two lines very close together. Although these lines are not seen separated in an ordinary spectroscope we will endeavor to explain how they may be separated or "resolved."

Firstly it may be stated that the spectrum is entirely composed of images (side by side) of the spectroscope slit. If the slit is open wide these images overlap and we have a continuous spectrum (or band of colors) without the Frauenhofer lines. As has been set forth, closing the slit to a narrow opening improves the definition and many of the fixed lines are then apparent. But to clearly define or resolve lines or groups of lines, which are so close together that they appear as a single line through the ordinary spectroscope, we must, in some way, increase the resolving power of the instrument. This is generally done in a prism spectroscope by adding one or more prisms (thus making a train of prisms); by using a prism with a higher refractive angle; or, by using a prism made of glass giving greater dispersion. At any rate we aim to disperse the light laterally to a greater extent than can be done with the customary single prism. With two prisms mounted upon the spectroscope the D lines are generally seen separated, which is quite high enough resolution for experimental work such as the beginner is likely to pursue, and a great many wonderful things may be observed with spectroscopes of even less power. The wonders of spectroscopy impress one and experimenters soon become enthusiasts. We can fancy many a photographer neglecting his camera to monkey with the spectroscope should he be so fortunate as to have access to a good one.

Direct Vision Pocket Spectroscope

A very handy instrument for superficial work, where great accuracy of measurement is not required, is a direct vision pocket spectroscope—such as is shown at C in Fig. 3. A is a tube having at its end the slit B. C is another tube arranged to slide or telescope within the tube A. At one end of the tube C is the collimator lens D (an achromat) while mounted within tube C between the lens D and the eyepiece (or viewing aperture) is a train of three prisms E. The two outer prisms are of crown glass while the center prism is of dense flint, and the combination permits the image of the spectrum to be transmitted to the eyepiece in a straight line (without deviation). Although these small pocket spectroscopes have no place in serious scientific work they are very handy, and form a valuable addition to any photographer's (or camerman's) outfit. They are valuable for examining the transmissions of safe-lights, such as are used in developing or dark-rooms, and, by the use of one of these little instruments a fair estimate may be formed of the capabilities of a light filter. This latter, however, requires a knowledge, on the part of the user, as to what are the desired qualities and capabilities of a light filter, and, judging from the results seen, there are very few cameramen, as yet, who understand the action and use of the light filter.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION IS TO HANDLE THEATRE OPENING IN SAN FRANCISCO

THE new Royal Theatre, San Francisco, which will be ready for business within a short time, instead of handling the opening in the usual way, has turned the management of the opening week over to the Polk and Larkin Street District Business Men's Association.

The business men have taken hold of the plan in a spirited manner and will make the opening a notable one. There will be music outside by a special band, and the permanent $25,000 organ of the theatre will be played by Edward White.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Lux

The Organ and What It Has Brought to Pictures

The Organ or One-Man Instrument Fits Wonderfully Into a Picture Theatre Entertainment Only When It Is a Part of That Entertainment, Which It can Only Be When It Is Part of the Picture Theatre Equipment

ABOUT three or more years ago we heard a great deal regarding the expense of having orchestral music in the picture theatres. This was in turn supplemented by that old familiar saying that it was impossible for orchestral combinations to play to pictures. The above has long ago been proven untrue and today it is every live exhibitor's ambition to have a real picture theatre with the best possible music.

The organ has been a wonderful help in bringing this about. Three or more years ago every exhibitor was told to get an organ or one man instrument, thereby reducing his expense. I said at that time that such salesmanship would never meet with success and that instruments such as the organ or other one man orchestral instruments should be added as picture theatre equipment and not under the guise of business economy. When we preach business economy for the picture theatre those interested in music or musical instruments should refrain from any and all arguments which would necessarily cheapen the musical possibilities of any picture theatre.

The organ or one man instrument fits wonderfully into picture theatre entertainment only when it is a part of that entertainment, which it can only be when it is a part of the picture theatre equipment. I don't know but what it is just as important as the screen or projection machine. It is misleading when you are told that it is the all and that it does all that is possible and probable.

There are many opinions as to the reasons for the raising of the admission price in many theatres. Some claim that it is the stellar names in the lights; others the great improvement in the present day photodramas; still others, the individual neighborhood wherein the theatre is situated; but no one seems to care to give the proper credit to music. Still we all know that the addition of music to the picture has been the most important factor in making possible the higher admissions in the picture theatre. The theatres that are conducted as they were three years ago are still getting five cents and ten cents in neighborhoods where ten cents is thought less of than five cents in the nickelodeon neighborhood. Those progressive exhibitors who have gotten out of the old ruts and have enlarged their seating capacity, raising their admissions to ten, fifteen and twenty-five cents will tell you differently, for most of them added organs and when they noted their business improvement they continually added to their musical entertainment.

Trouble to Book Good Pictures

Most exhibitors will tell you that they have as much trouble now as they ever had to book good shows. Nevertheless they have less trouble in maintaining a better clientele of patronage. It seems to be very difficult to place music in its proper position at the head of those requisites necessary to the better photoplay theatre. The organ has certainly added materially to the improvement of picture theatre music. It has not only made unnecessary the tin-pany tone of a lone piano, but it has also added materially to the richness of the orchestral tone.

When the orchestra alternated with the lone piano it was certainly a musical contrast which could attract little or no musical respect. Today when we alternate with the organ or similar orchestral instrument the effect is majestic and must attract the commendation of the intelligent and music-loving audience. In New York City the music in many of the legitimate theatres is a little less than a disgrace and one is soon impressed after entering the theatre that the audience assembled has little or no respect for it when we hear them chatter and making noise which would do credit to a bar room in a coal mining district on a monthly pay day.

It is therefore no wonder that the so-called legitimate theatres in New York are continually being built with less seating capacity, while Photo Play theatres are being built larger with enormous seating capacities. From time immemorial music has been an important fact in theatre entertainment. While this has been very much corrupted by different inartistic elements it is gratifying to note that the picture theatre will again place music in its proper place in the American theatre.

The organ with its great variety of tonal effects will make possible in the picture theatre musical entertainment which was heretofore unthought of.

KIMBALL ORGAN IS INSTALLED IN THE BELMONT, PHILADELPHIA, AND A WURLITZER IS PUT IN THE COLISEUM, QUAKER CITY

THE latest Kimball Organ, installed in Philadelphia photoplay house, has just been completed for the Belmont Theatre, Fifty-second above Market street.

The placing of this organ is unique in the east, being erected in the rear of the house, in two sound proof chambers whence the tone is thrown against the concrete ceiling, thus obtaining a more harmonious effect than when the instrument is directly in front of the audience. This organ is electrically controlled by the organist from his position at the console in the orchestra pit.

The complete instrument embraces, three open strings, muted strings, two flutes, piccolo, clarinet, trumpet, tuba, horn, the powerful diapason phonon and tibia and a very fine vox humana. In addition there are cathedral chimes, orchestra bells or glockenspiel and other accessories which make every combination of sound and tone. No human orchestra or group of musicians could equal the variety and quickness of manipulation possible in this instrument. Professor William C. Lowell, a musician of considerable reputation, is the organist. A recital was given on opening day.

At afternoon and evening performances selections on the new Kimball are made a special feature. Patrons of the theatre are encouraged to name their favorites, the program being largely therefore a "by request" one.

The Philadelphia offices of the Kimball Company are at 144 S. Eleventh street. Other organs are in course of construction for several Philadelphia theatres.

A large Wurlitzer Hope Jones Unit Organ has just been erected for the Coliseum Theatre, 5917 Market street, and was used for the first time on Labor Day.

Mr. Lyle True is organist and will give daily selections of classical or popular music. This is a two manual, and pedal orchestral organ and is placed in front of the house.

The Coliseum has been redecorated, new stage settings placed and other improvements added. Another organ in process of construction is being especially built for the Frankford Theatre, at 4711 Frankford avenue. This is to be a large type, Wurlitzer Hope Jones Unit Orchestral Organ, and will be installed in two of the boxes of the theatre.

The Wurlitzer Company has recently moved to 1017 Chestnut street and has added pianos to its stock.

Business is keeping up well in the new quarters. W. F. Schneider is manager of the Philadelphia office.

GRAEF RESIGNS FROM PRECISION MACHINE AND IS SUCCEEDED BY E. M. PORTER

OWING to the pressure of other interests, J. E. Graef has been compelled to resign his position as acting general manager of the Precision Machine Company, Inc., and will devote his energies exclusively in a new direction. The announcement of his resignation was received with sincere regret by the other officers and directors of the Precision Company, and he leaves the company with the heartiest good wishes of his former associates.

E. M. Porter has become acting general manager, succeeding Mr. Graef and has already assumed his new position. It is further announced that Edwin S. Porter, vice-president of the Precision Machine Company, will also take an active hand in the management of the company in the future.

THE DUPLEX, DETROIT, IS LEASED FOR TEN YEARS TO FULLER CLAFLIN

Special to Motion Picture News.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.

THE Duplex theatre, which opened early in the year at East Grand Boulevard, near Woodward avenue, has been leased for a term of ten years to Fuller Claflin, the architect who designed the building. Mr. Claflin in turn has appointed D. J. Robson, formerly of Lansing, Mich., as manager, and he has already taken up his new work.

There will be no change in the policy of the Duplex for the present, although Messrs. Claflin and Robson are planning some things that give promise of popularizing the Duplex to a greater extent in the future.

SERGEANT SAMMY BURNS, CASHIER FOR NICHOLAS POWER IN CIVIL LIFE, RETURNS TO NEW YORK FROM MEXICAN BORDER

ON a furlough of thirty days, Sergeant S. R. Burns, the cashier of the Nicholas Power Company, returned to New York Thursday, August 1, and was enthusiastically greeted by the officers and employees of that company. Sergeant Burns said he had no complaint to make of conditions on the border, although he is mighty glad to be back in old New York.

Mr. Burns is sergeant of Company D, Seventh Regiment, National Guard of New York, and went with that regiment to the Mexican border at the time the National Guard was called out by President Wilson. Sergeant Burns does not expect to return to the border as he believes all the New York regiments will be returned before the expiration of his furlough. In the meantime, the cheerful little sergeant is back at his desk at 90 Gold street.

UNION MUSICIANS IN DETROIT DEMAND INCREASE OF THREE DOLLARS A WEEK

Special to Motion Picture News.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.

THE union musicians playing in local theatres are demanding an increase of three dollars per week in wages, which so far has been refused by the theatre owners, who claim their demands are unreasonable and exorbitant.

Most of the theatres—in fact, all of them—have pipe organs, so that in the event of a strike their patrons would not be entirely without music. The theatres employing from twelve to twenty musicians are the Majestic, Broadway-Strand and Washington.

Note:—In music plots each reel of film is divided into 10 units of time, each unit denoted by one X representing about 1½ minutes. Consequently when a number is designated by XX it plays about 3 minutes, XXXX about 6 minutes, etc. When no X appears after musical description it means that the number is very short and does not play a minute or more. When cues to stop numbers are in quotation, "——," it means that the cue is reading matter or sub-title. All other cues are action on screen. All segues should be made quietly and clean. When quick segues or abrupt stops are necessary it will be mentioned in Cues or Notes. When the time of each 1,000 ft, of film is less than 15 minutes there will appear less than 10 X's in each reel. To get the correct time of projection for each reel, multiply the number of X's appearing in each reel by 1½.

Music Notes:—This picture requires music that is strictly mededious. While the heavy effects must be accentuated, they do not necessarily need be overly dramatic. The story is a romance and a consecutive tale of love from beginning to end, intermingled with light character work.

No. 1 should be a modern slow melodious number played legato and of romantic appeal. No. 2 should be a lively light 4/4 time. No. 3 should be a slow number of pathetic appeal and should be music of foreign nature. No. 4 is similar to 2. No. 5 must be a slow melodious number becoming more serious as it continues. No. 6 should be a light 2/4 number. Must not be slow. No. 7 is a concert waltz with a slow and romantic introduction. No. 8 should be a modern slow number of positive romantic appeal. No. 9 should be a slow number of romantic appeal having a slight dramatic suggestion. No. 10 is similar to No. 2. No. 11 is similar to No. 3. Must not have a character suggestion.

No. 12 must be a slow strictly melodious number of positive pathetic appeal. No. 13 must be a slow waltz lento movement played very legato. No. 14 is similar to 8. No. 15 should be a light meaningless number. No. 16 is similar to 6. No. 17 is similar to 8. No. 18 is similar to 11. No. 19 is similar to 12. No. 20 is similar to 6. No. 21 should be a galop of hurried effect. No. 22 is similar to 9. No. 23 is similar to 20. No. 24 is similar to 11. No. 25 is similar to 13.

The organ can be very effectively and appropriately used throughout the entire picture.

PARKWAY THEATRE, HOME OF V-L-S-E FEATURES IN BALTIMORE, SHOWS PICTURES AT TWENTY-FIVE AND THIRTY-FIVE CENTS

IT is doubtful if any theatre in any city can boast of more charming or more inviting appointments than the exclusive Parkway theatre, Baltimore, at which the first runs of the Big Four service are shown. Designed in rich simplicity, and finished in old rose and French gray, the environment of this house is such as makes for the elevation of the photoplay as a whole.

The Parkway charges twenty-five and thirty-five cents, running only the very best productions. Among the recent V-L-S-E pictures which have been shown in this house are "Salvation Joan," with Edna May; "The Suspect," with Anita Stewart; "Sherlock Holmes," with William Gillette.

HOW THE OXFORD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., BUILT UP A REPEATING CLIENTELE

THE Oxford, Brooklyn, N. Y., is situated at the subway terminal, the Long Island Railroad terminal and at the intersection of nine streets. About thirty surface car lines and two elevated systems pass within a block of its doors. There is an unlimited crowd to draw from, but the previous management failed to grasp its drawing possibilities. When Mr. Wise, a former publicity man with Buffalo Bill and Barnum and Bailey, took hold of the Oxford he saw what he knew would build up a repeating clintele.

He started by advertising for Monday nights a Song Concert for amateurs and professionals and offered prizes of five, two and one dollar to the choice of the audience. This proved successful and he started an amateur night on Wednesdays with three prizes of five, three and two dollars, running in the second week from fifteen to eighteen numbers of local talent. It was not long before he had a steady patronage for Monday and Wednesday nights. Still he was not satisfied and decided to introduce another novelty at the Oxford. A Ballot Night for Tuesdays was the result. So on Tuesdays every lady who went in was given a ballot, withholding one half and voting the other half.

During the evening these ballots were withdrawn and the last six ladies' names entitle their owners to six premiums on display in the lobby. On Thursdays he had Surprise Nights and distributed a dozen premiums to the ladies in various parts of the house. All the contests were advertised by an electric sign, in motion. Two lighted in quick succession, causing a waterfall effect. He features in this sign the word "novelties" and finds that the inquisitive went in to find out what it meant.

The policy meant a little earlier rising in the morning for the manager and remaining a little later at night, for close study of his patrons, but the proportionate increase in receipts and the regularity of a larger attendance were proof of the successful of the Oxford plan. The theatre seats 720 people.

WILLIAM FOX PLANS ANOTHER THEATRE FOR PICTURES ON 14TH STREET, NEW YORK, WITH A SEATING CAPACITY OF 5,000

WILLIAM FOX again shows his confidence in the future of moving pictures by purchasing a large site of land on East Fourteenth street, in New York City, on which the largest moving picture theatre in the world will be erected. The house will have a seating capacity of approximately 5,000 persons.

Mr. Fox will have the old Dewey Theatre, owned for years by the late Timothy D. Sullivan, torn down, as the landmark is included in the property acquired.

Mr. Fox took a lease for forty-two years on a fourth of the block front on Fourteenth street, between Third and Fourth avenues. The rental involved is in excess of $2,000,000. The property begins 290 feet east of Fourth avenue and extends to within 175 feet of Third avenue, giving a frontage on Fourteenth street of 145 feet. The lease runs through to East Thirteenth street, a depth of 206 feet, with a Thirteenth street frontage of 150 feet.

The new theatre will have an entrance on Fourteenth street with stores on either side of the entrance. These stores will have a depth of 65 feet, and the building will be absolutely fireproof and will be designed by Thomas W. Lamb, the well-known architect. Building operations will be begun immediately. Mr. Fox intends that the theatre shall excel every similar house in the country.

Many of the old landmarks on Fourteenth street will be wiped out through Mr. Fox's construction work. His lease includes Nos. 126, 128, 130, 132, 134, 136 and 138 East Fourteenth street. The Dewey theatre was at 126-130, and in the same section was Thesis Music Hall, which all New Yorkers of a generation ago knew. The buildings leased on East Thirteenth street include Nos. 123, 125, 127, 129, 131, 133, 135.

The stores and the theatre will be completed before next spring. Early applicants for the store spaces will secure the benefits of special construction to fit their needs.

Mr. Fox's experience with the Academy of Music, which he has operated for years, and with the City Theatre, has convinced him that East Fourteenth street's future is ahead of it and not behind it.

To handle Mr. Fox's realty matters, the William Fox Realty Company, with offices at 130 West 46th street, has been organized.

LONG BEACH is to have another twelve hundred-seat theatre which will ocupy a greater portion of the Markwell Building now being constructed in that city. The theatre will be operated under the management of Markwell Brothers, who are the owners of the new building.

INDIANA

The Lyric theatre, Richmond, has put in a new motion picture machine. Since the installation of the new machine it is planned to run a continuous show.

A new motion picture theatre at Woodburn will be opened in a short time. A room formerly occupied by a meat market is being remodeled and work is being rushed.

Robert H. Harris, manager of the Crescent theatre, Bloomington, is remodeling the house previous to its opening this fall as a feature photoplay house. Mr. Harris plans to book feature pictures in connection with legitimate attractions during the winter months.

Sherman Welsch and Glen Wolfcale have sold the American theatre, Elkhart, to Mr. Church, of Marcellus, Mich., who has taken possession. The theatre, which was bought several months ago by Welsch and Wolfcale, was formerly known as the Star theatre.

The Yale theatre at Princeton, which was recently bought by Mr. Bryan, has been remodeled by the new owner. The building has been repainted white and the interior has been redecorated.

Manager Sipe, of the Starette theatre, New Castle, has completed the addition to his house. Two hundred seats have been added, the room has been lengthened and the screen has been placed further back.

Pearl and Jackson Sears, former owners of the Gem theatre, Clinton, have bought the Wonderland theatre at Clinton from J. L. Horney. The deal has been pending for some time. The Sears' will continue for a time the present policy of the Wonderland. Five cent shows will be run during the week, with a ten cent show on Sunday. The former management of the theatre had already contracted for a number of feature pictures for Sunday, and these will be shown by the new management and others contracted for.

Mrs. Mildred Shippy, a South Marion business woman and property owner, has bought the Mirth theatre, Thirtieth and Washington streets, Marion, from Mrs. Peter Annes, who has been manager for nearly a year. Mrs. Shippy will be assisted by her son, James Shippy.

The Circle theatre, Indianapolis, one of the largest photoplay houses in the Middle West, opened August 30. It seats 3,000 people. One very novel feature is a lounging room on the balcony which has free telephone service and writing tables for the use of patrons. Evening prices are ten, fifteen and twenty-five cents. Performances are continuous from 11 A.M. to 11 P.M.

IOWA

Hemphill and Hamer have ordered a moving picture machine for their new house at Buck Grove.

Ernest Axlein has sold the Gem theatre at Coin to George Graves, who is operating it with the aid of his wife and Keith Anderson.

C. L. Elder, proprietor of the brand new Star theatre at Knoxville, opened the house last week.

F. C. Shroder has purchasedw his brother's, L. L. Shroder's, interest in the Majestic theatre at Wellman.

Martz and Son, proprietors of the Star theatre in Grinnell, are erecting a $30,000 fireproof building, to be the home of their new theatre, the Strand. The new house will seat about 600 people. It is being erected with a view of obtaining efficiency and will contain the latest and most modern equipment. It is planned to open it about November 1. No decision has been made whether the Star will be maintained after the Strand opens. Grinnell is a college town and in the winter could probably support two houses.

A. H. Blank, proprietor of the Garden theatre, Des Moines, has purchased the Family theatre at Davenport from Messrs. Behrms and Middlebusher. In addition to owning these two, Mr. Blank is connected with the Garden and Casino at Davenport and the Strand at Omaha.

KANSAS

Ray Peacock has sold the Mystic theatre, Stafford, to F. A. Hirsh. Mr. Hirsh said that he would continue the present policy and service.

MICHIGAN

A new theatre seating about 700 and playing to a five-cent admission is being erected by Lipp and Cross at Battle Creek. The same men now operate the Strand, Garden and Rex theatres.

With its seating capacity materially enlarged and more than $10,000 spent for new equipment and decorations, the Alladin theatre, Bay City, reopened on Friday, September 1. L. R. Simpson is the manager and will feature a symphony orchestra every Thursday evening with no change in prices. This feature was extremely popular last season at the Alladin.

The Family theatre, Port Huron, which is enlarging its seating capacity, has incorporated with a capital stock of $15,000. The stockholders are Lewis J. Nidford, Herman and Allen Appel.

A theatre seating 1,032 is being erected in Bay City, at Fourth and Washington streets by the Commercial Building Co.

MISSOURI

The Strand theatre, on Sixth and St. Charles streets, St. Louis, reopened for the fall season on August 28, with the first run Triangle program, which has been showing at the Columbia, next door to the Strand, while the Strand was undergoing redecorations and a new $10,000 pipe organ was being installed. H. D. Buckley operates both the Columbia, the Orpheum vaudeville house and the Strand, and he is very well pleased with the good picture business done during the summer months.

The Royal theatre, on Sixth just off Olive street, St. Louis, under the management of Mrs. Rose Cornelius, opened on September 3, with the same service as the West End Lyric, first run Paramount pictures. Each house opens with a new feature on Sunday, and then exchanges programs on Thursday. Mrs. Cornelius controls both houses, and also the downtown Lyric, which has remained open all summer, as it is equipped with a very elaborate cooling and ventilating system.

The Gem theatre, on Sixth and Walnut streets, St. Louis, a house famous for its business and popularity in the early days, will also reopen early this month under new management.

Three other St. Louis theatres in the downtown district which have been closed during the summer, the Hippodrome, the Broadway and the St. Charles, have not announced their openings as yet, but rumor has it that they will also open this month.

The Royal theatre, Kansas City, owned by Frank Newman, president of the Screen Club of Kansas City, was broken into on the night of August 24. The ticket booth was forced open but no money was found.

Mrs. Bertha Simon, owner of the building, has taken charge of the Barrymore theatre, Kansas City, a well located suburban theatre at Thirty-ninth and Summit streets. The theatre was closed for repairs two months ago and was reopened August 26. Mrs. Simon is a resident of the neighborhood and has a desire to give her friends the best in motion pictures and in service. This sort of pride has induced her to spend $2,500 in remodeling and in new equipment. The appreciation of her neighbors and of the suburban community was shown on the opening night, when the theatre was packed for two performances and many could not get in. She has added a pipe organ and a pianoplayer and will employ an accomplished musician. The prices will ordinarily be ten cents, with twenty-five cents for extraordinary events.

NEBRASKA

Ray J. Kirkpatrick opened the new Royal theatre at Ainsworth to the public last week.

The Colonial cafe and theatre of Bloomington changed hands last week, Mr. Mong turning the business over to Jay G. Jackson of Limon, Colo., who took possession immediately.

The Methodist minister at Hooper has installed a moving picture machine in his church.

Henry Schmiek of Duncan is conducting a moving picture show and other amusements at Czapla and Micek's hall on Sunday evenings.

B. W. Lammon of Juniata has purchased the Grassola moving picture outfit and will give shows.

Work on the new Crescent theatre at Kearney is progressing nicely under the able supervision of M. J. Downes. Colonel Frank S. Morse has sold out his house at Nebraska City.

George Sinclair has bought the Elm Creek house and is giving two shows a week.

Hoffman and Lierman are tearing up the livery barn at Snyder and will build a motion picture theatre on the corner.

W. C. Heiden has purchased the building adjoining his other property and will move away both old buildings to make a site for a beautiful motion picture theatre in the village of Thayer.

Hugh A. McCaffery of the new Boulevard theatre, Omaha, has bought a Fort Wayne motor generator outfit, a Power's 6-B machine, ventilating fans and fire extinguishers from the Western Supply Company.

M. M. Rothleitner, mayor of Columbus, is also proprietor of the North theatre. He recently installed a Type S Simplex and a Minusa Gold Fiber screen.

Work has begun on the rebuilding of the Lyric theatre at Aurora, owned by Mr. Chapman. The theatre was gutted by fire last week.

Peter N. Ledou of Yuma, Colo., is the new proprietor of the opera house at Bartley, where pictures are being shown.

W. M. Oliver, manages of the Movies theatre at Falls City, has sold it to R. A. Dittmar and will give possession at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Viox, new proprietors of the theatre at Nelson, have taken charge.

Manager E. W. Blakeslee has purchased the Empress theatre from Frank D. Morse, at Nebraska City, and has a force of men at work remodeling and refitting it.

OHIO

Dan Gutilla, Bellefontaine, announces that he will call his new motion picture house the Strand. The theatre wil be opened about October 1.

George A. Kramer, Middletown, theatre manager, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, scheduling liabilities at $1,599 and assets at $1.903.

Completely remodeled, refurnished and enlarged, the Star theatre, Delaware, has reopened for business. The old elevated entrance has been replaced by a street level front. The air is changed every three minutes. Two Power's machines have been installed. Buchman Brothers, managers of the Star, announce that they will run features.

Urbana has its second woman motion picture manager, as Mrs. J. A. Shultz has taken over the Orpheum Theatre. Mrs. Reifsnider has withdrawn from the picture field. Mrs. Shultz has been a close student of the motion picture busines for years.

TENNESSEE

H. J. Banks, colored, of Decatur, Ala., is now negotiating for the Lincoln theatre on Cedar street, Nashville. Banks has been in the show business for over fourteen years, and besides being interested in moving picture and vaudeville show houses in Huntsville and Decatur, Ala., is also city billposter at Decatur and president of the Twin City Amusement Company. The Lincoln theatre on Cedar street is next to the largest amusement house for colored people in the city of Nashville. The theatre has always enjoyed a run of prosperous business. Banks will return to Nashville next wek, and if he is successful in closing negotiations for the Lincoln the colored people of Nashville will again be able to enjoy first-class vaudeville and high-class motion pictures. Several improvements will be made in the theatre.

Twenty persons, including women, children and men, made quick exits without injuries Tuesday night, August 22, when fire visited the Dreamland theatre, a moving picture hause at 1509 Church street, Nashville. The blaze started from an exploding film in the operating room and quickly filled the west side playhouse with smoke. The fire loss was estimated at $300. No insurance was carried on the fixtures or picture machines. The theatre was operated by Charles Vester, who was at the machine when the explosion came. He was slightly burned on the arm, but required no medical attention.

WYOMING

M. C. Gerhart, formerly of Cheyenne, has purchased the Big Horn theatre at Thermopolis and taken charge of the house.

Exhibitors!

Special juvenile performances at the regular motion picture theatres received more attention at the recent Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in New York City than any other one topic.

The club women are right up on their toes and they are going to be mighty active from now on!

You are going to hear from them. They are coming to you to ask you to work with them in providing what they want, and we have tried to show them the reasonable way to approach you.

To do this, the Motion Picture News prepared a pamphlet called the Juvenile Motion Picture News for distribution at the Convention. Thousands of copies are already in the hands of the club women. There are a few left. Every wide-awake exhibitor should have a copy. So long as they last you may have one.

The pamphlet tells of the co-operation necessary between the local exhibitor and the women's club, and just remember that there are 9,000 of these clubs including 2,500,000 women in their membership.

The main feature, however, is the list of films adapted to juvenile programs, with the name of the producer and of the exchange.

Better write to-day for a copy, if you want to be sure of getting one.

Record Crowds Handled Without A Hitch In These Theaters

Read What The Owner Says

Each of these theaters is equipped with Caille Ticket Office Devices.

Caille Ticket Sellers sell tickets ten times faster than hand methods. They register every ticket sold. Register is under lock and key. Tickets are delivered separately, stacked like a deck of cards. They can't lay across the knives in the chopper.

Caille Ticket Choppers tear the tickets to shreds and can be furnished for hand, foot or electric operation.

Mr. G. A. Metcalfe,
117-119 Golden Gate Ave.,
San Francisco, Calif.

My dear Mr. Metcalfe:-

We are so pleased with the four Caille Ticket Selling Machines and the two Caille Change Makers, which you installed in our new Mission Theatre, that we are pleased to order six more ticket selling machines and two change makers for our Fillmore Street houses, the Progress and the New Fillmore Theatres.

The machines at the New Mission handled record crowds without a hitch. Our cashiers are delighted with the ease of manipulation; our patrons are greatly pleased with the efficient manner in which they are handled, avoiding long waits in lines, and we, ourselves, appreciate not only the absolute check that these machines give us upon our employee, but, also, the prestige that has resulted by the installation of the Caille devices.

We shall take extreme pleasure in recommending them to any one interested.

Yours very truly,

Kahn & Greenfield,

Paramount Pictures

PARAMOUNT Pictures do not owe their success to one star or to a dozen.

The organization that rises by one star will fall by that star.

Human nature craves diversity.

It would even tire of Heaven if it had to live there.

Paramount service serves human nature.

It does not attempt to force one star on the public week after week.

It does not thrust upon the public a player that the public must tire of sooner or later.

It has the largest, grandest collection of famous players ever assembled by any moving picture organization.

And it serves these stars to the Famous Players Film Company

Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.

on Earth in-Pictures

public in two new pictures every week, keeping the public's interest in them fresh and unwearied.

Everywhere in the United States Paramount exhibitors will tell you that Paramount Pictures are the one program that never surfeits or palls.

If the public tires of one Paramount star, there are ninety-nine others that it loves.

And those ninety-nine others come along regularly at the rate of two a week (104 a year) in the cleverest, brightest, briskest pictures that it is humanly possible to make.

The Paramount Idea is broader than any single player—broader than any single play.

It is as broad as human entertainment itself.

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE

Judge Our April Promise TODAY

You were promised THAT

William A. Brady would personally supervise the making of every World Picture;

Every World Picture would be a dependable picture;

We would never weaken our program by issuing special releases;

Every branch office would be a service station;

Your interest would be our interest, and success co-operative.

...

Your response proved that you believed us.

Your co-operation justifies our belief that we have made good.

Tomorrow is another day.

True, W. A. Brady has set a pace. But, during the present week and the weeks to follow, World Pictures will reach still higher standards.

In his selection of our new scenarios, in his choice of directors, in his assignment of stars and supporting casts, and in his staging Mr. Brady has surpassed his previous splendid triumphs.

Our promises are kept, but we have new ones to make.

"THE FILM COMPANY THAT KEEPS ITS PROMISES"

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE

COMING RELEASES

Here are a few of the Brady-Mades, ready for release Study the titles; the stars and the variety of theme.

FRIDAY THE 13th, business, high finance, from Thomas W. Lawson's famous book; scenes laid in New York Stock Exchange. ROBERT WARWICK. (Release date September 18.)

THE DARK SILENCE, war; beautiful love story, with many scenes laid "Somewhere in France." CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG.

THE REVOLT, drama; national theatrical success as played by Helen Ware and Alma Berwyn. FRANCES NELSON and ARTHUR ASHLEY.

THE GILDED CAGE, one of the sweetest stories ever told; wonderful settings, enormous cast. Big! ALICE BRADY.

THE MAN WHO STOOD STILL, comedy-drama; Louis Mann's stage success; comedy and drama entwined in a charming combination. LEW FIELDS.

THE HIDDEN SCAR, modern; a great love stained by a previous mis-step. ETHEL CLAYTON—HOLBROOK BLINN.

THE HEART OF A HERO, historical; picturization of the famous play, "Nathan Hale," by Clyde Fitch. ROBERT WARWICK.

TILLIE'S NIGHT OUT, comedy; sensational; side-splitting; never to be forgotten. MARIE DRESSLER.

BOUGHT AND PAID FOR, George Broadhurst's marvelous stage success; one of the most talked of plays ever produced. ALICE BRADY.

These photo-plays form the strongest and most dependable program ever released.

"THE FILM COMPANY THAT KEEPS ITS PROMISES"

Clara Kimball Young Service World Pictures

We have just established a "Clara Kimball Young Service—World Pictures."

On this program eight remarkable Clara Kimball Young pictures will be re-issued.

Through this service World Pictures will give additional co-operation to exhibitors. Note these points:

1—These subjects will be released as a program and not as specials. The World policy is to take care of exhibitors first, and to give them the benefit of all our production facilities AS A PROGRAM.

2—Holders of World franchises will be given the first opportunity to secure these pictures.

3—The prints are new. Each subject has been splendidly re-edited and re-titled.

4—The paper for this service is entirely new. It is unique. It has been designed to render unusual assistance and publicity to theatres owning the franchises for the "Clara Kimball Young Service—World Pictures."

Our branches will give you further information regarding this service. Apply to the one nearest you.

PROMISES KEPT
JUSTIFY CONFIDENCE

Believe us when we say that our coming releases (all finished to January 1st) are bigger and stronger than EVEN WE HAD HOPED FOR.

The touch of that master-craftsman, William A. Brady, dominates every picture. All are powerful, gripping stories that will win your patrons.

These World pictures reach the summit of histrionic art in the silent drama. They are bound to command nation-wide recognition and applause.

In these pictures and in their filming you will see a vision of what all photo-plays must come to eventually. Hurried, tawdry productions must fail. Only Art can survive.

Patrons won to the World programs will not have to be resold. Remember that you are selling service as well as buying it.

And service is at your elbow—telephone our nearest branch office.

"THE FILM COMPANY THAT KEEPS ITS PROMISES"

Special Memo to Exhibitors:

Are you making money? Is your business as good as it ought to be? Did the hot weather effect your box-office? Have receipts come back to normal since? Perhaps your theatre needs a tonic. Why not start the Fall season off with something unusual? Have you thought of showing your patrons a logical motion picture novel like "Gloria's Romance" with Billie Burke, the Star Supreme? Such a star is sure to draw. Such a production must please. Your women patrons will take an unusual interest in Miss Burke's superb gowns. This is a matinee attraction that can't be equalled. Hundreds of exhibitors declare it the best feature they have ever shown. It's in twenty feature chapters. You can start NOW with chapter one. You can keep the crowds coming well along into the winter. Steady patronage for twenty weeks! Isn't that well worth while? .This is just the tonic your theatre needs! The Greater VITAGRAPH

"Not one poor picture"—

THE reputation of Vitagraph in the past will be more than lived up to by Greater Vitagraph in the future.

The features here announced, are the releases of Greater Vitagraph's first month.

We ask you to try to match them, picture for picture, with the output of the entire motion picture industry.

Pictures of First Quality Only—is the policy to which Greater Vitagraph is unwaveringly dedicated. No mediocre pictures, no production of doubtful merit, can find a place on our release list. Only pictures worthy of Greater Vitagraph will bear the name of Vitagraph.

WE SAID IT WOULD WIN

IN the early part of 1915 when we began producing "THE BATTLE CRY OF PEACE," other manufacturers said we were spending too much money and time—and that the picture would never bring back its cost.

We believed the picture would succeed. Since then a host of exhibitors have proved it a success by breaking all box-office records. It was released nearly a year ago and is still going strong.

WE SAY THESE WILL WIN

WITH the formation of
THE GREATER VITAGRAPH
I took up the personal supervision of every Blue Ribbon Feature. Every feature produced under the standard of THE GREATER VITAGRAPH from now on will have my undivided and most careful attention.

All business affairs have been lifted from my shoulders. My ambition is at last gratified—the ambition to personally superintend and direct all feature and super-feature productions.

The pictures which we are about to release have proved what wonderful results can be achieved by careful supervision and a great organization.

Exemplifying this are "PHANTOM FORTUNES," with Barney Bernard; "THE COMBAT," with Anita Stewart; "THE CHATTEL," with E. H. Sothern, and "HIS WIFE'S GOOD NAME," with Lucille Lee Stewart. These September releases are examples of what is to follow.

We say these pictures will win. We know it.

UNQUESTIONABLY the screen appearance of Mr. Sothern is the most important event in the history of the photo-play. The supreme genius of the modern stage, the man whose mastery will leave its indelible influence on the drama for all time, will appear exclusively in Greater Vitagraph Productions.

Truly, in the creation of The Greater Vitagraph, a miracle has been wrought! The motion picture has come into its own—and The Greater Vitagraph has made it possible.

A Six-part Blue Ribbon Feature of extraordinary power—

A drama of a loveless marriage and a woman's unyielding faith.

Produced by

Ralph W. Ince

CHARMING Anita Stewart has never appeared to better advantage than in this big, realistic Greater Vitagraph production. Miss Stewart is an actress of rare talent, of deep and sympathetic understanding, and "The Combat" with its tense situations, offers her a wider range for the exercise of her art than any drama in which she has heretofore been featured.

To the superb work of this beautiful, gifted actress in a drama that suits her talents so splendidly, is added the genius of Ralph W. Ince, master director, under whose personal supervision "The Combat" has been produced.

And let it be remembered that "The Combat," big and fine as it is, is the typical Greater Vitagraph production, the last word in dramatic art, perfect in cast, story and production.

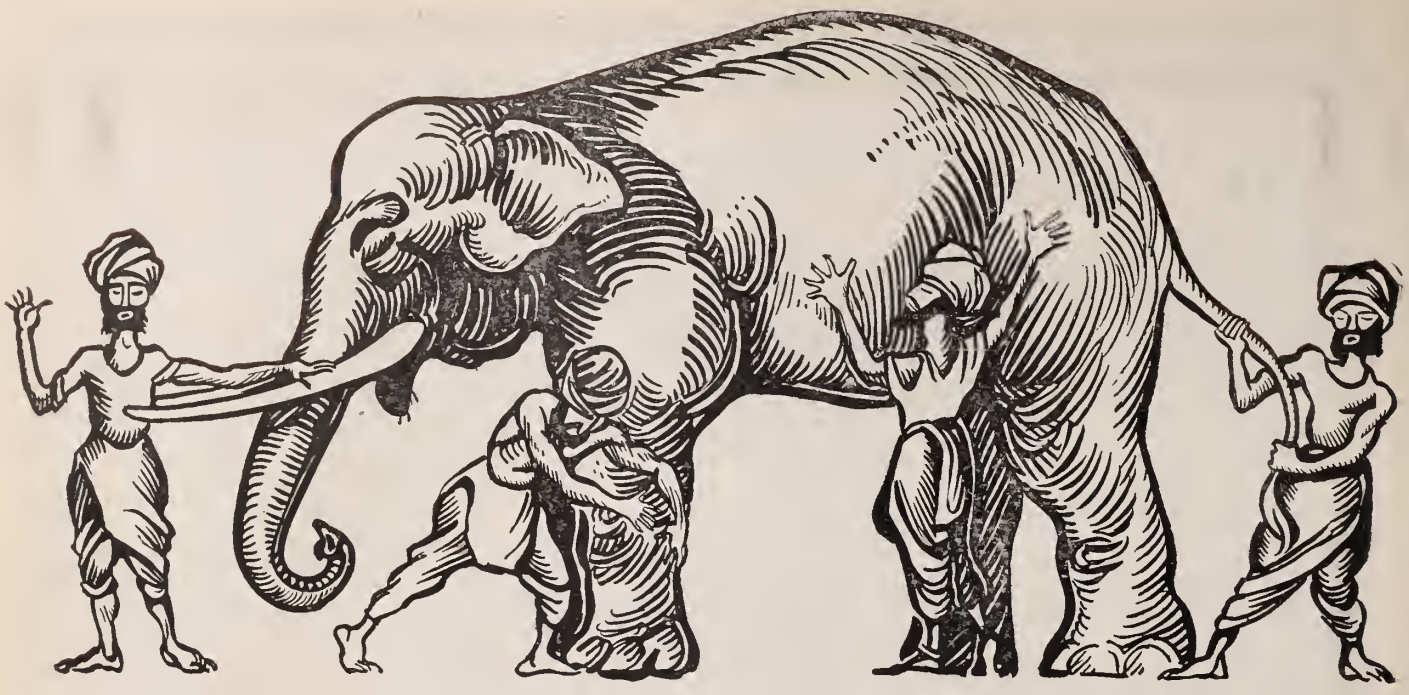
How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.



FOUR blind men of Kut once examined an elephant. "Ah," said the first as he felt of its legs, "an elephant is built like a tree."

"You are wrong, Abdullah," exclaimed the second, fingering a tusk. "An elephant is a long, curved, pointed object."

"Fools," insisted the third, "Elephants are broad, flat things like a wall."

But the fourth, who had been holding the tail, cackled with amusement. "How ridiculously you all talk—an elephant is exactly like a piece of rope."

The blind men who have been producing motion pictures have no conception of the industry. They've only handled little parts of the proposition and each is attempting to measure its possibilities by the evidence of his own narrow experience.

Every one of them has displayed ignorance of its true dimensions.

Otherwise they would never have given me the chance to leap in and revolutionize the system with the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation.

Their day is over unless they adopt my way.

The squarest deal always becomes the standard of success. I have won out because I have let the exhibitor win, too. So must they.

MUTUAL NEWS

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION. 68 EXCHANGES

VOL. I. SEPTEMBER 23, 1916 No. 2.

Three Tremendous Mutual Serials Are Filling Theatres

THREE big Mutual serials, "The Diamond From the Sky," "The Girl and the Game" and "The Secret of the Submarine" are now playing to capacity houses in big theatres all over the country. Bookings on these big serials are being made in the Mutual exchanges every day. Exhibitors are finding them just the unit needed to complete their programs. Serials bring new and steady patronage to the theaters. They link up the late summer and early fall business with that of the coming winter. A patron who begins to follow any of these serials now is a sure customer for many weeks. A number of such patrons will make any theater successful.

The Mutual Film Corporation's very first serial was "The Million Dollar Mystery." It made big money for every exhibitor who ran it. By it the Mutual proved that it knew what would appeal to the public. It followed up this early success with "The Diamond From the Sky," "The Girl and the Game" and "The Secret of the Submarine." The exhibitor was thus given a chance to secure for himself the big box office value created by big advertising campaigns. He did so. He is still doing so. The addition of a serial to any exhibitor's program will increase his business. The biggest exhibitors in the country—men who control long strings of theaters—are proving the truth of this axiom. And what applies to the bigger houses proves equally true with the small ones. "The Diamond From the Sky," "The Girl and the Game" and "The Secret of the Submarine" are now being booked at the 68 Mutual exchanges. A great number of exhibitors are availing themselves of these attractions daily.

Studio Notes

The third Mary Miles Minter Mutual Star Production, "Faith," is just about completed at the American studios at Santa Barbara, Cal.

Arizona forms the background for all the scenes in "The Land o' Lizards," the five-reel American Mutual Masterpicture that was released the week of September 18. Practically all of the scenes were actually taken in that state.

The release of "The Sable Blessing," a five-reel Mutual Star Production, previously announced, has been postponed. The new release date will be announced later.

"Fantomas" First 3-Reel Serial

Exhibitors are finding the Gaumont-Mutual series of photoplays featuring the phantom crook, "Fantomas," a tremendous drawing card for their theaters. Thousands of people have been following the stories in a long list of newspapers and are eager to see the stories enacted on the screen. "Fantomas" is in five chapters of three reels each.

Kolb and Dill in Their Second Mutual Star Production

ON MONDAY, September 18, Kolb & Dill, famous German comedians of the vaudeville and musical comedy stage, made their second appearance in a Mutual Star Production. This, like the first, was made at the studios of the American Film Company, Inc. The first one, every exhibitor knows, was a big money getter. The brand of comedy introduced by these noted laugh-makers set all America to chuckling. It was something new in motion pictures. Their second appearance is made in an even funnier five-reel Mutual Star Production.

"The Three Pals"

The second Kolb & Dill release is entitled "The Three Pals." Al Santell wrote the story. Both Kolb and Dill are given unlimited opportunities for the brand of clowning which made them famous. The scene is laid in a wild and lonely district in the West. Later the scene shifts to a gay Chicago cafe on New Year's eve. Mike and Louie, the two characters created by Kolb & Dill, find plenty of chance for comic antics. They also prove they can play on your very heart strings in a pathetic scene of the photoplay. This play, like the first in the Kolb & Dill series of Mutual Star Productions, was directed by Rae Berger. "The Three Pals" is the second of a series of six Kolb & Dill comedies.

"Land o' Lizards" Released This Week Is Thrilling Story of West

Gold, since time began, has been the cause of greed, hatred and blood-lust among mankind. It has separated the best of friends. It has inflamed the passions of men and women. It has created feuds without number. It has caused the death of thousands. Never, perhaps, has the evil it can do been better illustrated than in "Land o' Lizards," the five-reel Mutual Masterpicture released by the American Film Company, Inc., on Monday, September 18. Here is a big red-blooded, thrilling story of Arizona. It is presented by players of real note. It is staged in the exact localities represented on the screen. It is photographed with the crystal clearness that has made American camera work famous.

Enacting important roles in "Land o' Lizards" are Frank Borzage, Anna Little and Jack Richardson. The story tells of the discovery of gold on a stream claimed by the lawless Bar C. outfit. It shows how the outlaw band try to retain the claim, though old Dave Moore and his daughter, "Bobbie," have long been working it. Ward Curtis, president of a big development company, and "the Stranger," a wandering cowboy with a wonderful personality, at last secure the gold claim. They break up the outlaw band. The unfolding of this tale forms a most fascinating screen story. It is a story that will send theater patrons away satisfied. It is a story that will make them long for more of a similar kind.

Five Chaplins Now Booking

To date five Chaplin features have been released by the Mutual Film Corporation. They are "The Floorwalker," "The Fireman," "The Vagabond," "One A. M." and "The Count." Charlie's newest vehicle, "The Count," has been acclaimed everywhere as "the best yet!"

IF the present rush of bookings on Christie Comedies keeps up we will set a new record. Some of our distributors are already seriously considering ordering additional prints for their territories.

IN spite of the fact that "A SEMINARY SCANDAL" isn't scheduled until September 18th, some exchanges are booked solid on the prints originally arranged for and any additional demand will force them to order additional prints.

LIVE exhibitors throughout the country are booking these comedies because they realize that good comedy—clean comedy—laughable comedy is hard to get and that it is the thing their audiences want. Comedy is more important in a program than any other one element. Christie Comedies are sure fire hits. We've proven this.

PROVE that you are a live wire—book Christie Comedies—now!

The Largest Motion Picture Directory in the World—

336 theaters, of Chicago's 521, advertise in the Herald. Over 100 others are under contract to advertise their programs when they open in the Fall.

Smart exhibitors throughout the Central States have discovered that there is money to be saved and made by the thorough reading of these programs each day. The record of daily changes shows the plays that are winning and failing in one of the largest film centers of the world. To the far-thinking exhibitor, this daily barometer is invaluable.

To the film manufacturer or distributor the Chicago Herald is a powerful advertising medium. Aside from reaching the largest single concentrated group of Moving Picture fans, there is an added opportunity to talk to the Central States exhibitor. Two hundred and eighty or more Theater owners are obliged to read the Chicago Herald to check their own programs daily; many more read it for the purposes mentioned above.

Why the Chicago Herald is Supreme in Motion Pictures:

It has the largest daily program directory in the world—336 theaters.

It has published over 400,000 lines of paid advertising to stimulate the interest of its readers in Motion Pictures.

It prints more about Motion Pictures than all other Chicago papers combined.

It has appropriated $27,000 annually for gathering in new "Movie" fans as readers.

It has a remarkable following for its criticisms, due to the unimpeachable integrity of its unbiased and competent daily reviews.

It has the exclusive rights to the articles of Louella O. Parsons, famous, sincere and popular.

It has printed more Motion Picture stories, including serials, than all the other Chicago papers combined.

It has the first and only "Exhibitors' Aid Department" to help the Exhibitor of the Chicago territory to rent good films.

It has 69% of the Chicago Theaters advertising in its columns every day and Sunday.

It has the rest of the Chicago territory Theater Managers reading its Daily Directory to see what is showing and where.

Mr. R. A. Rowland, President,
Metro Pictures Corporation,
New York, N.Y.

Dear Sir:-

The present week finishes the first year of the New Strand Theatre's existance in Denver and we desire to thank you for the wonderful asset which Metro has been to us during the past year. Your pictures have been uniformerly good and of the high order and the fact that our year has been most successful from a financial standpoint is the most potent answer to Metro's excellence. Opposition on Curtis Street in Denver is of the keen penetrating kind but let me assure you that the Strand with the Metro service has not only won an envious position among the best houses of the West but has led the way many times.

With many thanks for your past efforts and a wish that the future may bring your company as fast progress as you have enjoyed the past year we are,

Very truly yours,

Gentlemen:-

Replying to your favor of the 5th inst. relative to an expression of opinion from me in regard to the value of Serials for a program, beg to say that for the coming season I have booked four Serials for all my theatres, and have done so for the following reasons:

1st. Serials to my mind are the best two reel propositions that the market affords, because more money as a rule is spent on the productions, and the additional publicity is of inestimable value to the theatres.

2nd. Another factor of the utmost importance that must not be overlooked is the fact that when patrons become interested it means continued patronage for fourteen or sixteen weeks as the case may be, and furthermore by bringing the patrons to your theatre you have, through the medium of the screen, the opportunity to keep them posted as to the excellence of your other attractions.

In regard to how "THE YELLOW MENACE" appeals to me, my best answer is, I have booked this soul stirring SERIAL in ALL my theatres. This is the best evidence in the world that I consider it an A1 drawing card

With best wishes for your success, I remain

Yours very truly,

Lee A. Ochs

Is Co-operation Coming?

ONE good way to guage the progress of this industry—a difficult matter at best—is through a composite view of all the trade-paper advertisements.

Try it some time. Sit down and carefully read each film advertisement. Then compare them all and note the high-lights.

These high-lights are the signals along a common high-road of progress.

TAKE last week's issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. The advertising announcements are unusually newsy. They tell of the breaking up of old alliances and the formation of new ones; of the rounding out of a prominent program; of the launching of new comedies via the independent exchanges; of a serial completed and shown in advance; of new pictures and new stars and new roles, etc.

Underneath the interesting news surface there is plenty of good food for practical thought on future policies of production and distribution.

But the striking high-lights of all the advertising of all the film companies is the common note of co-operation with the exhibitor.

IT is at once remarkable and significant that the note is so common.

The fact that the declaration of this policy is so spontaneous with so many companies, that it is therefore not a mere echo of a previous announcement, leads one to believe that the producer today is not only thinking of co-operation, not merely promising co-operation, but has been actually planning it.

There is, first of all, throughout all the advertising an almost complete absence of the old flamboyant phrasing, the urgent appeal to "book this picture and grow rich," the circus "spieling" which does very well to fool the populace once a year, but which is far from deluding the seasoned exhibitor whose bread and butter depend upon the product he gets and the honesty and intelligence with which it is announced to him.

The advertising text is for the great part constrained and businesslike. It rings true.

One company states candidly that times are changed, and that it is re-organizing and revamping itself to meet these new conditions.

And these new conditions, we take it, mean, very largely, the necessity of co-operation with the exhibitor.

PICTURES are no longer to be shoved at him, or rammed down his throat. They are to be tendered him in a genuine spirit of co-operation, it being clearly understood that the success of the maker and exhibitor of pictures are and must remain identical.

The exhibitor is no longer to be buncoed. He wants to know the truth about a picture so that he in turn can deal truthfully with his own customers, and he wants to know all the facts about a picture so that he can tell these facts to the people interested in knowing them.

THERE'S a great deal to co-operation.

IT won't be achieved in a day. It will take patient development, but it's worth working and waiting for; and this industry will not be a regular industry till manufacturer-exhibitor co-operation is a fact and an institution.

Co-operation means prompt shipments.

Co-operation means shipments of film in good condition. In respect to this we get constantly complaints of the most flagrant carelessness. An exhibitor who was induced through the glowing letters of an independent exchange to book "Cabiria," advertise it widely, engage an orchestra, and boost his prices, received five reels of dislocated scenes, lacking titles and with the film in deplorable condition.

Co-operation means the use of a rational credit system, such as rules in every other reputable business.

Co-operation means frequent consultation with the exhibitor as to the public's taste for pictures, and as to the drawing power of each element that enters into the making of pictures.

CO-OPERATION means the use of the best and most modern ways and means to the end that every picture may be advertised for absolutely all it is worth. Herein lies the most important factor in co-operation and the most logical one for in the advertising of pictures the manufacturer and exhibitor must work together—the more closely the better.

Co-operation means many things; but all in all it means the open door—open for the exhibitor to the manufacturer and for the manufacturer to the exhibitor—open constantly for the interchange of ideas and the correction of errors and the giving of service—open in other words to the very same and successful relations which exist between the maker and retailer of goods in all other prominent industries.

FOR the manufacturer it means the reordering of his house, every part of it, so that the policy of exhibitor co-operation, as he sees it, shall also be seen and put into effect by every employee concerned with the making, distributing, advertising and booking of his pictures.

For the exhibitor it means first, forgetting the past, and then coming half way, with open mind, to learn and do new things.

For the industry such co-operation means its very salvation.

The Newsstand and Trade Circulation

IT is an accepted fact that every story must have a moral; failing in which, a villain or villainess) or a shadow of a plot will suffice.

This little story has a moral, while the villain with a little bit of discernment can be picked out.

A traveling circulation man for one of the biggest fiction magazines in the country recently stopped off in one of the biggest cities in the South.

His mission was to boost the sales of his magazine and to add new subscription accounts, and in the course of things he visited a number of newsstands.

AT one of them he heard with a great deal, of interest a colloquy going on between the moving picture editor of the largest daily newspaper in the city and the newsstand proprietor.

The news man had just made a sale of a copy of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. Said the editor, noting that the purchaser of the paper had seemingly been attracted by the bright cover:

"Do you make many sales like that?"

"WELL, no," the news man replied; "outside of a few scattered sales similar to the one you just witnessed, my only sales are to motion picture men who are transients in this town, and who request that I save a copy for them each week. That's all I worry about.

"I tried once to build up a trade among the exhibitors, but every blame one of them I run across subscribes to the paper. If it wasn't for the traveling men requests, I wouldn't carry the paper at all, as it is sold to me on a non-returnable basis."

THIS very same motion picture editor uses the scissors freely each week on MOTION PICTURE NEWS. He carries many an interesting story in his newspaper that is literally lifted from the NEWS. That is, if it is a story in which the public is interested.

The public, to cite an instance, would hardly be interested in the "Live Wire Exhibitors" column. And no one knows this better than this editor.

These are the very words he said to the newsstand man:

"I WISH there wasn't a single copy of MOTION PICTURE NEWS sold to the public.

"Not that I'm afraid that subscribers to my newspaper will get on to the source of my 'dope'—not at all—but I don't believe that a trade paper intended for exhibitors and others in the motion picture craft should be sold to the public.

"A medical trade paper, for example, should go to the doctor, not to his patients. Who ever heard of a publisher of a medical journal trying to build up a subscription list except among physicians?

"OF course, there is some excuse for a moving picture publication. The public is vitally interested in the pictures, in the stars—even in the actual production of film.

"The butcher, the baker and the garage man these days get an idea real frequently that they will remodel their places of business over into a moving picture show.

"Perhaps there should be a publication for them, and there is—many of them, in fact, but it seems to me that if I was in the business, I would want one trade paper that went exclusively to those in the trade.

NEW ORLEANS is the city in which the incident, as related, occurred. The motion picture editor was one of the genuine editor articles, and the newsstand is not a thousand miles from Canal Street.

In New Orleans, the motion picture growth of which has been unprecedented in the last few years, MOTION PICTURE NEWS is found in every exchange and every supply house.

A vast majority of exhibitors in the city and surrounding territory subscribe to the NEWS. The majority of newsstand sales is negligible.

A suburban exhibitor would kick if he had to come to town and spend ten cents carfare to purchase a copy of the NEWS. A few of them used to do it until they got wise and saw the advantages of a subscription.

Official Broadmindedness in Omaha

"I depend upon the exhibitors, who have proved dependable in the past, to be their own censors."

This is the statement of Karl Schrieber, superintendent of the Welfare Board of Omaha, Nebraska. As an accurate, common sense attitude on the part of a public official toward a question which has caused more hysteria and foolish talk than any single social question for half a century, it deserves to be recorded along with the declaration of Police Commissioner Gillespie of Detroit, two weeks ago.

Give us more public officials like Schrieber and Gillespie—for the public's good as well as that of the motion picture!

Kleine, Edison, Selig and Essanay Form Combine

Four of the Oldest Producing Companies in the Industry Make Arrangements to Release Their Features Through Big Organization with Offices in All Principal Cities—Open Booking Policy Is to Be Inaugurated

FOLLOWING on the heels of the withdrawal of the Essanay and Selig companies from the V-L-S-E, Inc., President George K. Spoor, of Essanay, announces the amalgamation of four of the oldest companies in the motion picture business. The four companies are Kleine, Edison, Selig and Essanay. At the same time William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, announced that, effective on Saturday, September 16, he will release his Red Seal plays through the George Kleine offices. This news comes somewhat as a surprise to the trade, for the Kleine exchanges did not figure in the many rumors that have been circulated about the future releasing plans of the Selig Company following Mr. Selig's withdrawal, September 1, from V-L-S-E, Inc.

This amalgamation is for the purpose of distribution only, each company retaining its individuality as formerly, but releasing through the same exchanges.

The announcement was made by Messrs. Selig and Spoor directly after a meeting held in Chicago between George Kleine, William N. Selig and George K. Spoor. Besides the new features of the four companies all of the Selig and Essanay feature productions, formerly released through the Vitagraph, Lubin, Selig and Essanay distributing offices, known as the V-L-S-E, Inc., will, after September 16, be released through the new organization, known as the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service.

The distributing offices of George Kleine will be utilized for this purpose in addition to releasing the Kleine-Edison features. Offices are located in Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Toronto, Montreal, Minneapolis, Dallas, Kansas City, Denver, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Indianapolis, Salt Lake City, Detroit, St. Louis, Washington, New Orleans and Cincinnati.

Policy of the Combination

"The policy of the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service throughout the United States and Canada will be the placing on the market of a limited rather than an unlimited quantity of meritorious feature plays of five to eight reels in length," said Mr. Spoor. "These will be presented at irregular intervals, but sufficient in number to place before the public annually a great number of stars and desirable productions. In other words, it is our aim to give the public quality rather than quantity.

"Among Essanay's new features which are already finished, and which will be released through the new organization are "The Return of Eve," featuring Edna Mayo, supported by Eugene O'Brien; "The Prince of Graustark," featuring Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton; "The Breakers," featuring Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig, and "The Chaperon," featuring Edna Mayo and Eugene O'Brien. Other new features are now under way, one in which Essanay's great star, Henry B. Walthall, will appear."

George Kleine in speaking of the new amalgamation said: "The main idea of the new combination is to present a real quality product. There has been much talk of quality in the past, but little conception of the real meaning of the word. I believe that more money can be made on one good picture than on a dozen mediocre ones. In any case, that will be the idea that I shall go ahead on, the turning out of pictures that are far above the average that is being shown today.

"Another thing that I shall do is to reissue some of the great successes of the past including 'Spartacus,' 'Quo Vadis,' and other well-known productions. The idea that a picture is dead at the end of three or six months seems to me to be more or less foolish. If it contains merit it can go on through successive months pleasing audiences and making money for the producer."

To illustrate this assertion, Mr. Kleine told of an experiment he had made recently. "I grouped eight big feature pictures in chronological order, including 'Spartacus,' 'Quo Vadis,' 'Julius Caesar,' 'Anthony and Cleopatra,' 'Othello,' 'Vanity Fair,' and several others, and calling them a cycle of classics booked them throughout the United States in conjunction with the Chautauquas and Women's Clubs. In each case I used the local theatre, but the theatre was either taken over for the series by the local club at an out and out rental or the club members arranged to sell the tickets. The initial results from this experiment have been more than gratifying and to prove that a picture is not dead when it has run its accustomed life through the ordinary channels of distribution."

Head Office in New York at First

When questioned as to where the headquarters of the new combine would be, Mr. Kleine said: "For the first few months the controlling office will be in New York, but I think that it is very probable that it will later be moved to Chicago. Chicago is the logical distributing center of the United States. Using that as a starting point a circle with a radius of a thousand miles can be covered inside of twenty-four hours. Should the same circle be drawn around New York, half of it would be in the Atlantic Ocean. The closer a business can keep in touch with its various branches the more efficient it will be.

"A definite announcement of the output of the new combine will be made in the very near future as soon as the arrangements can be completed. If I can have my way, this output will be controlled, absolutely by quality rather than quantity. There was a time in the business only a few years back when quantity was the only consideration, when the demand for film was so great that anything so long as it was a picture was seized upon with avidity. Those days have passed, and although there are a number of manufacturers who cannot realize the changed conditions, I shall endeavour to make quality the keynote of the new organization.

"There is not very much that I can say in regard to this new move as it is still in its formative state. I have a number of completed pictures on my shelves that have never been released, because I did not think the public was ready for them. The quality of the motion picture public, however, has advanced so rapidly that I think it is very probable that these pictures will see the light of day in the very near future."

To complete the details of the new organization, a meeting of all of the Kleine exchange managers was held in New York, Sunday at which time the distributing details were discussed from every angle, and the definite plans of the new combine transmitted to the exchange managers.

"I received a number of flattering offers from prominent booking exchanges," said Mr. Selig, "but, after careful consideration, I selected the Kleine list of offices. These exchange offices are located in twenty-two of the principal cities of the United States and Canada, are up-to-date and enterprising in every way, and the Selig new releasing affiliations cannot but be successful in every respect. It is my purpose to place all our Red Seal plays previously released through V-L-S-E, into the Kleine list of exchange offices." These Red Seal Plays will number over twenty and will include such productions as "The Rosary," "Thou Shalt Not Covet," "The Prince Chap," "Into the Primitive," "At Piney Ridge," "The Cycle of Fate," "Thou Shalt Not Covet," "No Greater Love," "Sweet Alyssum," "A Black Sheep," "The Circlar Staircase," "House of a Thousand Candles," "A Texas Steer," "The Rosary," "The Millionaire Baby," "The Carpet from Bagdad," etc.

"You may state, if you desire, that 'The Rosary,' alone has been one of the most popular and profitable motion picture feature plays released during the past two years. It is still crowding theatres wherever presented."

All of these features will be released under the open booking system.

"I am a thorough believer in merit, and our pictures will stand wholly on merit," continued Mr. Spoor. "There will be nothing crammed down the exhibitor's throat and no attempt at any such system. Exhibitors know best what will please their individual audiences and are the best judges of what pictures they should show.

"I might add that I believe that in the very near future that every picture will be offered on the open booking plan. The day of trying to foist a program on the exhibitor, trying to make him take good, bad and indifferent plays, is now past. The sooner producers and exhibitors recognize this fact the better it will be for the motion picture business. It can mean nothing but better pictures.

"The motion picture public has been educated beyond the antiquated closed booking plan. They now demand nothing but the best pictures and are unwilling to sit through several reels of poor or indifferent plays to see one good one.

"Exhibitors also are too intelligent to stand for the program policy in features much longer. I think I am safe in saying that practically all of them prefer the open booking plan and the only reason that programs are used at all is because conditions have been such that they have scarcely been able to help themselves.

Chance to Know What Is Sold

"But the time has come when they are demanding their rights, the right to see and know what they are buying, just as they insist on knowing what they are buying in a department store or wholesale house or factory. And their insistent demand can result in but one thing, the open booking system.

"Essanay is planning to give the exhibitor and the public none but excellent pictures. That we are staking our reputation and our future on this is evidenced by the fact that we are giving the exhibitor absolute liberty to reject any film that he does not think is up to the standard. In other words, while we are claiming all excellent pictures, we are making the exhibitor the final judge in this matter. It is not our say so that will decide whether the picture has merit or not; it is the decision of the exhibitor after he has seen the picture. On his decision we stand or fall.

"Plans have been effected, also, to give the exhibitor the very best service as well as the very best films. While I believe that good pictures is the main issue, yet even good pictures are valueless unless the exhibitor can realize on this quality. He must be able to present their worth to the public in such a way that he can convince it that he has a good picture, one worth seeing, in order that he may attract the public to his theatre.

"The proper and necessary advertising material will be furnished exhibitors on every feature. The exhibitor will be given no glittering generalities and flamboyant phrasings. He will be told specifically what each play is and to whom and what class it appeals particularly.

"He will be given the proper material to present these facts to his patrons, and to all persons in his district, so that he will, in the first place, be able to draw large audiences to his house, and then answer their expectations by giving them a first class picture, one that sends them home satisfied and anxious to come again.

"For in this way only can steady patronage be built up, by producing the goods when the patrons once have been attracted. To attract and fail to come up to expectations of the patrons is worse than not to have attracted at all. To disappoint the patron is to lose his patronage.

"Our aim in the new organization, therefore, will be, in the first place, to produce pictures that never will disappoint, and to give the exhibitor such service that he will be able to make the utmost profit out of their value."

"Fall of a Nation" Booked in 100 Houses by V-L-S-E

"Demands for the Picture Are Greater Than Vitagraph or National Drama Corporation Expected," Says Bamberger, of Big Four

THE V-L-S-E season of "The Fall of a Nation" opens on September 18 with bookings in more than a hundred houses throughout the country, according to L. J. Bamberger, acting assistant general manager of the Irwin organization. Mr. Bamberger, a popular official, is holding down the desk of A. W. Goff, while the latter executive is making a month's tour of the V-L-S-E exchanges throughout the United States.

"The demands for 'The Fall of a Nation,'" says Bamberger, "are even bigger than the Greater Vitagraph people or the National Drama Corporation had anticipated. A feature of the opening will be week stands in Minneapolis, Utica, Birmingham and Atlanta. Ten houses in Brooklyn have already contracted for the film, in addition to a dozen in Manhattan, and a goodly representation in the best paying towns throughout the whole of New York State.

"Our Atlanta representative wires that he desires three prints and 15,000 more sheets of poster paper. Throughout the entire Southern territory greater interest is being exhibited in this Dixon offering than in any other motion picture production since the same author's 'The Birth of a Nation' was presented."

Recent showings that have spread the fame of the play widely in state rights territory were those at the Hippodrome, Youngstown, O., week of August 27; Court theatre, Wheeling, Labor Day Week; the Dixie, Galveston, Tex., and the Kyle, Beaumont, Tex., both opeing August 26. Most of these are legitimate first-class houses at which advanced prices were charged. The largest business reported was at Youngstown, where over a thousand dollars was taken in on the opening day.

"BLIND JUSTICE" SET FOR SHOWING AT STRAND ON SEPTEMBER 14

Benjamin Christie, the director general of the Dansk Biograf Company of Copenhagen, World's Tower Building, 110 West Fortieth street, New York City, announces that on Thursday morning, Sept. 14, at 10 a. m., he will give a private exhibition at the Strand theatre, of his recently completed seven-part photoplay "Blind Justice."

In "Blind Justice," Mr. Christie, who wrote the story, is seen in the star role, and he also directed the picture. Invitations have been extended to practically every prominent publicist and philanthropist, including Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing Prison, whose work in penal reformation has gained him a national reputation, and suffragist and other public-spirited citizens.

Mr. Christie is planning, after a tour of America, which will embrace a painstaking study of the California studios and American methods of production, to take back with him to Denmark an American company headed by a noted emotional star. It is entirely possible, states Mr. Christie, that he may also build a studio in the United States, and alternate his Danish companies and the American company between the two countries. Plans are now in active formation to perfect an organization of this sort.

Special Theatre Tax Retained in Revenue Bill

In Amount Levy Remains Same as in Previous Act, with Two Modifications—First Is That "in Cities, Towns or Villages of 5,000 or Less the Sum of Such Payment Shall Be One-half" of Tax Provision—Second Provides for Payment of Tax by Lessee, Under Certain Conditions

Special to Motion Picture News.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.

THE $205,000,000 revenue bill, passed by Congress last Friday just prior to its adjournment, continues the special emergency tax upon theatres, which was to have expired by limitation on December 31.

In amount the tax remains the same as in the previous act, with two important modifications.

The first is that "in cities, towns or villages of five thousand inhabitants or less the amount of such payment shall be one-half" of the tax provision. The second is that "whenever any such edifice is under lease at the passage of this Act, the tax shall be paid by the lessee, unless otherwise stipulated between the parties to the lease."

Of no little interest to the readers of Motion Picture News is the fact that Congress in passing the so-called general revenue bill has removed the requirement, found in the present war emergency revenue act, that there be placed upon each express land freight receipt a one-cent documentary stamp, as well as relieving all from the payment of the one-cent tax upon telephone and telegraph messages.

The new law retains the tax of one cent upon parlor car seats and berths, to be paid for by the company selling tickets therefor.

The M. P. E. L. of America, with the United Managers' Protective Association and the Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Machine Operators have scored a hit for they have succeeded in inducing Congress to re-enact the so-called war emergency revenue law provisions relating to the taxing of theatres and other places of amusement, with an amendment in favor of the small towns, and lay aside the much objected to provision of the House of Representatives which contemplated the placing of a tax of one-half of one per cent. of the total gross receipts of such theatres.

Had this provision been agreed to, even though making concessions to the theatres in the smaller villages, towns and cities, it would have been highly successful in driving out of business many more theatres than those which have been unable to stand the strain of taxation from other sources and have suspended exhibition.

Prefer Present Law

It is interesting to note that among the causes advanced for the change in the wording of the tax is contained in a statement made by Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, who was virtually in full charge of that section of the general revenue bill dealing with the taxing of the theatres, to the effect that upon taking up the provisions as contained in the measure as passed by the House of Representatives, with representatives of the motion picture and theatrical interests, it was found that the present law was much preferred and advocated in favor of the House proposal. The only complaint against the old law made by those heard from by the committee was that in the smaller towns, where the theatres run only a part of the time, they were over-taxed.

The committee has not received any complaints against the provision as finally adopted by it which reduces the tax on the small town houses. He said that the committee at one time contemplated exempting them from the tax provisions, but could not see its way clear to do so because of the great need for revenue.

The proposal of the House of Representatives did not meet with the approval of the Senate Finance Committee after it learned of the hardships that would be wrought upon the theatrical interests. They also found that the trouble about the House provision was that, while it was based upon receipts, it was the gross receipts, and not the net receipts, and when they tried to change the provision to cover net receipts, another stumbling block was met in the fact that many of the smaller amusement houses kept no books, and that there was no way to tell what the net receipts were.

The committee also found that in many theatres, after the exhibitor had taken a fair, moderate compensation, there was very apt to be little left upon which to pay a tax based on net receipts.

Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, during a discussion of the provision in the Senate, made an effort to have included in the small-town proviso, theatres located in towns having a population of between 5,000 and 10,000, on the ground that conditions were the same with them as with the theatres located in towns of 5,000 inhabitants or less, because of added competition and more theatres in proportion to their size.

Senators Oliver and Penrose, of Pennsylvania, had both entered objection to the taxing of the theatres and moved that the section in question be stricken out of the bill. However, neither of these gentlemen, nor Mr. Smoot, was successful and the exhibitors and theatre managers may well rest content with the concessions contained in the measure as finally adopted by Congress, which is as follows:

"Proprietors of theatres, museums, and concert halls, where a charge for admission is made, having a seating capacity of not more than two hundred and fifty, shall pay $25; having a seating capacity of more than two hundred and fifty and not exceeding five hundred, shall pay $50; having a seating capacity exceeding five hundred and not exceeding eight hundred, shall pay $75; having a seating capacity of more than eight hundred, shall pay $100. Every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays, or performances, for admission to which entrance money is received, not including halls or armories rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations, shall be regarded as a theatre: Provided, That in cities, towns, or villages of five thousand inhabitants or less the amount of such payment shall be one-half of that above stated: Provided further, That whenever any such edifice is under lease at the passage of this Act, the tax shall be paid by the lessee, unless otherwise stipulated between the parties to said lease.

Morosco Is in Market for Plots Throbbing with Real Drama

Company Is Willing to Pay $1,500 for Stories Adapted to Requirements of Vivian Martin, Dustin Farnum, Myrtle Stedman, Kathlyn Williams and Lenore Ulrich

IN spite of the fact that the Pallas-Morosco forces have in their dramatic department ten staff writers, writing exclusively for these two companies, in addition to which they have three free-lance writers working on special commissions, two members of the firm giving a larger part of their time to the scenario department, and have the advantage of being able to call into consultation Oliver Morosco, one of the greatest producers in America, and George Broadhurst, one of the greatest living playwrights, the company is still seeking the best and strongest obtainable stories from the best possible writers in order to present to its Paramount patrons real stories of exceptional interest.

In other words, in spite of the department, which now totals twenty-one people, fourteen of whom give their entire time to the dramatic department, the company offers to pay $1,500 each for complete stories adapted to its needs or upon which a complete photoplay may be founded. This story may be either in synopsis form 500 to 2,000 words each, or may be in the form of a book or short story.

The company is especially desirous of obtaining stories adapted to Vivian Martin, Dustin Farnum, Myrtle Stedman, Kathlyn Williams, and Lenore Ulrich. It does not invite incomplete and imperfect scenarios from amateurish writers, although it will pay anyone for original ideas, depending upon their availability. What it does want, is good stories, with carefully co-ordinated plots, by writers who know how to put drama into their writing. This company especially desires modern society dramas with comedy relief, with carefully worked out and logical plots, with happy surprises, small casts, closely knit plots, and good acting parts rather than what is ordinarily termed "mechanical drama."

MANAGER OF SAN FRANCISCO FILM EXCHANGE BOARD OF TRADE ANSWERS QUESTIONS BY CIRCULAR LETTER

Special to Motion Picture News.

San Francisco, Sept. 9.

A circular letter has been mailed to exhibitors in the San Francisco field by Manager Fred. S. Peachy of the Film Exchange Board of Trade of San Francisco as follows: "A great many exhibitors have questioned the different film exchange managers as to the purposes and policies of the Film Exchange Board of Trade. It behooves us, therefore, to issue a letter to all exhibitors, outlining the policies and purposes of this organization. For your information we wish to state here the objects of this Board of Trade.

"First. Drawing together and cementing the film industry as a whole, the exhibitor and exchangeman alike, for the mutual protection of both.

"Second. To see that all accounts between the exhibitor and the exchangeman are adjusted and settled satisfactorily to both parties.

"Third. To take care of censorship, shipping and all other forms of legislation to the best advantage of all concerned.

"Fourth. To do any and everything necessary, requisite and adequate for the mutual protection of our business.

"We wish to go on record and make it emphatic, that the Film Exchange Board of Trade of San Francisco is against, and always has been against, any form of combine with regard to settling prices for film service, or entering into any agreement, secret or otherwise, in restraint of trade, or against the personal liberty of anyone whatsoever."

CORINNE PARQUET IS A KEYSTONER NOW

Corinne Parquet, ingenue, is one of the latest additions to the Keystone company of comedians. At present she is playing in the cast opposite Roscoe Arbuckle, who was obliged to look for another lead when Mabel Normand began work on her feature. Miss Parquet was chosen because of her brightness and good looks and her ability to perform a la Keystone, which is no easy proposition.

Frohman Amusement Corporation Is a Year Old

Luncheon Is Served to Executives and Studio Force at Plaza in Celebration of Its Twelve Months of Prosperity—Eleven Features from the Company

THE Frohman Amusement Corporation, this week, celebrates its first year of activity in the film world. The event was made gay by a quiet little luncheon at the Hotel Plaza at which William L. Sherrill, George Irving, Ralph Dean, Jack Sherrill, Jos. Schwartz, and several of the studio force were present. Not one change in the personnel of the concern has been made during the year, except for the addition of Harry Reichenbach as business manager and advertising head.

During the year, eleven ambitious features have been created. "The Builder of Bridges," with C. Aubrey Smith, released through World Film, is the oldest production, "The Fairy and the Waif" having been withdrawn from active use to the Frohman Company. "The Builder of Bridges" is still active in this country.

"Just Out of College" followed and became an open market feature. It was state righted, and was one of the popular hits of its period, having registered the record for attendance at the Fine Arts theatre, Chicago.

"John Glady's Honor," released through Pathe, was a distinct success, and was followed by "Body and Soul," which World Film released.

Alice Brady, the daughter of William A. Brady, and World Film's foremost personality, was offered by the Frohman concern in "The Woman in 47," which was also released by World Film later. Miss Brady was presented by the Frohman Company in "Then I'll Come Back to You," Larry Evans' famous adventure story, in which Jack Sherrill shared honors with Miss Brady.

"What Happened at 22," with Arthur Ashley, was the next Frohman enterprise, and was also taken by World Film.

"Jaffery" the noted W. J. Locke story, was sought after by every program in the field, and was finally awarded to William R. Hearst for the International Film Service, Inc., and was deemed of sufficient importance by that astute newspaperman and his lieutenants in the film field to be made the initial feature release of the International. It is now being seen throughout the country, having been released last week.

"The Conquest of Canaan," now complete, will be seen soon on one of various programs which are in keen competition for it and "The Witching Hour" is already in work and will be the forthcoming feature offering of the Frohman Company.

Withal it has been a happy and profitable year for the Frohman concern. Their productions have featured many programs, and those distributed by franchise medium, have earned money for both buyers and exhibitors. World rights on the Frohman productions have mostly been disposed of.

William L. Sherrill and Harry Reichenbach, the active heads of the company, announce that within a few weeks, permanent releasing arrangement will be announced. Mr. Sherrill states that he is, as yet, undecided about entering into contractural obligations with any program, preferring to allow the changing condition of the market to define the Frohman Company's future policy.

During the forthcoming year, nine features will be made by the company, with a larger output next year if the market warrants it.

CLEVELAND LEADS IN NEW INCORPORATIONS

Special to Motion Picture News.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 9.

While Cleveland took second place in the capitalization of new companies formed for profit, it led in number of new incorporations, as shown by the records of the secretary of state, for August.

The two leading cities together had nearly a third of the authorized new capital. In the entire state there were 216 new corporations, with a total authorized capital of $14,883,800. The increases were $9,983,500, bringing the gross addition to $24,867,300.

Cleveland had 64 new companies, Cincinnati, 39; Toledo, 18; and Columbus, 111, and all other cities and towns, 84.

Overproduction Cry Fails to Impress Rowland

President of Metro Makes Statement Contrary to Generally Accepted Viewpoint—Market Can Easily Absorb Fourteen Features a Week, Is His Belief—"If Two Companies Went Out of Business Tomorrow Their Action Would Have No Material Effect"

RICHARD A. ROWLAND, president of the Metro Pictures Corporation, has a reputation for being one of the keenest analysts in the whole motion picture industry.

Most men when asked to express their opinions on questions vital to the well being of the whole industry are more or less hesitant, afraid that they will say too much, or afraid that in an unguarded moment they will say something that will have a reactionary effect. Not so Mr. Rowland. His opinions are well worked out in advance. He knows the course that he is going to follow under any given set of conditions and when those conditions arrive he follows that course.

The most surprising and startling statement he made, and a statement that is quite contrary to the accepted viewpoint, was to the effect that the industry was not suffering to any great extent from overproduction at the present time. "Let us look into the situation carefully," he said. "There is hardly a town of any size in the United States that is not able to support at least three motion picture theatres. Suppose they change their program daily, as most of them do, that means that they can take care of a gross product of eighteen features a week. Now some of them are running their features two days, some three days. That will bring down the average, yet a most conservative estimate would bring the demand down to, let us say, fourteen features each week. That is the demand. Where is the overproduction?

"The statement has been made that there are three times as many pictures as the market can absorb. That would mean that there is a product of three times fourteen, or forty-two features being released each week. You know, and I know, that there is no such number of pictures being made at the present time.

"I venture to say that if two distributing companies went out of business tomorrow it would not materially affect the business of the balance, for the simple reason that they are at the present time doing about all of the business which they can handle.

Lowered Cost with Quality Sacrifice

"Such being the case, where does the natural growth and development of the business come in? It can't stand still. It must either advance or go back. The great field in the future is the reduction of the cost of production without in any way slighting the quality. In fact, I believe that the quality can be greatly improved even while the cost of production is being reduced.

"This must come about with the development of a smooth running organization and the systemization of the overhead expense. That selfsame overhead expense is the bugaboo of every manufacturer. It is always there and always running into money. If the studio work can be so systematized that the overhead is reduced to a minimum the cost of production will naturally be greatly lowered.

"Actual picture production has been more or less systematized. When a manufacturer of today starts out to make a picture he knows before ever a crank is turned about what that picture is going to cost. He also knows about what it will bring in. There he has his two necessary figures. If the average cost per unit of production is less than the average return for the same unit, he can operate at a profit. Otherwise he might as well go out of business.

"This last statement automatically brings us down to a consideration of the open booking policy and its fallacious precepts. Consider it from the exhibitor standpoint alone; forget all about its effect on the producer and the distributor. The exhibitor, according to the arguments of those in favor of open booking, is to be the one who will benefit most with the general acceptance of this policy. Will he?

"It is an established fact that the manufacturer will go out of business unless he can make pictures at a profit. It is humanly impossible for him to make every picture he turns out of equal quality. Naturally, some will be better than others.

"Let us say that he makes four pictures. Three of them are acceptable, and the fourth is below the average. The exhibitor buys the three, the fourth is a dead loss, seemingly. But is it?

"The manufacturer must obtain a certain aggregate return for his product. Whether he obtains that aggregate on one, two, three, or four pictures, he must obtain it. The thing works out to its inevitable conclusion. The exhibitor must pay in the end, whether he buys one picture and casts aside the other three or whether he takes the whole product, good and bad alike. Work this idea out in all of its details and you will see that it is basically true.

"How much better it is for the exhibitor to decide on his program and stick to it, giving the manufacturer the benefit of his co-operation and support and aiding him in every possible way to increase the average quality of his program. There is the point that most people forget, —that it is not the individual picture that counts, but the average quality of the whole.

"In the long run the open booking policy is just as suicidal for the exhibitor as it is for the producer. It is fundamentally wrong, and for this reason it cannot live.

Irresponsible Stock Jobbing

"One of the greatest evils which the industry has to fight at the present time is that of irresponsible stock jobbing, the marketing of securities with little more than a promise behind them, the flimflamming of the public with flamboyant advertisements, and persuading it to invest in properties that have no possible chance of not only paying a dividend but of even returning the principal. There has been a lot of this done recently.

The newspapers throughout the Middle West have been carrying full pages, advertising the stock of several recently formed companies that have absolutely nothing to offer in return for the money they are taking except indefinite promises that have little chance of materializing.

"This is an evil which the industry as a whole should get together on and fight. The business of the legitimate manufacturer depends on the approval of the public. If irresponsible people step in and fool the public in its most vulnerable spot, its pocketbook, it is liable to have its reactive effect on every legitimate concern in the business.

"Another thing that impresses me as being all wrong is this talk of chaos and chaotic conditions. I cannot see where they exist. I believe that the industry, taken as a whole, is sound today. There are evils which will right themselves in the course of time, there is waste, there are many things that could be improved, but they will take care of themselves. The industry as a whole is sound, and I believe that it will remain so.

More Multiples Coming

"It has not yet settled down to a smooth running machine; that time alone will evolve. But it is settling.

"I believe that for the next two years there will be a large number of multiple-reel productions, productions exceeding five reels in length. I also believe that the demand for this length picture will run riot, the same as the demand for the feature picture of today ran riot.

"There will be a large number of pictures made in the greater length that have no right to the increased footage. Following that I think the industry will settle down, that the average feature will get down to about four thousand feet, and that the exhibitor will undoubtedly book two features to a program—that is, two big stars. There will also be the shorter pictures, and occasionally, when the story merits, one of greater length.

"But whether the picture is long or short, it must be based on merit. That is the one thing that is going to count in the future. Producers and manufacturers have got to learn that it is quality first, last, and all the time."

EXHIBITORS IN CLEVELAND LOSE MONEY

Special to Motion Picture News.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 9.

Between $150,000 and $200,000 was lost by Cleveland moving picture houses this summer, which has been the most consistently hot season in some time, according to estimates made by film exchange men.

SPURIN HERE FROM ENGLAND TO BUY FEATURES

Roscoe C. Spurin, one of the most prominent advertising men in Great Britain, and who has had complete charge for Ruffles, Ltd., of the very successful British advertising campaign on Metro pictures, arrived in New York city Saturday, Sept. 9, on the S. S. St. Louis. Mr. Spurin is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. Spurin will be in this country for some time. As the head of Roscoe's exclusives, a new and well capitalized British concern he is looking for a regular supply of high-class American films. An interview with Mr. Spurin will appear next week.

PARAMOUNT COMEDIES VIEWED BY EXCHANGE MANAGERS

The first comedies to be issued by the Paramount Pictures Corporation have been viewed at private showings by practically all of the Paramount exchange managers, and congratulatory letters have been received from every section of the country by President Abrams relative to the comedies that he has been enabled to secure through the United States Motion Picture Corporation, producers of Black Diamond Comedies, and the Classy Pictures, Inc., producers of Classic Comedies.

The first of the Paramount Comedies will be released on October 2.

Sanger Expects to Begin Picture Making in October

Mechanics Rush Work on Studio at Park Avenue and 134th Street, New York—Production of Photodrama Is Same as Stage Play Construction, He Says

EUGENE B. SANGER, president of the Sanger Picture Plays Corporation, states that he will be ready to commence active production about the first part of October. Work is rapidly being completed on the fitting out of the new studio at Park avenue and 134th street and with the early fall everything will be in place waiting for the word to shoot.

Mr. Sanger has what are considered more or less radical ideas as applied to motion picture production and it is these ideas he is going to give a thorough tryout as soon as he is ready to start active work. In referring to his plan he said:

"The production of a motion picture is practically the same as the production of an offering for the legitimate stage and should be gone about in the same way. When I first did motion picture work several years ago and made the foregoing statement, I was brutally informed that I was crazy and did not know what I was talking about. But times have changed and some of the theories that I set forth have now become common practice.

"It is only recently, however, that there has come to be a general realization of the fact that it is impossible to have a good motion picture play unless there is a good story for a foundation. The whole success of the future structure depends on the quality of the story and its manner of treatment.

"And here is a fact that I want to point out, that seems to have escaped the attention of most of those in the business, that the quality of the story is not dependent on the originality or intricacy of the plot, but entirely on the manner in which it is treated.

Such being the case, how futile it is to search for new and original plots when it is new and original treatment that they are looking for.

"Recognizing this fact, it can readily be seen that treatment is more than a one man job. This is particularly applicable to the motion picture, which requires as it does the work of so many experts. It will naturally be a better picture if all those concerned in the making are working together than at cross purposes.

"It has been my belief that the right and proper way to stage a motion picture is to first establish a close relationship between the author and the director. This is for the purpose of being assured that the director has grasped the author's viewpoint. This co-operation should extend throughout the production of the whole picture play. There are no set rules as to the manner or method of doing things. In the majority of cases there are numerous ways. The important thing that has to be decided is which is the right way, which the most effective from the standpoint of the public which is going to judge the completed play.

"This co-operation should not only be between the author and director, but between the director and every one who has anything to do with the production of the picture in an executive capacity. The director cannot be an expert specialist in every department of the work, but he must have the vision and the imagination to know when things are right.

"The same thing applies with the handling of the actors and actresses that go to make up the cast. The director cannot tell his people how to act. They themselves must feel the emotions which they are seeking to portray before they can effectively get them over. Therefore before the members of the cast can attempt to do their work properly it is absolutely necessary that they are familiar with what they are supposed to do. Let them intelligently understand that which is required of them by the author and the director and the results of this intelligent understanding will show when their work is thrown on the screen. Set expressions governed by rules and regulations for the expression of the emotions is not acting. Acting is a far nobler art than that.

"These are the basic principles of stage direction. The motion picture has largely ignored them. Some of them are coming into gradual use, but all of them must be used before the motion picture reaches the high artistic plane to which it is rightfully entitled.

Work of Organizing Branch Committees Making Progress

Meeting of Branch Committee No. 1 Is Held at Rooms of National Association of Motion Picture Industry on September 6, and Those in Attendance Display Enthusiasm

THE actual work of organizing the several branch committees of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry is going ahead rapidly. Two important meetings were held during the last week, and several more are scheduled for the coming week. A meeting of what is known as Branch Committee No. 1, was held at the rooms of the association on Wednesday, September 6, which was enthusiastic to say the least. Though no important results were accomplished, the meeting was given over to a lengthy discussion of censorship, and an explanation of the purposes of the association by William A. Brady, the president, for the benefit of those present who were not familiar with its object.

Out of a total of seventy-six telegraphic invitations sent out, there was an attendance of fifty-five, which is considered a large proportion. The purpose of the meeting was for the election of an Executive Committee and other committees to handle special features of the work. On the motion of William L. Sherrill this business was postponed until the next meeting, in order that the committees might be elected by a greater number of the members of the association and for the purpose of permitting many who were present of first joining in order that they might have a vote.

A committee consisting of W. M. Seabury and F. H. Elliot was appointed to appear before the convention of mayors of municipalties, which was being held at Newark, N. J. This body is known as the League of American Municipalities, and has an extremely large membership. Mr. Elliot, in speaking of their visit, said that they met with an enthusiastic reception, and, as Mr. Seabury, who addressed the convention, was able to disseminate a vast quantity of information relative to the motion picture and the problems which confronted the industry. One of the question that he discussed in great detail was the necessity for a standardization of the fire laws throughout the country as applied to the motion picture.

As a result of the discussion at the committee meeting the following persons agreed to join the association: Frank Powell, of Frank Powell Productions; W. H. Kemble, of Brooklyn, Triangle; Theodore Wharton, of Wharton, Inc., Edwin Thanhouser; William Wright, of Kalem; H. M. Goetz, of Erbograph; L. B. Jennings, of American Film Company; Chester Beecroft, of Mutual; Harry King Tootle, of Gaumont; J. O. Walsh, of the United States Motion Picture Corporation; Mr. Feely, of Florida Pictures Corporation, and Eugene B. Sanger, of the Sanger Picture Plays Corporation. The next meeting of this committee will be held Thursday, September 14, at 3.30 o'clock.

A meeting for the purpose of organizing the equipment and accessory men was called for Thursday, September 7, but owing to the great pressure of business this meeting was adjourned until October 4. A meeting of the distributors and exchange men was scheduled for Friday, the eighth, but this was also adjourned until later without any definite action being taken. All of these meetings were for the purpose of affecting an organization and the election of committees, but action was deferred in each case to permit a larger number to become affiliated.

Beginnings of League Antedate Neff Activities

W. C. Quimby, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, Who Holds Membership Card No. 1, Is Authority for the Statement That the Inception of an Exhibitor Organization Can Be Traced Eighteen Months Before The Time Usually Attributed to the Origin of the Association

Editor's Note.—The following letter from W. C. Quimby, of Fort Wayne, Ind., is self-explanatory. It touches upon certain details in connection with the very beginnings of the Exhibitors' League of America, the history of which was narrated for "Motion Picture News" by George H. Wiley, national secretary of the league during 1912 and 1913, in the convention issue. We are indebted to Mr. Quimby for his information, as well as for the interesting manner in which he tells the story. Some slight inaccuracies in regard to the specific facts of the league's conception are responsible for Mr. Quimby's valuable contribution to organization history in this business.

IN your History of the Formation and Development of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, published in the issue of July 22, 1916, from compilation by George H. Wiley, there are facts set forth by Mr. Wiley which are not authentic. The original league was formed a year and a half before the late M. A. Neff took the proposition in hand.

Mr. Wiley writes in his article. "Sitting in a little office in Cincinnati the man who had conceived the idea—awaited developments."—"He would know on Septer 12th" (1910). "That was the date set for the first convention of exhibitors Ohio had ever known."

These statements are both wrong. In the first place, the idea of an exhibitor's organization was the original one of Max Stern, of Columbus, Ohio, and myself, and I am in a position to furnish indisputable proofs in the way of correspondence in abundance, minutes of the meetings held eighteen months prior to Mr. Neff's activity, membership cards (Note. I have Membership Card No. 1, the first one ever issued in America, which is a valued relic), letter heads of the league, financial records of business transacted; in fact, evidence so overwhelming that there is no chance for any controversy.

The formation of the original league was a result of problems in the film industry which developed with the formation of the Motion Picture Patents Company. Every one who has been in the game for any length of time will remember conditions that existed then.

It so happened that the Toledo Film Exchange of Toledo, Ohio, came under the ban, and were refused a license by the Patents Company. As I had had an old account with them, and personally had felt the iron hand of the two-dollar license, our sympathies were mutual.

Organization Idea Conceived in 1909

Much correspondence was exchanged between us, and in this way we conceived the idea of organization for our protection. The result was that the Toledo Film Exchange at their own expense sent out to every exhibitor in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana, an invitation to attend a meeting to be held at the Hartman Hotel, Columbus, Ohio, on February 10, 1909, which, according to Mr. Wiley's statement, was nearly nineteen months previous to Mr. Neff's first meeting. I have before me the original minutes of the organization that was formed at that meeting which I called to order and was elected first president of, with Max Stern at my side as secretary, we having been elected, I believe, because we talked longer and louder than any one else present. Here are the minutes copied word for word from the yellow age-stained pages:

"Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 10th, 1909.

"In response to a call sent out by the Toledo Film Exchange for the purpose of starting an independent movement, about twenty exhibitors met at the Hartman Hotel, February 10, 1909, at 1 P. M. Some of the exhibitors were present in favor of the Independent Manufacturers and Film Exchanges, while others favored the Patents Company. Some thought it was best from the exhibitors' standpoint to keep both Independents and Patents Company in the field for reason that the more competition among manufacturers, the better the pictures, and the more competition among film exchanges the better terms exhibitors could make.

"A motion was made and seconded that an organization of exhibitors be started, same to include all exhibitors in the State regardless of which side of the controversy they favored, Independents or Patents Company, or both. Motion was carried by a unanimous vote. A temporary organization was effected by electing W. C. Quimby, of Zanesville, Ohio, president, and Max Stern, of Columbus, Ohio, secretary. The following charter members subscribed five dollars each to defray the expenses of sending out a call to all the exhibitors in the State of Ohio, for the purpose of attending a meeting to be held at the Neil House, February 24, at 1 P. M., and then and there perfect a permanent organization. P. H. Lamb, Sidney, Ohio; B. E. Reynolds, Ann Arbor, Mich.; George Spethelf, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Mr. Frederick, Columbiana, Ohio; Brockett and Klouse, Columbus, Ohio W. C. Quimby, Zanesville, Ohio; John Patch, Columbus, Ohio; George E. Bone, Columbus, Ohio; Max Stern, Columbus, Ohio.

"A motion was made and seconded that the amount subscribed by the nine charter members should apply on their initiation fee providing a permanent organization was effected. The motion was carried. Motion was made to adjourn. Motion was carried.

"Ohio Film Exhibitors' Pro. Ass'n.
"By Max Stern, secretary."

The Second Meeting

On February 24, 1909, a second meeting was held at the Neil House at 2 P. M., where a permanent organization was formed, eleven new members responding in addition to the original nine charter members, including W. B. Gandy, Lima, Ohio; Mr. A. Dupuis, Toledo, Ohio; Messrs. McMahan, Jackson and Bernardi, of Cincinnati, Ohio; C. Johnson, Washington C. H., Ohio, and others. Permanent officers were elected to serve one year, and we met that evening at eight o'clock at the Vendome Hotel, where we labored until four o'clock the next morning, adopting a constitution and by-laws, getting out copy for envelopes, letter heads, membership cards, application blanks and circular letters, and outlining our policy for securing new members.

A third meeting was set for March 24, 1909, at Columbus, Ohio. Adjourned. We labored faithfully for over a year, neglecting our own business to attend meetings of officers, spending our own money and time, of course. Then Mr. Neff appeared upon the scene, and as we had met with little encouragement from exhibitors we were quite willing to turn over to him what money we had in the treasury, and our membership, and it was this foundation that he used for the beginning of the organization, which he afterward used with such telling effect in placing the censorship curse upon the State of Ohio.

Marion A. Neff was no piker. He was a smart man. A great organizer, who died leaving no estate, which may be news to many, but he cannot justly be given credit for the origination of the first league of America, or Ohio. W. C. QUIMBY.

MANY PLAYERS ADDED TO ARROW ORGANIZATION

Among recent additions to the players at the Arrow Film Corporation's studios in Yonkers, N. Y., cast for roles in early Arrow feature releases, are: Barbara Brown, who appeared in several of Arrow's, "Who's Guilty?" series, Mildred Cheshire, a little Georgia beauty, who has been seen in a number of noteworthy roles; Albert Froome, leading heavy and character man of the New York Hippodrome for the last six seasons, who played the part of Jackson in "The Million Dollar Mystery;" Leo Post, an exceedingly agile and romantic young actor; K. B. Clarendon, formerly of the Thanhouser Company; Thomas O'Malley, a veteran character actor; and Al Hall, who has played in a number of Arrow pictures, including "The Woman's Law" and "Who's Guilty?"

Freeman Barnes, whose own work and that of his two collies long have been featured on the screen, Ben Lodge, James Levering, and William B. Miller are also newcomers at Arrow.

Miss Brown and Miss Cheshire will be seen in the support of Derwent Hall Caine, the famous English actor, who is to be starred in a number of Arrow pictures.

NETTER BUYS EASTERN INTERESTS OF LESSER

Leon D. Netter, who so successfully handled Selig's "Spoilers," in Philadelphia, and distributed "Cabiria" and "Neptune's Daughter," as a states rights exchange man, and who previous to that had a wide and active experience with Sol Lesser's enterprises in the west, has taken over joint interest in Lesser's latest ventures in the East.

Netter who will make his office at 1325 Vine street, Philadelphia, where he can best supervise the distribution of "The Little Girl Next Door," the rights for which he and Lesser recently purchased for Pennsylvania, will also be in a better position in the East to give the proper service to exhibtors in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky for the Audrey Munson film "Purity," which they also jointly own for this territory.

Netter is just completing a comprehensive exhibitor campaign in regard to these features which will shortly be launched.

Ollie Kirkby Is to Share Stellar Honors with Larkin

Actress, Who Has Been in Front Rank of Screen Artists for Last Three Years and Is Remembered for Her Works in "Social Pirates," Is at Work in Jacksonville

KALEM announces that Ollie Kirkby, recently star with Marin Sais in the George Bronson-Howard series, "The Social Pirates," has been secured to appear in the series, "Grant, Police Reporter." Miss Kirkby will share the honors in this one-reel series with "Dare-Devil" George Larkin, who will be seen in the title role.

Ollie Kirkby has been in the front rank of screen stars for well over three years. Her excellent work in Kalem's four-part features, in "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel" series, and numerous other productions is well remembered. Miss Kirkby was born in Roxborough, Pennsylvania, but as her parents migrated to California when she was a child she considers herself a daughter of the Golden State. She had never appeared on the stage when she made her screen debut with the Kalem Company four years ago.

In addition to the acquisition of Ollie Kirkby for the new "Grant" series, Kalem also announced last week that the supporting cast would include William McKey, Mary Taylor-Ross and Arthur Albertson.

The work of staging the initial episode of the series is already under way at the Jacksonville studio. "The Code Letter" is the title of this first adventure in the career of "Grant, Police Reporter." As with all the succeeding episodes, "The Code Letter" will tell a complete story, the character of Grant alone being carried throughout the series. It is the intention to have each episode contain spectacular thrills.

Ollie Kirkby

Robert Welles Ritchie, author of the stories, has arranged a novel pre-release, showing of the first episodes, by inviting his former fellow-workers, the police reporters of the leading New York dailies, to view the productions. There are some surprises in store for some of the newspaper boys when they see adventures of their own depicted on the screen, as the early stories include many incidents based on fact.

"Ne'er-Do-Well" Not Affected by V-L-S-E Absorption

Picture Made by Selig and Bought by Sol Lesser Will Continue to Be Marketed Through the Big Four Releasing Organization

IN view of the fact that the Selig Company has withdrawn from the V-L-S-E, Sol Lesser, head of the All-Star Features, Inc., located in San Francisco, desires to make it known to the film world that "The Ne'er-Do-Well," which he purchased outright from Selig will continue to be released on the Vitagraph V-L-S-E Program.

The absorption of the V-L-S-E by the Vitagraph Company will in no way affect the distribution of "The Ne'er-Do-Well," inasmuch as it is expressly understood that while V-L-S-E becomes a department of Vitragraph, its plans, policies, and sales force will in no way be altered by this merger.

The branch managers of V-L-S-E have been highly gratified by the results achieved with this feature, inasmuch as "The Ne'er-Do-Well" has had exceptional runs all over the country, and though its release date is about six months back, evidence of the lasting strength of this feature is being demonstrated by the large number of bookings and rebookings now being turned in to the Sales Promotion Department of V-L-S-E.

One "live wire" exhibitor in Northern Maine ran "The Ne'er-Do-Well" as a serial. Another distributed miniature copies of Rex Beach's novel, giving only the first chapter. Still another gained a goodly quota of good-will and patronage, by showing it to the students at Cornell University after circularizing them, about a rich college boy, who turned out to be a "ne'er-do-well."

William Moore Patch, who had such an extended and successful run of "The Ne'er-Do-Well," at the Pitt theatre, Pittsburgh, and gave so much attention to its presentation and staging, is considering rebooking this feature on the strength of the demand already created.

Sol Lesser in a statement to Mr. Irwin, explicitly states that he is entirely satisfied with the efficient way in which V-L-S-E has distributed "The Ne'er-Do-Well," and feels sure that the Greater Vitagraph Company, with the same high-purposed organization, will continue to show results he anticipated when he sought out V-L-S-E and placed his confidence with that organization.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG AT WORK IN "THE FOOLISH VIRGIN"

With the first of her own company's productions, "The Common Law," being cut and assembled, Clara Kimball Young last week began work at the Blache studio, Fort Lee, N. J., on her second picture, an adaptation of Thomas Dixon's powerful novel, "The Foolish Virgin."

The cast for this new Selznick picture has been partly selected by Miss Young and Director General Albert Capellani, and before the end of the week all the principals in the picture will have been engaged.

Arrangements are being made by Lewis J. Selznick to give an invitation showing of "The Common Law" at one of the leading Broadway theatres within the next two weeks. This will be followed by a reception at the recently completed offices of Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises, on the fourteenth floor of the Godfrey Building, 729 Seventh avenue.

DEPARTMENT STORE SHOWS PICTURES

One of the largest department stores in Des Moines, Iowa, Harris-Emery's, recently introduced moving pictures in an endeavor to arouse interest in fall styles. The Pathé pictures of the Autumn clothes in unique playlet produced in New York were the feature, but Pathé Travel Pictures were also given.

Two shows each day were held, both in the afternoon, in the auditorium of the big store. Admission was free. Crowds were there, and the venture was a successful one.

GOLDEN GATE PHOTO COMPANY BUILDS STUDIO

Owing to the steady increase in the population of Los Angeles, the Golden Gate Photo Company, specializing in motion picture publicity and news service photographs, has found it necessary to build an additional studio. The new building will be two stories high, of artistic design, located on a plot comprising 3,000 square feet. It will be situated in Hollywood, and Nelson F. Evans will be the business manager.

MARIAN SWAYNE IS SUCCESSFUL STAGE PLAYER

Marian Swayne, who has just been placed under contract to the Arrow Film Corporation by W. E. Shallenberger, is a bewitching blonde personality, whose career on stage and screen has been a continued success.

Although she is but twenty years old, she has five big stage successes to her credit. Included in these are the roles of Effie in "The Blindness of Virtue," Cicely in "The Importance of Being Ernest," the Squaw in "The Squaw Man" (on the strength of which performance Lasky offered her the same part for the screen version of this play, but which Miss Swayne declined in order to remain on the stage), as the Grain (the stenographer) in "The Grain of Dust," and as Vivie in "Mrs. Warren's Profession."

Marion Swayne

Before her success in these five important parts, Miss Swayne had also played in "The City," "The Greyhound," "The Deep Purple," and "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie." Prior to her appearance as Effie, Miss Swayne played for almost two years in motion pictures, appearing for one year in Blache features, and for another year in Gaumont features. She also played the role of Kitty in James Montgomery Flagg's series, "The Adventures of Kitty Cobb."

FINAL MEETING OF DAY-AND-NIGHT CREDITORS SET FOR SEPTEMBER 20

On September 20 at two o'clock, in room 405 of the Post Office Building, Brooklyn, there will be a final meeting of the creditors of Day and Night Screens, Inc., at which Virtus L. Haines, referee in bankruptcy will declare a final dividend, and announce the time and place of payment upon all proved and allowed claims. At the same time the accounts of the trustee will be passed upon.

Brady Contracts with Fashionable Modiste for World Gowns

Lady Duff Gordon (Lucile, Ltd.), Who Sets Styles for New York Women of Fashion, Will Supply the Raiment for Actresses in His Pictures

WILLIAM A. BRADY, director general of the World Film Corporation, has contracted with Lady Duff Gordon (Lucile, Ltd.) to supply the gowns for all future Brady-Made pictures in which the feminine characters are drawn from the socially elect.

In describing the observation which had led him to adopt this expensive plan, Mr. Brady said:

"I was watching a picture at private view the other day when I noticed that the leading actress was wearing a dress which seemed familiar to me, and thereupon I instituted inquiries. These led to the information that the same gown had done duty in three photoplays, and I was not long in finding out that a good many directors, being mere men, are somewhat shy of gown knowledge. I am no supernatural authority, myself, but I know a necessity when it smites me.

"Clearly enough, here was a matter that needed attention. If we were to depict fashionable groups they must be fashionably clad, and dresses shown in one play must not go wandering through other plays to offend the quick and discerning eyes of the thousands of feminine spectators who are up-to-the-minute on the ever varying styles.

"Of course, it is a costly matter to produce the real gowns which would be worn at an exclusive social or official function, and it would be manifestly unfair to expect the actresses under contract to us—even the stars—to stand such a drain. And after all, it is no less costly to build realistic scenes and assemble elaborately furnished drawing rooms, salons and the like.

"Why not go a step further and carry the atmosphere of our best social life into the very details of its raiment—and do it as a regular thing, not a special feature of some solitary photoplay?

"This is what I am after, and what is being accomplished in World-Brady releases. We are not aiming at the projection of style shows, but striving to make our stage pictures of fashionable events not only resemble the real thing but be the thing itself.

"I figured that the way to secure sartorial perfection in our pictures was to have it supplied by the original authoress, so to speak. This led me to the atelier of Lady Duff Gordon, who creates the gowns of the fashionable set in our New York life and therefore may be expected to impart an authoritative tone to the social episodes in all of the World-Brady filmplays."

Bookings for "Gloria's Romance" Are On the Increase

Managers Recognize Drawing Power of Billie Burke, Says Kleine, and Announcement of Her Appearance at Theatre Is Sufficient to Bring Out Crowd

"The opening of the fall season emphasizes the tremendous change that has gradually been taking place in the offerings of the average theatre," said George Kleine, producer of "Gloria's Romance," recently. "Just a year or two ago the average program was three reels in length. A few months later it jumped to four or five. Once a show consisted of a fairly good two-reel drama and a single-reel comedy. The coming of the three-reel feature necessitated the addition of another reel to the program, if the exhibitor was to follow the good old rule of 'let 'em out on a laugh.' The weekly topical rung still another change on the program. The cartoon film also did its bit toward changing things. All through the evolution of the program the serial was in evidence. In one theatre it was the feature attraction. At the next house it was used to complete the program. But it has been steadily growing in popularity. Where there used to be one serial on the market there were soon three or four.

"Now the exhibitor can hardly visit an exchange without being offered a serial. And, like everything else—there was a reason. Serial pictures were made for steady attendance. They made the now-and-then customer a steady patron. They brought nickels and dimes to the box office. For lots and lots of exhibitors they proved the real life savers. They tided the house over dull spells. They pulled, despite the hot weather, the opening of a rival house, or the offering of big feature attractions. And now that the longer features are accepted as the regular thing, the serial film is finding a place all its own on the same program. It is serving as the link that keeps the patronage up, insuring steady box office receipts, while the balance of the program serves the demand of the transients.

"The opening of the season demonstrates conclusively the fact that today ninety out of every hundred exhibitors concede the serial film should be a part of their programs. Our film exchanges from coast to coast report a perfect flood of bookings on the big motion picture novel, 'Gloria's Romance,' in which Billie Burke is the featured star, are being made. House managers instantly recognize the pulling power of Billie Burke's name, and knowing that the mere announcement that they have booked the famous Rupert Hughes novel, in which she is appearing, will bring additional patronage to their houses, are using this celluloid novel as a prominent part of their regular evening's entertainment."

FRANKLIN SIGNS FOR "WAR'S WOMEN"

Harold B. Franklin, manager of the Family theatre, Buffalo, has signed a contract with the Exclusive Features, Inc., for premier showing of "War's Women" at his theatre for an indefinite run commencing Monday, September 18.

Mr. Franklin has increased his orchestra to twenty-five pieces, and has made special arrangements with all preparedness societies to view this preachment for preparedness.

FOREST FIRE IN A SUBJECT FROM VITAGRAPH

Special to Motion Picture News.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 2.

The Department of Forestry, of the Pennsylvania State Government, having completed arrangements with the Vitagraph Company of America for the release of a moving picture of a forest fire, taken in May on the Mont Alto State Forest, gave a private exhibition of the film this morning in the Victoria theatre. Every foot of the picture was taken in Pennsylvania, and it is one of the very few forest fire pictures which do not contain a single faked scene. It will be released in two reels, and will have its first public showing before the convention of the Wild Life League at Conneaut Lake, September 5 to 9.

The picture will be distributed commercially by the Vitagraph Company through the regular channels. The Forestry Department's copy of the picture will not be used commercially, but will be shown for educational purposes only.

SUPERIOR FILMS COMPANY INSTALLS ONLY PROFESSIONAL TITLE MACHINE ON WEST COAST

The Superior Films Company, occupying the entire tenth floor of the Knickerbocker Building, Los Angeles, has just installed the only professional title machine on the coast, and are now working overtime. The company is advantageously located in the heart of the city, and has the best facilities for receiving and dispatching film. It has one of the finest indoor studios in the country on the same floor and equipped with an indirect arc lighting system, which the independent producer may rent by the day. Mr. Sower, owner of the "Faucet," produced his six-reel picture in this studio. Mr. Brackett, the manager of the Superior Films Company, states that he will release in the near future through independent exchanges a novelty reel each week.

No Solicitors Employed by Artcraft for Pickford Films

Branch Managers Will Send to Exhibitors Form Blanks for Application and a Letter Announcing the Number of Releases and the Size and Cost of Pictures

WALTER E. GREENE, president of Artcraft Pitcures Corporation, and his general manager, Al. Lichtman, have decided upon a radical departure in the distribution of the new Mary Pickford productions. They intend to employ no solicitors to carry the Pickford doctrine to the exhibitor. This decision is due in large part to the spontaneous demand that has grown in volume since the preliminary announcement of Miss Pickford's new plans, and in a measure to the conviction of Mr. Greene and Mr. Lichtman that live and loyal branch managers can accomplish better results by direct and personal communication than by the formation of a large organization of traveling subordinates.

In accordance with this policy, every exhibitor in the country will receive from the Artcraft manager in his territory form blanks on which to make application for bookings of Mary Pickford productions. Accompanying these forms will be a letter, which reads as follows:

"This is to formally announce that this organization is now distributing all of the future productions in which the incomparable Mary Pickford will appear.

"There will be not less than four nor more than eight master productions featuring this celebrated artiste released during the year beginning in October.

"Each production will be not less than six nor more than ten reels in length and will each average about $250,000 or more in cost.

"It is Miss Pickford's desire that every theatre in the land be given an opportunity to exhibit her pictures, and to fulfil that desire and to give you an opportunity to arrange for the exhibition of the Mary Pickford productions, we are herewith enclosing application blanks which kindly fill in and return to this office immediately.

"It is our intention not to employ solicitors. Therefore, if you want to arrange for the exhibition of the Mary Pickford productions, give the enclosed application your immediate attention."

It is believed that only in this way can "the greatest good to the greatest number" be accomplished. The use of solicitors, in Mr. Greene's opinion, would only complicate the machinery by which the most complete and satisfactory distribution through Artcraft of Mary Pickford pictures can be effected.

Seven Directors Constantly at Work in Lasky Studios

Entire Producing Organization Is Under the General Directorship of C. B. De Mille—Marie Doro Is Completing "The Lash," an October Release

EXPANSION in every direction at the Lasky studios in Hollywood, Cal., has been, for the first time in the history of the organization, the constant employment of seven directors on productions for the Paramount program. In days gone by as many as six directors have worked at one time on the two massive open-air and glass-covered stages; but with the engagement last week of Marshall Neilan seven separate companies are now operating.

The entire producing organization is under the general directorship of C. B. De Mille. The other directors are George Melford, Frank Reicher, Wm. C. De Mille, James Young, Edward J. Le Saint and Marshall Neilan.

George Melford, upon the completion of the production of "Each Pearl a Tear," of which Fannie Ward is the star, has started work on Blanche Sweet's new production, entitled "A Woman's Victory." Frank Reicher is completing the Columbia University Lasky prize photoplay, "Witchcraft," which will be Fannie Ward's next starring feature, to be released on the Paramount program in October. The scenes are laid in an early New England village at the time when superstition led to the persecution of aged people among the early Puritans.

Marie Doro is completing, under the direction of James Young, a photoplay by Paul West, entitled "The Lash," the scenes of which are laid on the coast of Brittany and in Paris. "The Lash" also is an October release on the Paramount program.

Following the sensational success of Lou-Tellegen in "The Victory of Conscience," the star is completing, under the direction of Edward Le Saint, a picture version of "The Victoria Cross" by Paul Potter.

William De Mille is directing the new co-stars, Thomas Meighan and Anita King, in "The Heir to the Hoorah." The scenes of this picture are being made in the Asierra, Nevada, Mountains.

Mr. Neilan's first picture will be "The Tides of Barnegat," in which Blanche Sweet appears as the star.

Sherman Buys Rights to "Crisis" for U. S. and Canada

It Is Understood That He Paid a Quarter of a Million for His Share in Syndicate Making Purchase from Selig, Who Considers It Better Than "Spoilers"

A DEAL of considerable magnitude was transacted in Chicago, when on September 5, William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, sold an interest in "The Crisis" for the United States and Canada to H. A. Sherman, president of the Elliott and Sherman Film Corporation, of Minneapolis, Minn. It is understood that Mr. Sherman, representing a syndicate, paid to exceed a quarter of million dollars for his interest.

Mr. Sherman when interviewed said: "I consider 'The Crisis' one of the greatest films ever released, and in this statement I bar none. It was only after my confreres and myself had seen the drama individually and collectively that we concluded to pay the very high price demanded by Mr. Selig for an interest. At that Mr. Selig was justified in requesting a large sum for the drama is without doubt one of the most marvelous spectacles I have ever seen, and a production certain to become unusually popular. I consider 'The Crisis' a worthy successor of 'The Birth of a Nation,' and I have considerable experience in presenting that production."

William N. Selig in speaking of "The Crisis" said: "I consider the production the best we have ever done and that takes into consideration those very popular productions of 'The Spoilers,' 'The Rosary,' and 'The Ne'er-Do-Well.'"

DARLING OFF ON SOUTH AMERICAN TOUR FOR FOX

Joseph R. Darling, special representative of the Fox films in England, left London last week for an extensive tour of South and Central America, in the principal cities of which he will open branches for the corporation.

Mr. Darling will visit Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Santiago in Chili, La Paz in Bolivia, Quito in Ecuador, and Panama for the purpose of developing the Fox film interests in the Latin-American Republics. The trip will require nearly a half year.

IRVIN COBB'S FIRST PHOTOPLAY IS FROM "V"

Irvin Cobb's first photoplay, it has been previously announced, will be a Vitagraph production indorsed by the American Bankers' Association as a valuable asset to its national campaign on "Thrift." The title given out a few weeks ago was: "The Adventures of Bill."

It has been decided to change this title to "The Dollar and the Law" as one better calculated to attract the public. "The Dollar and the Law" will be a December release, with the popular Lillian Walker in the title role. Wilfrid North is the director.

The Greater Vitagraph has determined to move forward the date of "The Combat," starring Anita Stewart, to September 18. It has been announced as an October 9 release. By special arrangement with the New York Exchange, the new Flatbush theatre, Church and Flatbush avenues, Brooklyn, opened Labor Day night with "The Combat," and could not accommodate the crowds. It will not be shown again until the new release date, September 18.

Ten Companies Are Hard at Work for Fox in East and West

Six Are Producing on This Side of the Continent and Four in California—Tefft Johnson Is Filming His First Subject for the Concern

TEN different companies are busily at work this week making photoplays for William Fox—six in the Eastern studios, four in the West. In the New Jersey plants, pictures starring Theda Bara, Madame Bertha Kalich, June Caprice, Valeska Suratt, Joan Sawyer and Gladys Coburn are being filmed. Across the Continent, George Walsh, William Farnum, Gladys Brockwell and Gretchen Hartmann, a recently acquired Fox player, are acting in new productions.

Miss Sawyer, the danseuse, is making her first appearance in the silent drama, and Director Tefft Johnson, in turn, who is filming the picture, is producing his first William Fox photoplay.

On the West coast, Directors Frank Lloyd and Otis Turner, "Grand Old Man," are making production debuts. Miss Brockwell will have the leading role in the Lloyd picture, while Juanita Hansen will play opposite Walsh in the Turner photoplay.

At present, the Turner company is in the high Sierras on location work. The Stanton pohtoplayers, headed by Miss Hartmann, are in a Texas town, near the Mexican border, which has practically been bought up for picture purposes.

Stuart Holmes has the featured part in Madame Kalich's third appearance for the William Fox Films, and the hero of a thousand villainies is giving his usually finished performances. Walter Law, who had the lead in "The Unwelcome Mother," has completed his work in the new Pearson picture, and his famous beard has been trimmed down to an aristocratic Van Dyke for use in the Valeska Suratt photoplay.

"The Unwelcome Mother," by the way, marks the tenth photoplay in which little Jane Lee has appeared for William Fox.

Besides Mr. Law, there will be Velma Whitman, among others, in Miss Suratt's supporting cast. Miss Whitman was in the Fox picturization of "East Lynne." She is a native of Richmond, Va., and has had a brilliant career on the stage and in the world of the motion picture.

George Clarke, stage manager for the late Charles Frohman, for many seasons, is another of the new Fox actors. He was born in Birmingham, England, and is a direct descendant of Sir George Downing, after whom the far-famed Downing street of London, is named.

Three Vitagraphers Off on Transcontinental Junket

Lucille Lee Stewart, Huntly Gordon and Ralph W. Ince Leave Bayshore Studios for Tour Along Atlantic Coast, Through Canada and Into California

ACCOMPANIED by Lucille Lee Stewart and Huntly Gordon, both with the Greater Vitagraph Company, Ralph W. Ince, director of the Vitagraph Bay Shore studios, has begun a pleasure tour along the Atlantic coast, into Canada, and which will finally land the trio in California, where a visit will be made at the home of Mr. Ince's mother in Hollywood.

While the trip is primarily for amusement and is in the nature of a vacation, particularly for Miss Stewart, who has never seen California, it was agreed by the director and players, after they had been importuned by managers of several theatres along the route, to appear in person once or twice. These are houses which use Vitagraph pictures and with whose patrons Lucille Lee Stewart, who is a sister of Anita Stewart, has become a great favorite. This also includes Huntly Gordon, who works in the majority of features in which Miss Stewart appears.

The first stop was made in Montreal, where Mr. Gordon is well known, and his appearance on the stage of one of the leading theatres last week was the occasion for an ovation. It is but just to say, however, that both Miss Stewart and Mr. Ince received equally cordial welcomes.

Each in turn spoke briefly of their work. Miss Stewart assured the audience that she was far more at home in the studio than on the stage, and only their kindness to her gave her courage to appear before the assemblage of her screen friends.

Mr. Ince talked of the business from a directorial standpoint, and in reference to the high salaries paid to actors and others in the picture profession asserted that he believed they were none too high—could not be—considering the arduous and sometimes hazardous nature of the work.

Mr. Gordon's talk was largely in the nature of a greeting to his old friends in Montreal.

On their return from the West, which will be in about thirty days, Ralph Ince is to start work on a new feature, in which both Miss Stewart and Mr. Gordon will appear.

Both these players are in "His Wife's Good Name," a film shortly to be released on the Greater Vitagraph program.

WINNER OF COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY LASKY PRIZE CONTEST IS ON WAY TO WEST COAST

Dr. R. Ralston Reed, of Morristown, N. J., whose photoplay, "Witchcraft," was judged the winner in the recent Columbia University Lasky Company prize contest, left New York this week for the studio in California to be present during the making of his picture. The production is under the direction of Frank Reicher, and the star is Fannie Ward. The cast also includes Jack Dean, Paul Weigel, a new member of the company, Lillian Leighton, and others.

The story is laid in New England about 1690, at the time when the persecution of so-called witches was creating great excitement in the settlements of Salem, Concord and other new world villages.

During his stay in California Dr. Reed will be the guest of the Lasky Company.

VIEWS OF NEW YORK FROM AN AEROPLANE IN ANIMATED WEEKLY

What are said to be the only successful motion pictures taken of New York City from an aeroplane will be seen in a forthcoming issue of the Universal Animated Weekly. Cameraman M. M. Flanders, known as Double M. Flanders among his associates, made the flight on August 31 with Lawrence B. Sperry, a prominent aviator. The two started from Fort Lee, N. J., flew across the river down above New York harbor and encircled the Statue of Liberty several times. From here they went north and sailed over the financial section of the city, then eastward to the East River, where Mr. Flanders photographed all the bridges from above, thence northward again to Fifty-ninth street and then back to Fort Lee.

Mr. Flanders secured a wealth of valuable negative during the flight. Three hundred feet of the pictures will appear in the Animated. Cutouts of the Statue of Liberty taken from overhead will be used as trailers in the Universal serial, "Liberty." Mr. Sperry arranged so that the camera would be as steady as possible during the trip. He is fully acquainted with all sorts of aircraft and is also the inventor of the Sperry stabilizer.

Universal Buys Script from American Minister to Belgium

Twelve Stories Are Obtained from Brand Whitlock, Whose Book, "The Balance," Created Sensation—Play Is Bought from Mayor of Greenwich Village

HELEN STARR, who wields the scepter over the scenario department of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has been on vacation leave for the past week.

Recent purchases in the scenario department include twelve stories from the pen of the American minister to Belgium, the Hon. Brand Whitlock. As a follower in the footsteps of the famous "Golden Rule Jones," he made great strides forward in municipal reform. His book, "The Turn of the Balance," an earnest argument against capital punishment, created a sensation.

A five-reel play entitled "Lady Eldone's Daughter," also has been purchased from Lois Zellner, whose recent release, "The Innocent Lie" was a Famous Players' production. "Lady Eldone's Daughter" is intended as a vehicle for Violet Mersereau, the dainty little ingenue who is at present working at the Fort Lee Studio.

Another play from the pen of Willard Bradley, the Mayor of Greenwich Village, has been bought, entitled "A Little Nomad." Mr. Bradley is the author who captured a top notch price with his story "The Beloved Imp," $1,200 being paid recently by the Universal for the synopsis.

"His Mother's People," by H. R. Burky will probably be used as a Bluebird feature. It is a story of false pride and great mother love. The Indian mother slaves to educate her half-breed son as his white father would have wished. The boy is ashamed of her, but at last awakens to a realization of her true greatness. Other purchases include: "The Dreamers" by F. Eugene Ackerman; "The Price of Silence" from Breezy Stories; "Right Is Might" by Adriana Spadoni; "The Rose of Tyronza" by William H. Sharpe; "Because He Loved Her So" by Hal Reid; "The Dummy Director" by Hal Reid; "A Modern Cinderella" by R. M. Crossby; "Pirates of Fame" by Helen Beare, and "The Divorcee" by Lawrence W. Pedrose.

From among the hundred scripts that are the daily average received in the Universal scenario department, these few can be called titles: "Whose Child Am I?" and "Who Is My Father?" These titles were by different authors and both suggested as companion pieces to: "Where Are My Children" the Lois Smalley masterpiece. Here are some more strange ones: "The Follies of Mother," "Father Regenerated" (they seem to come in pairs). "The Fatal Laugh," "The Kiss That Killed," "Freckles Extinguished," "A Happy Couple Until———" (Excites the curiosity of the Editor). "Classy Heathen," and "Flees in Father's Pants?"

Among the sweepings the porter found: "A Pearl of Great Price," "The Ruby of the Moguls," and "The Idol's Emerald Eye." These had outworn their usefulness, having been done to death.

Monmouth Plans to Boom Its Pictures by Big Campaign

Newspaper and Advertising Publicity Conducted on Basis of Regular Merchandise Boosting Will Be Observed by Burnstein for "Jimmie Dale" Series

THE recent announcement by the Monmouth Film Corporation of their forthcoming production of "Jimmie Dale, alias 'The Grey Seal,'" a series of two-reel pictures, sixteen in number, carries with it more significance than the mere information that a new picture is under way.

The feature of the Monmouth Company's business policy is a newspaper and advertising publicity campaign based on regular merchandising plans such as are applied to selling tobacco, biscuits, or any other salable article.

The Monmouth Film Corporation planned this campaign a few months ago, at which time they entered into a contract with Myron C. Fagan, Editor-in-Chief of the Associated Drama News Service, to conduct a newspaper advertising—rather then publicity—campaign. Mr. Fagan in turn, drew into the campaign the George L. Dyer Agency. Jules Burnstein, the business manager of the Monmouth Film Corporation, Mr. Fagan and the Dyer Agency have been in consultation for some time.

Mr. Burnstein refuses to divulge the exact manner in which their campaign will be conducted. "There is only one thing I care to say," said Mr. Burnstein, when asked for an interview. "I have long had this idea in mind, but have never had so good an opportunity as the present to try it out. All I aim to do is to give the exhibitor the kind of pictures and advertising co-operation that will create the lines before his doors. And I am staking my reputation and future on this plan. It will be a success, not only from my point of view, but from that of the exhibitor. Satisfying the exhibitor will make money for me and my concern."

"WHEEL OF JUSTICE" IS "WHEEL OF LAW"

Owing to a similarity in the title of two-feature productions that might result in confusion, the Metro Pictures Corporation, out of deference to the Vitagraph Company, has changed the name of their five-part production, "The Wheel of Justice," in which Emily Stevens is starred, to "The Wheel of the Law." The Vitagraph has a feature bearing a like title, but the stories are distinctively different.

METRO BURN MEXICAN TOWN FOR PICTURE

Revellers at Brighton Beach, Coney Island were thrilled by an unexpected spectacle when an entire Mexican town, constructed in the center of the Brighton race track, was burned to the ground to obtain some sensational night scenes in the making of "The Brand of Cowardice," an elaborate five-part Metro production. Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine are being starred in this feature, and several hundred players are appearing in their support.

John W. Noble, who is directing this spectacular production, planned to burn the Mexican village late at night, when the players would not be hampered by crowds from the popular resorts near by. It was nearing midnight before the torch was applied to the buildings and the camera began to grind away. More than three hundred people, including fifty genuine Mexicans, a score of real cowboys, and dozens of Indian ponies were held in readiness until that hour.

Florence Rose Fashions "Get Them Going and Coming"

Through Them It Is Possible for the Exhibitor, the Newspaper and the Store to Co-operate to Their Mutual Benefit—List of Theatres Supplied to Retailers

ONE of the striking features of the Florence Rose Fashion Pictures, which Pathe is now releasing to the best theatres throughout the country, and has just booked at the Strand theatre, N. Y., beginning September 10, is that through them it is possible for the exhibitor, the newspaper and the store to co-operate to their mutual benefit," said a Pathe official a day or two ago.

"The assistance of the newspaper and the retailer brings people into the theatre to see the pictures, and this means increased business for the exhibitor.

The newspaper benefits through increased circulation and increased advertising revenue, because the retailers see the advantage of advertising heavily the goods shown in the pictures.

"Women are interested in the films because of the clothes shown and men are more than willing to see them because twelve of the most beautiful girls in New York take part in them.

"The films introduce high-priced as well as medium-priced merchandise, thus catering to the tastes of all classes.

"An idea as to how complete the service is is seen in these facts:

"A list of theatres booking the pictures is supplied through Miss Rose to the retailers handling merchandise shown. They advise their customers to read the newspaper articles and to see the pictures and then the garments.

"While women are interested in the illustrated articles published in newspapers, they are more interested in seeing the fashions in the films worn by living models. Exhibitors, therefore, see the value of co-operating with the newspaper in any way possible.

"Florence Rose has spent a year on this proposition, traveling from city to city interviewing exhibitors, newspapers and retailers, and the film shows her knowledge of the situation.

"A number of the biggest newspapers of the country have already been signed to use this service, and live managers find that it is going extremely well with exhibitors.

"The costumes shown in the Florence Rose Fashion Pictures complete from head to foot and including all the garments in the up-to-date wardrobe—reflect the accepted, authentic styles worn by best-dressed women.

"Through the Florence Rose Fashions shown in films and newspapers, women all over the country can keep in constant touch with the best and newest fashions as soon as they are launched. They learn to know real fashions in the easiest and most appealing way by film pictures, snappy drawings and newsy articles.

"The Florence Rose Fashions is not a selling agency. Selections are made entirely on style and only the best and most authentic fashions are chosen wherever they may be found.

"These selections are made by Florence Rose, former Editor of L'Art de la Mode, also fashion writer of the New York Evening Mail and New York Globe."

All Departments at "U" Feel Effects of Increased Capacity

Addition of Projection Machines Make It Possible for All Directors to Daily View Their Work Without Loss of Time—Laboratories Perhaps Next for Enlargement

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, Sept. 9.

INCREASED capacity at Universal City has made necessary the enlarging of every department, and the one most recently adjusted is that for screen examination of film. The theatre at Universal City has been increased to contain five projecting machines, instead of the two which served when the city was first opened. In addition to this number, there are three others on the grounds, one being used in the laboratory building, and two in the film editing department, where Wyndham Gittens and his corps of assistants cut all subjects. It is now possible for all directors to daily view their work without the loss of time formerly occasioned by waiting until one of the machines was not in use.

It is probable the laboratories will next be enlarged, for these are now operated at full capacity day and night in order to get out the work. Superintendent of Photography John Nickelhous has plans prepared for a new laboratory that will triple the capacity of the present one, and work will probably be taken up on this shortly.

The photography department reached its maximum during the past week, when the fortieth cameraman was added to the list by Head Cameraman Will Ullman. While the list of directors is now a trifle less than forty, it is found that very frequently two or more men are needed in the making of one scene or that cameramen are dispatched to secure news film material, thus making it necessary that extra men be present at all times.

The Universal producing plant has about reached the desired capacity, and forty reels of finished subjects will shortly be turned out weekly. This is made possible by some companies making more than one-reel weekly. In most instances the directors are making an average of one and one-half reels weekly when working on short subjects, but the Bluebird and Red Feather features require more time proportionately.

J. C. Jesson.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

"The 'News' wishes to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything in fact done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to send for publication the successful ideas that he has worked out, also to come to us for suggestions or information. Address the Editor."

Rosenthal, Universal in St. Louis, Uses Decorated Auto with Actress Dressed as Miss Liberty for "Liberty" Serial

The Advertising Car Used on the Serial, "Liberty," by Barney Rosenthal of the Universal Film and Supply Company, St. Louis, Mo.

THE above picture shows how Barney Rosenthal, manager of the Universal exchange, St. Louis, exploited the new Universal serial, "Liberty." The automobile was decorated with red, white and blue bunting, silk flags and other decorations, and an actress dressed as Liberty occupied a raised seat between an American soldier and a villainous Mexican bandit. The auto was driven through the downtown shopping district at the noon hours, in the factory district when the employes were coming out in the afternoon, and out in the residence neighborhoods until eleven o'clock in the evening.

Miss Liberty distributed a diamond-shaped card printed in red as the machine went along, and the whole outfit attracted much attention. Barney says that while the "Liberty" machine brought in business, it was done to arouse public attention as much as anything else, and it certainly succeeded in that respect, as did the outfit he used to advertise "Peg o' the Ring," a display consisting of a woman in circus costume seated on a milk white horse, followed by a ringmaster and a groom.

A Woman Who Does Everything About Her Theatre And She Operates Two of Them!

A WOMAN who manages her own theatre, can do bill posting, run her own projecting machine if necessary, though she has always employed operators, does her own booking, and in fact does everything in the managerial end that a man does, is a novelty even in these days of suffragettes and the feminist movement.

Such a woman is Mrs. H. A. Jones, of Waukesha, Wisconsin. She runs the Unique and Colonial theatres in that city. For over three years and a half Mrs. Jones has acted in the capacity of manager, so that the venture is no experiment for her. It was in 1912 when her husband received a very flattering offer to go on the road, but held back because the two houses that he owned stood in the way, that Mrs. Jones stepped forward and took charge of the theatres.

She had always been more or less interested in managing theatres, and had had a good deal of experience in this line with her husband. Not only does she manage her two houses, but in 1914 she supervised the rebuilding of the Colonial theatre, which had been totally destroyed by fire, letting none of the work to the contractors and hiring all of the men herself.

At the Unique theatre Mrs. Jones plays nothing but pictures, and at the Colonial a mixed program. However, it is the photoplays that she says are the backbone of her business. She plays the majority of features that are shown in Waukesha. Mrs. Jones says that she has always received most courteous treatment from all booking men and exchange managers and that none of them have ever tried to impose upon her. In fact, she says that she has found that very often she can drive a much better bargain than a man could in the same position.

Mrs. H. A. Jones

Mrs. Jones is at present getting ready for a very busy season, and has already arranged for booking a number of big features.

OCHS RECOMMENDS "WHO'S GUILTY?"

Lee A. Ochs, newly-elected president of the Exhibitors' League of America, has written to the Pathe Exchange, Inc., congratulating the big distributing company on the "Who's Guilty?" series produced by Arrow. In his letter he says:

"It gives me great pleasure to express my unqualified approval of 'Who's Guilty?' which I consider a series of two-reel feature dramas of remarkable strength.

"All three of my New York theatres have shown 'Who's Guilty?' and we found it a powerful box-office attraction. Also my patrons were greatly pleased with the series, which I feel safe in recommending to any exhibitor desiring a feature of unusual strength."

No Reluctance Shown by Ince in Disposal of "Civilization"

But in Refusing to Sell State Rights to People Lacking Experience in Showmanship He Only Took Means to Prevent Failure of Proper Handling of Picture

AN erroneous impression seems to have been gathered by the trade that Thomas H. Ince has shown reluctance in the disposal of the territorial rights to "Civilization." Such is not the case. In speaking on this subject recently, Alec Lorimore, one of Mr. Ince's executives said: "Reluctant, that is far from being the case. It is all a question of men and methods. This office has been inundated with offers from bankers, merchants and others, and there have also been offers from national societies and propaganda bodies. These people have offered big money with the idea of getting either territorial or complete rights to the picture.

"These offers have been refused because the people making them were not showmen, and did not understand the details of showmanship. Whereas their money might be just as good as any one else's the fact that they did not understand showmanship would lead one to believe that they might not only lose money in handling the picture, but that the picture would not be presented to the public in a proper manner.

"Showmanship is really an art and a science in itself demanding its own formula for success. Mr. Ince besides being a great producer has also been a showman all his life. That is one of the reasons for his success. Suppose Mr. Ince sold the rights to some of these rich seekers after it, and they were unsuccessful with it in their territory. Such an experience would damage very materially the real showman in the next territory.

Alec Lorrimore

"Another reason that Mr. Ince has for seeing that the right kind of people obtain the rights to 'Civilization' is the consideration of his reputation. This is not the last big picture he is to make, and he wishes to keep his name free from the possibility of failure so that he won't be handicapped when the successor to 'Civilization' appears."

Decorating the Only Motion Picture Fire Department in the Industry—the Volunteer Brigade of Ince's Culver City Studios. Business Manager E. H. Allen Pinning the Badge on Fire Chief Cal Hoffner

THE Ince Culver City studios now have a fire department, organized by Business Manager E. H. Allen. When the studio manager called for volunteers, practically every member of the technical staff responded as well as a number of the actors. Examinations and physical tests decided who should be the accepted members, and, owing to players and directors being absent from the studios frequently, none were added to the active list.

The volunteer organization consists of fourteen men, all under the direction of Cal. Hoffner, chief of the technical staff, and are recognized by the city officers of Culver City, and fireman's badges were issued to them by the chief of the fire department. The fire laddies will take one hour's daily training until they are thoroughly familiar with the work.

The Ince studio property now represents an expenditure of more than $500,000, and with but one exception, all the buildings are of concrete and steel, with fire doors and similar equipment. The theatre building where all films are cut is divided into a number of individual rooms, so that in case of fire, not more than one picture can be destroyed. Business Manager E. H. Allen has added to the equipment of this building automatic fire doors and a ventilating system of his own invention.

Not only has the Selig Polyscope Company withdrawn from V-L-S-E but the Selig Red Seal plays, which have proven so popular, will soon be withdrawn from that organization and will be released according to later plans. Among the Selig Red Seal plays that have won popularity during the past year are: "The Prince Chap," "The Valiants of Virginia," "Into the Primitive," "At Piney Ridge," "The Cycle of Fate," "Unto Those Who Sin," "Thou Shalt Not Covet," "No Greater Love," "Sweet Alyssum," "A Black Sheep," "The Circular Staircase," "The House of a Thousand Candles," "A Texas Steer," "The Rosary," "The Millionaire Baby," and "The Carpet From Bagdad."

The latest feature drama of the Selig Company, ready for release, is "The Country That God Forgot." This Selig Red Seal play, written and directed by Marshall Neilan, features Tom Santschi, supported by an all-star cast, including George W. Fawcett, Mary Charleson, Will Machin and Victoria Forde.

COUNTRY BUSINESS IMPROVING IN CALIFORNIA, SAYS CITRON

Manager William J. Citron, of the San Francisco branch of the Fox Film Corporation, states that the past week has been in the nature of a record breaker for new customers. Country business has shown a great increase with the advent of cooler weather, and the opening of houses closed for the summer, and city business has also shown a sudden advance.

E. R. Redlick, of Seattle, the Western representative of this concern, is making a stay there, meeting exhibitors and getting thoroughly acquainted with conditions in the San Francisco field.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

MRS. VERNON CASTLE is back at work again in "Patria," the new preparedness serial of the International Film Service, Inc., after several days' illness caused by a cold. One of the scenes called for her to jump overboard from a gunboat. Not satisfied with the way it turned out, and while waiting for a retake she sat around in her wet clothes with the result that she caught a severe cold.

Director Eugene Moore of the Thanhouser Company, made use of the fire which recently destroyed the Hygeia Hotel at Block Island, for several exciting scenes. As the flames were at their highest he called to his assistant director, saying: "A fine fire. Get a girl, take her back into the fire, and bring her out. It'll make great stuff." Mr. Moore continued to take scenes until he was warned that if he didn't stop people would believe that he set the building on fire just to make a motion picture.

Howard Hansel, director of the Arrow Film Corporation's eight-reel feature starring Derwant Hall Caine, is exceedingly proud over a bit of economical executive work he accomplished on Block Island recently. It was necessary to build some stone cottages, and he leased the land for that purpose. When all of the work was done the landlord asked him what he was going to do with the houses. As they only had three sides, Hansel said he was going to tear them down. The landlord suggested that if he build the fourth side he would return the ground rent. The cottages were quickly completed, and now Block Island fishermen are living in houses that were only intended for a motion picture.

The latest release of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, "The Conquest of Canaan," is being cut and assembled and will be ready for public presentation within a fortnight.

Ernest Warde, who is directing Doris Grey and Wayne Arey in the Thanhouser feature, "Her Beloved Enemy," has found that the New York street urchin is more keen-eyed than the New York police.

Mr. Warde was taking street stuff on New York's East Side. He wanted the scene to be entirely natural, so he hid his camera in a moving van which drove casually alongside the curb near Miss Grey and Mr. Arey, who were supposed to be hurrying along the sidewalk.

The Kids Spied Him

All seemed fine. The policemen did not notice the camera but a couple of kids did. In a second the van was surrounded by a crowd. Discovered, Mr. Warde called in his actors and drove on. He didn't try it again until he reached a block in which there were no sharp-eyed urchins.

To have the Paragon studio all to himself and the company supporting Alice Brady in "Bought and Paid For," Director Harley Knoles last week made a complete shift in the working hours, beginning at eight in the evening and finishing at anywhere from four to seven in the morning.

Pearl White, of Pathe, has for a number of months been the possessor of a pet porker answering to the name of "Anastasia." Anastasia was so fond of her little mistress that she resented being separated from her at night, and made the air so hideous with her wailings that all Bayside, L. I., rose up in protest. In consequence "Anastasia" was raffled off.

Miss White and her pet pig were familiar sights on Long Island, as the movie star was accustomed to take Anastasia riding with her in her motor car, the pig sitting upright on the seat beside her mistress.

Richard C. Travers, Essanay leading man, has returned to the studios from Topeka, Kan., where he attended the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of that State. He led the grand march at the convention ball, and at one of the sessions gave a speech on the development of the picture industry.

Upon receipt of cable advices from C. Aubrey Smith, the Frohman Amusement Corporation has postponed the beginning of work on "The Witching Hour" until September 12, at which time Mr. Smith will arrive from London. He has been visiting William J. Locke, author of "Jaffery," with whom he has been a life long friend.

Mr. Smith arrived in London, August 28, and had just got settled when the Frohman Company cabled him that work would begin September 10 on "The Witching Hour." He immediately arranged to return, and arrangements were made with Miss Margaret Illington to postpone her rehearsals one week in order to allow Mr. Smith time to conclude his camera work. Mr. Smith will be leading man with Miss Illington in her new play, which is scheduled to open on Broadway the middle of October.

Henry B. Walthall is now at work at the Essanay studios in Chicago, planning with director and scenario writers the construction of his next five-act feature. The title has not yet been announced, but the nature of the story is well suited to Walthall, according to announcements. His last picture was "The Sting of Victory."

Bracken's new production, now being screened.

Two of Vitagraph's stars appear together for the first time in a dram just begun by Director Paul Scardon. They are Antonio Moreno, who has played opposite Edith Storey in so many productions, and Peggy Hyland, the famous English actress who supported E. H. Sothern in "The Chattel." The drama is a strictly American one, with a patriotic topic as yet unnamed. In the cast with Mr. Moreno and Miss Hyland will be such favorites as Chas. Kent, Arthur Cozine, Mary Maurice and Gordon Gray.

Exterior scenes for "The Chaperon," the next five-act Essanay feature, with Edna Mayo and Eugene O'Brien, will be taken at Washington Island off the shore of the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Anita Stewart, whose recent illness alarmed her friends and admirers all over the world, is recovering her strength in the Catskill mountains and expects to return to her work at the Vitagraph studio about October 1. In the meantime Director S. Rankin Drew is resuming scenes in "The Girl Phillipa" and will finish those requiring all members of the cast except Miss Stewart.

Gladys Brockwell is now at work on a new photoplay for William Fox under the direction of Frank Lloyd. This is Mr. Lloyd's first picture under the Fox banner.

Jose Turns Studio Into a Set

Edward Jose of the Astra, who is directing a new Pathe serial with Pearl White as the star, turned the entire floor of the studio in Jersey City into one monster set the other day. He was staging a diplomatic ball and wished to have the walls almost completely covered with heavy plate glass mirrors, but found that put them where he would the camera was reflected in them. Finally he hit upon the idea of tilting them forward and got the effect he wished.

Doris Grey and Wayne Arey, who are to be co-starred in Lloyd Lonergan's Thanhouser play, "Her Beloved Enemy," are going to appear on Broadway some night next week. However, they are to appear in a newspaper office, not in a theatre. Several scenes in "Her Beloved Enemy" take place in a newspaper office and the New York Herald building will be borrowed for the occasion.

The notification ceremony at Long Branch last week, in which President Wilson was the central figure of a series of picturesque and stirring scenes, will form one of the episodes of "The Man Who Forgot," a forthcoming World-Brady photoplay in which Robert Warwick has the star part. By special permission, Director Emile Chautard and a corps of camera men "took" the event from every conceivable angle.

Velma Virginia Whitman, who played in the William Fox picture version of "East Lynne," has returned to the Fox forces. She will appear in a photoplay now under way.

Natalie Alt, who will be pleasantly remembered for her work in "Adele" and later in "The Girl Who Smiles," will shortly be seen as a screen star. A prominent motion picture concern has been negotiating with her and it is expected that she will sign up soon. A well known author has written a story especially for her. Lionel Hein is representing her.

Juanita Hansen with Fox

Juanita Hansen, known to moving picture fans the country over as a leading woman in many film productions, is now a William Fox star, working in the California studios under the direction of Otis Turner. In her first production under the Fox banner she will play the chief role opposite George Walsh in an appealing drama with an unique plot. Anna Luther, who played the lead in Mr. Walsh's last picture, has been assigned to another director.

Lionel Barrymore has begun work in a new Metro picture called "The Brand of Cowardice," dealing with present conditions in Mexico and on the Mexican border. John W. Noble will be the director.

Emily Stevens's next vehicle is called "The Wheels of Justice," and is really a play within a play, as Miss Stevens has the part of a Broadway star, who is appearing in "La Tosca." The most important scenes from the well-known opera are shown on the screen. Frank Mills is featured in her support. When completed the picture will be released on the Metro program.

Reinhard at World Film

John Reinhard, who has been leading heavy with the Gaumont forces for some time past, has been engaged to play the part of Charlie Waller in the World Film production of "The Man Who Forgot," starring Robert Warwick.

Scene from the Thanhouser Production Entitled "The Fear of Poverty," Featuring Florence La Badie. Released Through Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Among the features of the Vim Comedies in which Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby star, are scenic effects planned by Harry Myers, himself. Myers was a pupil of Urban, the famous scenic artist. The latest one of the series is "The Strenuous Visit."

In one of the scenes is shown a police station staged as Harry Myers thinks a police station ought to look, but it is a far cry from the grim abode of the green lamps to Harry's idea.

In discussing this setting, Mr. Myers says "I've been in any number of police stations both on my own part and for friends—and on entering them I always had a feeling of 'Lord! I wish I didn't have to go in there!' And after I forced myself in or had someone persuade me to go in, there was still that same creepy feeling that made you feel as though you had committed some crime, and I've talked to a lot of people who had at different times visited the same place and they were of the same opinion.

Owing to the fact that Emily Stevens, the Metro star, will resume her stage engagement within three weeks, which will take her to Chicago, Director George D. Baker will be obliged to produce the five-part feature, "The Wager," in exactly two weeks and four days. Miss Stevens will open the season of 1916-17 in the play, "The Unchastened Woman," which was counted the biggest success of the season last year on Broadway.

"The Wager" is a powerful story, written by Mr. Baker especially for Miss Stevens, and both star and director will be hard put to complete the production in the brief time allotted for it. However, both have consented to work early and late. The making of the picture has been systematized in such a way that Miss Stevens' scenes can all be photographed first. The incidental scenes, in which she does not appear, will be made after she has gone to Chicago.

Miss Stevens' role in "The Wager" is that of Diamond Daisy, a high class girl crook, who will not steal anything but diamonds. Her regeneration and her struggle to win back health and honor to the man she loves, furnish the central theme of this powerful photodrama. Miss Stevens has just completed the stellar role in "The Wheel of Justice," which will be an early release on the Metro program. Mr. Baker directed this production.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, the popular Metro stars, who recently completed the stellar roles in the stupendous screen production of "Romeo and Juliet," are now at work on a five-part Metro-Quality feature called "A Diplomatic Romance." Mr. Bushman is directing the production, and he collaborated in the writing of the scenario.

As the title plainly implies, "A Diplomatic Romance" is a story of romance and diplomacy, and is a typical Bushman-Bayne production. The stars are surrounded by a strong supporting cast headed by Helen Dunbar.

Many of the scenes are laid in and around Washington, D. C., and Mr. Bushman will transport his company there to photograph the action in the real locations. The interiors will be made in the Metro-Quality studio, formerly the Victor studio, at Forty-third street and Eleventh avenue, which Mr. Bushman recently took over.

When "A Diplomatic Romance" is completed Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne will begin work on the serial which is being prepared for them. W. Christy Cabanne, for many years David W. Griffith's first lieutenant and recently director with the Fine Arts in the Triangle Company, will direct the Bushman-Bayne serial.

MOTION PICTURE COLONY IN JACKSONVILLE IS INCREASED BY PLAYERS FROM GATE CITY COMPANY

Special to Motion Picture News.

Jacksonville, Sept. 9.

Jacksonville's motion picture colony has been increased by the arrival of a company of players from the Gate City Pictures Company, of Greensboro, N. C., and Chicago, who, under the direction of Albert W. Hale, have rented stage space from the Eagle Film Company for an indefinite period. They will produce a series of comedies featuring "Smiling" Roland Hill. Mr. Hill is himself a director and stockholder in the company, and will star in Roland fun films.

The big plant of the Eagle Company is capable of taking care of six companies working at the same time, and the leasing of stage space by the Gate City Pictures Company will not interfere with the productions of the Eagle Company.

Manager Storm Boyd, of the Kalem Company in Jacksonville, has announced that Ivy Close will leave for England today, and Olive Kirby, who has been starred in Kalem's "Social Pirates," will be transferred from the Pacific Coast studios of the company to Jacksonville. George Larkin will also be sent to Jacksonville by the Kalem Company, and Henry Murdock, the Kalem comedian, will be transferred to the Pacific Coast.

The Vim Company have been taking a two weeks' vacation, on account of being ahead of their releases. Among those to take advantage of this short rest period are Babe Hardy and Billy Ruge, the Vim Plump and Runt comedians. Babe and Billy, accompanied by Mrs. Hardy, spent the two weeks at Atlantic Beach, where they frolicked in the brimy deep.

Manager Louis Burstein, of the Vim Company, is in New York on a business trip, and while there will pay a visit to Providence, where Harry C. Myers and Rosemary Theby, are working on Vim comedies.

Gary McGary, a well-known star in the movie world, in a recent visit to Orlando, with a view of inspecting the scenery for motion picture locations, pronounced it perfect in every detail. Mr. McGary is associated with the Gotham Film Company of New York, and says it is his intention to try and persuade the company to complete the picturization of "A Message to Garcia" by Elbert Hubbard, part of which has already been made in Cuba.

Mr. McGary completed arrangements to have it produced in that city, and the company will come South as soon as he reaches New York.
